Article 202 of the Constitution must be read with Arts. 149 and 150 of the Constitution and thus the Budget or "the annual financial statement" must give such particulars of the receipts and expenditure as would be necessary to satisfy the requirements of the Comptroller and Auditor-General for maintaining the accounts. In other words, the receipts and expenditure must be classified in the Budget in the way indicated in the List of Major Heads of Account. Failure to do so will amount to a non-compliance with Arts. 149 and 150 which are as much binding on the State Government and the Legislature as any other provision in the Constitution bearing on the powers of the Government and the Legislature.

The Rule that the Budget must follow the pattern of the List of Major and Minor Heads does not however imply that a separate grant must be made in respect of each head of the account comprised in the Budget or that money expedible under each head of account prescribed by the List must be sought in a single demand. What each demand should comprise of is dealt' with in R. 109 (1) of the Assembly Rules which ordinarily requires that a separate demand should be made for each department of the Government but permits the Finance Minister to include in one demand grants for two or more departments. Piarelal Singh v. State of M. P., ILR (1954) Nag 764: AIR 1955 Nag 11 (18) (Pt E) (Prs. 26, 27) (SB).

ARTICLE 203

●——Art. 203 — Power of executive Government to carry on trade or business — Trade or business involving expenditure fund — Authorisation of expenditure by Parliament — Power of reduction of amount. See Ibid, Art. 162. AIR 1955 SC 549.

●——Art. 203 — Requirements under.

The only requirements of Art. 203 are that every demand shall be recommended by the Governor and that it shall be put separately to the vote of the Assembly. The article refers to 'demands' only and makes no reference whatsoever to the separate items constituting the demands, or to the purpose for which each item is required. Piarelal Singh v. State of M. P., ILR (1954) Nag 764: AIR 1955 Nag 11 (21) (Pt G) (Pr 39) (SB).

ARTICLE 204

●——Art. 204 — Power of executive Government to carry on trade or business — Expenditure on such trade or business — Introduction of Appropriation Bill after sanction of grant — Procedure indicated. See Ibid, Art. 162. AIR 1955 SC 549.

——Arts. 204 and 27 — Specific appropriation in Art. 27 refers only to appropriation contemplated by Art. 204 and not any other independent or specific appropriation, not permitted or warranted by the Constitution. See Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act (19 of 1951), Section 20. AIR 1952 Mad 613 (DB).

●——Art. 204 — Appropriation Act — Purpose and effect of.

The Appropriation Act is the second stage in the authorization of expenditure, the first being the voting of grants by the Assembly. After the Act is passed the limitation of the expenditure under a head is to be determined by reference to the Schedule of the Act.

Again, an expenditure can be incurred by the Government on an object provided that it can be ascribed to any of the heads mentioned in the Schedule. Where it can be so ascribed and the limit of expenditure prescribed in the Schedule has not exceeded, its constitutionality cannot be questioned. In other words money appropriated towards a particular head in the Schedule is to be spent on that head only and no other unless the Schedule is amended by an appropriate law or perhaps unless such a course is permitted by any rule consistent with the Constitution. Piarelal Singh v. State of M. P., ILR (1954) Nag 764: AIR 1955 Nag 11 (22) (Pt I) (Pr 44) (SB).

ARTICLE 205

●——Art. 205 — Applicability — Need arising before the Budget.

The provision of Art. 205 can be availed of only if the money already voted for a particular purpose in the Budget is insufficient or when a need arises after the Budget was passed for incurring a particular expenditure or when some new service not contemplated in the Budget has been started.

Where the Memorandum accompanying the Budget clearly states that a need has already arisen and that a new service is already contemplated, Art. 205 of the Constitution cannot come in and a provision for the expenditure has to be made in the Budget itself. Piarelal Singh v. State of M. P., ILR (1954) Nag 764 : AIR 1955 Nag 11 (23) (Pt J) (Pr 45) (SB).

ARTICLE 207

●——Art. 207 — Introduction of Bill — Sanction of Governor not appearing on face of it — Effect. See Government of India Act (1935), Section 87. ILR (1956) 8 Assam 379 (FB).

——Arts. 207 and 212 — Bengal Finance (Sales Tax), (Second Amendment) Act, 1955 — Governor's recommendation — Bill imposing tax on certain articles introduced without Governor's recommendation — Governor's assent published in Gazette — Defect cured by assent — Act not invalid. See Ibid. Art. 255. (1965) 69 Cal WN 273 : AIR 1966 Cal 81.

——Art. 207 — Sales Tax — (Kerala) General Sales Tax Act (11 of 1125) — Ss. 3 (1) (b), 4, Sch. I, Item (1) — Amendment to, by Kerala Act 14 of 1959 — Validity of Act.

Art. 207 forms part of the legislative procedure in financial matters and Courts are precluded by Art. 212 from enquiring into any alleged irregularity of such procedure. Therefore, complaint against the constitutionality of the Kerala Act 14 of 1959, amending the General Sales Tax Act 1125 based on the absence of Governor's recommendation of the Bill cannot be accepted. AIR 1961 Ker 36 (40) (Pt D) (Pr 15).

——Art. 207—Bills requiring previous recommendation—Absence of recommendation — Subsequent assent — Sufficiency and effect of. See Ibid, Art. 225. 1957 Raj LW 518.

ARTICLE 208

●——Art. 208 (1) — Rules of procedure framed by Legislature — These must be subject to provisions of Part III.

Article 208 (1) provides that a House of the Legislature of a State may make rules for regulating, subject to the provisions of this Constitution, its procedure and the conduct of its business. This provision makes it perfectly clear that if the House were to make any rules as prescribed by it, those rules would be subject to the fundamental rights guaranteed by Part 3. In other words, where the House makes rules for exercising its powers under the latter part of Art. 194 (3), those rules must be subject to the fundamental rights of the citizens. In the Matter of under Article 143 of the Constitution of India. (1965) 1 SCA 447: (1965) 1 SCJ 847: AIR 1965 SC 745 (767) (Pt L) (Pr 61).

●——Art. 208 — Rules under — Rule 207 — Specific matter of recent occurrence.

The subject-matter of a privilege motion must obviously be left to the discretion of the Speaker of the House of Legislature to determine whether the subject-matter of that motion is or is not a specific matter of recent occurrence. M. S. M. Sharma v. Sri Krishna Sinha, (1959) 2 MLJ (SC) 125: (1959) 2 Andh WR (SC) 125: (1959) Mad LJ

(Cr) 660: 1959 SCJ 925: (1959) Supp (1) SCR 806: AIR 1959 SC 395 (411) (Pt F) (Pr 29a).

●——Art. 208 — Rules under — R. 215 — 'At any time'.

The words 'at any time' occurring in the second proviso quite clearly indicate that extension of time may be within the time fixed by the house or, on its failure to do so, within the time fixed by the first proviso or even thereafter, but before the report is actually made or presented to the House. Further, the question of time within which the Committee of Privileges is to make its report to the House is a matter of internal management of the affairs of the House and a matter between the House and its Committee and confers no right on the party and this is so particularly when the House has the power to extend time 'at any time'. ILR 13 All 300 (PC). Rel. on. M. S. M. Sharma v. Sri Krishna Sinha, (1959) 2 Mad LJ (SC) 125: (1959) 2 Andh WR (SC) 125: 1959 Mad LJ (Cr) 660: 1959 SCJ 925: (1959) Supp (1) SCR 806: AIR 1959 SC 395 (411, 412) (Pt G) (Pr 31).

——Art. 208 (1) — U. P. Legislative Assembly — Rules of Procedure and Conduct of Business R. 74 — Cannot be challenged on ground of violation of principles of natural justice. See Ibid, Art. 226. (1965) 2 Cri LJ 170: AIR 1965 All 349 (DB).

——Art. 208 (1) — Rule 143 of the Rules of Procedure and Conduct of Business of U. P. Legislative council framed under Art. 203 (1) — Validity — Rule is not ultra vires but is constitutionally valid. See Ibid, Art. 183. AIR 1963 All 75.

——Arts. 208, 212 — Rules of Procedure of U. P. Assembly, Rr. 67, 189 (3) — Reference by Speaker to Committee of Privileges — Validity — Jurisdiction of Court.

A, a member of a State Legislature insisted on the immediate consideration of a certain motion but his request was not granted by the Speaker. On about three occasions A was asked by the Speaker to sit down; but, as he was not prepared to take notice of even the points of order raised, the Speaker asked him to withdraw from the House. A did not comply with that direction. Thereafter the Speaker drew the attention of the House to the defiant attitude adopted by A and ordered the police to remove him from the Assembly Hall by using the minimum amount of force necessary for that purpose. On being so ordered, the police forcibly removed A by bodily lifting him from the Assembly Hall, he having squatted on the floor of the House. Similar scenes happened in the case of two other members who were also ejected forcibly from the Hall. After their removal from the House the Speaker drew the attention of the House to the intransigent attitude that they had adopted and observed that in his opinion, their conduct constituted a breach of the privileges of the House. As he did not think that the incident should be ignored, he referred the matter to the Committee of Privileges. On the recommendation of the Committee the House passed a resolution suspending A till the sitting of the House. A applied under Art. 226 of the Constitution for a writ against the Speaker on the ground that the resolution was void and the order passed upon it unconstitutional. It was further argued that the reference to the Committee of Privileges by the Speaker of a matter which could be dealt with by the standing order of rules of the House was wrong and contrary to established Parliamentary practice and that it constituted, the creation of a new privilege for the House.

Held, that (1) The Speaker could, under R. 67 of the Rules of Procedure, refer any question of privilege to the Committee of Privileges for examination, investigation or report. Whether the question was one of privilege or not was a matter solely for the Speaker to decide.

(2) That even if there had been no such express rule the High Court had no jurisdiction to issue a writ, direction or order relating to a matter which affected the internal affairs of the House as under Art. 212 both the Speaker and the other officers were protected from scrutiny by a Court of law for what was done in the House.

(3) That there was no creation of a new privilege in the procedure adopted by the Speaker or the State Legislature.

(4) That the matters complained of were only of procedural character and that the resolution of the House did not go beyond a matter of procedure.

(5) That while there was no doubt that the right of a member to continue to represent his constituency in Paliament gets affected by his suspension for whatever period, yet even on that assumption there is no legal remedy open to a member if his rights get affected by something done within the walls of the legislature. Art. 212 (2) of the Constitution was decisive on the point.

(6) That there are good reasons why the Courts should not interfere with the mode in which the Legislature conducts its internal affairs. In the ultimate analysis, it is in an assiduous education of the tremendous forces generated by a vast electorate that remedies against real or supposed highhandedness on the part of any particular legislature lies. With all those matters, which are of a political nature the Courts have no concern. ILR (1955) 1 All 25: 1954 Cr LJ 691: AIR 1954 All 319 (327, 328, 335) (Pt J) (Prs. 15, 16, 45) (DB).

——Art. 208 — Passage of Bill in Legislature — Matter of internal procedure of Legislature — High Courts have no power to interfere. See Ibid, Art. 194. AIR 1965 Andh Pra 306.

——Art. 208 — Rules of Procedure and Conduct of Business (Framed by Assam Legislative Assembly) — Language of Article is wide enough to cover Rules. ILR (1958) 10 Assam 461: AIR 1958 Assam 160 (166, 167, 168) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 208 — Rules of Procedure and Conduct of Business (Framed by Assam Legislative Assembly) Rr. 158, 163, 175, 176 and 181 — Person in contempt — Speaker's authority to summon such person.

Held, on facts that under the Rules of Procedure and Conduct of Business in the Assam Legislative Assembly, the Speaker and the Secretary of the Legislative Assembly, in the absence of any resolution of the House, had authority to summon the petitioner to appear before the Privileges Committee. ILR (1958) 10 Assam 461: AIR 1958 Assam 160 (162, 166, 167, 168) (Pt D) (Prs 3, 9, 10) (DB).

——Arts. 208 and 226 — Rules of Procedure and Conduct of Business (framed by Assam Legislative Assembly) R. 314 — Interpretation of Rules.

The question of interpretation of the rules lies with the Speaker so that even if the procedure adopted by the Speaker is irregular, it would not be open to the High Court to go into the matter, because the decision of the Speaker has a finality on the point. ILR (1958) 10 Assam 461:

AIR 1958 Assam 160 (166, 167, 168) (Pt E) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 208 (2) — Working of Legislature — Procedure for — Business transacted prior to prorogation does not lapse —Applicability of Art. 212 (1). See Ibid, Art. 194 (3). ILR (1957) Bom 218.

——Art. 208 (1) — Rules of Procedure and Conduct of Business (W. B. Legislative Assembly), R. 16 — Governor's address before Legislature under Art. 176 — Address must be by delivery of speech. See Ibid, Art. 176 (1). (1965) 69 Cal WN 484: AIR 1966 Cal 363.

——Arts. 208 and 212 — The powers, privileges and immunities of the State legislatures and their members have been laid down in the Constitution. Within the legislature members have absolute freedom of speech and discussion. Subject to the provisions of the Constitution they can regulate their own procedure. In such matters and within their allotted spheres they are supreme and cannot be called into account by the Court, of the land. AIR 1956 Cal 378 (384) (Pt G) (Pr 23).

● ——Arts. 208 (2), 212 (1) — Irregularity in passing a Bill — Effect.

(Per Dixit J.) :— The form, content or subject-matter of a Bill at the time of its introduction into or of its consideration by the Assembly on the report of the Select Committee, is not a matter with which a Court of law is concerned. The question, whether the Assembly should have passed the Bill as reported, by the Select Committee or recommitted it to the Select Committee or dropped the Bill, is a domestic matter relating to the procedure followed by the Assembly in the course of legislation. If there is any irregularity in the procedure followed by the Assembly in passing the Bill it does not make the culminating Act invalid or ultra vires. Ram Dubey v. Government of the State of M. B. ILR (1952) Madh Bha 178: AIR 1952 Madh Bha 57 (73, 74) (Pt R) (Pr 84) (FB).

●——Art. 208 (1)—Breach of Finance Rules—Not unconstitutional — Advisability of following the procedure. See Finance Rules, R. 534. AIR 1955 Nag 11 (SB).

●——Art. 208 (1) — The provisions of Art. 208 are merely enabling ones. Moreover they relate only to procedural matters. Where a body has been given complete powers to regulate its own procedure, it has by implication also the power to waive or condone the breach of its procedural rules — Non-compliance with Budget — Effect of — Power of Legislature to condone irregularity in its procedure — Jurisdiction of Court. See M. P. Legislative Assembly Rules (1950), R. 109 (2). AIR 1955 Nag 11 (SB).

——Arts. 208 (2), 212 (2) — Extent of immunity of Speaker — (Words and Phrases — 'With respect to' and 'in relation to Legislature').

The words 'with respect to the Legislature' and 'in relation to the Legislature' in Art. 208 (2) have wider significance than the words 'in the Legislature. Clause (2) of Art. 208 therefore, includes within its scope not only the rules dealing with procedure and conduct of business during the actual session of the Legislature but all other incidential or ancillary matters. 76 CLR 1, Rel. on.

The immunity of the Speaker in respect of actions taken by him in exercise of the powers conferred by the Orissa Legislative Rules which are validly kept in force by Art. 208 (2) is limited to those rules of procedure and conduct of business which deal with proceedings in the Legislature and does not extend to those rules which deal with incidental or ancillary matters. 19 Cut LT 183: ILR (1953) Cut 404: AIR 1953 Orissa 111 (114) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 208 (2) — 'Rules of procedure' — Meaning — Orissa Legislative Rules, Rr. 45, 49 are in force — (Orissa Legislative Rules, Rr. 45, 49) — (Words and Phrases — "Rules of procedure") — (Interpretation of Statutes).

As words and phrases should be given the same meaning throughout a statute it is obvious that the expression 'rules of procedure' occurring in Cl. (2) of Art. 208 should be given the same meaning given to that expression in the marginal note to Cl. (1). As a matter of construction, therefore, the expression 'rules of procedure' means rules regulating the procedure and conduct of business of the Legislature. The omission of the words 'conduct of business' in that clause does not affect the survival of Rules 45 to 49 of the Orissa Legislative Rules dealing with the conduct of business in the Assembly, which are therefore, validly in force after the commencement of the Constitution. 19 Cut LT 183: ILR (1953) Cut 404: AIR 1953 Orissa 111 (115) (Pt D) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 208 (2) — Rules adapted by Speaker under Cl. (2) of Art. 208 — Primary function of Speaker to regulate the conduct of business and procedure of Assembly. See Ibid, Art. 176. AIR 1952 Orissa 234 (DB).

ARTICLE 210

——Art. 210 — English version of Government gazette showing 3-8-1959 as date of appointment of 'A' as Public Analyst — Hindi version showing 3-4-1959 as date of his appointment — In case of divergence, English version prevails over Hindi version. See Prevention of Food Adulteration Act. (1954), S. 8. 1965 (1) Cri LJ 418: AIR 1965 All 170.

●——Art. 210 — Authoritative text of Bills, Acts etc. — Hindi and English versions of Bill, Act etc. published in official gazette — Both versions are authorised — English version is to be treated as authoritative only in case of conflict between two versions 1961 All LJ 506: 1961 All WR (HC) 542 Overruled. See Ibid, Art. 348 (3). AIR 1962 All 240 (FB).

——Art. 210 — Framing of law is an important business that a State Legislature has to transact and when the State Legislature is allowed to use Hindi language in transacting its business it must be assumed that it can pass laws also in that language — M.B. Panchayat Rules, R. 38 — Rules promulgated in Hindi — English translation not given —Validity. See Ibid, Art. 348. AIR 1957 Madh Bha 26 (DB).

ARTICLE 211

——Art. 211 — Freedom of speech in State Legislature — Limits to. See Ibid, Art. 194 (1). 1958 Cri LJ 1055: AIR 1958 Orissa 168 (DB).

ARTICLE 212

SYNOPSIS

(Constitution of India, 1950, Art. 212)

1. Irregularity of procedure in Legislature — Effect — Clause (1).

2. "Officer or member of the Legislature".

3. Immunity from legal proceedings — Clause (2).

1. Irregularity of procedure in Legislature — Effect — Clause (1).

●——Arts. 212, 255 — Mysore Existing Laws (Construction of References to Values) Act (XII of 1957), Ss. 3, 2 — Substitution of Naya Paisas in place of pies in Mysore Sales Tax Act — Effect — Tax expressed in terms of Naya Paisas cannot be challenged as unconstitutional.

The levy of sales tax under the Mysore Sales Tax Act in terms of naya paisa in place of pies, after the enactment of the Mysore Act XII of 1957, which has made a provision for charging the tax in terms of naya paisa instead of pies, is not unconstitutional, nor is the latter Act a taxing measure but it deals merely with the conversion of the old coinage into new coinage. By substitution of new coinage, i.e., naya paisas in place of annas, and pies no enhancement of tax was enacted but it was merely a substitution of one coinage by another of equivalent value. Even assuming that it is a taxing measure its validity cannot be challenged on the grounds that it offends Arts. 197 to 199. Art. 212 prohibits the validity of any proceedings in a legislature of a State from being called in question on the ground of any alleged irregularity of procedure and Art. 255 lays down that requirements as to recommendation and previous sanction are to be regarded as matters of procedure only. Consequently, the tax cannot be challenged on the ground that it is contrary to the provisions of the Constitution. Mangalore Ganesh Beedi Works v. State of Mysore, (1963) 2 SCJ 309: (1963) 1 Mys LJ (SC) 27 : (1963) 1 SCWR 76: (1963) Supp 1 SCR 275: (1963) 14 STC 198: AIR 1963 SC 589 (590, 591) (Prs 5, 6, 7).

●——Art. 212 (1) — Irregularity of procedure — Omission to put question by Speaker as required by rules governing legislative business.

One of the Ministers moved that the C. P. and Berar Abolition of Proprietary Rights (Estates, Mahals, Alienated Lands) Bill as considered by the House be passed into law. Thereupon the Speaker read the motion to the House and this was followed by several speeches welcoming the measure. The official report of the proceedings did not record that the Speaker put the question as required by R. 20 (1) of the Rules governing the legislative business and that the motion was carried. The original bill signed and authenticated by the Speaker however contained an endorsement by the Speaker that the bill was passed by the Assembly on 5-4-1950. The endorsement was signed by the Speaker on 10-5-1950. The official report of the proceedings was prepared on 21-6-1950 and was signed by the Speaker on 1-10-1950.

Held, that the omission as to the motion having been put and carried could not, in the face of the explicit statement by the Speaker endorsed on the bill, be taken to establish that the bill was not put to the House and carried by it. In any case, the omission to put the motion formally to the House, even if true, was, in the circumstances, no more than a mere irregularity of procedure as it was not disputed that the overwhelming majority of the members present and voting were in favour of carrying the motion and no dissentient voice was actually raised. State of Bihar v. Kameshwar Singh, 1952 SCJ 354 : ILR 31 Pat 565 : 1952 SCR 889: 1953 SCA 53: 65 Mad LW 527: AIR 1952 SC 252 (266, 267) (Pt S) (Pr 22).

——Arts. 212 (1) and 226 — Proceedings in Legislative Council of State — Mere irregularity of procedure or non-compliance with rules of procedure for conduct of its business will not affect its validity and will not be a ground for issuing a writ under Art. 226 — But if there is a violation of the constitutional requirement or Chairman has acted in excess of his powers under Constitution, Court may interfere by issuing a writ. ILR (1963) 2 All 151: AIR 1963 All 75 (77, 78) (Pt A) (Prs 11, 12) (DB).

——Art. 212 — Passage of Bill in Legislature — Matter of internal procedure of legislature—High Courts have no power to interfere — See Ibid, Art. 194. AIR 1965 Andh Pra 306.

——Art. 212 (1) — Andhra Pradesh Regional Committee Order (1958), Pr. 3 — Regional Committee constituted under Pr. 3 — Defect in procedure in holding its meetings — Bill in pursuance of its report passed into an Act — Art. 212 (1) applies — Validity cannot be questioned on ground of irregularity of procedure — See Ibid, Art. 371 (1). AIR 1965 Andh Pra 306.

——Art. 212 — Breach of privilege of Legislature — Powers of the House to punish — Extent of — Unauthorised publication by newspapers of certain committee report — Motion for breach of privilege—Matter referred to Privilege Committee for investigation and report — Committee issuing show cause notice to editors — Writ petition against notice — Held, Court had no jurisdiction to interfere at that stage. See Ibid, Art. 194. AIR 1965 Assam 74 (DB).

——Arts. 212, 226 — Objection as to validity of proceedings of Legislature — Objection founded on plea that members not entitled to vote had voted on a Bill — Competency of High Court to entertain — (Quaere). 59 Bom LR 355 : AIR 1957 Bom 165 (166) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 212 (1) — Working of Legislature — Procedure for — Business transacted prior to prorogation does not lapse — Applicability of Art. 212 (1). See Ibid, Art. 194 (3). ILR (1957) Bom 218.

——Art. 212 (1) — Governor's address before Legislature — Governor attempting to deliver speech — Disturbances in House — Walk out by Governor — Copy of address laid on table of House — Duty under Art. 176 (1) is merely irregularly performed — Mere irregularity cannot be questioned under Art. 212 (1). See Ibid, Art. 176 (1). (1965) 69 Cal WN 484 : AIR 1966 Cal 363.

——Art. 212 (1) — Proceedings inside Legislative Chamber — Extent of powers and privileges of Legislature — Proceedings not merely irregular but illegal or unconstitutional — High Court is competent to issue mandate upon Legislature. See Ibid, Art. 226. (1965) 69 Cal WN 484 : AIR 1966 Cal 363.

——Arts. 212 (1), 226, and 194 (3)— Proceedings inside Legislative Chamber — Extent of powers and privileges of Legislature — Proceedings not merely irregular but illegal or unconstitutional — High Court is competent to issue mandate upon Legislature : AIR 1965 SC 745, Foll. (1965) 69 Cal WN 484 : AIR 1966 Cal 363 (367) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

——Art. 212 — Writ against Legislative body to prevent it from passing certain law. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1956 Cal 378.

——Art. 212 — Sales-tax—(Kerala) General Sales-tax Act (11 of 1125), S. 3 (1) (b) — Amendment to, by Kerala Act (14 of 1959) — Validity — Held, did not offend Art. 207 of the Constitution — Courts are precluded by Art. 212 from enquiring into any alleged irregularity of procedure. See Sales Tax—(Kerala) General Sales Tax Act (11 of 1125), S. 3 (1) (b). AIR 1961 Ker 36.

——Art. 212 — Jurisdiction of Court.

(Per Dixit, J.) : The validity of the proceedings of the Legislature can be called in question on a ground other than the ground of an irregularity of procedure. Thus, the proceedings would not be protected if they are held in defiance of the provisions of the Constitution or by exercising some powers which the Legislature under the Cons-tution does not possess. ILR (1952) Madh B 145: AIR 1952 Madh B 31 (43, 44) (Pt P) (Pr 43)(DB).

●——Art. 212 — Non-compliance with Budget — Effect of — Power of Legislature to condone irregularity in its procedure — Jurisdiction of Court. See M. P. Legislative Assembly Rules (1950), R. 109 (2). AIR 1955 Nag 11 (SB).

●——Art. 212 (1) — Art. 212 (1) bars the Court from questioning the validity of any proceedings on the ground of alleged irregularity of procedure. See Tenancy Laws — Madhya Pradesh Abolition of Proprietary Rights (Estates, Mahals, Alienated Lands) Bill. AIR 1955 NUC (Nag) 1341 (FB).

●——Art. 212 (1) — Amendments to Bill in Select Committee — Adoption by Assembly — It might be at most irregularity in procedure — Court cannot question it under Art. 212 (1). AIR 1955 NUC (Nag) 1341 (FB).

——Art. 212 (1)—Money bill transmitted to Legislative Council with certificate of presiding member acting as Speaker instead of Speaker — Irregularity — Validity of proceedings of Legislature cannot be called in question. See Ibid, Art. 199 (4). AIR 1963 Pat 16 (DB).

——Art. 212 — Powers of Speaker under R. 171-A of Rules of Procedure and Conduct of Business in the Punjab Legislative Assembly — Proceedings of legislature — Art. 212 bars enquiry by Courts. See Panchayats — Punjab Gram Panchayat Amendment Act (1959), S. 1. ILR (1962) 1 Punj 45.

2. "Officer or member of the Legislature."

——Art. 212 — Officers and members of Parliament or legislature — Court cannot interfere with their legislative function. See Ibid, Art. 105. AIR 1956 Hyd 186 (DB).

——Art. 212 (2) — 'Officer of the Assembly' — Speaker is the premier officer. 19 Cut LT 183 : ILR (1953) Cut 404 : AIR 1953 Orissa 111 (113) (Pt C) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 212 — Scope of — Powers of Speaker in respect of conduct of proceedings, or Legislative Assembly — Bar of jurisdiction of Court.

Art. 212 of the Constitution operates as a bar to the jurisdiction of the High Court being invoked for the issue of a writ under Art. 226 against the Speaker of the Assembly or the Secretary of the Assembly in the matter of the conduct of proceedings in Council. The Secretary of the Assembly, is an officer of the Legislature within the meaning of Art. 212 (2). A point of order raised by a Member as to whether a certain matter should be discussed or not in the Assembly relates to the conduct of the business of the Assembly. ILR (1952) Cut 209 : AIR 1952 Orissa 234 (236, 237) (Prs 3, 4, 5, 9) (DB).

——Art. 212 (2) — Officer of Legislature —Right to remain in office in question — Courts' jurisdiction to deal with matter (Obiter).

Obiter—When the matter in controversy has nothing to do with the exercise by an officer of the Legislature of the powers vested in him, but is concerned with a relevant provision of law which is alleged to affect his legal right to continue in office, a Court of law does have jurisdiction to deal with the matter. 1951 Ker LT 612 : AIR 1952 Trav-Co 205 (207) (Pt D) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Arts. 212 (2) and 178 and 188 — Officer of legislature — Speaker administering oath.

The officers of the assembly are mentioned in Article 178. The Speaker is an officer of the assembly and the ruling that he gives in the conduct of business may not be subject to the control of the Civil Courts. But the oath to the member is to be administered under Art. 188 by His Highness the Rajpramukh or by some one appointed by him in that behalf. It may be that His Highness the Rajpramukh may appoint the Speaker to administer the oath. But the administration of the oath is not a function exercised by the Speaker in his official capacity. And will not give him any special prerogative to seek shelter under Article 212. 12 QBD 271, Disting. ILR (1952) TC 66 : 1952 Ker LT 166 : AIR 1952 Trav-C 166 (169) (Pt B) (Pr 6).

3. Immunity from legal proceedings—Clause (2).

——Art. 212 (2) — Whether High Court has jurisdiction to interfere with decision of Speaker of a House of Legislature under R. 278 (2) of U. P. Legislative Assembly Rules of Procedure and Conduct of Business (1958). AIR 1954 Ker 194 and AIR 1952 Trav-Co 166, Ref. (Quaere). AIR 1965 All 536 (542) (Pt C) (Pr 23).

——Art. 212 (2) — Reference by Speaker to Committee of Privileges — Validity — Jurisdiction of Court. See Ibid, Art. 208. 1954 Cr LJ 691 : AIR 1954 All 319 (DB).

——Art. 212 — Bill passed by Legislative Assembly — Presentation to Governor is essential — Prayer for injunction against Council of Ministers for preventing such presentation — Courts will not allow it. See Ibid, Art. 168. AIR 1965 Andh Pra 306.

——Arts. 212 (2) and 252 (2) — Protection under Art. 212 (2) — Nature of — Immunity under Art. 252 (2) — When available.

Protection to the Speaker and Officers under Art. 212 (2) is evidently based on the complete supremacy of the House. The orders of the House have to be executed through the Speaker. Thus when the Speaker signs a warrant merely for the purpose of carrying out the Order of the House, it is not in any sense an external act. Where, therefore, he acts as an officer of the House and signs the warrant in performance of the duty arising in connection with the internal affairs of the House, the immunity provided by Art. 252 (2) is available and complete. The immunity is an absolute one and officers are protected even if the warrant is wrongly executed by others and this is a clear bar under the constitution and stands on a different and a higher footing to a bar under a Statute. AIR 1952 Madh Bha 145 and AIR 1954 All 319 (DB). Diss. 60 Bom LR 279 : ILR (1957) Bom 218.

——Arts. 212, 385 — Question regarding status of member — Jurisdiction of Court.

(Per Dixit, J.:)— Under the Constitution, it is the duty of the High Court faithfully to expound and give effect to it according to its own terms. The question as to the legality of the continuance of a person in the office of Speaker under Art. 385 is not one relating to the internal affairs of the Assembly. The question raised is one of declaring the status of a person on the interpretation of the Constitution and the High Court can declare whether under the Constitution a person has or has not the status of the Speaker of the Assembly. ILR (1952) Madh B 145 : AIR 1952 Madh B 31 (45) (Pt S) (Pr 46) (DB). [Overruled on another point in AIR 1959 SC 395.]

——Art. 212 (2) — Extent of Immunity of Speaker — (Words and Phrases — "With respect to" and "in relation to Legislature". See Ibid, Art. 208 (2). AIR 1953 Orissa 111 (DB).

——Art. 212 — 'In the Legislature' — Rule regulating notice of questions — (Orissa Legislative Assembly Rules, R. 45).

The giving of notice of questions by a member of the Assembly is part of the proceedings in the Assembly and consequently any rule regulating the notice of questions is a rule regulating the conduct of business in the Legislature. 19 Cut LT 183 : ILR (1953) Cut 404 : AIR 1953 Orissa 111 (114) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 212 (2) and Art. 194 (3) — Immunity of Speaker — Whether the immunity under Art. 194 (3) is wider than that under Art. 212 (2) (Quaere). 19 Cut LT 183 : ILR (1953) Cut 404: AIR 1953 Orissa 111 (117) (Pt J) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Art. 212 (2) — Conduct of business — Taking of oath under Art. 188.

The taking of oath under Art. 188 is not an item in the conduct of business mentioned in Art. 212. It is only a condition precedent to entitle the members to sit in the assembly and conduct the business. ILR (1952) TC 66 : 1952 Ker LT 166 : AIR 1952 Trav-Co 166 (169) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

ARTICLE 212-A

(Inserted by the Constitution (Removal of Difficulties) Order, No. 2 (1950)).

●——Art. 212-A (1) — Applicability. See Ibid, Art. 201. AIR 1955 SC 504.

●——Art. 212-A (1) — Rajasthan Land Reforms and Resumption of Jagirs Act (6 of 1952) — Validity. See Ibid, Art. 385. AIR 1955 SC 504.

●——Art. 212-A (2) — Preparation of Bill by Rajpramukh — Rajasthan Land Reforms and Resumption of Jagirs Act (6 of 1952) —Validity.

Under Art. 212-A (2) the Rajpramukh has not himself to draft the Bill, and he might delegate that work to others. But questions of policy which are of the essence of the legislation should at least be decided by him. Whether a Bill is in the first instance prepared by the Rajpramukh or whether he adopts what had been prepared by the Ministers as his own, the position in law is the same. Under Art. 212-A (2) the Rajpramukh has to do two distinct acts: Firstly he has to prepare the Bill and secondly he has to reserve it for the considering of the President. When he himself prepares the Bill, he has, in order to comply with Art. 212-A (2), merely to reserve it for the consideration of the President. In such a case, no question of approval to the Bill by him can arise, but when the Bill has not been prepared by him, he has firstly, if he thinks fit, to adopt it before he could pass on to the second stage and reserve the Bill for the consideration of the President; and the very purpose of his endorsing his approval on the Bill is to show that he has thought fit to adopt it.

There is no provision in Art. 212-A (2) for the Rajpramukh approving of a Bill, and in the context, therefore, an endorsement of approval on the Bill must signify its adoption by him. If it is open to the Rajpramukh to adopt a Bill prepared by his Ministers, the only matter that will have to be considered is whether, in fact, he did so. And when the Bill is produced with an endorsement of approval under his signature, the question must be held to be concluded and any further discussion about the legislative or executive state of mind of the Rajpramukh must be ruled out as inadmissible. It cannot be said that the function of the Rajpramukh at the stage of preparation of the Bill was purely executive, and that it became legislative only when he had to decide whether he would assent to the Bill or withhold his assent therefrom, or reserve it for the consideration of the President. The position under Art. 212-A (2) has been assimilated to that under Art. 200, the preparation of the Bill by the Rajpramukh taking the place of the passing of the Bill by the Legislative Assembly and the one is as much a legislative function as the other. The Act is not bad for non-compliance with Art. 212-A (2). Amar Singhji v. State of Rajasthan, 1955 SCA 766 : 1955 SCJ 523 : AIR 1955 SC 504 (516, 517, 518) (Pt B) (Prs 17, 18, 19, 20).

——Art. 212-A inserted by the Constitution (Removal of Difficulties) Order No. 2)). — Enforcement of Police Act in Rajasthan after coming in force of the Constitution — Validity. See Ibid, Art. 372 (1). AIR 1957 Raj 28 (DB).

——Art. 212-A — Irregularity in exercise of power by Rajpramukh — Validity of law. See Ibid, Art. 385. AIR 1954 Raj 224 (DB).

——Art. 212-A — Extension of duration of Rajasthan (Protection of Tenants) Ordinance by notification — Validity of extension. See Tenancy Law — Rajasthan (Protection of Tenants) Ordinance (9 of 1949), S. 1 (3). AIR 1954 Raj 224 (DB).

●——Art. 212-A (2) — Compliance with — Presumption as to — Rajasthan Act (15 of 1951)— Validity (Tenancy Law — Rajasthan Produce Rents Regulating Act (15 of 1951), S. 1).

When it was notified on the 4th of June that the Rajasthan Act (15 of 1955) had been made by His Highness the Rajapramukh on the 2nd of June, 1951, the Court may very well infer, that the bill was prepared under his direction, and that he assented to the bill so prepared on the 2nd of June, 1951, and thus the formalities required by Art. 212-A (2) have been properly complied with. 34 CLR 420, Disting. Raj Sahiban Shersingh v. State of Rajasthan, ILR (1954) 4 Raj 365 : 1954 Raj LW 296 : AIR 1954 Raj 65 (67, 68) (Pt A) (Prs 11, 12, 13) (FB).

ARTICLE 213

●——Art. 213 (1) — Municipalities — Orissa Municipal Election Validation Ordinance (1 of 1959) — Ordinance was within 'ordinance issue power' of Governor even though it was issued with view to override judgment of High Court under Art. 226. See Municipalities — Orissa Municipal Election Validation Ordinance (1 of 1959). AIR 1962 SC 945.

——Art. 213 — Under Ch. 4 of Part 6, Governor can promulgate ordinances in the exercise of the legislative power. The Governor shall invariably accept the advice of the Ministers while promulgating an ordinance for the simple reason that the Ministers enjoy the confidence of the legislature and any ordinance promulgated without the concurrence of the Ministers shall not later become law. See Ibid, Art. 191 (1) (a). AIR 1962 All 128 (DB).

——Arts. 213, Proviso (c), 200—U. P. Universities Ordinance (1 of 1959) — Validity — Ordinance does not affect powers of High Court and is not hit by Art. 213, Proviso (c) read with Art. 200, Proviso. See U. P. Universities Ordinance (1 of 1959). AIR 1960 All 205.

——Art. 213 — Condition for promulgation of ordinance — Satisfaction of Governor — If justiciable.

The validity of an Ordinace promulgated by a Governor cannot be questioned in a Court of law. The only condition by which a Governor is restricted and which is an absolute condition, is that the Legislature must not be in session at that line. Even if the Legislature is in Session the Governor may prorogue the Legislature and thereafter make the Ordinance. AIR 1950 FC 59, AIR 1945 PC 48; and AIR 1931 PC 111 Rel. on. ILR (1959) 2 All 267 : AIR 1960 All 205 (207, 208) (Pt B) (Prs 9, 11) (DB).

——Art. 213 — U. P. Ordinance, 1 of 1949, was ultra vires the Governor — Ordinance not validated by Government of India (3rd Amendment) Act. See U. P. Administration of Evacuee Property Ordinance (1 of 1949). AIR 1957 All 561 (DB).

——Arts. 213, 123 — Satisfaction of Governor— Must be his own satisfaction.

The satisfaction of the Governor referred to in Art. 213 is subjective satisfaction and the Court is, therefore, not entitled to enquire into the reasons for that satisfaction or into the sufficiency of those reasons. ILR (1956) 2 All 665 : 1956 ALJ 556 : 1956 All WR (HC) 570 : AIR 1956 All 557 (560) (Pt A) (Pr 22) (DB).

——Arts. 213, 123 — Governor's satisfaction — Proof of existence as fact — Powers of Court.

The statement in the Ordinance in question 'whereas the Governor is satisfied that circumstances exist' is presumptive proof of the factum of satisfaction. Though the Court may inquire into the fact of Governor's satisfaction, it cannot inquire into the reasons for that satisfaction or into the sufficiency of those reasons. ILR (1956) 2 All 665 : 1956 All LJ 556 : 1956 All WR (HC) 570 : AIR 1956 All 557 (561) (Pt B) (Pr 28) (DB).

——Arts. 213, 123 — Existence of satisfaction when House is in session — Effect.

All that Art. 213 requires is that the satisfaction of the Governor must exist at the time when either both or one of the Houses of Legislature are or is not in session. ILR (1956) 2 All 665 : 1956 All LJ 556 : 1956 All WR (HC) 570 : AIR 1956 All 557 (561) (Pt C) (Pr 29) (DB).

——Arts. 213, 123 — Proroguing of Council — Powers of Governor — Very short interval between proroguing of Council and promulgation of Ordinance — Effect on bona fides of Governor— Validity of U. P. Ordinance No. 9 of 1956 — (Sales Tax — U. P. Sales Tax (Amendment) Ordinance (9 of 1956), S. 1).

Under Art. 174 the Governor is authorised to prorogue the Council at any time that he thinks fit. Assuming that the assembly in U. P. was prorogued deliberately with a view to enable the Governor to promulgate the U. P. Ordinance, 9 of 1956, even so the exercise of the power by the Governor cannot be dubbed as fraudulent, colourable or mala fide. AIR 1950 Mad 243, Rel. on. So long as the power to prorogue the Legislature and to promulgate an Ordinance is exercised bona fide in the interest of the State itself, there is no violation of the provisions of the Constitution. ILR (1956) 2 All 665 : 1956 All LJ 556 : 1956 All WR (HC) 570 : AIR 1956 All 557 (561, 562) (Pt D) (Prs 32, 33, 34, 35, 38) (DB).

——Art. 213 (1) Proviso — Madhya Pradesh Tendu Patta (Vyapar Viniyaman) Niyamavali Sanshodhan Adhyadesh (1965), (Ordinance No. III of 1965), S. 3 — Constitutional validity — Ordinance is not invalid — Previous instructions of President for its promulgation were not required. See Madhya Pradesh Tendu Patta (Vyapar Viniyaman) Niyamavali Sanshodhan Adhyadesh (1965) Ordinance (No. 3 of 1965). 1965 MPLJ 994 : AIR 1966 Madh Pra 110 (DB).

——Art. 213 (1) — City of Bangalore Improvement (Amendment) Act (XIII of 1960), Ss. 2, 3 —Introduction of S. 27-A in Parent Act validating retrospectively acquisition of land under Mysore Land Acquisition Act, for purposes of city improvement, in contravention of Ss. 14, 15, 16, 17 or 18 or 27 of Parent Act — Provisions are in respect of 'existing law' within meaning of Art. 254 (2) — Amendment Act not reserved for assent of President in accordance with proviso, to Art. 213 (1), is invalid. See City of Bangalore Improvement (Amendment) Act (13 of 1960), S. 2. AIR 1962 Mys 218 (DB).

——Art. 213 (2) (a) — Legislation or Ordinance cannot be struck down as being usurpation of judicial power — Bill to replace Ordinance — Leave to introduce refused — Refusal does not amount to disapproving Ordinance — Ordinance does not cease to be operative — Rules of Procedure. See Ibid, Art. 213 (1). AIR 1960 Orissa 46 (DB).

——Art. 213 (1) — S. 5 (1) of Orissa Ordinance (1 of 1959), is repugnant to existing laws in concurrent list — No instructions under Art. 213 (1) — S. 5 (1) is void to the extent of repugnancy— Assent of President under Art. 254 (2) avoids inconsistencies in laws of legislature. See Municipalities — Orissa Municipal Election Validation Ordinance (1 of 1959), S. 5 (1). AIR 1960 Orissa 46 (DB).

——Art. 213 (1), (2) (a) — Legislation or Ordinance cannot be struck down as being usurpation of judicial power — Bill to replace Ordinance — Leave to introduce refused — Refusal does not amount to disapproving Ordinance — Ordinance does not cease to be operative — Rules of Procedure and Conduct of Business of Procedure — (Orissa Legislative Assembly — R. 96 (i) — Constitution of India, Art. 245). ILR (1959) Cut 203 : AIR 1960 Orissa 46 (51) (Pt A) (Prs 8, 9) (DB).

——Art. 213 (2) — Scope — Bihar Buildings (Lease, Rent and Control) Continuance Ordinance (5 of 1952) — Validity.

Bihar Ordinance (V of 1952) issued on 10-5-1952 under Art. 213 of the Constitution with retrospective effect from 15th March, 1952 was validated on 9th March, 1953 by Bihar Act (V of 1953), as stipulated in clause 2 (a) of Art. 213 of the Constitution and that Act incorporated all the provisions which had been enacted under Ordinance (5 of 1952). Therefore, during that period, Act (3 of 1947) was in any case kept alive in the rest of Bihar if not by Ordinance (5 of 1952), at least by Bihar Act (V of 1953). 1956 Pat LR 291 : 1956 BLJR 410 : AIR 1956 Pat 496 (500, 501) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 213 — "Satisfied" — Meaning.

Per Sarjoo Prasad J. :— Wherever a legislation uses the word "satisfied" it must mean reasonably satisfied. It cannot import an arbitrary or irrational state of being satisfied. It is, therefore, obvious that if it is found on the very face of an Ordinance that it is an irrational and an unreasonable piece of legislation, a Court of law would certainly be entitled to hold that the legislation is invalid and pronounce against it being enforceable. 1951 Cri L. J. 1251: ILR 29 Pat 410: AIR 1950 Pat 332 (345) (Pt F) (Pr 51) (DB).

——Arts. 213, 385 — Applicability — Tenancy Laws — (Rajasthan (Protection of Tenants)) Ordinance (9 of 1949), S. 1 (3).

Sub-s. (3) of section 1 of Rajasthan (Protection of Tenants) Ordinance (9 of 1949) does not purport to grant any power to the Rajpramukh. That subsection declares, in the first place the period for which the Ordinance shall remain in force, and by way of caution mentions that the period may be extended by the Rajpramukh. On the date, when the Notification of 14th June, 1951, was made the Constitution of India was in force; but the Legislative Assembly, which was the only House provided for Rajasthan, had not been constituted. Under Art. 385, therefore, the same authority, which functioned as the legislative authority prior to the Constitution, continued to exercise legislative powers, and under Art. 10 of the Covenant, by which the State of Rajasthan was formed the Rajpramukh was vested with legislative powers. On the date of the commencement of the Constitution the individual States had merged into the State of Rajasthan, and the Rajasthan State was the Indian State referred to in Art. 385 of the Constitution. His Highness the Rajpramukh was, therefore, fully empowered to function as the legislative authority in Rajasthan until the Constitution and meeting of the first Session of the Legislative Assembly. Art. 213 is not applicable to such a case. Hence the extension of the Ordinance notified by the said Notification was a valid piece of legislation made by His Highness the Rajpramukh. ILR (1953) Raj 772: 1954 Raj LW 154: AIR 1954 Raj 169 (169, 170) (Prs 3, 4, 5) (DB).

ARTICLE 214

■ ——Art. 214 — Applicability. See United State of Travancore and Cochin High Court Act (5 of 1125 M. E.) S. 8. AIR 1954 SC 526.

——Art. 214 — Order passed under Part 1 — U. P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act — High Court's revisional jurisdiction. See Tenancy Laws — U. P. Zamindari and Land Reforms Act (1 of 1951), S. 330. AIR 1957 All 495.

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1962 All 315 FB]

——Art. 214—Andhra Pradesh and Madras (Alteration of Boundaries) Act (1959), Ss. 18 and 19 —Provisions do not violate Art. 214 of the Constitution but in fact give effect to that article by making the jurisdiction of each High Court coterminous with territories of that State. See Andhra Pradesh and Madras (Alteration of Boundaries) Act (1959), S. 18. AIR 1961 Andh Pra 50.

——Arts. 214 and 225 — High Court of Saurashtra becoming High Court of Part B State and Part 6 of Constitution with certain modification mentioned in Art. 238 became applicable to High Court — Effect of Art. 225 on appellate jurisdiction. See States Re-organisation Act (1956), S. 49. AIR 1965 Guj 87 (DB).

——Arts. 214 (2) and 366 (14) — Scope — "High Court" — Definitions — If different from each other. See Ibid, Art. 124 (3), Expl. 1952 Cri LJ 540: AIR 1951 Pat 305.

——Art. 214 (2) — "Shall be deemed to be" — Meaning of.

Article 214 (2) does not relate to the period of time after the commencement of the Constitution and the words "shall be deemed to be" indicate that it is not meant for converting the Provincial High Court into a State High Court. ILR 29 Pat 904: 1952 Cri LJ 540: AIR 1951 Pat 305 (306) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Arts. 214 (2) and 224 — Construction and scope — Judge retiring and resigning office of High Court of Province on 24th January, 1950, and not sitting on 25th January, 1950 — Apppointment again as Judge under Art. 224 — Validity — If unconstitutional.

Under Art. 214 (2) of the Constitution of India, the Provincial High Court which was exercising jurisdiction immediately prior to the commencement of the Constitution is to be deemed to be a State High Court. Art. 224 authorises the appointment of any person who "has held" office as a Judge of a High Court. It is not necessary that he should have held office on the day prior to the date on which the Constitution came into force. If he has held office of Judge of a Provincial High Court, that would be sufficient. Where a Judge resigned his office and retired as Chief Justice on 24th January, 1950 and did not hold office as Judge on 25th January, 1950, but is appointed to sit again as a Judge of that High Court, that is to say, of the High Court which came into existence after the commencement of the Constitution, under Art. 224, it cannot be said that because he did not hold office on 25th January, 1950, immediately before the commencement of the Constitution, his appointment under Art. 224 is invalid and that therefore, he has not been a Judge of the High Court under Art. 224. Even though he was not Judge of the Provincial High Court on 25th January, 1950, he having held office as a Judge of that Court before, and the identity of the provincial High Court not having been changed between 24th January, when he resigned and the 25th, the day immediately preceding the commencement of the Constitution, the appointment is not invalid or unconstitutional and must be held to be a Judge validly appointed and holding office as such. 1952 Cri LJ 540: ILR 29 Pat 904: AIR 1951 Pat 305 (306) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Arts. 214 (2), 366 (14) and Expln. (b) to Art. 217 (2) — Scope of Expln. (b) to Art. 217 (2).

Explanation (b) to Art. 217 (2) does not conflict with the definitions in Art. 214 (2) and Art. 366 (14). ILR 29 Pat 904: 1952 Cri LJ 540: AIR 1951 Pat 305 (307) (Pt E) (Pr 11) (DB).

ARTICLE 215

See also under Contempt of Courts Acts 1926 and 1952.

SYNOPSIS

(Constitution of India, Art. 215.)

1. Scope.
2. Court of Record.
3. Contempt of Court — Essentials.
(a) Nature of contempt proceedings.
(b) Scandalising the Court.
(c) Disobedience to orders of Court.
(d) Interference with due administration of justice.
(e) Comments and reports.
(f) Attempts to influence decision in pending cases.
4. Power of High Court to punish contempts — General.
(a) Practice and procedure.
(b) Necessary parties.
5. Evidence and mode of proof.
(a) Defence in contempt proceedings.

6. Exercise of power is discretionary.
7. Jurisdiction.
8. Punishment — Principles.
9. Apology.
10. Appeal.

1. Scope.

●——Art. 215 — High Court Judge appointed as Industrial Tribunal — Contempt of Tribunal — Use of powers under Art. 215 — [Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 7].

The appointment of a Judge of the High Court as an Industrial Tribunal under S. 7 of the Industrial Disputes Act does not alter the status of the Industrial Tribunal or equate it with the High Court itself. The proceedings before the Judge who constitutes the Industrial Tribunal are not proceedings of the High Court, of which he is no doubt a Judge and any contempt committed in relation to such proceedings would be contempt of that Industrial Tribunal. True, it would also be in contempt of the Judge who presided over that Tribunal. But nonetheless it is only contempt of the Tribunal and not contempt of the High Court.

Where, therefore, a Judge of the High Court is appointed as the sole member of an Industrial Tribunal under the Industrial Disputes Act, he has not the powers of a Judge of that High Court to punish persons for contempt of the Tribunal under Art. 215 of the Constitution. Case-law fully discussed. In the matter of Hayles, Editor of "the Mail". 1955 Mad WN 1051 (2): ILR (1955) Mad 1: (1955) 1 Mad LJ 375: 1955 Cri LJ 1: AIR 1955 Mad 1 (16, 17, 21, 22) (Pt A) (Prs 56, 65, 83, 94) (FB).

——Arts. 215, 132 (1) — Power of Nagpur High Court to punish for contempt is not derived from Art. 215 — Question of interpretation of Constitution does not arise every time High Court exercises this power. ILR (1952) Nag 130: 1952 Cri LJ 749: AIR 1952 Nag 130 (131) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3—Contempt of Court by corporation—Liability of its officers and servants. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. AIR 1958 Punj 180.

2. Court of Record.

——Art. 215 — Power of High Court — Clerical error in High Court's decree — If can be corrected after its execution — The High Court as a Court of record, owes a duty to itself to ensure that its record is free from any blemish or error. If any such error is brought to its notice in any manner whatsoever and at any time whatsoever, it has the power to correct errors of a clerical nature. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 151. AIR 1960 All 385.

——Art. 215 — High Court is a Court of record created by the Constitution, and not a Civil Court. See Civil P. C. (1908), O. 45, R. 1. AIR 1957 All 505 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Civil P. C. (1908) Section 151 — Inherent powers of High Court—Objectionable passages in High Court judgment by single judge — Power to expunge — Not vested in Division or Full Bench — High Court is a Court of record and judgment of such judge is part of the record of the High Court. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 151. AIR 1960 Mad 73.

——Art. 215 — Court of record — By the Government of India Act 1935 as well as by Art. 215, the Supreme Court of India and the High Courts are the Courts of record. See Ibid, Art. 19 (2). 1955 Cri LJ 547: AIR 1955 Orissa 36 (DB).

3. Contempt of Court — Essentials.
(a) Nature of Contempt Proceedings.
(b) Scandalising the Court.
(c) Disobedience of orders of Court.
(d) Interference with due administration of Justice.
(e) Comments and reports.
(f) Attempts to influence decision in pending case.

3. Contempt of Court — Essentials.

●——Arts. 215 and 226 — Law declared by High Court — It is binding on lower Courts and Tribunals. See Ibid, Art. 227. AIR 1962 SC 1893.

●——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — What constitutes — Contempt by subordinate Court — Knowledge of superior Court's order and intentional disobedience necessary. AIR 1961 SC 1367.

●——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — What constitutes. See Ibid, Art. 129. AIR 1957 SC 478.

——Art. 215 — Writ petition by X for restraining prescribed authority under U. P. Act (34 of 1958) from demolishing certain constructions made by X without permission — X giving undertaking to Court that he would make no further constructions and in view of undertaking interim order passed by Court restraining prescribed authority from demolishing constructions already made by X — Held that X had committed breach of solemn undertaking by making additional constructions and was guilty of contempt of Court — Held further that constructions were not made under bona fide belief that they were not constructions within meaning of undertaking — Even if they were made under bona fide belief, that might be relevant only in determining sentence. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1964 All WR (HC) 504.

——Art. 215 — Magistrate passing order of attachment of suit property along with preliminary order under S. 145, Cr. P. C. — Revision against both orders — Additional District Magistrate (Judicial) and Additional District Magistrate (Executive) staying further proceedings till pendency of revision application — Order of attachment reaching police for execution before stay order could reach Magistrate — Police referring Magistrate on being confronted with difficulty of having warrant of attachment for execution and stay order of A. D. M. (J) both bearing same date — Magistrate considering reference as unwarranted and foolish and directing police to execute orders passed by his Court — On execution of orders, proceedings for contempt against police and Magistrate for disregarding orders of A. D. M. (J) and A. D. M. (E) taken —Held,—Proceedings could not be taken against police as he was complying with orders of Magistrate — Magistrate, however, acted improperly when he took perverse view of police report and made unwarranted remarks against police — Though conduct of Magistrate in not interpreting stay order in its true spirit deserved censure contempt proceedings could not be taken against him, all the more, when any harm done to applicant could be set a right. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1964 All WR (HC) 450.

——Art. 215 — Contempt — Mere intention to commit contempt — Not an offence. 1959 All LJ 849: AIR 1959 All 686 (688) (Pt C) (Pr 5).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3 — Contempt of Court — What constitutes — (Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 4 (1) (m), 6, 352). See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. AIR 1958 All 417.

——Art. 215 — Judgment of concurrence by one of members of Revenue Board quashed on ground that he did not hear parties — Case sent back to Board for the disposal according to law — State Legislature passing Act (30 of 1953), authorising member who had not heard the parties to sign concurrence with judgment written by another member who had heard the parties -- Judgment in case signed by another member purporting to act under the new Act — There is no disregarding of the decision of the High Court. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1954 All 660 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Suppression of application intended for a Court of law by a person is a contempt of Court. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. AIR 1954 All 351 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — What amounts to. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1955 Cri LJ 1028: AIR 1955 Andh 156 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court by public officers. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1955 Cri LJ 1028: AIR 1955 Andh 156 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Matter sub judice — Parallel enquiry by executive officer. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1955 Cri LJ 1028: AIR 1955 Andhra 156 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Questions put by Court — Answers by advocate — Not contempt of Court. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1955 Cri LJ 1028: AIR 1955 Andhra 156 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Acts and conduct of District Magistrate calculated to lower authority or subordinate Court and weakening sense of public confidence in administration of justice — On facts held was gross contempt. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 1. 1964 (2) Cri LJ 660: AIR 1964 Cal 572 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Contravention of Order under S. 145, Criminal P. Code — Contempt proceedings — Order not precise — Effect. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 1. 1958 Cri LJ 1162: AIR 1958 Cal 474.

——Art. 215 — Violation of order under S. 145, Criminal P. C. — Proceedings for contempt. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. AIR 1958 Cal 474.

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Bailiff using force in obtaining delivery of possession. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. AIR 1956 Cal 249.

——Art. 215 — Compromise petition supported by affidavit filed in High Court — Appeal disposed of under O. 23, R. 3 Civil P. C., relying on petition — Petition containing unconditional undertaking — Breach of — Contempt of Court — (Civil P. Code (1908), O. 23, R. 3) — (Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 1).

Where in an appeal from an order of ejectment, pending before the High Court, a joint petition of compromise is filed by the parties whereby the tenant, while supporting the petition by an affidavit, gives to the Court an unconditional and unqualified undertaking that he will vacate the premises on a certain named date and the appeal is disposed of in terms of the petition of compromise under the provisions of O. 23, R. 3, Civil P. C., then if the tenant fails to give vacant possession on the named date he is guilty of a deliberate breach of the personal undertaking given by him to the High Court in his affidavit. It is settled law that breach of an undertaking given to a Court by a person in a pending proceeding on the faith of which the Court sanctions a particular course of action is misconduct amounting to contempt. AIR 1952 Cal 591, Dist. 95 Cal LJ 199: 1955 Cri LJ 654: AIR 1955 Cal 182 (183) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — What amounts to — Disobedience to order — Personal service of order when essential — Mandamus directing Government Officers to restore possession — Non-compliance — Personal service of order not effected — No contempt of Court — (Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 1)

Contempt of Court is either (1) criminal contempt consisting of words or acts obstructing, or tending to obstruct, the administration of justice, or (2) contempt in procedure, consisting of disobidence to the judgments, orders or the process of the Court, and involving a private injury.

But disobedience, if it is to be punishable as a contempt, must be wilful. Disobedience cannot be held to be wilful until the order is served. Hence the judgment or order must be shown to have been served on the party personally, except in the following cases (1) prohibitive orders, the drawing up of which is not completed; (2) orders embodying an undertaking to do an act by a named day; (3) orders to answer interrogatories or discovery or inspection of documents; (4) where an order for substituted service has been made; (5) where the respondent has evaded service of the order.

Personal service of the judgment or order may be dispensed with (1) if it be made to appear to the Court or a Judge that prompt personal service of the judgment or order cannot be effected; in such a case substituted or other service of the order or merely giving notice of the order may be directed; (2) if it is shown that the person to be served has evaded service. But the fact that the person ordered to do an act was actually in Court when the order was made is not a ground for dispensing with personal service of it. In the case of a breach of a prohibitory order, however service on the party against whom committal is sought, is not necessary, (1) if the party concerned had notice of the order and knew that the order was intended to be enforced, (2) or if he consented to the order, (3) or if he was present in Court when the order was pronounced or the motion was made although he may have left the Court before the order was pronounced.

Hence where a mandamus issued by the High Court directs certain officers of the Government to restore possession of the land which had been acquired by the Government but the order is not personally served on the officers concerned, they cannot be committed for contempt for disobedience of the order. 56 Cal WN 589: AIR 1953 Cal 96 (96, 98) (Prs 3, 36, 39, 42 to 44) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Defendant giving undertaking to vacate premises on or before certain date — On default, decree to be executed — Undertaking is not unqualified — Default committed—Defendant held should not be committed for contempt.

Where the defendant gives an undertaking to the Court to vacate, the premise on or before a certain date and in default agrees that the ejectment decree be executed or some other steps be taken according to law, and that he would raise no objection, and the High Court passes an order in the terms of the undertaking but without formally recording the undertaking in the order the undertaking is not an unqualified one, the consequences of the default being provided in the order itself. Failure on the part of the defendant to keep to the terms of the undertaking cannot be regarded as justifying the exercise of the discretionary powers of the High Court to order committal for contempt. Misc. Case No. 276 of 1951 dated 26-2-1952 (Cal), Followed. AIR 1945 PC 147, Ref.

Even otherwise, considering the fact that while giving the undertaking the defendant had reasonable doubt that he had not given an unqualified undertaking and also considering the practice that the proceedings for contempt should be taken with reluctance and that any benefit of doubt should be given to the party, the case was held not fit for starting contempt proceedings. Case law Ref. 1952 Cri LJ 1301: 56 Cal WN 580: AIR 1952 Cal 591 (593, 594) (Prs 13, 14, 19, 23) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Application by detenu to High Court — State delaying transmission—Unreasonable delay — It amounts to contempt of High Court.

Where an application by detenu in respect of withdrawal of certain privileges from him, is received by State for transmission to the High Court, the State should despatch it to the High Court as expeditiously as possible. It would amount to contempt if any impediment is placed in its reaching the High Court within reasonable time. Whoever is found guilty of this is liable to be committed for contempt of High Court. Under the present Constitution the High Court possesses the necessary power. 56 Cal WN 246: 1952 Cri LJ 1255: 1952 All WR (Sup) 57: AIR 1952 Cal 562 (563) (Prs 3, 5) (DB).

● ——Art. 215 — Contempt, what constitutes (Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 1).

In the absence of any interim prohibitory order from the Court, or of an undertaking by a party, it is not contempt for party to do any act resulting in some proceedings pending before the Court being rendered infructuous. A party should not anticipate order of the Court even in his legitimate actions. 1941 Rang LR 747, Rel. on. Malojirao Shitole v. Matkar, C. G., 1953 Cri LJ 1675: AIR 1953 Madh Bha 245 (247) (Pt D) (Pr 6) (FB).

——Art. 215—Contempt of Court what constitutes — Lawyer trying to defend accused, himself committing offence — Not immune from arrest by police — Latter not guilty of contempt of Court. 1961 (2) Cri LJ 875 (877) (Pr 11) (DB) (Madh Pra).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Compromise decree, breach of — No undertaking given to Court — Breach of terms of compromise — No contempt. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. AIR 1960 Madh Pra 280.

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Income-tax Act (1922), S. 46 (5-A) — Companies Act (1956) Ss. 446 and 456 — Official Liquidator appointed by Court is officer of Court — Initiation of legal proceeding against him without leave of Court amounts to contempt. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 1. ILR (1959) Cut 401.

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — What amounts to — [Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3].

It is true that under ordinary circumstances mere intention or preparation to resist taking of possession by the Receiver may not be sufficient for contempt of Court. But in view of the facts and circumstances of the case formal demand by the Receiver to the persons to give up possession of the property was not necessary and they by their conduct made it absolutely clear that he would be resisted by force if he made any attempt to take possession. AIR 1933 All 759, Rel. on. ILR (1954) Cut 467: 1954 Cri LJ 988: 20 Cut LT 446: AIR 1954 Orissa 167 (171, 172) (Pt C) (Pr 16) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt, what constitutes — (Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 1).

In order to constitute contempt of Court it is not necessary that the Court or an individual Judge should be attacked. The policy of the law is that the public should be protected from attack. ILR (1953) Cut 283: 1953 Cri LJ 1491: AIR 1953 Orissa 249 (252) (Pt B) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Courts Act (12 of 1926), S. 1 — Contempt of Court — (Patiala Contempt of Courts Act, S. 1). See Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 1. AIR 1953 Pepsu 79.

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court what constitutes — Scope — Attempt to corrupt Judge — Contempt of Court. See Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 3. 1959 Cri LJ 1469: AIR 1959 Punj 632.

3 (a). Nature of contempt proceedings.

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Nature of proceedings. See Letters Patent (Cal.) Cl. 15. 1958 Cri LJ 1162 : AIR 1958 Cal 474 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Letters Patent (Cal.) Cl. 15 — Civil contempt and criminal contempt — Distinction. See Letters Patent (Cal.), Cl. 15. AIR 1953 Cal 627.

——Art. 215 — Proceedings are quasi-criminal — Procedure for contempt must be strictly followed — Notice of motion must be personally served and must contain statement as to specific breach.

Proceedings for committal for contempt are in the nature of quasi criminal proceedings and in such proceedings established practice must be strictly followed, not only in substance but also in form. In an application for committal for contempt, the notice of motion must be served personally before it comes into the list, even for the first time. There is no known procedure for serving copy subsequently. The notice must contain a statement as to the specific breach complained of for which the respondents are sought to be committed. ('51) 88 Cal LJ 70.

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Proceedings for — Object of. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1961 (2) Cri LJ 766: AIR 1961 J & K 76 (DB).

——Arts. 215 and 134 (1) (c) — Contempt of High Court — Nature of proceeding — Principles governing granting of certificate in criminal cases — Certificate refused. See Ibid, Art. 134 (1) (c). AIR 1953 Madh B 206.

——Art. 215 — Letters Patent (Mad) Cls. 15, 2 and 22 — Civil and Criminal contempt — Distinction. See Letters Patent (Mad) Cl. 15. AIR 1955 Mad 121.

——Arts. 215 and 134 (1) (c) — Contempt of Court — Nature of contempt proceedings — Whether criminal proceedings. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. AIR 1952 Nag 130.

——Art. 215 — Civil contempt and criminal contempt — (Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3).

Words or acts which obstruct or tend to obstruct administration of justice would always amount to criminal contempt inasmuch as they offend the majesty of law whereas contempt of procedure consisting of unintentional disobedience of orders and processes of the Court and involving a private inquiry are classified as civil contempt. Refusal by a party to deliver possession to a Receiver would also amount to criminal contempt provided that the party was aware of the appointment of the Receiver and after being called upon by him to deliver possession did not do so. AIR 1934 Bom 452, Rel. on. ILR (1954) Cut 467 : 1954 Cri LJ 988 : 20 Cut LT 446 : AIR 1954 Orissa 167 (170) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Arts. 215 and 133 — (Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 2) — Criminal contempt — Leave to appeal under Art. 133 to Supreme Court cannot be granted against conviction for criminal contempt — Distinction between criminal and civil contempt pointed out. ILR (1952) Cut 467 : 1953 Cri LJ 1578 : AIR 1953 Orissa 266 (273) (Pt H) (Prs 17, 19) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Criminal and civil contempt — Difference between — Rule relating to service in case of criminal contempt — Applicability to case of civil contempt. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 1. AIR 1957 Pat 528.

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Nature of proceedings — Criminal nature. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1959 Cri LJ 1469: AIR Punj 632.

——Art. 215 — Civil contempts. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. AIR 1958 Punj 180.

3 (b). Scandalising the Court.

● ——Art. 215 — Contempt — What amounts to — (Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 1).

If an act or utterance or writing has the effect of scandalising the Court or the Judge it would be within the mischief of the expression 'contempt'. Medhi v. Frank Morase, 1954 Cri LJ 1609: AIR 1954 Assam 201 (211) (Pt D) (Pr 32) (FB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Bailiff using improper words about High Court — See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. AIR 1956 Cal 249.

——Art. 215 — Scandalising the Court — Fair and reasonable criticism — (Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 1).

In assessing whether a particular passage amounts to contempt by scandalising the Court, the Court must bear in mind that the judiciary is not above criticism. Indeed, it is not by stifling criticism that confidence in Courts can be created and proceedings for this species of contempt should be used, sparingly. Once the right of fair and reasonable criticism is conceded, the dignity of expression cannot be strictly insisted in every case. AIR 1954 SC 10, Ref. to. ILR (1955) Hyd 571: 1955 Cri LJ 1590: AIR 1955 Hyd 264 (268) (Pt C) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Characterising Judge of Court as dishonest and deciding cases after taking bribes — Statement amounts to contempt of Court. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1961 (2) Cri LJ 766: AIR 1961 J and K 76 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of High Court — Scandalising a Judge of High Court — Remarks contained in petition to High Court for proceeding against Judge of High Court — Offence — Serious contempt — Intention of contemner not material. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), Section 3. 1960 Cri LJ 1120: AIR 1960 Orissa 132.

——Art. 215 — Contempt of High Court — What amounts to — 'Apabyabahara' — Meaning of — (Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 1).

Any act done or writing published calculated to bring a Court or the Judge of a Court into contempt or to lower his authority is contempt of Court. A statement by the Chief Minister of a State to the effect that 'in many instances the immaturity of the High Court is apparent', contains an aspersion regarding the competency of the Judges of the High Court. The use of the expression 'apabyabahara' conveys the idea that the High Court has abused its powers. (1900) 2 QBD 36, Rel. on. ILR (1958) Cut 195: 1958 Cri LJ 1055: AIR 1958 Orissa 168 (171, 182, 183) (Pt B) (Prs 6, 43) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Test — (Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 1).

In cases of contempt, it is not the intention of the alleged contemner but the effect of undermining or lowering the Court in the estimation of the public or its tendency or likelihood to so undermine or lower the Court is the real test. (1907) 2 Ir R 260 and (1956) 3 WLR 796, Foll. ILR (1958) Cut 195: 1958 Cri LJ 1055: AIR 1958 Orissa 168 (181, 182) (Pt G) (Pr 39) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Courts Act (1952), Ss. 3 (1) and 4 — Scandalising Court — Wild and reckless allegations of bribery against District Judge and casting aspersions on High Court Judge before whom contemner's appeal was pending — Amounts to gross contempt — Pleas raised frivolous and irrelevant — Unqualified apology not accepted — Contemner sentenced. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3 (1). AIR 1961 Pat 360.

3 (c). Disobedience to orders of Court.

● ——Art. 215 — Writ of Habeas Corpus when to be issued — Disobedience of order — Punishment — Powers of High Court. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 491. 1964 (2) Cri LJ 590: AIR 1964 SC 1625.

● ——Art. 215—Contempt of Court—Disobedience of prohibitory order of Court — Service of order not essential for founding action in contempt — Notice of order aliunde sufficient. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 1. 1962 (2) Cri LJ 236: AIR 1962 SC 1089.

——Arts. 215 and 311 — Contempt — President of Municipal Board passing order of suspension — Order not complying with S. 69-A, U. P. Municipalities Act—Writ petition—Interim order staying suspension order — President passing another order of suspension — No contempt — (Municipalities — U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 69-A). 1959 All LJ 849: AIR 1959 All 686 (688, 689, 690) (Pt D) (Prs 4, 9).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — What amounts to — Disobedience to injunction order — Knowledge of order if sufficient — Mens rea — 'Wilful disobedience' what amounts to — Absence of personal interest, how far relevant. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 1. AIR 1955 All 483.

——Art. 215 — Contempt of High Court — Disobedience to injunction order.

The applicants instituted a suit in the Court of the Civil Judge, Etawah, against "the Municipal Board of Etawah through the Chairman, Municipal Board, Etawah," for injunction to restrain the Board from constructing shops at the back of the applicants' shops. During the pendency of the suit the Civil Judge had granted a temporary injunction restraining the Board on account of which the work of constructing the shops had remained stayed. The temporary injunction came to an end on the suit being dismissed by the Civil Judge. The Board resumed the construction and on the first appeal being admitted on 27th April, 1954, the applicants applied to the High Court for a temporary injunction to restrain the Board from making any further construction during the pendency of the appeal. A notice of the injunction was issued to the Board and during its pendency the High Court passed an ex parte injunction on 7th June, 1954, restraining the Board and its servants, etc., from making any constructions of any kind on the land till further orders. The applicant No. 1 obtained from the High Court a certified copy of the injunction order and the applicant No. 2 approached the opposite party, the President of the Board, with an application to which the certified copy was attached, on 9th June, 1954 and requested him to stop further constructions in obedience to the injunction. The President read the application and the copy of the Order but refused to act on them on the ground that he was not bound to do so until the injunction Order was served upon him through Court. On 16th June, 1954, the notice of injunction and the injunction order were sent through a process-server to the President outside office but after reading them he refused to accept them contending that they were not addressed to him in his personal capacity and, therefore, could be served on him only in office of the Board. On the next day, i.e., 17-6-1954, the process-server accompanied by the applicant No. 1 again went to the Board's office in the morning but found the opposite party and the Executive Officer absent and the clerk refused to accept the order. Consequently, the process-server and the applicant met the opposite party who again refused to accept the order and angrily asked them to clear out saying that the order could be served only in the office of the Board and not elsewhere. The order was ultimately served on the President on 19th June, 1954, with effect from which the construction work was immediately stopped. The question was whether the President was guilty of contempt for disobeying the injunction order from 9-6-1954, to 19th June, 1954 during which period the construction work continued.

Held, (i) that on the facts of the case the President of the Board was guilty of contempt of Court. The President, in spite of knowing on June 9, 16 and 17, 1954, that the Board had been restrained from continuing further construction, disobeyed the injunction even though he was bound to comply with the injunction by getting the construction work stopped. Moreover without just cause, he refused to accept service of the injunction order and also interfered with the process-server's duty of serving it upon him.

(ii) that as there was no actual intention to disobey the injunction, it was not necessary to pass a sentence of imprisonment but that a sentence of fine of Rs. 100 would meet the ends of justice.

(iii) The contention that it was the Municipal Board that committed contempt, or that it was the Municipal Board that could be punished for contempt, and not the President could not be accepted. It was true that the injunction was against, and was to be obeyed by, the Board. It was also true that there was no necessity of adding 'through the Chairman, Municipal Board, Etawah' in the title of the suit. But the fact remains that the word 'Board' includes the President and that the necessary action was to be taken by the President. Whoever might have been the defendant, the notice and the order had to be served upon a human being because no process can be served upon anyone who has no physical existence. The injunction had to be obeyed also by a human being because all physical acts and omissions must be done by human beings. Therefore, the injunction order in its very nature had to be served upon a human being and that was the opposite party. Whether the Municipal Board also became guilty of contempt or not, there was no doubt that the opposite party became guilty of contempt when he did not obey the injunction order. It is immaterial in which capacity he was required to obey it. It is also immaterial whether he can recover the penalty, which he is ordered to pay on the contempt being established, from the Municipal Board; the Court has no concern with those matters. Whether the penalty, which the Court may impose on the contempt being established should ultimately be paid by the opposite party or the Board is a matter between the opposite party and the Board. The opposite party would be bound to pay the penalty in the first instance even if he is entitled to recover it from the Board later. ILR (1955) 2 All 46: 1955 Cri LJ 1223: AIR 1955 All 483 (489, 490) (Pt A) (Prs 12, 13, 14) (DB).

●——Arts. 215 & 226 — Income-tax proceedings — Documents and books of assessee seized — Application by assessee against seizure order made to High Court under Art. 226 — Prohibitory order passed by High Court not to give effect to seizure order and directing release of documents and books — No personal service of such prohibitory order on I.-T. Commissioner held was necessary — Refusal of I.-T. Commissioner to release books, etc., held amounted to contempt of Court. In re K. F. Johnson, Commissioner of I.-T. Assam. 1964 (2) Cri LJ 139: AIR 1964 Assam 92 (95, 96, 97, 98) (Prs 6, 9, 11, 12, 18) (FB).

——Art. 215 — Stay order by High Court by telegram — Magistrate not acting on telegram — Wilful disobedience — Contempt of Court.

Though there is no intention to commit a contempt of the Court, a wilful disobedience of the order by the Magistrate with the full knowledge of the stay order of High Court would amount to contempt. 25 Cut LT 53: 1950 Cri LJ 261 (2): AIR 1960 Orissa 18 (20, 21, 22) (Pt B) (Prs 10, 11).

——Art. 215 — Interference with civil process — (Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 1).

No executive officer high-handedly interfering with civil process, can escape the penalty for such contempt. The fact that he may have done so without being influenced by anybody is of no consequence. ILR (1952) Cut LT 467: 1953 Cri LJ 1578: AIR 1953 Orissa 266 (270) (Pt E) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Consideration of validity of detention order pending — Revocation of order — It is contempt of Court — Passing of fresh order on advice of Central Government, when would amount to contempt.

Any act which is calculated to undermine the authority of the Court and to disturb the confidence of the citizen in the unquestioned effectiveness of its orders as against any executive authority however high, would be contempt. Of course this is not to say that every such act will necessarily be treated as contempt by Courts in whom this drastic and summary jurisdiction is vested, not for the personal glorification of a Judge in his office, but for the effective maintenance of the strong arm of judicial administration. None is more conscious than a Judge how sparingly such drastic and summary power is to be used.

It would clearly be contempt of Court for any official to pass an illegal order of detention and on the basis thereof to decline to give effect to an order of release passed by the Court however bona fide the action of the said official may be.

That being so, there is no reason to think that, such contempt is committed, only when the concerned authority has actually flouted the authority of the Court by such an illegal order and not when he has passed an order intended to be so used. The basis of jurisdiction for contempt arises not merely from the actual flouting of the Court's authority, but from the clear tendency that the particular act may have tendency to undermine the authority of the Court. AIR 1952 SC 106, Ref.

When the validity of an order of detention is pending consideration by the High Court a fresh but illegal order of detention on revocation of the prior order, would amount to contempt of Court and that this would be equally so, if that fresh order was passed, not during the actual pendency of an application questioning the prior detention, but in anticipation of such an application being made by the detenu.

Where the fresh order of detention was passed in accordance with the advice conveyed in the letter of the Ministry of Law, New Delhi, in anticipation of any fresh application being made by the detenu, mere anticipation is not enough to constitute contempt. What is required, is the knowledge of the imminence of the fresh proceedings.

It was held that the fresh order of detention could not be said to have been passed either during the pendency of the fresh application before the Court challenging the validity of the detention order or with knowledge of the imminence of any such application. 1953 Cri LJ 349: 19 Cut LT 58: AIR 1953 Orissa 33 (35, 36, 39) (Pt A) (Prs 2, 7, 16) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 5 — Proceedings for disobedience of order or writ of High Court — Service of Copy of order or writ — Necessity. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 5. 1956 Cri LJ 1156: AIR 1957 Pat 528.

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3 — Erroneous order granting injunction — Disobedience — Effect. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. AIR 1958 Punj 180.

3 (d). Interference with due administration of justice.

●——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court—Interference with due administration of justice — Direction given by Under Secretary to Board of Revenue in a State, to Magistrates to ignore decision of State High Court even though that was binding on them — Direction held was flagrant interference with administration of justice by Courts and clear contempt of Court. ILR (1958) Cut 496, Affirmed. Dibakar Satpathy v. Hon. Chief Justice and his Companion Justices of Orissa High Court, 1961 All WR (HC) 402: 27 Cut LT 284: 1961 BLJR 651: 1961 All Cri R 227: (1961) 2 Ker LR 27: 1961 (2) Cri LJ 437: AIR 1961 SC 1315 (1316) (Pr 3).

●——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Interference with due course of justice in pending proceedings pending against officer of Calcutta Corporation — Enquiry by Special Committee, set up by Corporation to discover malpractices on part of Corporation's servants, into question whether officer concerned had given appointments to witnesses or their relations, in criminal case — Members of the Committee are not guilty of contempt of Court. Saibal Kumar Gupta v. B. K. Sen, 1961 SCD 359: (1961) 3 SCR 460: 1961 (1) Cri LJ 749: (1961) 1 SCA 692: AIR 1961 SC 633 (638, 639) (Prs 14, 15, 16).

●——Art. 215 — Contempt — Interference with course of administration — Punishment. See Ibid, Art. 129. AIR 1954 SC 743.

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Interference with administration of justice — Disturbance of Court proceedings by loud talk — Person talking loudly in corridor of High Court and defying authority of Police official who asks him, under Orders of Court, to observe silence is guilty of contempt of Court. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1963 (2) Cri LJ 62 (All).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3 — Contempt of Court — Interference with course of justice is contempt of Court—Stiffling of prosecution by D. S. P., held amounted to contempt of Court. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. AIR 1955 All 638.

——Art. 215 — Offence — Interference with administration of justice — Contempt of Cout — Knowledge of pendency of case — Whether material. See Ibid, Art. 134 (1) (c). 1959 Cri LJ 172: AIR 1959 Cal 106 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Ingredients of offence — Act tending to interfere with administration of justice — Offence — (Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3).

It cannot seriously be contended that if only one does a certain thing for the special purposes of a private or a public body and does it for an object quite different in character, one will be absolved of the charge of contempt of Court, even if his acts may tend to interfere with the administration of justice. 1959 Cri LJ 172: AIR 1959 Cal 106 (113) (Pt C) (Pr 25) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Mens rea — Act interfering with administration of justice — Question of intention — (Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3).

If what is done by a person tends to interfere with the administration of justice, then, whether or not he intends such effect and whether or not the effect is actually caused he will be guilty of contempt of Court. 1959 Cri LJ 172: AIR 1959 Cal 106 (113, 114) (Pt D) (Pr 26) (DB).

●——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court, what constitutes — (Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 1).

High Court dismissing application for prohibitory order against Government on ground of want of jurisdiction — Government issuing required notification pending such application — Issue of notification held caused no real prejudice to applicant — No substantial interference with due course of justice — Theoretical consideration if High Court taking different view was not sufficient to constitute notification contempt of Court. AIR 1931 Cal 257, Rel. on. Malojirao Shitole v. Matkar, C. G., 1953 Cri LJ 1675: AIR 1953 Madh Bha 245 (247) (Pt F) (Pr 6) (FB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Administrative authority — Interference with discretion of judicial officers — Correctness of reported decision of High Court involving questions of administrative importance doubtful — Matter referred by District Magistrate to Board of Revenue — Board of Revenue referring matter to Legal Remembrancer — Legal Remembrancer after consulting Advocate-General giving opinion that decision was not correct and suggesting that matter should be carried to High Court in some case to set at rest confusion — On receipt of opinion, Under Secretary to Board of Revenue thinking that decision of High Court need not be followed — Under Secretary issuing circular to District Magistrates saying that opinion of L. R. might be followed until matter was carried to High Court so that confusion created by reported decision of High Court might be set at rest — Contempt proceedings — Under Secretary and L. R. how far liable — (Contempt of Courts Act (1952) S. 3).

A District Magistrate, entertaining some doubts about the correctness of a reported decision of the High Court, involving question of administrative importance, referred the matter to the Board of Revenue. The Under Secretary, Board of Revenue, forwarded the same to the Legal Remembrancer. The latter, after obtaining the advice of the Advocate-General on the matter, gave the opinion that the decision was not very clear and in fact erroneous and advised the Board to carry the matter to the High Court in some case so that the confusion might be set at rest. On receipt of this opinion the Under Secretary to the Board of Revenue, thought that the Legal Remembrancer's opinion was to the effect that the decision of the High Court in question being incorrect need not be followed. He accordingly issued a circular letter to all District Magistrates of the Division, enclosing copies of the opinions of the Legal Remembrancer and of the Advocate-General and opining that the view of the Legal Remembrancer might be followed, until the matter was carried to the High Court in some case, so that the confusion created by the reported High Court decision might be set at rest. The District Magistrate forwarded the same to the subdivisional Magistrates and through them to all the trying Magistrates.

Held (i) that there could be no doubt that the Under Secretary had committed contempt of the High Court. He must also have known that it was highly improper either for the Board of Revenue or for the District Magistrate to give advice to a trying Magistrate, either in respect of a pending case or in respect of a case that might come to his file in the future. Apart from thus interfering with the discretion of judicial officers, the language used in the circular letter was objectionable inasmuch as it characterised the judgment of the High Court as having created confusion. There was in fact no confusion in the judgment. A judgment though wrong need not necessarily create confusion unless there were two reported decisions of two Benches of equal jurisdiction laying down conflicting propositions of law. The Under Secretary should have used more respectful language in his letter addressed to the District Magistrates.

(ii) The language used by the Legal Remembrancer was somewhat ambiguous and was liable to different interpretations. It was possible to take the view that one of the alternative interpretations that could be put on his note was that he emphasised the binding character of the reported decision though it was wrong and that he did not give advice about what was to be done during the interim period because he was not specifically asked about it. The other interpretation was that put by the Board of Revenue and circularised to all the District Magistrates in the letter circulated. The Legal Remembrancer's note was thus capable of two interpretations. Contempt proceedings were quasi-criminal in nature and the doctrine of benefit of doubt might also apply in appropriate cases. The Legal Remembrancer's interpretation of his note was also plausible and it could not be held conclusively that his advice to the Revenue Department was to the effect that his view should be preferred to that of the reported decision of the High Court. The Legal Remembrancer must therefore, be given the benefit of doubt.

The primary function of the Legal Remembrancer was to advise the various Departments of Government in respect of either pending cases and suits or those that were likely to be instituted in the near future. He was also required to clarify any question of law that might be referred to him by other Departments of the Secretariat after consulting the Advocate-General if he considered it necessary. He was also ex officio Additional Secretary to Government in the Law Department. He was usually a very senior member of the Superior Judicial Service and the High Court had a right to expect that the notes given by him while criticising a judgment of the High Court would be couched in respectful language and that his opinion on any point of law would also be given with sufficient clarity so as not to cause any ambiguity in the minds of non-judicial officers who might read the same and take further action on the basis of his opinion. It was clearly his duty whenever a judgment of the High Court was brought to his notice, to freely criticise the same if he thought it to be wrong, and to give advice about the taking of necessary steps to get it reversed, either by a larger Bench of the same High Court or by taking up the matter on appeal to the Supreme Court, or, in extreme cases, by amending legislation. The High Court could never take exception to his giving advice on the aforesaid lines. ILR (1958) Cut 496.

(Affirmed in AIR 1961 SC 1315.)

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Criminal contempt — Interference with course of justice — Intention how far material — See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 1. AIR 1956 Pat 321.

3 (e). Comments and reports.

●——Art. 215 — Report in newspaper — Misrepresentation of Court proceedings — Scandalising the Court — (Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 1).

Speeches or writings misrepresenting the proceedings of the Court so as to scandalise the Court, or any publication which tends to bring into disrepute the decision of the Court and impair the faith of the public in the administration of justice, are undoubtedly cases of contempt. Nothing is more incumbent upon Courts of justice than to preserve their proceedings from being misrepresented, nor is there anything more pernicious in its consequence than to prejudice the minds of the public against Judges of the Court responsible for dispensing justice. Medhi v. Frank Moraes, 1954 Cri LJ 1609: AIR 1954 Assam 201 (205) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (FB).

●——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Criticism of judgment — Limits — (Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 1).

Once a judgment has been delivered the Judge and the jury are alike open to public criticism, and so long as that criticism does not attribute any bias or unfair motive to them, and so long as it does not tend to impair or diminish the authority of the Court or create a general impression in the public mind destroying its faith in the administration of justice, or lower the authority of the Courts, Judges should not be supersensitive and hasten to exercise this extraordinary right to suppress legitimate criticism, howsoever pungent the criticism may be. (1900) 2 QBD 36; AIR 1936 PC 141, Rel. on. Medhi v. Frank Moraes. 1954 Cri LJ 1609: AIR 1954 Assam 201 (205) (Pt C) (Pr 8) (FB).

●——Art. 215 — Report published in newspaper about order made by High Court in writ proceeding — Mischievous effect on public mind — Proceedings for contempt of High Court.

Where the publication in a newspaper of a report, purporting to convey to its readers an information of an order made granting a writ of mandamus against the University in a petition filed by a student who offered himself as a candidate for the examination of B. Sc. (Agri.), creates a mischievous effect on the public mind leading to the impression that the Chief Justice was or the Judges of the High Court were acting like arbitrary despots in order to enforce their authority, and that, although under the rules of the University the action of the University was justified, yet the High Court interfered in its extraordinary powers in issuing the writ in order to assist the candidate in getting him declared as successful in the examination to which he was not entitled, the High Court cannot with equanimity, ignore the publication as something innocuous and innocent, when on a reasonable construction of the report it comes to the conclusion that the obvious effect of the publication was to bring into disrepute or scandalise the decision of the High Court and to show to the reader that there was no legal or rational basis for the grant of the writ which the Court purported to issue against the University. In the circumstances, the Registrar of the High Court will be justified in starting proceedings against the editor, printer, publisher and reporter of the newspaper for its contempt with a view to uphold the dignity of the High Court and to keep clear and pure the springs of justice against any thoughtless and misguided attack upon it. Medhi v. Frank Moraes. 1954 Cri LJ 1609: AIR 1954 Assam 201 (205, 208, 211) (Pt E) (Prs 8, 18, 33) (FB).

——Art. 215 — Comment on administrative side of judiciary does not amount to contempt — Question of transfer of Magistrate being administrative in character any comment thereon does not amount to contempt of High Court. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1961 (2) Cri LJ 771: AIR 1961 Ker 321 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt — Prejudicing mankind against parties to the proceedings. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1959 Cri LJ 199: AIR 1959 Madh Pra 50 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Newspaper article — Liability of printer and publisher. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1959 Cri LJ 199: AIR 1959 Madh Pra 50 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — What amounts to — Essence of offence — Test — Transfer petition — Allegations imputing partiality against trial Court and High Court — Permissible limits. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1959 Cri LJ 626: AIR 1959 Orissa 89 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt what constitutes — (Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 1).

To constitute a contempt adverse comment on a party need not refer to the subject-matter of pending proceedings. It is sufficient if it is clear that the comment tends to prejudice the trial of the action. (1912) 28 TLR 202, Rel. on. ILR (1953) Cut 283: 1953 Cri LJ 1491: AIR 1953 Orissa 249 (252) (Pt C) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt, what constitutes — (Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 1).

No extraordinary privilege can be claimed for the Press. If a journalist does not take reasonable care to ascertain the accuracy of facts which he broadcasts, or if he tortures facts and vilifies an individual, he exceeds the limit of fair comment and becomes accountable to the law. AIR 1914 PC 116, Foll. ILR (1953) Cut 283: 1953 Cri LJ 1491: AIR 1953 Orissa 249 (252) (Pt D) (Pr 14) (DB).

● ——Art. 215 — Matters of public interest — Limits of fair criticism — Sneering remarks regarding appointment of judges — Held, amounted to contempt of Court — General remark without mention of any High Court — Jurisdiction of High Court to issue notice. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 1. 1961 (2) Cri LJ 674: AIR 1961 Pat 437 (FB).

● ——Art. 215 — Contempt of High Court — Newspaper article, by advocate criticising judicial administration of High Court with occasional reference to recommendations of Law Commission — Tone of article far from respectful — Comments on standard of Judges and influence of executive on judiciary — Offence.

Held, on facts that the main criterion to be kept in view was that the limits of fair comments must not be exceeded. There should be no attempt at ridiculing the administration of justice by that Court by using language which was likely to shake the confidence of the public in the capacity, impartiality and the fairness of the procedure adopted by that Court to the disposal of matters which came up for consideration. Applying the test, the article in question clearly amounted to contempt of Court and the author was guilty of the same.

The privilege available to the Law Commission not being available to any one else, the person concerned brought himself within the ambit of the law of contempt. AIR 1935 Cal 419 and AIR 1951 Vin Pra 14, Rel. on. The unwarranted language of the criticism had the tendency to show that the High Court was not dealing out proper justice in the matter of first appeals disposed of by single Judges. AIR 1936 PC 141, Rel. on; AIR 1931 Cal 275, Disting. Basanta Chandra Ghosh, In the matter of, ILR 39 Pat 415: 1960 Cri LJ 1254: 1960 BLJR 622: AIR 1960 Pat 430 (446, 447, 448, 449, 450, 451) (Pt J) (Prs 26, 27, 30, 31, 32 33) (FB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Publication in newspaper — Test. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1955 Cri LJ 520: AIR 1955 Pat 135 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Respondent in his booklet and affidavit filed in contempt proceedings imputing partiality to Judges of Courts in cases in which he was personally interested — Respondent held guilty of contempt of Court. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 1. 1961 (1) Cri LJ 426: AIR 1961 Punj 113.

——Art. 215 — Libellous or defamatory statement against retired Judge of High Court — Contempt of Court. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), Section 3. 1959 Cri LJ 896: AIR 1959 Punj 319 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Freedom of press — Scope of — Duty to maintain dignity of Courts. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1959 Cri LJ 81: AIR 1959 Punj 41.

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Courts Act (1952), Ss. 3, 4 — Pending case — Publication in respect of — When amounts to contempt — Case about to come to trial — Publication in newspaper in respect of such case — Rights of newspaper — Freedom of Press — Extent — Interference with administration of justice — Publication of statement of witness under S. 164 Cri. P. C. if contempt — Publication of criticism after trial is over — Motive of newspaper, relevancy — Punishment for contempt — Newspaper not regularly published and having limited circulation. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1958 Cri LJ 952: AIR 1958 Punj 273.

3 (f). Attempts to influence decision in pending cases.

——Art. 215—Communication with Presiding Officer of Court and the administrative head, regarding the pending case — Course to be adopted by presiding officer suggested — Communication amounts to contempt of Court — Actual danger or prejudice to party is not essential — Mens rea is not necessary—(Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 1).

Any private communication by a party to a case or even a stranger to a cause addressed or made to the presiding officer of a Court, which is calculated to influence his decision in pending case, constitutes a most serious form of contempt.

A person is presumed in law to have the intention conveyed by his words and to intend the consequences which are bound to follow from his own acts. The test of the offence of the contempt of Courts does not lie in mens rea. Whatever the intention of the contemner might have been, he is brought within the clutches of law as soon as the Court finds that by his word or by his conduct he has set into motion a chain of events which is by its very nature likely to interfere with the course of justice. The crucial test of the offence lies not in the object within the mind of the contemner but in the tendency which his manifest and outward acts inherently possess, to interfere with the uninterrupted flow of justice in an impartial manner.

The gravamen of the offence consists in robbing the Court of that confidence which it is the duty of the Court to inspire and the corresponding obligation of the public to repose in the same. The essence of the offence, lies not in the prejudice that it might cause to the parties but in the damaging nature of the act itself qua the administration of justice in the State. In other words, the essence of the offence lies not so much in the capacity of the impugned act to cause damage to the cause of a party as in its tendency to cause damage to the cause of justice itself.

Ignorance of law cannot be an excuse specially when the perpetrator of the offence is a literate man holding a responsible position of a manager of a big estate.

The manager of an estate which was under the Courts of Wards, wrote to the Deputy Commissioner that a certain tenant in the estate was about to file an application under S. 145, Cr. P. C. before the S. D. O. and that the S. D. O. should be asked to look into the matter carefully and do the needful. Subsequent to the filing of the application, the manager again wrote to the Deputy Commissioner to look into the matter and consider his previous letter. Upon this the Deputy Commissioner wrote that he would speak to the S. D. O. and the manager was asked to bring this fact to the notice of the S. D. O. The manager therefore, wrote to the S. D. O. and suggested that the attachment of crop in the case was absolutely necessary. On the same date the S. D. O. passed a preliminary order in the case ordering attachment of the crop. The opposite party moved the High Court for taking contempt proceedings against the manager and for transfer of the case to another Court outside the jurisdiction of Deputy Commissioner.

Held, that the manager was guilty of contempt of Court. (Conduct of the Deputy Commissioner and the S. D. O. criticised). (The case was transferred to another district). 1953 Cri LJ 402: AIR 1953 All 153 (155, 156, 157, 158) (Pt A) (Prs 7, 9, 12, 13, 14, 20) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Communication to Court by third person of his opinion on facts of case which is sub judice constitutes contempt. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1955 Cri LJ 1028: AIR 1955 Andhra 156 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Communication to judge about pending cases. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), Ss. 3 and 4. 62 Cal WN 862: AIR 1959 Cal 174.

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Private communication by Panchayat Board to presiding officer of Court that matter should be decided in particular way. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1954 Cri LJ 769: AIR 1954 Madh Bha 66 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Party moving Supreme Court against orders of High Court refusing adjournment — Party expressing before Supreme Court apprehension about not getting impartial justice from High Court — Chief Justice and Judges alleged to be on friendly terms with Ministers (Government being opposite Party) — High Court called 'limb' of State Government — Allegations held to constitute serious contempt of High Court. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 4. 1965 (2) Cri LJ 390: AIR 1965 Pat 360 (DB).

4. Power of High Court to punish contempts — General
(a) Practice and procedure.
(b) Necessary parties.

4. Power of High Court to punish contempts — General.

——Art. 215 — Power to punish contempt of Subordinate Court — (Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3).

Article 215 vests in the High Court all the powers of a Court of record and all the powers of such a Court including the power to punish for contempt of itself. The pharse "the power to punish for contempt of itself" does not limit such powers of the High Court as it possesses as a Court of record or other powers with which it may be invested by law. The power to commit for contempt of Subordinate Courts has been expressly conferred upon it by the Contempt of Courts Act, 1952. 1953 All WR (HC) 170: 1953 Cri LJ 733: 1953 All LJ 376: ILR (1953) 1 All 796: AIR 1953 All 342 (345) (Pt C) (Pr 17) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of subordinate Court—Power of High Court to punish under Article. See Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 2. 1952 Cri LJ 1062: AIR 1950 All 556.

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3—Contempt of subordinate Courts — Powers of High Court to commit for such contempt. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. AIR 1955 Andh Pra 156.

——Art. 215 — Power of a Single Judge or a Division Bench to deal with case of contempt. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 2. 1959 Cr LJ 567: AIR 1959 Bom 182 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of subordinate Courts — Power of High Court to punish. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1964 (2) Cri LJ 660: AIR 1964 Cal 572 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of subordinate Courts—High Court's power to punish. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1955 Cri LJ 547: AIR 1955 Orissa 36 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Power to deal with contempt of Court — If curtailed by Art. 19. See Ibid, Art. 19 (1) (a). AIR 1953 Orissa 249.

● ——Art. 215 — Jurisdiction — High Courts other than Chartered High Courts — Power to punish for contempt of themselves.

All the High Courts in India as Courts of Record had the power to punish for contempt a person charged with that offence and the power was not confined only to the three Presidency High Courts. AIR 1954 SC 186, Foll.; Observations in 17 Cal WN 1253 that the High Courts other than Chartered High Courts had no such authority held obiter. ILR 10 Cal 109 (PC), Disting. It is also to be noted that Art. 225 of the Constitution preserves all the powers and jurisdiction of the High Courts as they were vested in them prior to the Constitution. The High Court has the power to punish for contempt the contemner for any libel published in a newspaper on a Judge or Judges of the Court calculated to lower prestige and authority of the Court. AIR 1935 Cal 419 (FB), AIR 1950 Sind 1 (FB), AIR 1936 PC 141, AIR 1943 PC 202 and AIR 1942 Lah 105 (FB), Rel. on. Basanta Chandra Ghosh, In the matter of. ILR 39 Pat 415: 1960 Cri LJ 1254: 1960 BLJR 622: AIR 1960 Pat 430 (439, 440, 441) (Pt D) (Prs 8, 11) (FB).

4 (a). Practice and procedure.

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3 — Practice and Procedure — Notice for contempt.

A notice or Rule for contempt must set out precisely and in detail the deeds or words which are said to constitute contempt and if such details in the charge are not given, there is no case to answer. AIR 1958 Cal 474 (480) (Pt B) (Pr 15) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Procedure to be followed — Notice by High Court issued to respondent without any affidavit by some person —Held there is no rule of law which prevents the High Court from proceeding against a person without first obtaining an affidavit from some person — Proceedings instituted by High Court suo motu—Respondent not raising objection regarding affidavit by some person when he appeared in pursuance of notice but raising such objection for first time only when final arguments were being addressed — Respondent supplied with entire copy of his speech long before evidence started — Held respondent was not prejudiced by absence of affidavit. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1961 (2) Cri LJ 766: AIR 1961 J and K 76 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of High Court — Right to bring contempt to notice of High Court.

Per Narasimham, C. J.:— If a Member of Parliament feels that a member of the State Legislature has misused the right of freedom of speech conferred on him by the Constitution and that his speech has a tendency to impair the dignity and prestige of the High Court, then it cannot be said that he is not entitled to bring to the notice of the High Court the objectionable passage for such action as the High Court may desire to take. Thus, an objectionable speech made on the floor of a Legislature can be brought to the notice of the High Court by a private party.

Per Barman, J.:— The High Court can take cognizance of the contempt even suo motu. ILR (1958) Cut 195: 1958 Cri LJ 1055: AIR 1958 Orissa 168 (171) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt proceedings — Practice —(Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 2).

In Cuttack High Court there is no prescribed or settled practice for marking of the documents as exhibits for the hearing of contempt applications. (Held, however, that the documents used were marked as exhibits and the contemner had enough notice of them, to enable them to produce evidence in rebuttal). ILR (1952) Cut 467: 1953 Cri LJ 1578: AIR 1953 Orissa 266 (268) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

●——Art. 215 — Procedure — Practice and procedure followed by High Courts prior to Constitution — Force of. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1960 Cri LJ 1254: AIR 1960 Pat 430 (FB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3—Practice and procedure—Notice to opposite party — Rule relating to. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. AIR 1957 Pat 528 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3 — Procedural law in England — Acceptance of, in India. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. AIR 1957 Pat 528 (DB).

——Arts. 215 and 226 — Prohibitory order, what is — Writ of mandamus — Nature of — Action in contempt — Service of order, if necessary — (Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3).

A prohibitory order operates in restraining a party from doing an act which if done will result in irreparable injury to the other side. Where the grievance of the Petitioner in the writ petition for the issue of Mandamus was that the Accountant-General was not doing what under Superior Services Rules he was enjoined to do.

Held, that the order directing him to do the same was but an affirmative order. Therefore, though in a case of prohibitory order service of the order is not essential for founding an action in contempt, that rule was not applicable as here the order passed by the Court was not one which was prohibitory. 1957 Cri LJ 1156: 1957 BLJR 390: ILR 36 Pat 955: AIR 1957 Pat 528 (532) (Pt C) (Pr 10) (DB).

4 (b). Necessary parties.

●——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Parties— High Court convicting person for contempt — Appeal to Supreme Court — High Court Judges not to be made parties to appeal. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. AIR 1961 SC 1367.

——Art. 215 — Parties — Proceedings against officer of Government — State Government if necessary party — Practice of impleading State Government is ridiculous. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1956 Cri LJ 1411: AIR 1956 Manipur 44.

5. Evidence and mode of proof.

(a) Defence in contempt proceedings.

5. Evidence and mode of proof.

——Arts. 215 and 21 — Evidence Act (1872), S. 1 — Affidavits — Contempt proceedings — Use as mode of proof — Codes of Civil and Criminal Procedure do not govern proceedings — Evidence Act does not apply — All that is required is that proceedings are fair — Person can be found guilty on affidavit — Nature of proceedings indicated — High Court Rules and Orders — Rules of Court (U. P.), 1952, Chap. 9, Rule 12 — (Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3). See Evidence Act (1872), S. 1. AIR 1955 All 638.

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Evidence — Proof. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 1. 1965 (2) Cri LJ 471: AIR 1965 Cal 484.

——Art. 215 — Evidence — Contempt of Court — Statement resting on information and belief — If legal evidence — (Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3) — (1871) 6 QB 352, Foll. 1959 Cri LJ 172: AIR 1959 Cal 106 (113) (Pt B) (Pr 26) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Sub-Inspector of Police preparing ad verbatim record of speech delivered by respondent containing objectionable matter — Before preparing record Sub-Inspector taking down short notes of the speech delivered by the respondent at the spot — Held, it would have been much better if the Sub-Inspector had produced the original notes in Court in order to test the veracity of the ad verbatim record prepared by the Sub-Inspector. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1961 (2) Cri LJ 766: AIR 1961 J and K 76 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt proceedings — Nature of — Belated petition for action for alleged contempt — Affidavit — Conviction for contempt on. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. ILR (1955) Mys 524.

●——Art. 215 — Procedure — Evidence — Rules of evidence contained in Evidence Act — Applicability of. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1960 Cri LJ 1254: AIR 1960 Pat 430 (FB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt proceedings — Onus — Clear and convincing evidence — Necessity. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1959 Cri LJ 1469: AIR 1959 Punj 632.

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Contempt not committed in presence and hearing of Court — Affidavit of person having direct knowledge of facts — Value of. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1958 Cri LJ 673: AIR 1958 Punj 141 (DB).

5 (a). Defence in contempt proceedings.

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Justification — Statements being true no justification. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1961 (2) Cri LJ 766: AIR 1961 J and K 76 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Scope — Contempt by disobedience of stay order — Contention that it was not officially communicated — Tenability. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1959 Cri LJ 643: AIR 1959 Punj 205.

6. Exercise of power is discretionary.

●——Art. 215 — Contempt proceedings — Jurisdiction — Restraint in exercise of.

A lavish use of the jurisdiction in contempt is not conducive to the achievement of the purpose for which it exists. Its effectiveness depends to a very great extent on the caution, wisdom and restraint with which it is utilised.

Unless the case is clear and beyond reasonable doubt and the failure to take steps would lead to obstruction in the due administration of justice, the High Court should not exercise the summary power vested in it for trying cases of contempt. Medhi v. Frank Moraes, 1954 Cri LJ 1609: AIR 1954 Assam 201 (208, 212) (Pt F) (Prs 15, 38) (FB).

7. Jurisdiction.

●——Art. 215 — Origin of jurisdiction to punish for contempt — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 1 (2)) — (Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3).

The power of a High Court to institute proceeding for contempt and punish where necessary is a special jurisdiction which is inherent in all Courts of Record. S. 1 (2), Cr. P. Code, expressly excludes special jurisdictions from its scope. Hence the Code of Criminal Procedure does not apply in matters of contempt triable by the High Court. The High Court can deal with it summarily and adopt its own procedure. All that is necessary is that the procedure is fair and that the contemner is made aware of the charge against him and given a fair and reasonable opportunity to defend himself. 27 Bom 394 (399); AIR 1926 Rang 188, Ref. Sukhdev Singh Sodhi v. Hon'ble, C. J., S. Teja Singh, 1954 SCJ 67: 1954 Mad WN 131: (1954) 1 Mad LJ 137: 1954 Cri LJ 460: 1954 All WR (HC) 186: 1954 SCA 363: 1954 SCR 454: AIR 1954 SC 186 (187, 190) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 24).

●——Art. 215 — Contempt proceedings pending before High Court — Power of Supreme Court to transfer proceedings under Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 527 — (Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 527 and 5).

The power of High Court to institute proceedings for contempt of Court and punish where necessary is a special jurisdiction. Such proceedings are not governed by the Criminal Procedure Code, (1898). Hence, the Supreme Court has no power under S. 527, Criminal P. C. (1898), to transfer such proceedings from one High Court to another.

There is no other power which the Supreme Court can exercise in this respect. Art. 215 of the Constitution gives every High Court the right and the power to punish a contempt of itself. Neither the Supreme Court nor the Legislature can deprive a High Court of the right which is so vested in it. Further the proceedings cannot be transferred from one Judge to another, there being no original jurisdiction which the Supreme Court can exercise. It is not a fundamental right and so Art. 32 has no application.

Dicta. — It is desirable on general principles of justice that the Judge who has been personally attacked should not as far as possible hear a contempt matter which, to that extent, concerns him personally. The Judges should bear in mind the oft quoted maxim that justice must not only be done but must be seen to be done by all concerned and most particularly by an accused person who should always be given, as far as that is humanly possible, a feeling of confidence that he will receive a fair, just and impartial trial by Judges who have no personal interest or concern in his case. Sukhdev Singh Sodhi v. Hon'ble C. J., S. Teja Singh, 1954 Mad WN 131: 1954 SCJ 67: (1954) 1 Mad LJ 137: 1954 Cri LJ 460: 1954 All WR (HC) 186: 1954 SCA 363: 1954 SCR 454: AIR 1954 SC 186 (187, 190) (Pt C) (Prs 2, 24, 25, 26).

●——Art. 215 — Nature of jurisdiction to punish for contempt — (Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3).

Every High Court in India, has jurisdiction to punish for contempt. This jurisdiction is inherent in a Court of Record from the very nature of the Court itself.

S. 3 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1952, is similar to S. 2 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1926 and far from conferring a new jurisdiction, assumes, as did the old Act, the existence of a right to punish for contempt in every High Court and further assumes the existence of a special practice and procedure. This procedure is not governed by the Criminal P. Code. In any case, so far as contempt of a High Court itself is concerned, as distinct from one of a Subordinate Court, Art. 215 of the Constitution vests these rights in every High Court, so no Act of a Legislature could take ayay that jurisdiction and confer it afresh by virtue of its own authority. Sukhdev Singh Sodhi v. Hon'ble C. J., S. Teja Singh, 1954 Mad WN 131: 1954 SCJ 67: (1954) 1 Mad LJ 137: 1954 Cri LJ 460: 1954 All WR (HC) 186: 1954 SCA 363: 1954 SCR 454: AIR 1954 SC 186 (189, 190) (Pt D) (Prs 20, 23).

——Art. 215 — Jurisdictions of High Court and Legislature — Nature and extent of — Validating enactment — Scope and its effect — Legislature cannot validate unconstitutional Act — U. P. Act of 1953 declared unconstitutional — Actions taken or orders passed thereunder cannot be validated by S. 17 of U. P. Ordinance of 1953. See Ibid, Art. 245. AIR 1962 All 350.

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 2 (1) — Contempt of revenue Court — High Court's jurisdiction under S. 2 (1). See Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 2 (1). AIR 1953 All 419.

●——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Jurisdiction of High Court — (Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 5).

The High Court has jurisdiction to enquire into and try a contempt of itself or of any Court subordinate to it, whether the contempt is alleged to have been committed within or outside the local limits of its jurisdiction, and whether the person alleged to be guilty of the contempt is within or outside such limits. Medhi v. Frank Moraes, 1954 Cri LJ 1609: AIR 1954 Assam 201 (205) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (FB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Jurisdiction — Nature of — Non-compliance with technical rules — Effect of — High Court Rules and Orders (Calcutta) — Original Side Rules, Ch. XXXVIII, Part 14.

The power of a High Court to institute proceedings for contempt and punish where necessary is a 'special jurisdiction' which is inherent in all Courts of record. The High Court can deal with it summarily and adopt its own procedure. All that is necessary is that the procedure is fair and the contemner is made aware of the charge against him and given a fair and reasonable opportunity to defend himself. The jurisdiction of the Court is derived from Art. 215 of the Constitution and cannot in any way be affected by Part 14 of Chapter XXXVIII of the Original Side Rules. Part 14 of Chapter XXXVIII only lays down how the cause title should be instituted. The provisions should be followed for the sake of convenience but their non-compliance does not affect the jurisdiction of the High Court. AIR 1954 SC 186, Rel. on; (1907) 1 QBD 1; AIR 1953 Cal 627; AIR 1949 Cal 214; 11 Ch D 168, Ref. (1962) 66 Cal WN 983.

——Art. 215 — Power of High Court to punish for contempt — Jurisdiction. See Ibid, Art. 134 (1) (c). 1959 Cri LJ 172: AIR 1959 Cal 106 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Jurisdiction in contempt — Nature of. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 1. 1958 Cri LJ 1162: AIR 1958 Cal 474.

●——Art. 215 — Exercise of jurisdiction — (Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 1).

The jurisdiction in respect of contempt proceedings should be exercised only when the case is clear and beyond reasonable doubt. The petitioner is not entitled to invoke this special jurisdiction for a decision on the important and complicated collateral question as to when a certain notification became operative. Case-law discussed. Malojirao Shitole v. Matkar, C. G., 1953 Cri LJ 1675: AIR 1953 Madh Bha 245 (246) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 5) (FB).

●——Art. 215 — Contempt — Jurisdiction — Considerations of propriety — (Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 1).

On considerations of propriety the jurisdiction of the High Court to commit for contempt cannot be exercised. Malojirao Shitole v. Matkar, C. G., 1953 Cri LJ 1675: AIR 1953 Madh Bha 245 (247) (Pt E) (Pr 6) (FB).

——Art. 215 — Territorial jurisdiction of High Court. See Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 1. 1954 Cri LJ 988: AIR 1954 Orissa 167 (DB).

8. Punishment — Principles.

●——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court and Legislature — Power to punish for contempt to be exercised cautiously — What is true of the judicature is equally true of the Legislatures. See Ibid, Art. 129. AIR 1965 SC 745.

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 4 — Punishment — Tender age of contemner is a circumstance which the Court has to take into consideration. AIR 1959 Cal 174 (175) (Pt C) (Pr 8).

——Art. 215 — Punishment for contempt — (Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3).

The punishment for contempt is inflicted for protecting the public and specially those who are subject to the jurisdiction of the Court from the mischief they will incur if the authority of the Tribunal is undermined or impaired. (1899) AC 549 and (1900) 2 QBD 36 and AIR 1935 Cal 419 (FB), Rel. on. The dignity of the Court is not so frail as to be easily affected by casual remarks or comments. AIR 1936 PC 141, Rel. on. ILR (1958) Cut 195: 1958 Cri LJ 1055: AIR 1958 Orissa 168 (182) (Pt H) (Prs 40, 42) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Punishment — (Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 3).

Held, that though the opposite parties were guilty of contempt the mischief in the instant case so far as it affected the proceedings in the High Court had been trifling. High Court would only warn them that a repetition of such conduct in the future would be dealt with severely. (1877) 46 LJ Ch 375, Rel. on. ILR (1953) Cut 283: 1953 Cri LJ 1491: AIR 1953 Orissa 249 (253, 254) (Pt E) (Pr 16) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Courts Act (1952), Ss. 1 and 4 — Contempt of Court— Interference with course of justice—Offence committed by raw and illiterate villagers—Punishment. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), Ss. 1 and 4. AIR 1956 Pat 321.

9. Apology.

●——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Punishment — Apology — In a matter relating to contempt of Court, there cannot be both justification and apology. AIR 1955 SC 19, Foll. 1962 (2) Cri LJ 236: AIR 1962 SC 1089 (1095) (Pt B) (Pr 9).

●——Art. 215 — Disobedience of order of High Court — Apology — Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 1.

One R was detained under the Bihar Maintenance of Public Order Act, 1947, in pursuance of an order issued by the Provincial Government. On the 30th July 1948, the High Court directed him to be "released forthwith". The very same day, a copy of the High Court's order was forwarded to the District Magistrate, Bhagalpur, for information and necessary action, and it reached the District Magistrate's office on the 31st July, 1948. R was not however, released until the 8th August 1948. The District Magistrate was away from Bhagalpur on tour from the 31st July, 1948, when the order of the High Court releasing the detenu was received in his office. When the case for contempt of High Court came up before the High Court the Advocate-General of Bihar tendered an apology on behalf of the District Magistrate.

Held that the District Magistrate was not personally guilty of contempt. The fact that he was away on tour and was not aware of the order of the High Court, must be regarded as a good defence in the contempt proceeding. Again, as there was no intention to flout or disobey the order of the High Court, that must also be regarded as an important circumstance in favour of the District Magistrate. The apology must not be taken to be a confession of guilt, especially as it was made in connection with the delay which had occurred in his office. Singh H. P. v. Tewari T. P., ILR 31 Pat 182: AIR 1953 SC 436 (437) (Pr 7).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Apology tendered, when can be accepted — Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 3.

In cases of contempt the Court is not bound to accept an apology or even an unqualified apology. The question whether it should do so or not would depend on circumstances of each particular case. A Court can refuse to accept an apology which it does not believe to be genuine; it can even when it accepts the apology, commit an offender to prison or otherwise punish him. Furthermore, there cannot be both justification and apology. The two things are incompatible. Where the apology does not seem to be so much the outpouring of a penitent heart moved by feeling of remorse and overcome by a sense of one's own guilt, as a convenient device clutched up by a person driven and compelled by the logic of events to resort to a measure which seems to him to provide the only mode of escape from the impending doom or as a last desperate throw in a game of chance hazarded by him at a time when all else has failed and everything seems to be lost, it should be considered to be merely an apology for an apology. It deserves to be given short shrift at the hands of the Court. AIR 1940 Nag 407, AIR 1940 Sind 239, AIR 1952 All 86, Rel. on. 1953 Cri LJ 402: AIR 1953 All 153 (157, 158) (Pt B) (Prs 15, 16, 18) (DB).

●——Art. 215 — Contempt—Tender of apology—Effect. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), Sections 3, 4. AIR 1959 Cal 174 (FB).

——Art. 215 — Apology — Effect of. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 4. 1959 Cri LJ 199: AIR 1959 Madh Pra 50 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Apology — Effect. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), Section 4. ILR (1959) Cut 401.

——Art. 215 — Apology — (Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 4) — Unconditional apology — Substantive sentence of imprisonment held, not called for — Only fine imposed. ILR (1954) Cut 467: 1954 Cri LJ 988: 20 Cut LT 446: AIR 1954 Orissa 167 (172) (Pt D) (Pr 17) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Inspection report about criminal Courts by High Court Judge — Observations by District Magistrate — Contempt of High Court — Tender of unqualified apology — Held no useful purpose would be served by pursuing the matter further. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1959 Cri LJ 1013: AIR 1959 Pat 373 (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 4 — Apology — It should be tendered at the earliest stage. AIR 1956 Pat 321 (324) (Pt C) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 3 — Apology — Effect of — (Patiala Contempt of Courts Act, S. 3). See Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 3. AIR 1953 Pepsu 79.

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Apology — Effect — An unreserved apology, in less serious cases has the effect of taking the sting out of contempt. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), Section 3. 1961 (1) Cri LJ 426: AIR 1961 Punj 113.

——Art. 215 — Contempt — Apology — Effect. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 4. 1958 Cri LJ 685: AIR 1958 Punj 180.

——Art. 215 — Contempt of Court — Apology. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 3. 1957 Cri LJ 657: AIR 1957 Punj 105.

10. Appeal.

——Arts. 215 and 134 (1) (c) — Order imposing punishment for contempt of Court — Leave to appeal to Supreme Court. See Ibid, Art. 134 (1) (c). 1956 Cri LJ 1411: AIR 1956 Manipur 44.

——Art. 215 — Contempt — Criminal contempt—Appeal. See Ibid, Art. 134 (1) (c). 1953 Cri LJ 1578: AIR 1953 Orissa 266 (DB).

——Arts 215, 134 — Leave to appeal to Supreme Court from conviction for contempt — Prejudice — Inadmissible evidence admitted — (Contempt of Courts Act (1926), S. 2). See Ibid, Art. 134. AIR 1953 Orissa 266.

——Art. 215 — Contempt proceedings — Leave to appeal — Exclusive jurisdiction in matters relating to contempt of Court. See Ibid, Art. 134. AIR 1953 Orissa 266.

——Art. 215 — Contempt proceedings — Substantial question of law — Leave to appeal to Supreme Court. See Ibid, Art. 134. AIR 1953 Orissa 266.

ARTICLE 216

——Art. 216 — Judicial Commissioner's Courts (Declaration as High Courts) Act (1950) S. 6 (a) — Validity — Applicability of Art. 216 to judicial Commissioner's Courts — Article inapplicable — Section not ultra vires. See Judicial Commissioner's Courts (Declaration as High Courts) Act (1950), S. 6 (a). 1952 Cri LJ 114: AIR 1952 Him Pra 5.

ARTICLE 217

■——Art. 217 (3) (as amended by the Fifteenth Amendment) — Scope of — Retrospective operation — Question of determination of age of High Court Judge — Jurisdiction vests exclusively in President.

The retrospective operation of Art. 217 (3) postulates that this provision must be read in the Constitution as from January 26, 1950; and so, it will apply even in regard to the determination of the ages of Judges of High Courts who had been appointed to their office before the actual provision was inserted in the Constitution by the Amendment Act of 1963. This provision vests the jurisdiction to determine the question about the Judge's age exclusively in the President, and so, it follows that in the presence of this provision, no Court can claim jurisdiction to deal with the said question. Now the question about the age of a Judge of a High Court has to be determined only in one way, and that is the way prescribed by Art. 217 (3). Jyoti Prokash Mitter v. Hon'ble Mr. Justice H. K. Bose, Chief Justice of the High Court, Calcutta, (1964) 2 SCA 747: (1965) 1 SCWR 524: AIR 1965 SC 961 (966) (Pt A) (Pr 20).

●——Art. 217 (3) (as amended by Fifteenth Amendment)—Determination of age of High Court Judge — Procedure to be followed — Consultation with Chief Justice of India is mandatory — Decision of President is final — Question when to be decided.

In determining the age of a High Court Judge under Art. 217 (3), the question as to what procedure should be followed in deciding the age, what opportunity should be given to the Judge whose age is being decided, and other allied questions pertaining to the decision, are entirely within the discretion of the President. The provision requires that before the President reaches his decision, he has to consult the Chief Justice of India; it is clearly a mandatory requirement of Cl. (3). It is also implicit in this provision that before the President reaches his decision on the question, he ought to give the Judge concerned a reasonable opportunity to give his version in support of the age stated by him at the time of his appointment and produce his evidence in that behalf. How this should be done, is, of course, for the President to decide; but the requirement of natural justice that the Judge must have a reasonable opportunity to put before the President his contention, his version and his evidence, is obviously implicit in the provision itself. It is also clear that the decision of the President under Art. 217 (3) is final, and its propriety, correctness, or validity is beyond the reach of the jurisdiction of Courts.

If a dispute is raised about the age of stiting Judge and in support of it, evidence is adduced which prima facie throws doubt on the correctness of the date of birth given by a Judge at the time of his appointment, it is desirable that the said dispute should be dealt with by the President, because it is of utmost importance that in matters of this kind, the confidence of the public in the veracity of a statement made by a Judge in respect of his age must be scrupulously maintained, and where a challenge is made to such a statement, it is in the interests of the dignity and status of the Judge himself as much as in the interests of the purity and reputation of the administration of justice that the dispute should be resolved and the matter cleared up by the decision of the President. Jyoti Prokash Mitter v. Hon'ble Mr. Justice H. K. Bose, Chief Justice of the High Court, Calcutta, (1964) 2 SCA 747: (1965) 1 SCWR 524 : AIR 1965 SC 961 (966, 967) (Pt B) (Prs 21, 23).

● ——Art. 217 (3) (as amended by Fifteenth Amendment) — Question as to age of High Court Judge — Judge whether should step down from office pending decision—On fact, held that decision of President on 15-5-1961 could not be treated as one under Art. 217 (3).

As a matter of law, a Judge cannot cease to be a Judge merely because a dispute has been raised about his age and the same is being considered by the President, and should not be required to step down from his office. But in dealing with this legal position, considerations of prudence and expediency cannot be ignored. If a dispute arises about the age of a Judge, any prudent and wise Chief Justice would naturally think of avoiding unnecessary complications by refusing to assign any work to the sitting Judge if, at the time when the dispute had been raised, it appears that the allegation is that at the relevant time the Judge in question has reached the age of superannuation.

Where the question was whether the decision of the President of India as to the age of a Judge of the Calcutta High Court given on 15th May, 1961 before the introduction of Art. 217 (3) in the Constitution should be regarded as a decision under Art. 217 (3) because of its retrospective operation.

Held, that having regard to the circumstances in which the enquiry was made, and bearing in mind the fact that the Judge was justified in contending that his age could not be determined by the Executive in proceedings initiated by it, the impugned order passed by the President must be held to suffer from the serious infirmity that the evidence of the Judge was not available to the President when he reached his decision. The question concerning the age of the Judge on which a decision was reached by the President on May, 15, 1961, affected him in a very serious manner; and so considerations of natural justice and fair play required that before the question was determined by the President, the Judge should be given a chance to adduce his evidence. That is why on the whole, it would not be possible to accept the contention that the order passed by the President on May, 15 should be treated as a decision within the meaning of Art. 217 (3). Jyoti Prokash Mitter v. Hon'ble Mr. Justice H. K. Bose, Chief Justice of the High Court, Calcutta. (1964) 2 SCA 747: (1965) 1 SCWR 524: AIR 1965 SC 961 (967, 969) (Pt C) (Prs 24, 29).

●——Art. 217 — Application under — Issue of rule nisi — Practice — Question of competency of Home Minister to determine question of age of High Court Judge — Question being very important rule nisi should issue. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1964 SC 1636.

●——Art. 217 — Question as to age of Judge — Can be judicially decided — Mere declaration of age by judge — Not sufficient.

Dicta: A Judge of the High Court whilst he is in office must satisfy the constitutional requirement that he has not attained the age of 60 years and it would be unreasonable for any Judge to suggest that the question about his age cannot be raised just because he made a declaration before his appointment, and without any examination of the question, the said declaration was accepted by the Government of India when his appointment was made. Apart from the Government of India, it would prima facie be theoretically open to any litigant to raise the question about the competence of a Judge to hold his office as such on the ground that he has attained the age of 60 years and if a serious allegation is made in that behalf, it may have to be judicially determined in a proper proceeding. Himansu Kumar Bose v. Jyoti Prokash Mitter, (1964) 1 SCA 347: AIR 1964 SC 1636 (1640) (Pt A) (Prs 12, 14).

●——Art. 217 — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 7 (3) (c) — One member Tribunal — Qualifications as to age for membership — Advocate over sixty not disqualified. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 7 (3) (c). AIR 1962 SC 1100.

——Art. 217 — Municipal Superannuation Rules — Rule 1 (a) — Municipal servant attaining age of 55 cannot again be appointed for first time in service—Provisions under Art. 217 compared. See Municipalities — Bombay Municipal Boroughs Act (XVIII of 1925), S. 58. ILR (1958) Bom 113.

●——Art. 217 (1) — Mandamus — Writ of — Claim by Judge of High Court that he has not reached age of superannuation — Demand made by him to Chief Justice to supply him with work as Judge of High Court — Decision by Union Government, that Judge has reached superannuation age and should therefore, demit office — Decision of Government communicated to Judge and work not supplied to him by Chief Justice — Petition for issue of writ of mandamus filed in High Court by the Judge against the Chief Justice — Difference of opinion between Judges hearing appeal from order of dismissal of application as to whether Rule nisi should issue — Question referred to Special Bench under Cl. 36, Letters Patent (Cal.) Held by the Special Bench that on materials in the petition and annexures thereto, a Rule nisi should issue. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1963 Cal 483 (SB).

●——Art. 217 — "Attains the age of sixty" — Who is authority to determine a Judge's age in case of dispute? (Quaere) Jyoti Prokash Mitter v. H. K. Bose, Chief Justice Calcutta High Court, 67 Cal WN 662: AIR 1963 Cal 483 (488, 496) (Pt E) (Prs 23, 75) (SB).

——Arts. 217 (1) and 226 — Judge, age of — Age given by Judge (J. P. Mitter, J. of Calcutta High Court) at time of appointment disputed and Judge retired on ground of superannuation — Writ proceedings against order of Union of India dismissed by Punjab High Court — Special leave to appeal also refused by Supreme Court — Request by retired Judge, nevertheless, to Chief Justice of High Court concerned to arrange for his sitting in Court as a Judge — Request not complied with — Writ petition in same Court for issue of Rule against Chief Justice — Petition dismissed summarily by single Judge — Appeal to Division Bench — Difference of views between Judges constituting Bench as regards disposal of appeal. AIR 1963 Cal 183 (187, 190, 191) (Prs 22, 23, 44, 45) (DB).

●——Art. 217 — High Court Judges cannot do any other work. See Ibid, Art. 14. AIR 1953 Hyd 105 (FB).

——Arts. 217, 218, 219 and 124 (a) and Sch. 2, Part D, Rr. 10 (1) and 11 — Judicial Commissioner whether can act as arbitrator without President's permission — Judicial Commissioner's Courts (Declaration as High Courts) Act (1950), S. 6 (a).

There is no bar anywhere in the Constitution which lays down a restriction on Judicial Commissioner to act as an arbitrator. Further, the provisions of Article 217, 218 or 221 and therefore, also of the second Schedule to the Constitution do not apply to the Court or office of the Judicial Commissioner. AIR 1958 Manipur 38 (40) (Pt B) (Prs 11, 12).

——Art. 217, Sch. II, Part D, paras. 10 and 11 (b) (i) — Undertaking a function other than that a Judge.

A Judge of a High Court is competent to act on a commission at the request of a State Government, even though the permission of the President has not been obtained. Absence of such permission may, if the work is done to the exclusion of his own duty as a Judge, only affects the period of his actual service but not his appointment as a member of the Commission. ILR (1953) Nag 901: AIR 1953 Nag 331 (333) (Pt A) (Pr 26) (DB).

——Art. 217 — Appointment of Advocate General after age of 60 years — Appointment not bad so long as he has qualifications prescribed in second clause of Art. 217. See Ibid, Art. 165. AIR 1952 Nag 330 (DB).

——Art. 217 — Member of I. C. S. employed under Punjab State Government—It is competent to direct inquiry under the Act against him — Appointment of a Judge of Punjab High Court as Commission of Inquiry by Governor with approval of Government of India is valid. See Public Servants (Inquiries) Act (1850), S. 2. (1961) 63 Pun LR 780.

——Art. 217 — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 7 (3) — Qualification for appointment. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 7 (3). AIR 1959 Punj 460.

——Art. 217 — Proceedings to test right to office — De facto Judges.

Per Koshi J.:— The right of a de facto Judge to hold his office is not open to question nor is his jurisdiction subject to attack in a collateral proceeding.

To raise the competency of the Chief Justice to hear and decide certain appeals when they were taken up for hearing or in the proceeding for leave to appeal to the Supreme Court against that judgment, or in the appeal before the Supreme Court would amount to collateral attack. 1950 TCLR 306: 1950 Ker LT 439: AIR 1951 Trav-Co. 45 (49, 50) (Pt A) (Prs 10, 14) (DB).

——Art. 217 (1) — Person over 60 years is not disqualified from holding office as Judge—(T. C. High Court Act (5 of 1125), S. 9 (1)).

Per Sankaran, J.: The Expression "every permanent Judge shall hold office until he attains the age of 60 years" in Cl. 1 of S. 9, T. C. High Courts Act cannot be construed to mean that it operates as an absolute bar against a Judge being retained in service beyond the age of 60 years or that a Judge on completing 60 years of age becomes disqualified to hold office. 1950 Trav-Co LR 306: 1950 Ker LT 439: AIR 1951 Trav-Co. 45 (52) (Pt D) (Pr 24) (DB).

ARTICLE 218

——Art. 218 — The provisions of Arts. 217, 218 or 221 and therefore also of the Second Schedule to the Constitution do not apply to the Court or office of the Judicial Commissioner — (Judicial Commissioner's Courts (Declaration as High Courts Act (1950), S. 6 (a)). See Ibid, Art. 217. AIR 1958 Manipur 38.

ARTICLE 219

——Art. 219 — Sixteenth Amendment — Effect— Subscribing oath according to prescribed form is mandatory — Subscribing oath by Judge on 7-10-1963, in old form though irregular was held to be not fatal. 1963 All WR (HC) 818: 1964 All Cri R 27: 1964 All LJ 315: ILR (1964) 1 All 620: 1965 (1) Cri LJ 258: AIR 1965 All 97 (99; 102; 104) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 10, 21, 22) (DB).

——Art. 219 — Word 'subscribed' — Meaning of.

The use of the word 'subscribed' would show that the oath repeated orally should be reduced to writing and be signed by the person taking it in token of his adhesion to what is written. The word "subscribed" is not correlated with the particular form but with what is said in the oath and what is reproduced in writing. Even if a wrong oath is taken and its reproduction is signed by the person making it, it would still be an act of subscribing though not a correct oath. 1963 All WR (HC) 818: 1964 All Cri R 27: 1964 All LJ 315: ILR (1964) 1 All 620: 1965 (1) Cri LJ 258: AIR 1965 All 97 (105) (Pt B) (Pr 24) (DB).

——Art. 219 — Oath to be taken by Judge in presence of Governor — Governor can appoint someone else for that purpose for good reason — General authorisation made by Governor appointing Chief Justice is not proper. AIR 1963 SC 1198 Disting. 1963 All WR (HC) 818: 1964 All Cri R 27: 1964 All LJ 315: ILR (1964) 1 All 620: 1965 (1) Cri LJ 258: AIR 1965 All 97 (105; 106) (Pt C) (Prs 26, 28) (DB).

——Art. 219 — Precedents — Judgment of High Court — Not binding on Judges of same High Court or of other High Courts. See Precedents. 1964 (2) Cri LJ 541: AIR 1964 Guj 223.

——Art. 219 — Decision based on weight of authority and not on individual judgment of Judge— Conduct contrary to oath of office taken by Judge.

(Obiter) If a Judge or Judges of a Bench come to a certain conclusion because the weight of authority is in favour of that conclusion, that would be to base the decision on the weight of authority and not on the individual judgment of the Judges constituting the Bench and that would be contrary to the provisions of S. 165 of the Evidence Act and Art. 219 of the Constitution, and to the oath taken by the Judges under the Government of India Act, the terms of which are substantially the same as those under the Constitution of India. (1963) 4 Guj LJ 1022 : AIR 1963 Guj 291 (295) (Pt B) (Pr 15).

——Art. 219 — Binding effect — Decision of one Division Bench not binding on another Bench. See Precedents. 1962 (2) Cri LJ 360 : AIR 1962 Guj 250 (DB).

ARTICLE 220

——Art. 220 — 'Plead' — Meaning of — Permanent High Court Judge not debarred after retirement from pleading his own cause.

Article 220 puts restriction on practice by a person after being a permanent Judge of a High Court. The expression 'Plead' means, amongst other meanings, to address the Court as an Advocate on behalf of either party. A permanent High Court Judge is, therefore, not debarred from pleading his own cause by Art. 220. 66 Cal WN 211 : (1962) 1 Lab LJ 708 : (1962) 4 Fac LR 121 : AIR 1963 Cal 178 (182) (Pt A) (Pr 13).

——Arts. 220 and 165—Person, a retired Judge of a High Court before commencement of Constitution — He can be appointed as Advocate-General. Bar in Art. 220 does not come in his way. See Ibid, Art. 165. AIR 1952 Nag 330 (DB).

ARTICLE 224

——Art. 224 — Judge of a High Court — An additional Judge appointed under Art. 224 of the Constitution is as much a Judge of High Court as a permanent Judge appointed by the President. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 7-A (3) (a). AIR 1962 Mys 117 (DB).

——Arts. 224, 214 (2) — Re-appointment of Judge resigning on 24-1-1950.

A Judge of the Provincial High Court who resigned on 24-1-1950 can be appointed as a Judge of the corresponding State High Court under Art. 224 as, though such a person is not a Judge of the Provincial High Court on 25-1-1950, the identity of the Provincial High Court is not changed between 24-1-1950 and 25-1-1950. ILR 29 Pat 904 : 1952 Cri LJ 540 : AIR 1951 Pat 305 (306) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

ARTICLE 225

SYNOPSIS

(Constitution of India (1950), Art. 225.)

1. Scope.
2. "Subject to the provisions of this Constitution".
3. "Any law of the appropriate Legislature".
4. Jurisdiction.
5. "Respective powers of Judges".
6. Power to regulate procedure of Court.
7. Proviso.

1. Scope.

——Art. 225 — Law administered at the commencement of Constitution — Law laid down by P. C. decision.

The law laid down by the Privy Council which does not conflict with any decisions of the Supreme Court would be binding on Indian High Court: AIR 1955 Nag 293, AIR 1954 SC 379, AIR 1958 Cal 530, AIR 1955 Bom 1 (FB), Rel. on. 1961 All WR (HC) 481 : 1961 All Cr R 281 : 1961 All LJ 617 (DB).

——Art. 225 — Privy Council decisions are binding on High Court — Precedents.

In view of the provisions in Art. 225 of the Constitution the law laid down by the Privy Council has a binding effect on the High Court and has to be followed. AIR 1955 Cal 524; AIR 1958 Cal 530; AIR 1955 Nag 293; AIR 1955 Bom 1 (FB); AIR 1954 SC 379, Rel. on. (1961) 2 Lab LJ 197 : (1961) 2 Fac LR 563 (All).

——Arts. 225, 226, 227 and 311—Applicability — Petitioner serving in Sarf-e-Khas army in former Hyderabad State — Order of dismissal passed by H. E. H. Nizam in his private capacity after accession of State to Indian Union — Writ petition—Maintainability — Art. 311 not applicable.

The petitioner was appointed in 1940 in the Sarf-e-Khas army of the former Hyderabad State before its accession to Indian Union. On 15-2-56 the petitioner was orally informed that he was dismissed from service with effect from 8-2-1956 in pursuance of an order passed by H. E. H. the Nizam as recommended by the intazami Committee and the fouzi committee Sarf--e-Khas army. The petitioner filed a petition under Arts. 225, 226 and 227 of the Constitution to quash the order of his dismissal making Hyderabad State (subsequently substituted by way of amendment by the Andhra Pradesh State) the first respondent, Nawab Deen Yar Jung as Chairman and Secretary to the private estate of H. E. H. the Nizam as the second respondent.

Held, (i) that Arts. 225 and 227 have no application at all. Under Art. 226, a writ of Certiorari being corrective in nature would issue only if it is shown that the person or authority or Tribunal which made the impugned order was acting judicially or as a quasi-judicial body. On 8-2-1956, when the alleged order was passed by H. E. H. the Nizam, he was not acting in his private capacity. So there is no question of quashing the said order. That apart, H. E. H., the Nizam is not a party to this petition. No writ of Certiorari can issue against the 1st respondent (now the State of Andhra Pradesh) either. Further, in view of the fact that admittedly the Intezami Committee, Sarf-e-khas army and the Committee Fouji, Sarf-e-khas army are not in existence, there is no question of issuing any writ as against Nawab Deen Yar Jung who only represents the private estate of H. E. H. the Nizam as Chairman. Hence there is no occasion for invoking the powers under Art. 226 of the Constitution. There is also no question of issuing any writ of Mandamus as the petitioner has failed to show that he has a legal right for himself and that a legal obligation is cast on the respondents whom he had impleaded to do an act which they failed to do.

(ii) that Art. 311 would be applicable to the petitioner if he was in the service of the Union or the State. Since the Sarf-e-khas itself merged in the Diwani as a result of Sarf-e-khas Merger Regulation of 1358-F which came into force on 5-2-1949, there was no longer any question of the Sarf-e-khas or the Sarf-e-khas army. The petitioner continued thereafter, only in the private service of H. E. H. He not being in any State service the question of the application of Art. 311 does not arise. ILR (1962) Andh Pra 278.

——Art. 225 — Scope — Law settled by Federal Court — Continuity of. See Ibid, Art. 374. AIR 1959 Andh Pra 359 (DB).

——Art. 225 — Scope — Andhra Court-fees and Suits Valuation Act, S. 2 (2), does not save the rule made for payment of court-fees on writ petitions by High Court under Art. 225. Though the power to make rules prescribing the court-fees for writ applications is derived by the High Court from Art. 225 of the Constitution, the court-fee is not payable under the Constitution. See Andhra Court-Fees and Suits Valuation Act (7 of 1956), S. 2 (2). AIR 1957 Andh Pra 123 (DB).

——Art. 225 — Applicability and scope —Ss. 2 (h), 119 to 121, States Reorganisation Act — Court on reorganization bound by Bombay decisions and not Nagpur decisions — Sections 119 to 121, States Reorganization Act and Art. 225, Constitution of India do not apply. See C. P. Code. S. 144. (1959) Nag LJ (Notes) 42.

● ——Arts. 225 and 226 — Scope.

Article 225 defines the whole jurisdiction of the existing High Courts and its effect is to provide that such High Courts shall have all their existing jurisdictions, so far as they are not inconsistent with the provisions of the Constitution and such further jurisdictions as are being conferred by the Constitution itself or may be conferred in future either by Parliament under the provisions of the Constitution or by laws of the appropriate Legislature provided that by such laws the jurisdiction may also be curtailed. It is not correct to read the Article as solely concerned with the preservation of the existing powers and the provision introduced by the words "subject to" as merely providing that the High Courts shall have their existing jurisdiction only so far as it is not being curtailed by the Constitution, or may not be curtailed in future by laws of the appropriate Legislature. Hence the jurisdiction conferred by Art. 226 is a jurisdiction within Art. 225 and therefore in so far as jurisdiction is concerned, a judgment given in exercise of the jurisdiction conferred by Art. 226 is a judgment pursuant to Art. 225.

The nature and limits of the power given by Art. 225 to make rules for the regulation and distribution of the business of the Court must be sought in S. 108 of the Government of India Act, 1915.

Since the power conferred by S. 108 is power to frame rules for the exercise of all jurisdictions, whether existing at the date of the Act of 1915 or subsequently vested, and that power has been preserved by Art. 225 of the Constitution, a judgment of a Single Judge, in exercise of the jurisdiction conferred by Art. 226, is, even in respect of the rule assigning such jurisdiction to him, a judgment pursuant to S. 108 or Art. 225.

Section 108 (2) is the only provision which empowers the Chief Justice to determine what Judge shall sit singly and what Judges shall constitute the Division Courts. That part of the section also is now incorporated in Art. 225. Outside section 108 (2), (now Art. 225), there never was and there is not now any other provision which gives power to the Chief Justice to nominate from time to time particular Judges for particular Courts or Benches. When therefore, a particular Judge sits in a particular Court, he does so under a determination by the Chief Justice, whatever jurisdiction he may exercise and since such determination can only be made under S. 108 (2), now Art. 225, he sits and exercises jurisdiction pursuant to S. 108. 57 Cal WN 25 : AIR 1953 Cal 433 (438, 439, 440) (Pt E) (Prs 19; 20; 24; 25) (SB).

——Arts. 225, 214 — High Court of Saurashtra becoming High Court of Part B States and Part VI of Constitution with certain modifications mentioned in Art. 238 became applicable to High Court — Effect of Art. 225 on appellate jurisdiction. See States Reorganisation Act (1956), S. 49. AIR 1965 Gul 87 (DB).

——Arts. 225 and 230 — India and Hyderabad Exchanges of Enclaves Order (1950), Ss. 2 and 7 — Applicability — Exchange of territory became effective from before Constitution — Pending actions at time of exchange — Jurisdiction already vested is not affected — Arts. 225 and 230 of the Constitution refer to transfer after the Constitution came into force and are inapplicable to a case where the transfer became effective before the Constitution came into force. See India and Hyderabad Exchanges of Enclaves Order (1950), Ss. 2 and 7. 52 Cri LJ 1398: AIR 1950 Hyd 71.

——Art. 225 — Application for copy dismissed for default—Inherent powers of High Court to restore — Procedure — Effect on limitation — (High Court Rules and Orders — (Madras) Civil Rules of Practice, R. 129) — (Limitation Act (1908), Ss. 5, 12) — Inherent jurisdiction of High Court is saved among others by Art. 225 of the Constitution. 71 Mad LW 822 : (1958) 2 Mad LJ 552 : ILR (1959) Mad 176 : AIR 1959 Mad 406 (407) (Prs 6, 7).

——Arts. 225, 200, Sch. 7, List 1. Entry 78, List 2, Entry 3, List 3 Entries 1, 2, 46—(Code of) Criminal Procedure (Madras Amendment) Act (Madras Act) (34 of 1955) — Validity — Act derogating from powers of High Court — Constitution, if has provision to make such laws. See Code of Criminal Procedure (Madras Amendment) Act (Madras Act) (34 of 1955) — Validity. AIR 1959 Mad 261.

——Art. 225 — Privy Council decisions — Binding nature on Courts in India. See Ibid, Art. 141. AIR 1955 Nag 293 (DB).

——Arts. 225, 226 — Patiala and East Punjab States Union Judicature Ordinance (X (10) of 2005) — S. 60 whether abrogated.

Art. 225 saves all laws etc., in force in the Union, unless they are inconsistent or come in conflict with any of the provisions of the Constitution. Section 60, Patiala and East Punjab States Union Judicature Ordinance (10 of 2005), is not inconsistent with the provisions of Art. 226 of the Constitution and cannot be held to be abrogated by the coming into force of the Constitution. (1950) 2 Pepsu LR 443.

2. "Subject to the provisions of this Constitution".

——Arts. 225, 145 (1) (b) — Applications for certificate for leave to appeal to Supreme Court — Power of High Court to make rules governing procedure — (High Court Rules and Orders — (Allahabad) Rules of Court (1952), Ch. 23).

A High Court has no statutory power to make any rules governing the procedure in an application for a certificate. The rules contained in Ch. 23 of the Rules of Court, 1952, made by Allahabad High Court are, therefore, not made in exercise of the powers conferred by Art. 225. Only the Supreme Court has the powers to make rules governing the procedure in applications for certificates under Art. 132, etc. They are matters pertaining to appeals within the meaning of Art. 145 (1) (b). The use of the words "subject to the provisions of this Constitution" in Art. 225 restricts and not enlarges the High Courts' powers. 1957 All WR (HC) 268: AIR 1957 All 505 (519) (Pt O) (Pr 22) (DB).

——Arts. 225 and 226 — Construction and relative scope—If to be read together —"Jurisdiction" — "Powers" — Meaning and effect of.

Art. 226 of the Constitution must be read with Art. 225 and laying special emphasis on the words "subject to the provisions of this Constitution" occurring in Art. 225. When so read, it will be found that the jurisdiction of the existing High Courts as exercised immediately before the commencement of the Constitution has lost its rigidity. The words "subject to the provisions of this Constitution" in Art. 225 imply not only the abridgment but also the expansion of the jurisdiction of any existing High Court. Art. 226 is clearly an instance of the latter and Art. 230 of both.

The words "jurisdiction" and "powers" used in Art. 225 ought not to be read as having quite distinct meaning or as being independent of each other. "Jurisdiction" has two recognised meanings, namely, (1) legal authority or the extent of power and (2) area over which such authority or power extends.

These two meanings of the same word have a totally different concept and should not be confused. The sense in which it is used is governed by the context. There is nothing in the meaning of the word "jurisdiction" as used in Arts. 225 and 226 to suggest any difference between the High Court's authority and power except that the word "jurisdiction" in Art. 225 can have both the meanings ascribed to the term, and it is merely in order to avoid confusion that the word "powers" has been deliberately used in respect of the Judges. AIR 1950 Madh Bha 60 (FB), Diss. 1952 Cri LJ 660: AIR 1952 Bhopal 1 (3, 4) (Pt B) (Prs 9, 10, 12, 17).

——Art. 225 — Proceedings disputing validity of election — Jurisdiction of High Court — Representation of the People Act (1951), Ss. 80, 81, and 100. See Ibid, Art. 329 (b). AIR 1953 Cal 98.

——Arts. 225 and 245 (1) — Legislation imposing limitation on powers of High Court, under the Constitution cannot be passed — Existing laws which contain such limitation become void after Constitution came into force. See Ibid, Art. 245 (1). AIR 1953 Nag 148 (DB).

3. "Any law of the appropriate Legislature".

——Arts. 225, 226, 246 (3), Sch. VII; List II; Item 3 — High Court prescribing court-fee for proceedings before it in original jurisdiction — Powers of State legislature — Court-fee on writ petitions.

Art. 225 of the Constitution of India preserved the pre-existing power of the High Court to make rules of Court and prescribe court-fees in respect of proceedings taken before the High Court; but the rules would not have any legal authority if the appropriate legislature made law on the same subject. The Andhra Legislature has power to make laws in respect of item 3 of the State List which includes fees taken in all Courts including the High Court except the Supreme Court. Thus item 3 of the State List confers specific power on the Legislature to make laws prescribing the fees in the High Court. AIR 1954 Mad 543, Rel. on. (1957) 1 An WR 360: 1957 An LT 403: ILR (1957) Andh Pra 229: AIR 1957 Andh Pra 123 (126) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 225 — Art. 225 of Constitution is subject to the provisions of any law made by appropriate legislature and does not affect scope of Cl. 15 — Jurisdiction exercised by Assam High Court in revenue matters is a special jurisdiction — Decision of Single Judge in appeal under S. 147 Assam Land and Revenue Regulation — Not a judgment within Cl. 15 — No appeal lies to a Bench. See Letters Patent (Cal), Cl. 15. AIR 1962 Assam 71 (DB).

——Art. 225 — (Code of) Criminal Procedure (Madras Amendment) Act (Madras Act), (34 of 1955)—Validity — If ultra vires the State Legislature — Power to transfer cases pending before Presidency Magistrate given to Sessions Judge, Madras — Validity. See (Code of) Criminal Procedure (Madras Amendment) Act (Madras Act 34 of 1955) — Validity. AIR 1959 Mad 261.

4. Jurisdiction.

●——Art. 225 — Powers of High Court — Division Bench — No jurisdiction to sit in judgment on decision of another Division Bench. 1958 SCJ 349: 1958 Cr LJ 273: 1958 Mad LJ (Cr) 311: AIR 1958 SC 143 (145) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

●——Arts. 225, 226 — Powers and jurisdiction—Scope of Arts. 225 and 226 — Punjab High Court has jurisdiction to issue writ to the investigation Commission in Delhi investigating under S. 5, Taxation of Income (Investigation Commission) Act (30 of 1947), AIR 1951 Punj 74, Reversed. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1954 SC 207.

——Art. 225 — Powers under Art. 226 — Scope of — Powers not to be exercised in derogation of Art. 225 — Final order passed by High Court in exercise of revisional or appellate jurisdiction — Finality cannot be upset in exercise of powers under Art. 226. See Ibid, Art. 226. AIR 1963 All 532.

——Art. 225 — Representation of the People Act (1951) S. 116-A — Right of appeal under S. 116-A — Validity — Jurisdiction — Whether contravention of Arts. 225 to 227. See Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 116-A. AIR 1958 All 137 (DB).

——Art. 225 — Indian and Colonial Divorce Jurisdiction Act (1926) (16 and 17 Geo, V. C. 40), S. 1—Jurisdiction of Indian Courts to grant decrees for dissolution of marriages of couples domiciled outside India — (Indian Independence Act (1947), Section 17 (1) — (Interpretation of Statutes—Repeal) — (General Clauses Act j1897), S. 6-A). See Indian and Colonial Divorce Jurisdiction Act (1926), S. 1. AIR 1954 All 624.

——Art. 225 — Power of High Court to punish for contempts — Inherent jurisdiction — Jurisdiction preserved under Art. 225. See Contempt of Courts Act (1952), S. 2. 1959 Cr LJ 567: AIR 1959 Bom 182 (DB).

——Art. 225 — Admiralty jurisdiction in respect of supply of necessaries — Extent of. See Letters Patent (Calcutta), (1865), Cl. 32. AIR 1954 Cal 415.

——Art. 225 — Letters Patent (Bombay) Cl. 16 — States Reorganisation Act (1956), Ss. 52 and 69 — High Court Act (1861), Ss. 1 and 9 — Jurisdiction conferred by clause 16 of Letters Patent — Jurisdiction under Art. 225 compared. See Ibid, Art. 372. AIR 1965 Mys 76 (DB).

——Art. 225 — Scope — Jurisdiction — S. 65 (2), States Reorganisation Act — Validity — If contravenes Art. 225 — S. 65 (2) is supplemental, incidental and consequential provision within Art. 4 and not open to objection of contravening Art. 225. See Ibid, Art. 4. AIR 1960 Mys 310.

●——Art. 225 — Power of Mysore High Court to grant probate and letters of administration. See Succession Act (1925), S. 300. AIR 1959 Mys 83 (FB).

——Arts. 225 and 226 — Scope and effect — Territorial jurisdiction of High Court — Investigation by Income-tax Investigation Commission in U. P. — Power of Punjab High Court to issue writ — Taxation on Income (Investigation Commission) Act (30 of 1947), Ss. 8 and 9.

Art. 225 of the Constitution defines the jurisdiction of the High Court and Art. 226 confers authority or powers to be exercised within the jurisdiction given in Art. 225. Neither Art. 225 nor Art. 226 enlarges its territorial jurisdiction, nor confers jurisdiction on it in regard to matters over which it had no jurisdiction previously.

The Punjab High Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a petition for the issue of writs of prohibition and certiorari quashing the proceedings of the Income-tax Investigation Commission constituted under Act (30 of 1947) carrying out investigation in U. P. where the assessee resides, and the fact that the location of the Commission is in Delhi within the jurisdiction of that Court does not confer jurisdiction over it. ILR (1944) Mad 457 (PC), Applied. ILR (1951) Punj 165: 53 PLR 57 : (1951) 20 ITR 77 : AIR 1951 Punj 74 (76, 77) (Pt A) (Prs 16; 19) (DB).

[Reversed in AIR 1954 SC 207.]

5. "Respective powers of Judges."

■——Art. 225 — Powers of Judges of High Court in relation to the administration of justice in the Court.

Per P. N. Mookerjee, J.: "The Advocate-General did not argue that no writ lies in this Court against the Chief Justice (acting in his administrative capacity.) It is well that it is so. It is an emphatic vindication of the powers of this Court, in eloquent recognition that the judicial power of its Puisne Judges is above the Chief Justice no less important than the traditional saying of this Court that the judicial powers of the Chief Justice are in no way greater than its Puisne Judges." Jyoti Prakash Mitter v. Hon'ble Mr. Justice H. K. Bose, Chief Justice of High Court, Calcutta, 67 Cal WN 662 : AIR 1963 Cal 483 (489) (Pt G) (Pr 27) (SB).

■——Arts. 225, 254 (1) — Mysore Chief Court Act (1 of 1884), S. 15 (3) — Validity — (Civil P. C. (1908), Ss. 4, 98.)

It cannot be held that after the Constitution and the extension of the Central Act of the Code of Civil Procedure to Mysore, the provision in Section 15 (3) of the Mysore Chief Court Act must be deemed to have been superseded as per Art. 254 (1) of the Constitution on the ground that this provision is repugnant to the provision in S. 98 (2), Civil P. C. (1908), which is a Central Act. In the first place while S. 98 (2) provides for reference being made to a Full Bench by two Judges, S. 15 (3) of the Mysore Chief Court Act provides for a reference being made by a single Judge. The provisions in the Mysore Act are supplementary to those in the Civil P. C. (1908) as the Mysore Act provides for a reference to a Full Bench in a case not provided for in the Civil P. C. It gives a power to the Judges of the High Court in addition to the power they have under the Civil P. C and not inconsistent with it. Further S. 4 (1), Civil P. C. (1908), directs that the provisions in it shall not be deemed to limit or affect any special or local law and thus it is clear that its provisions under S. 98 (2), do not limit or affect the provision in Section 15 (3), Mysore Chief Court Act, which is a special and local law of Mysore.

Per Vasudevamurthy, J.: — The provision contained in S. 15 (3) would also properly fall under item 3 List 2, State List "Administration of Justice" read with item 65 "Jurisdiction and Powers" of all Courts except the Supreme Court with respect to any of the matters in List 2. This would save it under Art. 225 read with Art. 254 (1) of the Constitution. H. R. Patel v. Mrs. C. G. Venkatalakshamma. ILR (1955) Mys 43 : AIR 1955 Mys 65 (67, 73, 74) (Pt A) (Prs 6; 28; 29; 31) (FB).

6. Power to regulate procedure of Court.

■——Art. 225 — Regulating sittings of Court — Continuity of rule making power given by Government of India Act (1915), S. 108. See Letters Patent (Bom) Cl. 15. AIR 1953 SC 357.

——Art. 225 — High Court Rules — Regulation of procedure under Allahabad High Court Rules Chap. IX, R. 8 — Rule prevails against O. 42, R. 1. See Civil P. C. (1908), O. 42, R. 1 (Allahabad). 1965 All WR (HC) 22.

——Art. 225 — High Courts Rules and Orders — Allahabad High Court Rules, Chap. V, R. 1 — Jurisdiction of High Court — It is for the Chief Justice to allot work to Judges and Judges can do only such work as is allotted to them. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 439. 1959 Cr LJ 803 : AIR 1959 All 421 (DB).

——Art. 225 — Rules under — Rule 29 of Allahabad High Court Rules is valid. The Rules have been made in exercise of the powers conferred by Art. 225, according to which they must be "subject to the provisions of this Constitution and to the provisions of any law of the appropriate legislature made by virtue of powers conferred on that legislature by this Constitution". See High Court Rules and Orders — Allahabad High Court Rules, Ch. 23, Rr. 28 and 29. 1958 Cr LJ 1107 : AIR 1958 All 667.

■——Arts. 225 and 226 — Rules framed by Allahabad High Court for regulation of proceeding under Art. 226 — Rule 9 — (High Court Rules (Allahabad.))

Rule 9 of the rules framed by the Allahabad High Court for regulation of its proceedings under Art. 226 of the Constitution of India concerns itself only with the formal presentation of the writ application and does not contemplate the control of the further proceedings at the hearing of the application. It does not regulate the right of audience either at the initial stage when the application is moved or at the time of the final hearing. Singh G. P. v. Hon'ble Judges of the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad, 1952 RD (HC) 166 (1) : 1952 All LJ 182 : 1952 All WR (HC) 234 : AIR 1952 All 519 (520) (Pr 2) (SB).

——Art. 225 — Andhra Court-fees and Suits Valuation Act (VII of 1956), Sch. II Arts. 11 (S) and 11 (U) — Petition under Art. 226, Constitution of India for appropriate direction or order — Court-fees payable on petition would be under Art. 11 (S) and not under 11 (U), under Rules framed by the High Court under Art. 225 to regulate proceedings under Art. 226. See Andhra Court-fees and Suits Valuation Act (7 of 1956), Sch. 2 Art. 11 (S). (1964) 2 An WR 290.

■——Art. 225 — High Court Rules and Orders — Madras Appellate Side Rules, R. 1—Nature of — Have force of law — The power to frame rules regulating its practice and procedure conferred on the High Court under Parliamentary enactments and the Letters Patent is preserved by Art. 225, corresponding to S. 223 of the Government of India Act 1935. 1956 Andh LT 152 : 1956 Andh WR 117: 69 Mad LW (Andh) 77: AIR 1957 Andh Pra 49 (50) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (FB).

■——Art. 225 — Competent authority in territory of India — Rules made under Letters Patent — Validity. See Ibid, Art. 372. 1956 Cri LJ 1049 : AIR 1956 Andh Pra 161 (FB).

■——Arts. 225 and 372 — Powers of High Court — Rules made by High Court before Constitution — Continuity of.

Art. 225 affirms the pre-existing powers of the High Court, among others, to make rules and to regulate the sitting of the Court and the members thereof sitting alone or in Division Courts. Putta Ranganayakulu, In re, 1956 An WR 456: ILR (1956) Andh 13 : 1955 An LT (Cr) 335 : 1956 Cr LJ 1049 : AIR 1956 Andh 161 (164) (Pt A) (Pr 9) (FB).

●——Art. 225 —Adaptation of Laws Order (1950) — If impliedly repeals the Appellate Side Rules of High Court of Madras.

Art. 225 in terms preserves the powers of the High Court which it derived under the Letters Patent and other statutes made by Parliament of the United Kingdom. The rules already made by the High Court and the powers, whereunder they were made are preserved under Art. 225. Even assuming that, the Adaptation of Laws Order 1950, by necessary implication, revoked the powers conferred on the High Court by the Letters Patent or other statutes to make rules they are saved under the express provisions of para. 17 of the Order. Putta Ranganayakulu, In re, 1956 Andh WR 456 : ILR (1956) Andh 13 : 1955 An LT (Cr) 335 : 1956 Cr LJ 1049 : AIR 1956 Andh 161 (165) (Pt D) (Prs 13; 15) (FB).

——Art. 225 — Scope — Power of regulating procedure —If affected by special enactments — Trade Marks Act, Ss. 76 (1) and 77 — R. 617, High Court Original Side Rules — Scope and operation of. See Letters Patent (Bom), Cl. 15. AIR 1951 Bom 147.

●——Art. 225 — Duty or obligation of Chief Justice — Exercise of jurisdiction by existing Judge of High Court — Chief Justice is under statutory obligation to aid and implement such exercise.

Where in a petition filed under Art. 226, the petitioner claims that he has not reached the age of superannuation, that, therefore, he still continues to be a Judge of the High Court and has the legal right to act as such, and to demand and enjoy the rights and privileges attached to that High Office and, if it can be found in favour of the petitioner, then the Chief Justice of the High Court is under a legal duty or obligation to aid or implement the petitioner's exercise and enjoyment of the said right or rights and privileges. This is apparent from, in any event, prima facie implicit in S. 108 of the Government of India Act 1915, which corresponds to the older S. 14 of the Charter Act (Indian High Court Act), 1861, and which has been preserved by the Constitution (vide Art. 225), following the earlier constitutional enactment the Government of India Act, 1935 (S. 223) and which appears to impose, at least prima facie a duty upon the Chief Justice to allocate work to the existing Judges of the same High Court. Jyoti Prakash Mitter v. Hon'ble Mr. Justice H. K. Bose, Chief Justice of High Court, Calcutta, 67 Cal WN 662 : AIR 1963 Cal 483 (487; 495; 498; 499) (Pt C) (Prs 19, 67, 88) (SB).

——Art. 225 — Duty of Chief Justice in constituting Bench — Doubt as to retiring age of High Court Judge — Chief Justice, if bound to allocate judicial work to such Judge — Chief Justice if can be compelled to disregard decision of Government of India as to superannuation.

The duty of the Chief Justice in the matter of Constitution of Bench is a duty which he discharges in respect of existing Judges. If doubt arises as to whether a Judge is still holding office or has retired according to the provisions of the Constitution, it is not for the Chief Justice to make his own decision in the matter on facts unknown to him. There is nothing to compel the Chief Justice to accept the age of a Judge (the petitioner) according to his own version in preference to the decision by the Ministry of Home Affairs, Government of India, as to his superannuation.

To ask the Chief Justice to disregard the decision of the Government of India and to treat the petitioner as still holding the office is to ask him to arrive at a decision which he cannot make and has no duty to make. It is the business of the Ministry of Home Affairs, Government of India, to arrive at an administrative decision (in the sense of keeping an administrative record) about the date of the petitioner's superannuation. If the decision or the opinion of the Ministry of Home Affairs, Government of India, ultimately turns out to be correct and the petitioner's own impression about his own age turns out to be incorrect, then by asking the Chief Justice to treat the petitioner as a sitting Judge and not as a retired Judge and by asking him further to allocate judicial work to him, the Chief Justice may be asked to face the peril of having judicial work done by a retired Judge. That must be avoided lest it may result in disastrous consequence to judicial administration. (1962) 4 Fac LR 121 : 66 Cal WN 211 : (1962) 1 Lab LJ 708 : AIR 1963 Cal 178 (182; 183) (Pt B) (Prs 15, 17, 18).

●——Art. 225 — High Court Judges (Conditions of Service) Act (28 of 1954), S. 23-A — Order under, by President — Calcutta High Court (Vacation) Order, 1960 — Validity — Subject-matter of S. 23-A falls within Sch. 7, List II, entry 3 and not under Sch. 7, List I Entry 78—S. 23-A and Order thereunder are ultra vires — 'Administration of justice' and 'Constitution and Organisation of Courts' — Interpretation of — Power of regulating sittings of the Court is included in power in relation to "Administration of Justice" in view of Art. 225. See High Court Judges (Conditions of Service) Act (1954), S. 23-A. AIR 1961 Cal 545 (SB).

——Arts. 225, 214 — High Court of Saurashtra becoming High Court of Part B States and Part VI of Constitution with certain modifications mentioned in Art. 238, became applicable to High Court — Effect of Art. 225 on appellate jurisdiction. See States Reorganisation Act (1956), S. 49. AIR 1965 Guj 87 (DB).

●——Arts. 225, 246 (3) and Sch. VII, List 2, Entry 3 — Power of State Legislature to enact law conferring power on Division Benches to hear appeals against orders of single Judge passed under Art. 226 — Kerala High Court Act (5 of 1959), S. 5 — Constitutionality.

The State Legislature was fully competent to pass the Kerala High Court Act by virtue of its powers under Arts. 225, 246 (3) read with Sch. 7, List 2, Entry 3 of the Constitution and the Act is valid. ILR (1960) Ker 734 (FB), Foll.

The State Legislature is competent to pass a law providing for the hearing by a Single Judge of the High Court of all applications under Art. 226 of the Constitution and also to provide for the hearing by a Division Bench of two Judges of appeals against the orders of a Single Judge in such original petitions. Indo-Mercantile Bank, Ltd. v. Commissioner, Quilon Municipality, 1960 Ker LJ 1135 : 1960 Ker LT 1091 : (1960) 2 Ker LR 464 : ILR (1960) Ker 1435 : AIR 1961 Ker 96 (97) (Pt B) (Pr 2) (FB).

——Art. 225 — Scope — Powers to regulate sittings of Court — Trivandrum Bench — Filing powers. See States Re-organisation Act (1956), S. 51 (3). AIR 1958 Ker 188 (DB).

——Art. 225 — High Court Rules — Madras High Court Fees Rules, 1933, O. 2, R. 1, as amended by R. O. C. 2219/49/B-1, coming into force on 27th June, 1950 — Constitutionality of the rule —High Court's power to prescribe court-fees payable on original side before and after Constitution — (Government of India Act (1915), Ss. 106 and 107) —(Government of India Act (1935), Ss. 223, 224) — (Letters Patent (Madras) Cl. 37) —(Court-fees Act (1870), S. 3).

Any rule made by the High Court will not have any legal authority if the appropriate Legislature (Madras) made law on the same subject. The appropriate Legislature has not made any law in respect of the court-fee payable on the Original Side of the High Court. If so the High Court certainly can prescribe court-fee in respect of such proceedings if the provisions of Art. 225 conferred such power on it. It would have such power if before the Constitution its right to make rules of Court sustained such a power.

Though there is much to be said for the view that though the High Court's power to prescribe court-fees was derived only from S. 107 of the Government of India Act, 1915 the source of that power could be traced to the general power of the High Court (Cl. 37 of Mad. Letters Patent) to issue rules for regulating the practice and procedure of Courts. Such a power was exercised for so long a time and acquiesced in by all parties concerned including the Government and Legislature. Hence Art. 225 of the Constitution saved that power subject to the restrictions contained therein.

Even apart from Art. 225 there are provisions in the Constitution enabling the High Court to exercise such a power prescribing court-fee.

Consequently R. 1 of O. 2 of the Madras High Court Fees Rules, 1933, as amended by R. O. C. 2219/49-B-1 providing that two documents including a memo. of appeal, the Registrar shall apply the law for the time being in force relating to court-fee, etc. (i. e., the Court-fees Act) in the manner and to the extent that it is applicable to similar documents filed in original proceedings in a District Court and in appeals from decrees and orders of a District Court, which rule came into force on 27th June, 1950, and prescribed a higher fee in appeals against the original side decrees is constitutionally valid. (1954) 1 MLJ 206: 67 Mad LW 43: ILR (1954) Mad 643: AIR 1954 Mad 543 (544, 545, 546, 548) (Pt A) (Prs 1; 4; 6; 7; 8) (DB).

——Art. 225 — Rules framed by High Court — Application under Art. 226 made beyond time — Discretion of High Court to entertain it —(High Court Rules and Orders).

Ordinarily the High Court will not entertain an application under Art. 226 after an inordinate delay that is beyond 45 days after the order impugned has been passed. But the High Court may condone the delay and exercise its discretion to entertain the application where it is impressed with the exceptional character of the order impugned. 1954 Nag LJ 166: ILR (1954) Nag 152: AIR 1954 Nag 107 (108) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 225 — Powers of Chief Justice of High Court — Transfer of case from Divisional Court — Government of India Act, 1915, S. 108.

There is no power in the Chief Justice of a High Court either under the Constitution or the Letters Patent or the rules of the Court or under any other statute to withdraw or transfer a case of which a Divisional Court is in seisin. The Rules made by the High Court only provide for the convenient exercise of jurisdiction of the Court, but do not give any special judicial power to the Chief Justice over the other Judges of the Court. Under the rules the jurisdiction of the High Court is exercised by one or more Judges according to the nature of the cases. The power to regulate the sittings of the Court which the Chief Justice undoubtedly possesses, is an administrative power and cannot afford any basis for regulating the mode of hearing of a case by a Court properly seized of it. The power to withdraw and transfer a case from such a Court without its concurrence is a power to prevent the exercise of jurisdiction by that Court which can only be done by virtue of a superior power of control or correction for which authority must be found either in an express provision or by necessary implication. ILR 8 Cal 63, AIR 1924 Cal 186, and ILR 61 Cal 155, Rel. on. ILR (1951) Nag 251: AIR 1951 Nag 11 (14; 15; 16) (Pt A) (Prs 22, 23, 26, 29, 36) (DB).

——Art. 225 — Litigant has a right to invoke jurisdiction of the High Court and not to have his case decided by any particular Judge or Judges. The particular Judge or Judges who may happen to be dealing with any class of cases at any given moment is entirely a matter of internal management in the High Court with which the litigant has no concern. ILR (1951) Nag 251: AIR 1951 Nag 11 (14) (Pt B) (Pr 21) (DB).

——Arts. 225 and 133 — Powers of Patna High Court—Constitution of High Court—Rules Regulating Administration of Justice and Sittings of Court — (High Court Rules and Orders — Patna High Court Rules, Chap. 2 R. 1 (ii)).

Article 225 of the Constitution lays down inter alia, that the jurisdiction of any existing High Court and the respective powers of the Judges thereof in relation to the administration of justice in the Court, including any power to make rules of Court and to regulate the sittings of the Court and of members thereof sitting alone or in Division Courts, shall be the same as it was immediately before the commencement of the Constitution. The power to make rules which the Patna High Court had before the commencement of the Constitution is preserved by Art. 225 of the Constitution, the only limitation being that the power is subject to other provisions of the Constitution and to the provisions of any law of the appropriate Legislature made by virtue of powers conferred on that Legislature by the Constitution. Mahendra Raut v. Darsan Raut, 31 Pat 446: AIR 1952 Pat 341 (345, 347) (Pt D) (Prs 17; 22) (SB).

——Arts. 225, 226 — High Court Rules and Orders (Punjab) Vol. 5, Chap. 3-B, Rr. 1, Proviso and 4 — Application under Art. 226 of the Constitution — Chief Justice has power to direct Division Bench to hear petition in exceptional cases. See High Court Rules and Orders (Punj) Vol. 5, Chap. 3-B, R. 1, Proviso. (1963) 65 Punj LR 125.

——Art. 225 — Rajasthan High Court Rules are not in violation of Art. 329 — Rules are mandatory — Election appeal filed without complying with rules — Appeal should be dismissed. See Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 116-A (2). AIR 1965 Raj 58 (DB).

7. Proviso.

——Art. 225, Proviso — Bar of jurisdiction under S. 226 (1) Government of India Act, 1935 —Effect of Art. 225, Proviso. See Government of India Act (1935), S. 226 (1). AIR 1954 Bom 527.

——Art. 225, Proviso — Retrospective effect — (General Clauses Act (1897), S. 6 (c)) — (Government of India Act (1935), S. 226 (1)).

Where rights and procedure are dealt with together by any provision of law it may well be the intention of the Legislature that the old rights should be determined by the old procedure. But it is clear that the proviso to Art. 225 only deals with jurisdiction and not with any rights. That is a matter of procedure and as no party has a vested right to a particular proceeding or to a particular forum, Art. 225 applies to a suit even though the Constitution had not come into force when the suit was instituted.

Further, S. 6 (e) of the General Clauses Act, 1897, does not in any way affect the applicability of Art. 225 of the Constitution to a suit which is previously instituted and which comes up for disposal after the coming into operation of the Constitution. 56 Bom LR 923: AIR 1954 Bom 527 (530, 531) (Pt C) (Prs 6, 7, 8).

ARTICLES 226 &

SYNOPSIS

(Constitution of India (1950), Arts. 226 & 32.)

PART A

GENERAL

(Notes 1 to 125)

1. Act of State, writ in respect of.
2. Administrative authority.
   See Note 5.
3. Administrative order.
   See also Notes 50 and 126.
4. Affidavit in support of application.
   See Note 11.
5. Against whom writ can issue.
   (a) Private persons.
   (b) Eminent persons.
   See also Note 5 (a).
   (c) Government departments and tribunals.
   See also Note 54.
   (d) Authority not duly constituted.
   (e) Legislative body.
   (f) Official body.
   (g) University and other educational authorities.
   (h) Courts.
   See also Note 67.
   (i) Statutory bodies.
   (j) Public authority.
   (k) High Court and its departments.
   (l) Election Tribunal.
   (m) Industrial Tribunal.
   (n) Corporations and companies.
   (o) Income-tax Authorities.
   (p) Administrative authority.
   (q) Board of Revenue.
   (r) Union of India.
   (s) Military authority.
   (t) Railway Administration.
6. Aggrieved person.
   (a) Existence of right is basis of petition.
   (b) Exception to.
   (c) Firm, application on behalf of.
   (d) Company, corporation and representative body.
   (e) Person adversely affected.
   (f) Person directly affected.
   (g) Joint Hindu family.
   (h) Taxing statute.
   (i) Tax payer and elector.
   (j) Constitutionality of law, right to question.
7. Alternative remedy.
   (a) Adequate and prompt.
   (b) Appeal or revision.
   (c) Appeal or revision or suit, when no adequate remedy.
   (d) Burden as to.
   (e) Contractual rights.
   (f) Costly or ineffective.
   (g) Fundamental rights, infringement of.
   (h) General rule applies to other directions, orders and writs.
   (i) Special responsibility of Supreme Court.
   (j) Inconvenience or delay in getting redress.
   (k) Matter pending before ordinary Court or tribunal.
   (l) Matters to be taken into consideration.
   (m) Patent assumption of jurisdiction or want of jurisdiction or flagrant disregard to principles of law.
   (n) Disregard of principles of natural justice.
   (o) Question of great constitutional or public importance.
   (p) Sales tax, illegal taxation.
   (q) Specific remedy provided.
   (r) Statute providing self-contained machinery.
   (s) Suit, remedy of.
   (t) Other remedy barred, or exhausted or not taken or not available.
8. "Any other purpose".
   See also Notes 71 and 81.
   (a) Ejusdem generis, rule of.
   (b) Non-fundamental sights, enforcement of.
   See Notes 71 and 81.
9. "Any person," meaning of.
10. Appeal from order in.
11. Application for.
   See also Note 98.
   (a) Affidavit in support of.
   (i) Who can make.
   (b) Affidavit in opposition.
   (c) Contents of.
   (d) Amendment.
   (e) Delay in applying, explanation for.
   See Note 35.
   (f) Suppression of or falsity of facts.
   (g) Joint application,
12. Article 32, scope of.
   (a) Question of fact.
   See also Note 79.
   (b) Jammu and Kashmir.
   (c) No infringement of fundamental rights.
   (d) Article 32 (3).
   (e) Article 32 (4).
13. Articles 32 and 226 compared.
14. Articles 226 and 227.
15. Assessment, illegal, writ against.
   See Note 59.
16. Authority not duly constituted, writ against.
   See under Note 5.

17. Bar to.
(a) Jurisdiction subject to other provisions of Constitution.
(b) Legislative provisions.
(c) Other provisions of Constitution.
(d) Statutory bar.
(e) Other remedy available.
See Note 7.
18. Board of Revenue.
See Note 5.
19. Burden of proof.
20. Certiorari.
See under Part B (Notes 126 to 185).
21. Circumvention of orders under Art. 226.
22. Civil Procedure Code, applicability of.
23. Civil servant, dismissal of.
See also Notes under Ibid, Arts. 310 and 311.
(a) Civil servant.
(b) Authority to dismiss or terminate.
(c) Retirement.
(d) Contract basis, person employed on.
(e) Disciplinary proceedings.
(f) Finding of enquiry.
(g) Contravention of principles of natural justice.
See also Note 78.
(h) High Court, powers of.
(i) Service Rules, enforceability of.
(j) Non-compliance with procedure.
(k) Suspension.
(l) Justiciability of punishment.
See Note 23 (h).
24. Clarification, order for.
25. Company, application by.
See Note 6.
26. Complicated question of fact.
See Note 79.
27. Concurrent jurisdiction of High Court and Supreme Court.
28. Conduct of petitioner.
See Notes 35, 39 and 48.
29. Contractual rights, enforcement of.
(a) Alternative remedy.
See Note 7.
30. Corporation, application by.
See Note 6.
31. Costs in writ proceedings.
(a) By advocate.
(b) Inferior tribunal, cost in favour of or against.
(c) Special costs.
32. Court-fees.
See also Note 10.
33. Courts, writs to.
See Note 5.
34. Declaratory relief.
35. Delay in applying.
(a) Habeas Corpus.
(b) Mandamus.
(c) Factor in exercising discretion.
(d) Limitation.
(e) Absence of diligence.
(f) Excusable delay.
36. Demand and refusal of relief.
See also Note 234.
37. Directions, orders and writs.
See also Note 85.
(a) Power to pass orders that ought to have been passed.
(b) Writ, in nature of.
38. Discriminatory and mala fide orders.
See Notes 42 and 50.
39. Discretionary remedy.
(a) Dismissal of civil servant.
(b) Habeas Corpus.
See Note 195.
(c) Prohibition, writ of.
See also Note 279.
(d) Mandamus.
See Note 236.
(e) Certiorari.
See also Note 185.
40. Discretionary orders.
See Note 79.
41. Dismissal, removal, discharge or reduction in rank.
See also Note 23 and Ibid, Arts. 310 and 311.
42. Domestic tribunals.
(a) Absence of legal evidence.
(b) Mala fides.
(c) Bias.
(d) Enquiry by.
(e) Principles applicable to.
(f) Validity of proceeding.
43. Effect of issue of writ.
44. Election dispute.
See also Note 77.
(a) Election to legislature.
(b) Jurisdiction of High Court.
(c) Rejection or acceptance of nomination.
(d) Municipal election.
(e) Panchayat election.
(f) Right of electors.
(g) Rejection of ballot paper.
(h) Interlocutory orders.
(i) Order without jurisdiction or illegal orders.
(j) Miscellaneous.
45. Election tribunal, writ against.
See Note 5.
46. Eminent persons, writ against.
See Note 5.
47. English law, applicability.
48. Estoppel against applying.
49. Executive and quasi-judicial decisions—Distinction.
See also Notes 140 and 168.
50. Executive, writs and orders against.
See also Note 140.
(a) Discriminatory, arbitrary and mala fide orders.
(b) Duty to act within law.
(c) Duty of High Court to exercise power with restraint.
(d) Limits on interference by Courts.
(e) Order without jurisdiction and against mandatory provisions.
(f) Discretionary orders.

S. N. Dar
Advocate High Court
Jammu & Kashmir
Srinagar.

(g) Orders not justiciable.
(h) Finality of executive and administrative orders.
51. Fundamental rights, contracting out of.
52. Fundamental rights, suspension of.
See Notes 119 and 217 and Ibid, Arts. 358, 359.
53. Futile or unnecessary writ.
(a) Certiorari.
(b) Mandamus.
54. Government, writ against.
(a) Appropriate cases.
(b) Government of another State.
See also Note 120.
(c) Rajpramukh and Governor.
54A. Habeas Corpus.
See under Part C (Notes 186 to 223).
55. High Court, writ against.
See Note 5.
56. High Court, power to issue appropriate writ.
See also Note 37.
57. History of writs.
See Note 94.
58. Hypothetical opinion.
59. Illegal assessment.
(a) Payment of tax, whether operates as estoppel.
(b) Writ against.
See also Note 8.
60. Illegal taxation.
(a) Recovery of.
(b) Writ against.
(c) High Court's power.
(d) Refund.
(e) Constitutionality.
61. Industrial tribunal.
See Notes 5 and 146.
62. Informal committee, writ against.
See Note 5.
63. Interim relief.
64. Interlocutory orders.
See Note 88.
65. Joint application.
See Note 11.
66. Judicial and quasi-judicial authorities.
See Notes 147, 168.
67. Judicial proceedings, writ in respect of.
(a) Jurisdiction of High Court.
See Notes 68 and 69.
(b) Criminal Court proceedings,
(c) Court or tribunal not duly constituted.
68. Jurisdiction and power conferred by Art. 226.
See also Notes 69 and 79.
69. Jurisdiction of High Court.
(a) Appellate or revisional.
(b) Nature of.
See Note 79.
(c) Under Art. 226.
See also Note 68.
(d) Visitorial and supervisory.
70. Laches.
See Note 35.
71. Legal right.
See also Notes 8 and 237.
(a) Right to vote.
See Note 44.
72. Legislature, writ against.
See Note 5.
73. Letters Patent Appeal.
See Note 10.
74. Limitation.
See Note 35.
75. Mandamus.
See under Part D (Notes 224 to 275).
76. Military authorities.
See Note 5.
77. Municipal election.
See Note 44.
78. Natural justice.
See also Notes 5, 23 and 45.
(a) Right to be heard.
(i) Disciplinary proceedings against students.
See also Note 5 (g).
(ii) Disciplinary proceedings against servants.
(iii) Labour disputes.
(iv) Hearing and decision by different bodies.
(v) Defence.
(vi) No infringement.
(vii) Miscellaneous.
(b) Right to cross-examine.
(c) Enquiry by person having interest.
See also Note 129.
(d) Right to know charge.
(e) Bias.
See Note 129.
(f) Notice.
(g) Evidence and procedure, rules of.
79. Nature and scope of proceedings under.
See also Note 69.
(a) Question of fact.
(b) Judicial.
(c) Matter not justiciable.
(d) Original proceedings.
(e) Presidency High Courts, powers of, before Constitution.
(f) Special jurisdiction.
(g) Summary.
(h) Decision on merits.
(i) Appreciation of evidence.
(j) Discretionary orders.
(k) Proceeding, whether suit.
(l) Conversion of proceedings.
(m) Whether civil proceedings.
See also Note 10.
(n) Error of law.
(o) Constitutional issue.
(p) Question of title.
80. New point at hearing.
See Note 98.
81. Non-fundamental rights.
See also Notes 8 and 71.
82. Notice of proceedings.
See Note 98.
83. Notice under S. 80, Civil P. C.
See Note 98 and Civil P. C. (1908), S. 80.
84. Official body.
See also Note 5.

85. Orders that can be passed.
See also Notes 34 and 158.
86. Other remedy.
See Note 7.
87. Parties to proceedings.
(a) Inferior tribunal or authority.
(b) Joint application.
(c) Necessary and proper parties.
(d) Misdescription.
(e) State and Government of India.
(f) Non-joinder and mis-joinder.
(g) Amendment.
88. Pending cases.
89. Personally aggrieved.
See Note 6.
90. Powers of High Court.
See Notes 69 and 79.
91. Powers of Supreme Court and High Court.
See Note 13.
92. Power of Supreme Court under Art. 32.
See Note 12.
93. Premature writs.
See also Notes 88 and 175.
94. Prerogative writs.
95. Presentation of petition.
See Note 11.
96. President, writ against.
See Note 54.
97. Private person, writ against.
98. Procedure.
(a) Affidavit.
See Note 11.
(b) Civil P. C., applicability of.
See Note 22.
(c) Delay in applying.
See Note 35.
(d) Form of prayer.
See also Note 56.
(e) Intervener.
(f) Joint application.
See Note 11.
(g) New point, new plea, new case and new grounds.
(i) Point not taken in grounds.
(ii) Point raised during argument.
(iii) Point depending on facts.
(iv) Prejudice to opposite party.
(v) Point abandoned or not pressed.
(vi) Point of law.
(vii) Point of jurisdiction.
(viii) New case.
(ix) Plea not available earlier.
(x) Point not raised at preliminary hearing.
(h) Notice and hearing.
(i) Notice under S. 80, Civil P. C.
See also Civil P. C. (1908), S. 80.
(j) Parties.
See Note 87.
(k) Presentation of petition.
See Note 11.
(l) Proceedings, whether suit.
See Note 79.
(m) Preliminary issues.
(n) Res judicata.
See Notes 105, 114, 213 and 216.
(o) Review.
See Note 108.
(p) Rules of High Court.
(q) Return by respondent.
(r) Abatement.
99. Proceedings under Art. 226.
See Note 79.
100. Prohibition.
See under Part E (Notes 276 to 291).
101. Quasi-judicial authority.
See Note 168.
102. Quo Warranto.
See under Part F (Notes 292 to 305).
103. Rajpramukh.
See Note 54.
104. Relief, consequential.
See also Note 37.
105 Res judicata.
See also Notes 114, 213 and 216 and Civil P. C. (1908), S. 11.
106. Retrospective effect.
See also Preamble.
107. Revenue matters.
See Notes 171 and 266.
108. Review.
109. Rights conferred by Part III of Constitution.
See also Note 12.
(a) Suspension of.
See Note 119 and Ibid, Arts. 358, 359.
109A. Scire facias, writ of.
See Note 37 (b).
110. Statutory body, writ against.
See Notes 5 and 177.
111. Stay of proceedings.
112. Sub judice question.
See Note 88.
113. Subsequent events.
114. Successive applications.
See also Notes 105 and 216 and Civil P. C. (1908), S. 11.
(a) Mandamus.
115. Suo motu interference.
116. Suppression of material facts.
See Note 11.
117. Supreme Court, appeal to.
See Note 10.
118. Supreme Court, power to issue.
See Notes 12 and 13.
119. Suspension of writ jurisdiction.
See also Notes 12 and 217 and Ibid, Arts. 358, 359.
120. Territorial jurisdiction of High Court.
(a) Habeas Corpus.
See Note 218.
(b) Authority becoming extinct or functus officio.
(c) Original and appellate authorities, duty in different States.
(d) Personal authority must be within.
(e) Merger of order in appellate order.
See also Note 120 (e).

(f) Residence of applicant.
(g) Subject-matter.
(h) Union of India, writ against.
(i) Authority within jurisdiction acting on order of authority outside jurisdiction.
(j) Effect of amendment by Constitution (15th Amendment) Act.
121. Tribunal, writ against.
See Note 5.
122. Union of India, writ against.
See Note 5.
123. University, writ against.
See Note 5.
124. Who may apply.
See Note 6.
125. Writ of right and writ of discretion.
See Note 39.

PART B

CERTIORARI

(Notes 126 to 185)

126. Administrative orders.
See also Notes 3, 50, 54, 140 and 142.
127. Against whom lies.
(a) Inferior tribunal must have authority to decide.
See also Note 144.
(b) New tribunal.
(c) Company.
(d) Authority becoming functus officio.
(e) Merger of order in appellate order.
128. Bar to.
See Note 17.
129. Bias.
See also Note 144.
(a) What amounts to.
(b) Personal interest or ill-will.
(c) Interest of some of members of tribunal.
(d) To be Judge in his own cause.
See also Note 129 (b).
(e) Waiver of objection.
(f) Justice must not only be done but must appear to have been done.
(g) Evidence of.
130. Board of film censors.
131. Co-operative Societies Act, order under.
132. Costs.
See Note 31.
133. Court of Wards Act, order under.
134. Courts.
See also Note 171.
135. Custodian of evacuee property.
136. Domestic Tribunal.
See Note 42.
137. Effect of order under.
138. Election authorities, against.
See also Note 44.
139. Error on face of record.
(a Mere error, no ground for interference.
(b) Error must be apparent from judgment or order.
(c) Must be an obvious point not requiring elaborate argument.
(d) Proof.
(e) Speaking orders.
(f) Non-speaking orders.
(g) Error should not be mere clerical, accidental or formal.
(h) Error apparent on face of record—Illustrative cases.
(i) No error apparent on face of record—Illustrative cases.
140. Executive and ministerial orders.
See also Note 126.
141. Futile or unnecessary writ.
See Note 53.
142. Government, against.
See also Note 54.
143. Government servant, order of dismissal or reduction in rank.
See also Ibid, Arts. 310 and 311.
144. Grounds.
See also Note 69.
(a) Authority acting without jurisdiction.
See also Note 148.
(b) Fundamental error.
(c) Orders contrary to law.
(d) Errors on face of record.
See also Note 139.
(e) Absence of reasons for decision.
(f) Bias and mala fides.
See also Note 129.
(g) No ground.
145. Income-tax Act, orders under.
146. Industrial disputes, orders in respect of.
147. Judicial decision.
See also Note 126.
(a) Elements of.
(b) Judicial power, meaning of.
148. Jurisdiction.
See also Note 144.
(a) Power of superior Court to disturb decision of inferior Court or tribunal on question of jurisdiction.
149. Labour Relation Board.
150. Land acquisition proceedings.
151. Legislature, against.
See also Note 5.
152. Licensing authority, against.
153. Mandamus and certiorari.
154. Mines and minerals, orders in respect of.
155. Municipal laws, orders under.
156. New point.
See Note 98.
157. Order for clarification.
See Note 24.
158. Orders that can be passed.
See also Notes 34 and 85.
159. Origin and nature of.
See Note 183.
160, Other remedy.
See Note 7.
161. Parties to proceeding.
See Note 87.
162. Persona designata.
163. Police Act, orders under.
164. Pre-Constitution power of High Courts.
See Note 183.

165. Private body, against.
See also Note 5.
166. Production of records.
167. Prohibition and certiorari.
See Note 183.
168. Quasi-judicial orders.
(a) Duty to act judicially.
(b) Duty to observe rules of natural justice.
See also Note 78.
(c) Essentials.
(d) Subjective opinion of authority.
(e) Enquiry before decision.
(f) Duty to decide objectively.
(g) Duty to act according to law.
(h) Deciding authority party to dispute.
See Note 129.
(i) Duty to pass speaking orders.
(j) Discretionary orders.
(k) Illustrative cases of quasi-judicial orders.
See Separate Notes in Part B (Notes 126 to 185) relating to various authorities and tribunals.
169. Rent Control Acts, orders under.
See also Note 126.
170. Requisitioning order.
171. Revenue and tenancy authorities.
172. Revision, power wider than.
See Note 183.
173. Sales-tax law, orders under.
174. Sea Customs Act, orders under.
175. Stage at which can issue.
See also Notes 88 and 93.
176. Stamp Act, orders under.
177. Statutory bodies, powers and duties of.
See also Note 126.
(a) Power to be exercised according to statute creating it.
(b) Exercise of discretion.
(c) Mala fides.
(d) Duty to act on evidence.
(e) Procedural irregularity.
178. Stranger, application by.
See Note 6.
179. Submission to or acquiescence in jurisdiction.
See also Notes 98 and 148.
180. Tenancy laws, orders under.
See Note 171.
181. Transport authority, orders of.
182. University, college and education authorities.
183. What is.
(a) Origin, nature and object.
(b) Pre-Constitution powers of High Court.
(c) Prohibition and certiorari.
(d) Mandamus and certiorari.
See also Note 229.
(e) Certiorari and revision.
184. Who can apply.
See Note 6.
185. Writ of right.
See also Note 39.

PART C

HABEAS CORPUS

(Notes 186 to 223)

186. Against whom can be issued.
See Note 219.
187. Appeal.
See also Note 10.
188. Application for.
See also Note 98.
(a) Affidavit.
(b) Stranger, by.
(c) Minor, by.
(d) Person on bail, by.
189. Bail and habeas corpus.
190. Contempt, detention for.
191. Conviction by criminal Court, power to question.
192. Costs in proceedings for.
See also Note 31.
193. Criminal P. C., S. 491, powers under.
194. Delay in applying.
See Note 35.
195. Discretion of High Court.
See Note 39.
196-197. Disobedience of order.
198. Enquiry, scope of.
See also Note 208.
199. Foundation of Court's jurisdiction.
200. Illegal detention.
(a) Material date.
(b) Power to enquire into legality.
(c) Valid order passed, pending writ petition.
201. Internment, order for.
202. Lunatic asylum, detention in.
203. Minor, application by.
See Note 188.
204. Object of the writ.
205. Power of Court to go behind order of executive.
206. Pre-Constitution order of detention.
207. Prerogative process for securing liberty.
See also Note 204.
208. Preventive detention.
209. Private custody, detention in.
210. Production of prisoner in Court.
211. Protective custody.
212. Re-arrest after release.
213. Res judicata in writ proceedings.
See also Notes 105, 114 and 216 and Civil P. C. (1908), S. 11.
214. Return to the writ.
215. Review or rehearing.
216. Successive applications.
See also Notes 105, 114 and 213 and Civil P. C. (1908), S. 11.
217. Suspension of fundamental rights—Effect.
See also Notes 12 and 119 and Ibid, Arts. 358, 359.
218. Territorial jurisdiction.
See Note 120.
219. To whom writ may be issued.
220. Under-trial prisoner, detention of.
(a) Detention without order of remand.
221. Who can apply.
See Note 188.
222. Wife, to recover custody of.
223. Writ of right.
See Note 39.

PART D

MANDAMUS

(Notes 224 to 275)

224. Administrative authorities, proceedings of.
(a) Administrative authority, characterstics of.
(b) Burden of proof.
(c) Decision on merits.
(d) Duty to act within limits of power and according to law.
(e) Facts giving jurisdiction.
(f) Mala fide and arbitrary exercise of power.
(g) Matter involving decision by executive.
225. Against whom can be issued.
(a) Educational authorities.
(b) Government.
(c) Individual officer.
(d) Private individual.
(e) Quasi-judicial authority.
See also Note 249.
(f) Statutory bodies of fluctuating nature.
(g) Universities.
(h) Body of persons holding office.
(i) Order merging in appellate order.
226. Alternative remedy.
See Note 7.
227. Application for.
(a) Contents of.
(b) Joint application.
228. Body of persons holding office.
See Note 225.
229. Certiorari and mandamus compared.
See also Note 183.
230. Contracts, rights relating to.
See also Note 29.
231. Contractual duty.
232. Decree, mandamus to enforce.
233. Defined.
(a) Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45—Powers under.
(b) Principles applicable.
234. Demand and refusal of relief.
See also Note 36.
(a) Absence of, if absolute bar to application.
(b) Implied.
(c) Proof of.
235. Discretienary matters.
(a) Correctness of decision not to be questioned.
(b) Power coupled with duty.
236. Discretionary remedy.
237. Duties that can be enforced.
(a) Duty and liability, distinction.
(b) Legal duty and right.
(c) Private right.
238. Duty and liability, distinction.
See Note 237.
239. Educational authority, against.
240. Election, mandamus to elect.
241. Errors, mandamus to correct.
(a) Illustrative cases.
See also Note 237.
242. Executive duty and ministerial act.
243. Futile writ.
See Note 53.
244. Government, against.
See Note 225.
245. Grounds of.
(a) Act impeached as ultra vires, duty under.
246. History of.
See Note 234.
247. Individual officer, against.
See Note 225.
248. Interim relief.
See Note 63.
249. Judicial and quasi-judicial authorities.
See also Notes in Part D (Notes 224 to 275) relating to particular authorities.
250. Laches.
See Note 35.
251. Legal duty.
See Note 237.
252. Legislature, against.
See Note 5.
253. Meaning of.
See Note 233.
254. Ministerial act and executive duty.
See Note 242.
255. Moral duty.
256. Office, mandamus to restore to.
257. Order that can be passed.
258. Order affecting legal right.
See also Note 237.
259. Other remedy open.
See Note 7.
260. Principle applicable.
See Note 223.
261. Private individual, writ against.
See Note 225.
262. Private right, enforcement of.
See Note 237.
263. Prohibition and mandamus, compared.
264. Quasi-public authority, writ against.
See Note 225.
265. Question of title.
266. Revenue matters.
267. Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45—Powers under.
See Note 233.
268. Statutory body of fluctuating nature.
See Note 225.
269. Stranger, application by.
See Note 6.
270. Successive applications.
See Note 114.
271. To deliver or to allow inspection of accounts or documents.
272. University, against.
See Note 225.
273. When may be issued.
See Note 223.
274. Who can apply.
(a) Exclusive right, applicant whether must have.
275. Writ of discretion.
See Note 236.

PART E

PROHIBITION, WRIT OF

(Notes 276 to 291)

276. Against whom can be issued.
(a) Against private body.
277. Application for, stage at which may be made.
(a) Premature.
278. Certiorari and prohibition.
See Note 183.
279. Discretionary remedy.
280. Erroneous decision as to jurisdiction.
281. Grounds.
282. Mandamus and prohibition, compared.
See Note 263.
283. Nature and object of writ of prohibition.
284. New point.
See Note 98.
285. Non-compliance with order.
286. Other remedy open.
See Note 7.
287. Premature application.
See Note 277.
288. Private body against.
See Note 276.
289. Submission to jurisdiction.
290. Who can apply for.
291. Writ of right.
See Note 279.

PART F

QUO WARRANTO

(Notes 292 to 305)

292. Advocate General or Government pleader, validity of appointment.
293. Against whom can be issued.
294. Bar to, by statutory provision.
295. Discretion.
See Notes 39 and 298.
296. Elective office.
See Note 299.
297. Futile, writ.
See Note 53.
298. General principles.
299. Office in respect of which writ lies.
(a) Elective office.
300. Other remedy open.
See Note 7.
301. Parties to proceeding.
302. Possession of office, defendant must be in.
303. Resignation from office.
304. Title to office.
305. Who can apply.

PART A

GENERAL

(Notes 1 to 125)

1. Act of State, writ in respect of.

● —Art. 226—Act of State—Subjects of newly acquired territory—Rights of — Effect of act of State on such rights.

The rule that cession of territory by one State to another is an act of State and the subjects of the former State may enforce only those rights which the new Sovereign recognises has been accepted by the Supreme Court in a number of decisions. The ratio of this rule has been explained in the Privy Council decision in AIR 1924 P C 216.

In the United States of America the view that prevails is stated by Marshall, C. J., in (1831-34) 7 Pet. 51 to the effect that so far as title to immovable property is concerned the doctrine of international law has become crystallised and thereunder the change of sovereignty does not affect the title of the erstwhile citizens of the ceding State to their property.

Per Sinha, C. J., Rajagopala Ayyangar, Raghubar Dayal and Mudholkar, JJ. — There is no justification or reason to discard the British view as distinguished from the American view as regards the jurisdiction of municipal Courts to enforce rights, against succeeding sovereigns on a change of sovereignty.

Per Shah, J.—The rights and their enforceability in the Municipal Courts of a State must depend upon the will of the sovereign. Only those rights which are recognised by the sovereign are enforceable in his Courts. The Municipal Courts which derive their authority from their sovereign and administer his laws cannot enforce the rights which the former sovereign whose territory has merged with or been seized by the new sovereign recognised but the new sovereign has not, for the right to property of the citizen is only that right which the sovereign recognises.

Per Sinha, C. J., Rajagopala Ayyangar, Shah, Raghubar Dayal and Mudholkar, JJ. (Subba Rao, J., Dissenting) — The conclusion reached in A I R 1954 S C 447 in respect of the effect and continuity of an act of State is not correct. AIR 1954 S C 447, Overruled.

Per Mudholkar, J. — A rule of international law on which the several Privy Council decisions as to the effect of conquest or cession on the private rights of the inhabitants of the conquered or ceded territory is founded has become a part of the common law of this country. This is 'law in force' and is saved by Art. 372 of the Constitution. The Courts in India are, therefore, bound to enforce that rule.

Per Hidayatullah, J. — "I do not accept the contention that a change of opinion (as expressed in A I R 1954 S C 447) is necessary. Bose, J. did not decide in AIR 1954 S C 447 on the basis of international law or the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States".

Per Subba Rao, J. (Contra)—"Is there any justification for this Court, to refuse to follow the decision in AIR 1954 S C 447? The said decision is not only correct, but is also in accord with the progressive trend of modern international law. After all, an act of State is an arbitrary act not based on law, but on the modern version of "might is right". It is an act outside the law. The further progress of civilization brought about by custom and agreement, factual recognition of pre-existing rights of the people of the conquered State. There were two different lines of approach—one adopted by imperialistic nations and the other by others who were not. That divergence was reflected in English and American Courts. All the jurists of international law recognise the continuity of title to immovable property of the erstwhile citizens of ceding State after the sovereignty changed over to the absorbing State. State of Gujarat v. Vora Fiddali Badruddin Mithibarwala, (1964) 6 S C R 461 : (1964) 2 S C A 563 : A I R 1964 S C 1043 (1051, 1056, 1058, 1059, 1068, 1069, 1070, 1071, 1082, 1083, 1090, 1091, 1092, 1093, 1094) (Pt B) (Prs 13, 26, 37, 39, 70, 71, 72, 78, 111, 119, 141, 145, 147, 152, 155).

● —Art. 226—Act of State —Integration of former Indian State — Rights in property created prior to integration — Necessity of their recognition by new Sovereign. A I R 1961 Guj 151, Reversed. See Ibid, Art. 31. A I R 1964 S C 1043.

● —Art. 226 — Act of State — Merger of former State into Indian Union — Claim against former State —Enquiry—Scope and nature of—Rejection of claim by the Union—If act of State — Right to be heard. See Administration of Mayurbhanj State Order (1949), Cl. 9 (g). AIR 1961 S C 1361.

● —Art. 32 (2) — Rulers of acceding State making absolute muafi grants before accession—Government of India cannot after Constitution revoke the grants, as act of State. See Ibid, Art. 363. AIR 1954 S C 447.

[Overruled in AIR 1964 S C 1043.]

—Art. 226 — Nature of proceedings — No act of State against citizen.

There can be no act of State against a citizen. Consequently, it is not open to the Union or State Government to contend that the suits brought by a citizen of a merged State for damages and rendition of accounts are barred by an act of State. AIR 1954 S C 447 and A I R 1931 P C 248, Rel. on. AIR 1956 H P 9 (12) (Pt A) (Pr 15).

—Art. 226—Law—Personal grant by ruler of Nabha as a sovereign—It is law — Grant repudiated by new Pepsu State — Repudiation is not act of State and is justiciable in municipal courts — Act of State. A I R 1960 Punjab 644 (645, 646) (Prs 4, 5).

—Art. 226 — Succession to Jagir in former Jaipur State—Effect of integration into State of Rajasthan—Repeal of Jaipur Matmi Rules by covenant and of covenant by the Constitution — Procedure under Matmi Rules not revived — Suit to establish claim lies in civil Court. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9. ILR (1961) 11 Raj 93.

—Art. 226 — Rajasthan Administration Ordinance (1949), S. 3—Power to recognise succession to jagirs in former State of Alwar — Petition for recognition pending at the time of merger of Matsya Union into Rajasthan—Order by Rajpramukh in his executive capacity recognising succession under Art. 7 (3) of Covenant—If within jurisdiction— (Alwar State Jagir Rules, Rr. 4, 5 and 29 (d)) — (Covenant of State of Rajasthan, Art. 7 (3)). See Rajasthan Jagir Decisions and Proceedings (Validation) Act (18 of 1955), S. 3. AIR 1957 Raj 372.

—Art. 226—Act of State — Resumption of grant by Nawab of Junagad State—Jurisdiction of Civil Court to question. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9. AIR 1953 Sau 180 (DB).

2. Administrative authority.

See Note 5.

3. Administrative order.

See also Notes 50 and 126.

● —Art. 226—Scope of—Administrative order — Fundamental right affected—Jurisdiction of High Court to issue writ of certiorari or other writs against executive officer.

Under Art. 226, the jurisdiction of the High Court is not merely confined to the writs which it issued in the past, but power has been conferred upon it to issue directions, orders or writs for the enforcement of any of the rights conferred by Part III which deals with fundamental rights. It is not possible to read "directions, orders or writs" as being ejusdem generis with what follows, because these "directions, orders or writs" refer to a larger category in which category is included writs in the nature of habeas corpus, mandamus, quo warranto and certiorari. The article further confers upon the High Court the power to issue not only writs in the nature of various categories specified in that article, but those writs themselves, and further the article goes on to state that these writs or orders can be issued not only for the enforcement of fundamental rights but for any other purpose. "Any other purpose" was embodied in this article in order to remove any doubt that the High Court's jurisdiction to issue these writs was confined merely to the enforcement of fundamental rights because the High Court could issue a writ otherwise than for the enforcement of fundamental rights and that power of the High Court is saved and safeguarded by providing in Art. 226 that the writs can be issued not only for the purposes of enforcement of fundamental rights but also for any other purpose.

Hence, the High Court has under Art. 226 the jurisdiction to isue an order against even an executive officer who has issued an administrative order, in order to safeguard the fundamental rights of the citizen although a writ of certiorari cannot be obtained to correct such an administrative order, as a writ of certiorari cannot be obtained except for the purpose of calling for the record of a proceeding which was either judicial or quasi-judicial in character and for correcting an error of jurisdiction in that proceeding.

The Court will not exercise its power under Art. 226 in a matter which it cannot deal with judicially, nor would it take notice of anything which it cannot take notice of judicially, nor would it interfere with the action of an executive officer unless it is satisfied that that executive officer is under an obligation to do something or to forbear from doing something. Jeshinghbhai Ishwarlal v. Emperor, 52 Bom L R 544 : I L R (1950) Bom 539 : 52 Cri L J 120: A I R 1950 Bom 363 (365, 366, 370, 371) (Pt A) (Prs 2, 3, 4, 17) (FB).

—Art. 226—Order of Board of Revenue revising order of Collector—Order not referable to any statutory power or to administrative instruction—At the highest it can only be construed as departmental proceeding between Board of Revenue and Collector —No jurisdiction appears to exist for interference under Art. 226. (1966) 1 Mad L J 44 : I L R (1965) 2 Mad 56.

● —Art. 226—Scope of.

The powers of the Indian Courts under the Constitution are much wider and are not confined to issuing prerogative writs only. Article 226 empowers the High Court to issue to any person or authority any directions, orders or writs. The High Court therefore has power to interfere even in the case of administrative orders which are made in defiance of the articles of the Constitution or the mandatory provisions of law and without any jurisdiction; the words "any person or authority" include Courts and tribunals whether under the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court or not. Case-law referred. Sampu Gowda v. State of Mysore, ILR (1953) Mys 440 : 32 Mys L J 12 : AIR 1953 Mys 156 (165) (Pt I) (Pr 41) (FB).

—Art. 226—Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 561A—Police investigation—High Court has no power to quash proceedings in investigation under section—Art. 226 also does not confer such power. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 561-A. AIR 1955 N U C (Pepsu) 3999.

4. Affidavit in support of application.

See Note 11.

5. Against whom writ can issue.

(a) Private persons.

(b) Eminent persons.

See also Note 5 (a).

(c) Government departments and tribunals.

See also Note 54.

(d) Authority not duly constituted.

(e) Legislative body.
(f) Official body.
(g) University and other educational authorities.
(h) Courts.
See also Note 67.
(i) Statutory bodies.
(j) Public authority.
(k) High Court and its departments.
(l) Election Tribunal.
(m) Industrial Tribunal.
(n) Corporations and companies.
(o) Income-tax Authorities.
(p) Administrative authority.
(q) Board of Revenue.
(r) Union of India.
(s) Military authority.
(t) Railway Administration.

5. Against whom writ can issue.

——Art. 226—Executive authority—Writ against—Income-tax Officer acting under S. 34, Income-tax Act—Writ can issue.

Per S. K. Das, Das Gupta and N. Rajagopala Ayyangar, JJ. :

Though the writ of prohibition or certiorari will not issue against an executive authority, the High Courts have power to issue in a fit case an order prohibiting an executive authority from acting without jurisdiction. Where such action of an executive authority acting without jurisdiction is likely to subject a person to an unnecessary harassment, the High Courts will issue appropriate orders or directions to prevent such consequences. Writ of certiorari and prohibition can issue against Income Tax Officer acting without jurisdiction under S. 34, Income Tax Act. Calcutta Discoun: Co., Ltd. v. Income Tax Officer, Calcutta, (1961) 2 S C R 241 : (1963) 1 S C J 741 : (1961) 1 S C A 661 : (1961) 41 ITR 191 : A I R 1961 S C 372 (380) (Pt C) (Pr 27).

——Art. 226 — Writ can be issued only against statutory bodies invested with statutory powers. : 1957 All W R (H C) 268 : A I R 1957 All 505 (516, 517) (Pt I) (Pr 19) (DB).

——Art. 226 – It is only against bodies having legal authority to determine questions affecting the right of subjects that the jurisdiction of High Court under Art. 226 can be invoked. A I R 1962 Mad 169 (170) (Prs 4, 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Against whom writ can issue.

The principle that the order passed by the subordinate Court merges into the order of the appellate Court applies to decrees and orders of Courts. If once it is urged that the order passed by the Rent Control and Eviction Officer under S. 3 of the U. P. Act 3 of 1947 is an administrative order, then the question of merger of the Rent Control and Eviction Officer's order into the order of the Commissioner does not arise and it cannot be urged that the applicant should have asked for a relief of quashing the orders passed by the Commissioner and the State Government and in the absence of any such prayer, the High Court cannot under Art. 226 of the Constitution quash the order of the Rent Control and Eviction Officer as the order of the Rent Control and Eviction Officer has merged into the orders of the Commissioner and the State Government. It is open to the High Court even to grant the relief quashing the orders of the Commissioner and the State Government and it cannot be argued that these parties are beyond the jurisdiction of the High Court. AIR 1954 All 433; AIR 1955 All 435, Disting. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 6046.

5 (a). Private persons.

——Art. 226—Against whom writs and orders can issue — Acts of individual cannot be controlled through writ.

It is generally established that the issue of writs is governed by the principles existing before the Constitution. AIR 1950 Madh-B 46 and AIR 1955 All 131, Rel. on. A writ can be issued only against statutory bodies invested with statutory powers ; acts of an individual cannot be controlled through a writ. 1957 All W R (H C) 268 : AIR 1957 All 505 (516, 517) (Pt I) (Pr 19) (DB).

——Art. 226— Ecclesiastical Law — Canon Law — Wearing a nun's religious habit by expelled nun while teaching in convent school is not a fundamental right—Mission authority being a private body, petition under Art. 226 complaining of infringement of fundamental right did not lie against that body. AIR 1964 Andh Pra 277 (278, 279) (Prs 9, 10, 11, 13) (DB).

——Art. 226—Writ cannot issue against private body. AIR 1961 Andh Pra 400.

——Art. 226—Writ does not lie against unincorporated bodies and private individuals.

Where an institution such as Murshidabad Institute of Technology, is not a Government institution, then no writ lies against such bodies, its Governing body or its Secretary or the principal for the simple reason that they are unincorporated bodies and private individuals. (1962) 5 Fac L R 272 : (1963) 1 Lab L J 149 : AIR 1963 Cal 161 (163) (Pt B) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226—Writ against private persons—Principal of private college affiliated to university—Writ cannot be issued. 66 Cal W N 220 : AIR 1962 Cal 520 (524) (Pt C) (Pr 22).

——Art. 226—West Bengal Bargadars Act (1950), S. 2 (b)—Persons filling dual capacity of owner and bargadar appointed to act as a representative member of bargadars —Constitution of Board is invalid—Writ against such Board. See West Bengal Bargadars Act (2 of 1950), S. 2 (b). AIR 1952 Cal 868.

——Art. 226—Writs against private persons —Certiorari and prohibition — Cannot be directed against private individuals. A I R 1960 Kerala 31, Rel. on. 1960 Ker L J 999 : (1960) 2 Lab L J 523 : 1961 Ker L T 223 : AIR 1961 Ker 265 (266) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Arts. 32 and 226—Applicability — Writs to private persons.

A person whose fundamental right is infringed by a private individual must seek his remedy under the ordinary law and not under Art. 32 or Art. 226 of the Constitution. AIR 1952 S C 59 : 1952 S C J 29 : (1952) 1 Mad L J 423, Rel. on. ILR (1957) Madh Pra 658 : 1957 M P C 725 : 1957 Jab L J 1088 : AIR 1958 Madh Pra 115 (122, 123) (Pt B) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Art. 226—Prime Minister of India — Speech as leader of a party—Writ if can be issued. See Ibid, Art. 74. AIR 1952 Nag 301 (DB).

——Art. 226—Municipalities— Punjab Municipal Act (III of 1911), S. 16 (1) and (2)—Encroachment in existence long before a person became a member — Its continuance and not demolishing the same—If directly connected with his position as member—Whether the act of a member amounted to flagrant abuse of his position — Powers of High Court under Art. 226 of Constitution to go into the question. See Municipalities — Punjab Municipal Act (III of 1911), S. 16 (1). ('64) 66 Pun L R 381.

——Art. 226—Powers of High Court — Writs to private persons —Power to issue.

It may now be taken to be settled that even though Art. 226 is wide in its terms, the High Court will not issue the writs mentioned therein by name to a private individual except in the case of the writ of habeas corpus. The expression "any person" in Art. 226 has been interpreted to mean only a person to whom according to well established principles a writ would lie.

Thus a writ of certiorari will issue only against tribunals set up by law to determine questions affecting rights of parties. Similarly a writ of mandamus will issue only to a person holding a public office or an inferior tribunal or corporation but not to a merely private person.

The Fatima Mata National College, Quilon, is a private educational institution and the factum of its affiliation to the University of Travancore will not bring the Bishop of Quilon who is the proprietor of institution and the College Managing Board represented by its Secretary and Principal within the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226. 1956 Ker L T 563 : AIR 1957 Trav-Co 46 (47, 48) (Prs 4, 7).

——Art. 226 — 'Quasi public authority' — Private college— Management entirely managed by private funds—Mere fact of affiliation to University does not make it quasi-public authority amenable to the jurisdiction of High Court under Art. 226. AIR 1954 Trav-Co 199 (200) (PtA) (Prs 8, 9) (DB).

5 (b). Eminent persons.

See also Note 5 (a).

——Art. 226— Bill passed by Legislative Assembly— Presentation to Governor is essential — Prayer for injunction against Council of Ministers for preventing such presentation—Courts will not allow it. See Ibid, Art. 200. AIR 1965 Andh Pra 306.

——Art. 226 –Prime Minister of India –Speech as the leader of a party — Writ, if can issue. See Ibid, Art. 74. AIR 1952 Nag 301 (DB).

5 (c). Government departments and tribunals.

See also Note 54.

——Art. 226—Writ petition against Punjab University —Fact that Governor of Punjab is ex-officio Chancellor of the University, does not make University a department of Government — Writ petition against State of Punjab through Registrar, Punjab University is bad. AIR 1955 Him Pra 9 (10) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——Arts. 226, 234, 316, 317—Position of Public Service Commission vis-a-vis the State.

The contention that as the Public Service Commission was working under the Government in the matter of holding competitive examination for recruitment to services, a writ could be issued to the State altogether overlooks the position of the Public Service Commission vis-a-vis the State, under the Constitution. Madh B L J 1954 H C R 1660 : I L R (1954) Madh B 256 : Madh B L R 1954 (Civ) 517 : A I R 1955 Madh B 56 (60) (Pt C) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 226—Administrative orders —Under existing law (qawayad Jagirdaran of Gwalior) Rajpramukh exercising powers in the matter of succession to Jagir. under S. 4, M. B. Regulation of Government Act read with Art. 7 (3) of the Covenant of Gwalior, Indore and Malwa States by which United States of Madhya Bharat was constituted in 1948 — Exercise of powers held departmental and not quasi-judicial—Guiding principles are expediency keeping in view the purpose of the power—Order can be modified by Government— No interference under Art. 226. 1960 M P L J 1063 : 1960 Jab L J 1160 : 1960 M P C 492.

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction—Board of Directors of Co-operative Soeiety considering objections to nomination for election — If Tribunal subject to writ jurisdiction—Madras Co-operative Societies Act (4 of 1932), S. 51—Scope of.

It is only against bodies having legal authority to determine questions affecting the right of subjects that the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution could be invoked. The Board of Directors of a Co-operative Society, in considering the objections to the nominations for the election of members of the Board, is not a statutory Tribunal with authority to determine the rights of parties.

A candidate whose nomination has been rejected is not without remedies. S. 51 of the Madras Co-operative Societies Act is wide enough to include a dispute relating to election of directors of a Co-operative Society and a dispute relating to the validity of a nomination will also be covered by it. The candidate can challenge the rejection of his nomination by the Board of Directors before the Registrar of Co-operative Societies. (1960) 2 M L J 392, Approved. As the Board of Directors of a Co-operative Society are not occupying a judicial or quasi-judicial office there could be no application of the principle of bias to their actions. (1961) 2 M L J 279 : AIR 1962 Mad 169 (170) (Prs 4, 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Interference—Grounds—(Orissa Development of Industries, Irrigation, Agriculture, Capital Construction and Re-settlement of Displaced Persons (Land Acquisition) Act (18 of 1948)—(Orissa Development of Industries, Irrigation, Agriculture, Capital Construction and Re-settlement of Displaced Persons (Land Acquisition) Rules (1950), Rr. 6 and 9).

Once a dispute about the rights of the parties to receive compensation money under Orissa Act 18 of 1948 is raised before the Land Acquisition Officer, he has no alternative but to refer the same to Government for adjudication by an arbitrator unless it was manifest that the person raising the dispute had absolutely no claim and his objections were frivolous.

Held, (in the instant case), that a writ would issue directing the Land Acquisition Officer to proceed with the matter in accordance with the latter part of R. 6 and refer the dispute, about the claim to receive compensation to Government, as provided in R. 9, for adjudication by an Arbitrator. ILR (1959) Cut 564 : 25 Cut L J 561.

——Art. 226 — Orissa Estates Abolition Act (1952), Ss. 5 (i), 39—Special tribunal—Jurisdiction—Date of lease disputed—Jurisdiction of Collector to act under S. 5 (i) not barred — (Civil P. C. (1908), Ss. 9, 11)— AIR 1956 Pat 425, Dissent from. See Tenancy Laws —Orissa Estates Abolition Act (1 of 1952), S. 5 (i). AIR 1958 Orissa 197.

——Art. 226—Against whom writ can issue.

A writ under Art. 226 cannot be granted against an inferior or ministerial officer bound to obey the orders of a higher authority to compel him to do something which is part of his duties in that capacity. AIR 1952 Pat 309, Foll. 33 Pat 501 : AIR 1955 Pat 76 (78) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Lease of tolls of public ferries—Withdrawal of ferry from public auction on direction of State Government—Legality. See Bengal Ferries Act (1 of 1885), S. 9. AIR 1953 Pat 370 (DB).

——Art. 226—"To any person or authority."

A Court to which a writ of prohibition may be issued need not be a Court directly subordinate to the High Court. In fact it is not necessary that it should be a Court in the strict sense of the word and all that is necessary is that it should deal with the matter pending before it as it were a judicial proceeding or even quasi-judicial proceeding. The powers that the Deputy Commissioner exercises while hearing appeals from the orders of the Debt Conciliation Board, are quasi-judicial and his decision is bound to affect the rights and properties of the parties. In any case, he is an authority functioning within the territories of the Union and accordingly he is amenable to the jurisdiction of the High Court so far as the issue of directions, orders or writs mentioned in Art. 226 is concerned. ('50) 2 Pepsu L R 443.

——Art. 226 - No error apparent on face of record—Departmental officers acting within their competence—Their conclusions of fact will not be scrutinised.

Where there is no such error apparent on the face of the record as can be rectified by the High Court in writ proceedings and further where the officers of the Rehabilitation Department appear to have acted within their competence and power, their proceedings are not open to scrutiny in a writ petition for ascertaining whether their conclusions on fact are right or wrong. AIR 1958 S C 398, Rel. on. AIR 1960 Punj 58 (61) (Pt B) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226 — Advocate General acting under S. 92, Civil P. C.—He is only an officer under Government—Since writ lies against Government writ will also lie against Advocate General. See Ibid, Art. 165. AIR 1954 Trav-Co 331.

[Overruled in AIR 1962 Ker 90 (FB).]

5 (d). Authority not duly constituted.

——Arts. 226 and 227—Applicability—Tribunals not duly constituted.

Art. 226 of the Constitution contemplates a duly constituted person or authority, including in appropriate cases a Government and not any person, authority or Government not duly constituted. If a petitioner comes to Court with a case under Art. 226 alleging that a person or authority, including, in appropriate cases a Government, is not duly constituted, he puts himself out of the purview of that article. Similarly, Courts and tribunals contemplated by Art. 227 must be Courts and tribunals duly constituted, and not usurpers of office. 3 F J R 195 : ILR (1951) 3 Assam 147 : AIR 1951 Assam 96 (97) (Pt A) (Prs 6, 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Power of High Court—Jurisdiction of Endowment Commissioner—Powers of High Court to interfere with. See Orissa Hindu Religious Endowments Act, 1951 (2 of 1952), S. 36 (1). AIR 1957 Orissa 180 (DB).

——Arts. 226, 227 — Assessment to sales tax under Bihar Sales Tax Act — Assessment not challenged under Act — Proceedings for recovery of unpaid tax under B. & O. Public Demands Recovery Act—Certificate authorities rightly holding that they have no jurisdiction to question the legality or correctness of assessment—Petition under Art. 226 against orders of certificate authorities — Orders of Sales Tax Authorities cannot be challenged in petition under Arts. 226, 227 against the orders of the certificate authorities—(Bihar and Orissa Public Demands Recovery Act (4 of 1914), S. 10) — (Orissa Sales Tax Act (14 of 1947), S. 22). 3 S T C 248 : AIR 1952 Orissa 231 (233) (Pt C) (Pr 7) (DB).

5 (e). Legislative body.

● ——Arts. 226 and 32—(Per Majority)—Power conferred on High Court under Art. 226 (1)—It can be exercised even against Legislature — (Per Sarkar, J.) —Person committed for contempt by general warrant—High Court cannot review such committal.

Per Majority — The language used by Art. 226 in conferring power on the High Courts is very wide. Article 12 defines the "State" as including the Legislature of such State, and so, prima facie, the power conferred on the High Court under Art. 226 (1) can, in a proper case, be exercised even against the Legislature. If an application is made to the High Court for the issue of a writ of habeas corpus, it would not be competent to the House of Legislature to raise a preliminary objection that the High Court has no jurisdiction to entertain the application because the detention is by an order of the House. Article 226 (1) read by itself, does not seem to permit such a plea to be raised. Article 32 which deals with the power of the Supreme Court, puts the matter on a still higher pedestal; the right to move this Court by appropriate proceedings for the enforcement of the fundamental rights is itself a guaranteed fundamental right, and so, what is said about Art. 226 (1) is still more true about Art. 32 (1)

Per Sarkar, J : When a House of Legislature, commits a person for contempt by a general warrant that person would have no right to approach the Courts nor can the Courts sit in judgment over such order of committal. In the Matter of under Article 143 of the Constitution of India, (1965) 1 S C J 847 : (1965) 1 S C A 447 : A I R 1965 S C 745 (767, 784, 808, 807) (Pt K) (Prs 59, 118, 196).

● ——Arts. 32, 212, 194 — Irregularity of procedure in Legislature — Immunity from legal proceedings. See Ibid, Art. 212. A I R 1960 S C 1186.

——Art. 226 — Proceedings in Legislative Council of State—Mere irregularity of procedure or non-compliance with rules of procedure for conduct of its business will not affect its validity and will not be a ground for issuing a writ under Art. 226—But if there is a violation of the constitutional requirement or chairman has acted in excess of his powers under Constitution, Court may interfere by issuing a writ. See Ibid, Art. 212 (1). A I R 1963 All 75 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Application for writ against Legislature—Maintainability.

It is well known that no writ, direction or order restraining the Speaker from allowing a particular question to be discussed or interfering with the legislative processes of either House of the Legislature or interfering with the freedom of discussion or expression of opinion in either House can be entertained. ILR (1955) 1 All 25 : 1954 Cri L J 691 : A I R 1954 All 319 (327) (Pt C) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 208—Rules of Procedure and Conduct of Business (framed by Assam Legislative Assembly), R. 314—Interpretation of Rules.

The question of interpretation of Rules lies with the Speaker so that even if the procedure adopted by the Speaker is irregular, it would not be open to the High Court to go into the matter, because the decision of the Speaker has finality on the point. See Ibid, Art. 208. A I R 1958 Assam 160.

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction—Objection as to validity of proceedings of Legislature - Plea that members not entitled to vote had voted on a Bill—Competency of High Court to entertain. See Ibid, Art. 212. 59 Bom L R 355 : A I R 1957 Bom 165 (DB).

——Arts. 226, 212, 194 and 208 — Powers of High Court — Writ against legislative body to prevent it from passing certain law.

The Constitution lays down the respective jurisdictions of the legislatures and the Courts. It is the business of the Legislature to make laws and of the Courts to administer them. Within the legislature, members have absolute freedom of speech and discussion (Art. 194). Subject to the provisions of the Constitution, they can regulate their own procedure (Arts. 208 and 212). In such matters and within their allotted spheres, they are supreme and cannot be called into account by the Courts of the land. Even where a law has been promulgated, it is not the duty of the Courts to set in a supervisory character and rectify the defects suo motu. A I R 1951 All 228, Rel. on.

In this view, where a member wants to move certain resolution in the Legislature, seeking its approval of a proposal to form Union of that State with a neighbouring State, the High Court cannot at that stage be called upon under Art. 226 to interfere. ILR (1957) 3 Cal 390 : 60 Cal W N 555 : A I R 1956 Cal 378 (384) (Pt G) (Pr 23).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction of High Court to issue writs against Parliament or Legislatures.

There is no jurisdiction in the High Court to issue any writs against a Legislature or Parliament or the Speaker or any officer of these Assemblies. And further, neither a writ of prohibition nor a writ of certiorari nor writ of mandamus will lie to restrain the State Legislature or Parliament from enacting any legislation even if it is ultra vires their powers.

A Court has no general or roving superintendence over an undefined field nor is it its function to declare void or directly annul a law immediately it is promulgated unless its interpretative function is sought by any person or party who challenges that law as having infringed his rights on the ground of its being ultra vires of the powers of the legislative body. (1928) 1 K B 411, Rel. on. ILR (1956) Hyd 658 : A I R 1956 Hyd 186 (189) (Pt B) (Prs 12, 13) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Kerala State Legislature — Legislative proceedings — Immunity from judicial process — Complaint that intended legislation contravenes Constitutional provisions — No interference by High Court under Art. 226. See Ibid, Art. 194 (3). AIR 1961 Ker 324 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Privileges of members of Legislature — Determination — Jurisdiction of High Court. See Ibid, Art. 194. A I R 1952 Mad 117 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 212 (2) — Jurisdiction of Court — (Special Tribunal) — (Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9) — (Words and Phrases — 'In respect of' and 'in').

In a petition for a writ under Art. 226 against the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly in respect of his action in disallowing certain questions, notice of which was given by a member of the Assembly, the function of the High Court is not to re-examine the questions with reference to the rules and to decide whether the Speaker's construction of the rules or his application of the rules the questions that were placed before him were correct. The rules have conferred on him the power to decide these matters.

The phrase "in respect of" in Art. 212 has wider connotation than the word 'in" and so long as the Speaker's action is relatable to any of the provisions dealing with his powers for regulating the procedure and conduct of business in the Legislature the Court's jurisdiction would be ousted.

An authority who is conferred jurisdiction to decide a question, has jurisdiction to decide it either rightly or wrongly and so long as he is acting within his jurisdiction, he is immune from interference by a Court of Justice. The position might have been different if there was a mere colourable pretence of exercise of the powers by the Speaker. A I R 1946 Cal 121 (FB), Distinguished. 19 Cut L T 183 : ILR (1953) Cut 404 : A I R 1953 Orissa 111 (116) (Pt H) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 176, 208, 212 — "At the commencement of session" — Point of order — Conduct of Business — Jurisdiction of High Court. See Ibid, Art. 176. A I R 1952 Orissa 234 (DB).

5 (f). Official body.

——Art. 226 — Although the State Medical Faculty is an unincorporated body of individuals, a writ can be properly issued against such body in its official title and designation — The word "person" in Art. 226 should be interpreted in the sense in which it has been used in S. 3 (39), General Clauses Act, 1897. A I R 1953 Cal 289 (291) (Pt A) (Prs 6, 7, 8, 10, 11).

——Art. 226 — Writ against non-statutory bodies — Writ against Board of Directors of Co-operative Society — Writ will not issue. A I R 1962 Mad 169 (170) (Prs 4, 6) (DB).

5 (g). University and other educational authorities.

——Art. 226 — Election under S. 11 (4) (i) (a) of Allahabad University Act (3 of 1921) — Election not held according to system of proportional representation by means of single transferable vote is void and cannot be protected by doctrine of internal management. See Allahabad University Act (3 of 1921), S. 11 (4) (i) (a). AIR 1966 All 45.

——Art. 226 — Allahabad University — LL. B. Examination, 1962 — Minimum passing marks — Resolution No. 120, dated 11th April, 1959 of the Executive Council relating to LL. B. Examination raising minimum marks from 30 to 36 came into force long before 1962 — Same was reiterated by the resolution of the Executive Council dated 25th August, 1961 — Hence candidate who failed to obtain 36 marks in all the papers of the LL. B Examination in 1962, must be deemed to have failed in the examination — Respondents were right in taking the view that petitioner failed in LL. B. examination — Writ petition held not maintainable. A I R 1963 All 596 (599) (Pt D) (Prs 22, 25).

——Art. 226 — Allahabad University — Prospectus of the University for Faculty of Laws for 1962, p. 15, Cl. (h) (ii) — LL. B. supplementary examination — Candidate who has failed in final LL. B. examination can appear in supplementary examination only if he has passed in all papers but has failed in aggregate by not more than six marks — Candidate who has failed in one of the papers cannot appear — He cannot claim benefit of Cl. (h) (ii) — Writ petition held not maintainable. AIR 1963 All 596.

——Art. 226 — College — Internal affairs — Promotion of students — Jurisdiction of Courts to interfere with discretion of Principal.

The Courts have no jurisdiction to interfere with the discretion of the Principal in a matter which relates to the internal affairs of the school (for example, promotion of students to higher class). Within their own realm of education, the teachers must have a very wide scope for discretion which cannot be measured by any legal standards and with which the Courts cannot interfere without upsetting the discipline on which the system of education must be founded. A I R 1962 All 207 (208) (Prs 6, 9).

——Art. 226 — Natural justice — Opportunity to be heard — University — Disciplinary jurisdiction — Interference by High Court in writ jurisdiction — Extent of.

Universities are educational and autonomus bodies and provision has been made for their working so that there may be the least interference from outside and the High Court will be reluctant to interfere with the administrative and disciplinary matters unless it thinks that there has been a blatant deviation from any provision of law. Unless the order affects any fundamental right of a person, it is not necessary in every case to give an opportunity to the person affected by the order of the authority to explain his conduct, particularly in cases where an order has been passed by an authority for the purpose of maintaining the discipline of an institution.

Executive Council of University when it finds students guilty of misconduct, it does not act judicially or quasi-judicially but as an administrative or disciplinary body. In some cases even an administrative or disciplinary body may observe the principles of natural justice, and one of such principles is that a reasonable opportunity should be given of being heard. But in such cases the provisions of the C. P. C. or even Evidence Act would not be applicable. A I R 1961 All 301 (305, 306) (Pt B) (Prs 21, 22, 23, 24).

—Art. 226 — University executive council taking disciplinary action against student — Finding of misconduct based on evidence — Whether evidence would be sufficient in a Court of law, will not be enquired into in writ petition — Matter stands on different footing if there is no evidence at all—High Court will in exceptional cases interfere with questions of fact. A I R 1953 All 641 and (1952) 1 All E R 122, Rel. on. A I R 1961 All 301 (306) (Pt C) (Prs 26, 27).

——Art. 226 — Disciplinary jurisdiction of Board of Secondary Education—Interference.

The Universities and similarly the Board of High School and Intermediate Education are educational and autonomous bodies and there should be the least interference from outside and the High Court will be reluctant to interfere with the administrative and disciplinary matters unless it thinks that there has been a blatant deviation of any law. The High Court will not interfere unless there is some fundamental right of the student, which has been infringed or there has been such a patent error in the procedure on account of which the High Court should interfere in its extraordinary jurisdiction. (1953) 2 All E R 717, Applied. AIR 1961 All 290 (291) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Natural justice — Use of unfair means in University Examination — Summary enquiry by Academic Council and debarring of examinee—Interference by writ.

Where an examinee was found to be using unfair means at the time of University examination and, on the report of the invigilator and the Examination Superintendent, was given an opportunity to explain his conduct, but had no explanation to offer and the Council decided not to permit him to appear at any of its examinations for one year :

Held, (1) that there was no violation of the principles of natural justice, nor was there disregard of the rules of fair play when the Academic Council took the decision. (2) Where it appears that the view-point of the examinee is not or cannot be without substance, it may become necessary for the Academic Council to adopt the ordinary rules of natural justice, that is to permit the examinee to cross-examine the officers who had submitted reports against him. (3) High Courts do not, while exercising jurisdiction under Art. 226 or 227 of the Constitution, function as a Court of appeal and consequently, they cannot look into the propriety of the order passed and the punishment awarded. A I R 1956 All 539, Expl. and Distinguished. A I R 1960 All 642 (646, 647) (Prs 17, 19).

——Art. 226 — Natural justice — Opportunity and right to be heard before being condemned.

An opportunity of explanation cannot always be the same thing as the right assured by the principle of natural justice not to be condemned unheard. An opportunity of explanation necessarily carries with it the right to explain the material against the person charged but the opportunity of being heard before being condemned is narrower. When its requirements will be deemed to have been fulfilled will always be dependent on the facts of each particular case. This right must in the very nature of things be very limited in scope in the matter of discipline, particularly in educational institutions. A distinction has to be drawn where the authority taking action is doing so in the exercise of some statutory power conferred upon it and in cases where the general behaviour of students as such in an institution is in issue.

In the very interest of maintaining discipline and safeguarding the advancement of the whole object for which the institution exists, it may quite often be very undesirable to disclose to the young students the reports which in due course are presented by various authorities on their conduct and general behaviour. The preservation of discipline amongst students is both a delicate and domestic matter with which the University authorities alone are charged. For that reason the High Court will always be extremely reluctant to interfere with any exercise of the power by the University unless there has been some very wild departure from the principles of natural justice. AIR 1960 All 579 (583, 584) (Pt B) (Pr 15).

—— Art. 226 — Applicability — Writs against autonomous body like University.

Universities are autonomous bodies, and the Court should be reluctant, as far as possible, to interfere with the internal administration of the University. There should be no occasion for any interference unless there is a palpable violation of law, which has occasioned injustice in a broad and general sense.

Held, that in the circumstances of the case the petitioners were not entitled to any relief against termination of their membership of the University body especially when the granting of any relief would be virtually ineffective and merely of academic interest. AIR 1956 Cal 393, Rel. on. ILR (1959) 2 All 267 : AIR 1960 All 205 (209) (Pt E) (Prs 18, 20) (DB).

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction of High Court—University Union — Election of President — Petition impugning legality of — Interim order restraining elected President from functioning—Propriety.

The High Court will not lend its assistance under Art. 226 of the Constitution to a person who violates the Code of corporate brotherhood nor interfere in the affairs of a University if such interference will have the tendency to disrupt or weaken the spirit of corporate life in the University. Similarly an interim order restraining the winning candidate from functioning as President of the University Union during the pendency of a writ petition impugning the legality of his election will be an intrusion into the affairs of an autonomous body which is capable of dealing with dispute. A I R 1959 All 392 (393) (Prs 3, 6, 8).

——Art. 226 — Administrative orders — University authority — Interference with decision on merits — (Lucknow University Act (5 of 1920), S. 11 (7).

Under S. 11 (7), Lucknow University Act, the Vice-Chancellor is empowered to take such action as he deems necessary in any emergency. Where from the record it appears that he has done so in arriving at the opinion that an emergency existed, the High Court in its writ jurisdiction cannot exercise the function of an appellate Court and examine whether such an opinion is correct or incorrect. AIR 1954 S C 217, Rel. on. ILR (1957) 2 All 214.

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction of High Court — Allahabad University Act (3 of 1921), S. 42 — Decision given by the Chancellor of Allahabad University under S. 42—If by a tribunal—(Domestic Tribunal).

The decision given by the Chancellor under S. 42 of the Allahabad University Act, 1921 is that of a tribunal and his decision is subject to the superintendence of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. When under some statute creating a tribunal, the tribunal is called upon to act judicially, any decision by such a tribunal can be interfered with by the High Court in appropriate cases and no general rule can be laid down that all decisions of such tribunals, which can be called domestic tribunals, cannot be interfered with by the High Court. AIR 1956 All 603 (606, 610) (Pt B) (Prs 12, 28) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ against statutory authority like Vice-Chancellor of University—Vice-Chancellor expelling student from University for gross misconduct in exercise of disciplinary action—Opportunity to be heard not given — Principles of natural justice if violated—(Allahabad University Act (3 of 1921), Ss. 9, 12 and Ch. XXII of Statute).

Ss. 9 and 12, Allahabad University Act and Ch. XXII of the Statute make it clear that the Vice-Chancellor is the executive head and he is possessed of all the necessary powers and he can, therefore, expel students from the University for the purpose of maintaining discipline.

There is nothing in the Statute which casts any duty upon the Vice-Chancellor to act judicially. There is nothing express in the Statute which enjoins upon the Vice-Chancellor to give a hearing to a student before taking any action against him in the exercise of his disciplinary jurisdiction.

The Vice-Chancellor passed the order expelling the petitioner from the University and acted upon the report of the proctors. According to the counter-affidavit filed on behalf of the University, the junior proctors, who were present in the meeting addressed by the petitioner reported to the Vice-Chancellor the actual words used by the petitioner which certainly amounted to gross misconduct on the part of the petitioner. The petitioner in the rejoinder affidavit denied the allegations made on behalf of the University about the use of certain expressions by him in his speech.

Held, that it is not for the High Court to investigate into the truth or otherwise of the allegations made by the parties with regard to the actual words used by the petitioner in his speech but in the circumstances in which the Vice-Chancellor passed the order on receipt of the report by the proctors, it could not be said that he acted beyond his jurisdiction. It was not necessary in the circumstances of the case for the Vice-Chancellor to give an opportunity to the petitioner to explain his conduct and there was no violation of any principle of natural justice. ILR (1956) 1 All 712 : AIR 1956 All 503 (505, 506, 507) (Pt B) (Prs 8, 9) (DB).

[Overruled in AIR 1968 All 477 (FB).]

——Art. 226—Applicability—Educational institution—Disciplinary proceedings—Head of institution does not act as judicial or quasi-judicial tribunal—Opportunity to cross-examine witnesses.

In a case where a head of an educational institution takes disciplinary proceedings, it is not necessary that he must give an opportunity to the student to cross-examine the witnesses. In matters of discipline, the head of an educational institution does not act as a judicial or quasi-judicial tribunal. The disciplinary authority vested in any officer or the head of an institution is a power which is absolutely necessary for and ancillary to the exercise of administrative functions in that capacity. A student could not claim any right that he must be dealt with by the procedure applicable to judicial or quasi-judicial proceedings. (1954) 2 All E R 118, Ref. AIR 1956 All 46 (50, 51) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

(Held impliedly overruled by AIR 1962 S C 1110 in AIR 1965 Punj 507 (DB).)

——Art. 226 — Powers of High Court — Order in disciplinary proceedings against student of University — Propriety of — If can be gone into. See Allahabad University Act (1921), S. 12 (5). AIR 1956 All 46.

(Held impliedly overruled on another point by AIR 1962 S C 1110 in AIR 1965 Punj 507 (DB).)

——Art. 226—Writ against University authorities—Agra University Act (VIII of 1926), Ss. 4 (2) and 34 — Statute No. 2 passed under Act — Resolution of Executive Council cancelling B. A. degree conferred on a successful candidate—Validity.

The petitioner made an application in the prescribed form to the Agra University for permission to appear at the B. A. examination to be held in 1951 and attached the requisite certificate under statute No. 2 (a) (iv) showing that he had served as a teacher for one year. The permission was granted and the applicant took the examination and was declared as a successful candidate in the U. P. Gazette. As a result of subsequent enquiry, the University came to the conclusion that the petitioner was not 'a bona fide' teacher and that he had, therefore, "cheated" the University by making a kind of false declaration in his application form. By a resolution of the Executive Council—which is the highest executive body of the University — it was resolved that the petitioner's "result of B. A. examination of 1951 be cancelled and this fact be notified in the U. P. Gazette". Effect was given to this resolution. The petitioner thereupon applied under Art. 226 of the Constitution for a writ or a direction to the opposite party to recall the order cancelling the petitioner's B. A. degree and to restore the degree to the petitioner forthwith. The application form had a note appended to it in these words: "Teachers mean persons who are bona fide wholetime teachers and does not include persons who are serving elsewhere and devoting part of their time to teaching in a school or college."

Held, (i) that in order to judge the competence of the petitioner to take the examination, the Court has to look to the provisions of the statute itself and not to anything that is added by way of a note in an application form. On the statute any person who was a teacher, whether part-time or wholetime, whether honorary or stipendiary, was competent to appear at the examination provided he continued the occupation of a teacher for a period of one year.

(ii) that the action taken by the University was beyond its competence. The power of withdrawing a degree under certain circumstances was no doubt vested in the Senate but it had to be exercised within the ambit of the Act, strictly, and could not be exercised by any other body than the Senate. It is a matter of utmost importance that statutory bodies like a University should act strictly in accordance with the law made for them and to transgress it either in the spirit or in the letter.

(iii) The appropriate prayer which should have been sought was a writ of certiorari. The Executive Council having exceeded its jurisdiction and its powers in making its Resolution the Resolution must be quashed. A I R 1955 All 534 (535, 536) (Prs 10, 13, 14).

——Art. 226 — Chancellor of University is subject to High Court's superintendence. See Allahabad University Act (3 of 1921), S. 42. AIR 1955 All 131.

——Art. 226—U. P. Education Code—Rules for guidance of English schools and Intermediate Colleges, R. 96 —Student entering institution is bound by the rules—Interference with disciplinary action taken by school authorities.

Any student seeking admission to an institution recognised by the Board, or an English School or Intermediate College recognised by the Board must be deemed to have agreed to comply with and be governed by rules framed by the Board for guidance of those schools. A student entering an institution under R. 96 of Education Code of Uttar Pradesh for guidance of English schools is certainly bound by the other clauses of the same rule which prescribe a procedure for disciplinary action against him it may be because the rule has a statutory authority or because a student when seeking admission agrees to be governed by these rules.

An order of rustication passed by the Inspector of Schools under R. 96 (r) after a report from the head of the institution and on an admission of charges against by the student cannot be interfered with by a writ.

Where there was an admission of the acts of indiscipline the High Court will not enter into any question whether the punishment meted out is or not in proportion to the act of indiscipline committed by the student. For that purpose it is clear that the student's remedy lies in an approach to the appropriate authorities of the institution itself which may be the warden, the principal or the Inspector of Schools. On such a ground no writ petition can be entertained. AIR 1954 All 636.

——Art. 226 — Interference with disciplinary action taken by school authorities. See Uttar Pradesh Education Code—Rules for Guidance of English Schools and Intermediate Colleges, R. 96. AIR 1954 All 636.

——Art. 226—Person entitled to apply.

Obiter: To hold that a student has a legal right to come to a Court of law and require the head of the institution to justify his action where he has meted out some punishment or taken any disciplinary action will be subversive of all discipline in the schools and colleges. The High Court will not interfere in such matters which are matters for the internal autonomy of educational institutions. I L R (1954) 2 All 36: AIR 1953 All 623 (624) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

[Overruled in AIR 1966 All 477 (FB).]

——Art. 226—Academic bodies.

It is not right and proper for the University to allow a candidate to appear in a subject in which it is not prepared to offer facilities for instruction. It is however undesirable to issue notice to the University to show cause why an order should not issue directing the University to provide practical training for the applicant under Art. 226. 1953 All W R (HC) 223 : 1953 All L J 59 : A I R 1953 All 244 (244, 245) (Prs 2, 3, 4) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 29 (2)—Student refused admisssion in college in the interest of discipline — High Court will not interfere.

The principal of a college can without communicating the reasons, inform a student studying in the college that he cannot be admitted to the college during the next session where the principal comes to the conclusion that such an action is necessary in the interests of discipline among the students. Such an action of the principal is not hit by Art. 29 (2). 1952 All W R (HC) 587 : 1952 R D (HC) 331 : 1952 All L J 731 : AIR 1953 All 90 (91) (Prs 3, 4) (DB).

[Overruled in AIR 1966 All 477 (FB).]

——Art. 226 — Judicial and quasi-judicial body — Andhra Pradesh secondary school examination Board — Issue of writ against.

Under Cl. (3) of Para. 7 of the Andhra Pradesh Secondary Education Scheme embodied in Andhra Pradesh G. O. No. 2028, Education and Endowments dated 6-10-1955, the functions exercised by the Secondary School Examination Board when it investigates into the cases of misconduct of the examinees are quasi-judicial in nature. 1955 Andh W R 439 and W. P. Nos. 878, 938, 939, 985, 1070, 1134, 1197 and 1248 of 1958 (Andhra Pra.), Foll.

If there are rules governing the procedure the authority is bound to adopt the rules. But in cases where there are no rules the requirements of natural justice are practically nothing more than the observance of the principle of audi alteram partem. In other words no person should be condemned without his having notice of the charge against him and without an opportunity to meet the charges. AIR 1961 Andh Pra 46 (48, 49, 50) (Pt A) (Prs 10, 11, 12, 14, 17).

——Art. 226 — Writ against public authority—State Board under Assam Primary Education Act is a public authority and writ can be issued against it. AIR 1964 Mad 335, Rel. on. AIR 1965 Assam 101 (105) (Pt C) (Pr 15) (DB).

——Art. 226—Interference with university decisions. See C. P. Code (1908), S. 9. AIR 1955 Assam 9 (DB).

——Art. 226—Principal of private college affiliated to University — Writ cannot be issued. 66 Cal W N 220 : AIR 1962 Cal 520 (524) (Pt C) (Pr 22).

——Art. 226—Specfic Relief Act (1877), Ss. 42, 54—Results of University examinations — Powers of civil Courts to interfere — Suit for declaration or injunctions against University—Maintainability. See Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 42. A I R 1961 Cal 31.

——Art. 226—Educational institution run on Christian principles and receiving State aid — Powers to impose restrictions on practice of other religions within college precincts — Refusal of Principal to permit Hindu Students to celebrate Saraswati Puja in College compound—Interference — Powers of High Court. See Ibid, Art. 25. A I R 1957 Cal 524.

——Art. 226 — Decision of University authorities—Interference.

The Judicial Commissioner's Court cannot interfere with the decision arrived at by the University in the exercise of its powers under Regulation empowering it to disqualify a candidate for a certain period in case he was found guilty of having adopted an unfair means at the examination. It would, of course, be open to the petitioner to challenge the decision of the University by regular suit, if so advised. A I R 1955 Him Pra 9 and 54 Punj L R 369, Rel. on. A I R 1958 Him Pra 8 (9) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226—Applicability — Discriminatory orders —Interference—Art. 14.

At the LL.B. Pass Examination of the Punjab University a pandemonium ensued. Since orderly conduct of the examination became impossible, all the answer books were collected and the hall was cleared. Eventually out of 174 candidates the four petitioners who were ringleaders were disqualified for one year. Out of the rest, 9 candidates were given the option to appear in the paper on the Law of Evidence. As regards the rest of the candidates, they were to be deemed to have obtained zero marks and their results declared accordingly.

Held, that it was within the province of the Syndicate to deal with the cases of the various categories of the candidates on their merits. This could not be said to be a case of unfair discrimination. A I R 1957 Him Pra 31 (33) (Pt D) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226 — Writ application against Punjab University.

The Punjab University is an autonomous body set up under the East Punjab University Act, 1947. It is true that the Governor of the Punjab is ex-officio the Chancellor of the University, but that would not make the University a department of the Government. So a writ application against the State of Punjab through the Registrar, Punjab University, Solan, is bad. A I R 1955 Him Pra 9 (10) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Interference with decision of election Tribunal under University Regulations—Unless wrong exercise or a refusal to exercise a jurisdiction is shown, decision cannot be interfered with under Arts. 226 and 227 — (East Punjab University Regulations, Regn. 24). A I R 1955 N U C (Him Pra) 4517.

——Art. 226 — Power of Chancellor of University to give direction — High Court, if can go behind it and question vesting of such power. See East Punjab University Act (7 of 1947), S. 15 (2). A I R 1955 N U C (Him Pra) 4517.

——Art. 226 — Discretion of College Principal with regard to disciplinary matters—Interference.

The High Court will not interfere with the discretion of the Principal of a College with regard to disciplinary matters unless it is satisfied that the action of the principal was arbitrary, due to a mala fide exercise of discretion actuated by extraneous considerations. A I R 1952 Mad 151 Rel. on. Madh B L J 1955 (Civ) 5 : I L R (1955) Madh Bha 154 : Madh B L R 1955 H C R 284 : A I R 1955 Madh B 33 (34) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Administrative orders—Instructions regulating admissions to schools—Breach—Remedy—Certiorari or mandamus out of place.

As the instructions regulating admissions into the Basic Training School, are merely administrative or executive, their breach even if patent, would not justify the issue of a writ of certiorari for quashing the cancellation of the admissions of students or for the issue of a writ of mandamus for their re-admission into the School. I L R (1963) Madh Pra 22 ; 1962 M P C 142 : 1961 Jab L J 1464 : 1962 M P L J 50 : A I R 1962 Madh Pra 126 (127) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Admission of students to Basic Training School, Betul — The competent authority for such admission is the District Inspector of Schools. 1962 M P C 142 : 1961 Jab L J 1464 : 1962 M P L J 50 : A I R 1962 Madh Pra 126 (127) (Pt C) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Admission to professional Colleges—Selection of candidates on merit — Number of marks obtained is not the only criterion to judge merit—Court will not interfere in selection. See Ibid, Art. 29 (2). A I R 1962 Madh Pra 48 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 29 (2) — Rules for admission to Government professional colleges are not statutory—They serve as Code of guidance to selecting authorities—Candidate satisfying qualification rules rejected—No violation of Art. 29 (2) — Law Courts cannot interfere. 1962 M P L J (Notes) 327.

——Art. 226—Writ against University — Grounds—Change of text books for examination—Writ to prevent will not issue.

A University is amenable to a direction or writ issued by the High Court in appropriate cases. As however, it has been constituted to exercise some highly specialised functions acting through officers and subordinate authorities appointed or constituted by itself in exercise of powers given by statute, there should be very good reason for the High Court interfering in this manner. The basic requirements for this are that (1) there should be a patent and undoubted violation of a provision in the Statute or regulation or ordinance, governing the particular subject : (2) this non-compliance or violation should have directly resulted in a substantial restriction of the service or benefit which a citizen is entitled to get from the University ; and (3) the direction or relief sought should be such that it should not add to the inconvenience suffered by the public at large, disproportionate to the injustice or inconvenience that is sought to be remedied.

Changing of text books is left to the discretion of the University and there is no law that there should be no change of the text books for a certain period for examinations and the High Court should not enforce by a writ or direction such a prayer. 1961 M P C 141 : 1961 Jab L J 430 : 1961 M P L J 973 : A I R 1961 Madh Pra 299 (300, 301) (Pt B) (Prs 2, 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Powers of High Court — Nature and scope of — Mere technical breach of rule invites no interference.

The powers exercised under Art. 226 are discretionary and essentially equitable so that the High Court is not bound to exercise it whenever it finds some breach of some provision. If the breach or irregularity has really made no difference to the results, then the High Court would be committing a serious misuse of its extraordinary powers if it still interferes.

Where the meeting of a Board of Studies was held without the chairman nominated by Vice-Chancellor as required by S. 23 of the Vikram University Act but with the Chairman elected ad hoc by the members from themselves and the meeting took unanimous decision as to the change of text books for examinations :

Held, that the absence of a nominated Chairman was a breach in a strictly technical sense ; but it led to no material difference in the decision. 1961 M P C 141 : 1961 Jab L J 430 : 1961 M P L J 973 : A I R 1961 Madh Pra 299 (301) (Pt C) (Prs 5, 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—University of Saugor Act (16 of 1946), S. 14 (4) — Termination of employee's services by Vice-Chancellor acting under S. 14 (4) without reference to Executive Council — Court cannot enquire into propriety of action. See University of Saugor Act (16 of 1946), S. 14 (4). A I R 1960 Madh Pra 208.

——Art. 226—Powers of High Court — Interference in the administration of autonomous bodies like a University.

The Madras University is an autonomous body and the discretion given to it to recognise degrees of certain other Universities as equivalent to their own and to refuse recognition of degrees of certain other Universities cannot be interfered with by Courts of law. Prima facie it is open to the Syndicate of the University to exempt individual cases from the operation of certain conditions or rules, if they are found to work unnecessary hardship. Though the Courts cannot interfere with the discretion of the University in such matters the Courts have the power, if not a a duty to recommend in suitable cases to the University to reconsider their decision within the scope of their powers. 1958 Mad W N 183 : (1958) 1 M L 214 : AIR 1958 Mad 494 (495) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226—Recommendation to University.

There is power vested in the syndicate to exempt individuals from some of the conditions required for sitting for the B. T. examination. The syndicate has got such a power of exempting individuals inasmuch as such residuary power is reserved with almost all public bodies. Of course, the High Court has neither the power nor the intention to interfere with discretion of the University in such matters. But, it must be deemed to have the power, and indeed the duty, to recommend in suitable cases, to the University to reconsider its orders, if it deems fit to do so, if there is power to exempt individuals if the actual performance of the petitioner in the examination warrants it. (1958) 1 M L J 214 : 1958 Mad W N 183 : AIR 1958 Mad 494 (Pt E) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226—Madras Educational Rules, Chapter III, R. 12 (j) — Agreement, between teacher and school management—Disciplinary action against teacher—Appeal to Director of Public Instruction—Order of Director is amenable to writ jurisdiction.

The right of teachers in schools in Madras area was governed by the agreement between the teachers and the school management, the Madras Educational Rules and the Instructions issued under Rule 12 (j), Chap. III of the Rules. Under the agreement the services of the teacher could not be terminated without holding an enquiry. An enquiry was held by the Head Master against the conduct of the petitioner teacher and after hearing her, recommended her dismissal. His report was accepted by the Managing Committee. The petitioner appealed to the Director of Public Instruction under Instruction 7 under Rule 12 (j) of Madras Educational Rules read with para 10 of the agreement. The appeal was disposed of by the Additional Joint Director, who recommended that the petitioner should be taken back in service with a warning and that she should be given another chance. The Head Master preferred an appeal to the Chief Secretary of the State Government, who feeling doubt whether an appeal lay to him asked the Director of Public Instruction, whether the appeal was competent. The Director of Public Instruction, however, passed an order upholding the action of the management but directed the management to modify the order of punishment as "termination of service" instead of as "Dismissal":

Held, that the Director of Public Instruction disposed of the appeal only as a public authority and any order passed by him was amenable to the High Court's writ jurisdiction. AIR 1963 S C 874, AIR 1961 S C 372, Rel. on.

The Additional Joint Director was an authority with co-ordinate power and jurisdiction with the Director of Public Instruction and the order of the Additional Joint Director disposing of the appeal was within his jurisdiction. Once the appeal had been disposed of by him the subsequent order passed by the Director of Public Instruction on the same appeal was without jurisdiction. (Order quashed). Writ Petn. No. 583 of 1958 (Mys), Rel. on. (1965) 1 Mys L J 469 (DB).

——Art. 226— Writ against Syndicate of University —Plea of inconvenience.

It will not be fair to reject a writ application against the Syndicate of a University merely because some inconvenience is likely to be caused to the party against whom the writ is prayed to be issued. I L R (1954) Cut 644 : AIR 1955 Orissa 151 (156) (Pt D) (Pr 17) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Statute—Difference between—Provisions of an Act and Departmental Rules.

All the rules in the Bihar and Orissa Education Code are merely departmental regulations which do not create any statutory or legally binding rights and duties. They do not derive their validity by virtue of any legislative sanction. 18 Cut L T 334 : AIR 1952 Orissa 259 (259) (Pr 1) (DB).

——Art. 226—Petitioner (student) complaining that a resolution debarring him from appearing for the examination was based on mere suspicion and that he was not given a hearing—University agreeing to hear the petitioner—Effect—Relief.

In this case the petitioner applied for a writ against Vice-Chancellor of a University complaining that he having passed an University Examination was by resolution of the University Syndicate not declared to have passed the examination and was debarred from appearing for examination. It was contended by the petitioner that the resolution and debarring were based on suspicion of unfair conduct on the part of the petitioner and the resolution and order were passed without giving the petitioner an opportunity of being heard. In the course of the hearing the University authorities agreed by a resolution to give the petitioner an opportunity to give his explanation and to hear him and ordered further enquiry into the matter. As this resolution gave the petitioner all the reliefs which the Court would have granted, held, under the circumstances the petition should be merely dismissed. AIR 1952 Orissa 198 (199) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Natural justice — Order disqualifying petitioner from examination — Questionnaire served on petitioner by University and answered by him — Petitioner not demanding at the time of answering it, that he should be told what the evidence was—No motive adduced to witnesses who deposed against him—Held, the order was not illegal as violative of the principles of natural justice.

The rule of natural justice did require that a person should be informed not only of the accusation against him but also of any evidence which might have been taken in respect of the alleged offence in his absence because otherwise he would have no means of knowing what had been deposed against him or the existence of the pieces of evidence which needed explanation. (1958) 2 All E R 579; AIR 1955 S C 65; L. P. A. No. 217 of 1960 (Punj); (1960) 1 All E R 631; 1915 A C 120, Rel. on.

The petitioner should have asked at the time when he answered the questionnaire that he should be told what the evidence was on which action was proposed to be taken against him. But he did not do that. The entire evidence on which the Disciplinary Sub-committee took action consisted of the reports of the officers who were in charge of the examination and the statement of A, the first M. B. B. S. Class Student. There was also no suggestion by the petitioner at that stage that the Supervisor or the Deputy Superintendent had any motive in implicating the petitioner falsely or imputing to him something of which he was not guilty.

Held, in the circumstances that the opportunity which was afforded to the petitioner, a student, in the Second M. B. B. S. Class was ample and sufficient according to the principles of natural justice and that the order disqualifying the petitioner from examination was not illegal as violative of the principles of natural justice. AIR 1963 Punj 480; AIR 1963 Mad 31; AIR 1963 All 41 ; AIR 1962 S C 1110, distinguished. 1963 Cur L J 537 (Punj).

——Art. 226—Natural justice, principle of—Educational authority — Disciplinary jurisdiction — Malpractice by candidate in university examination — Enquiry — Punishment — Interference by Court — Punjab University Act (7 of 1947), S. 31—Regulations under—Regulations 11 and 19.

The petitioner, a candidate for Engineering examination of the Punjab University in April 1961, was caught red-handed by the Supervisor with a handwritten chit which was found under his table. The handwriting in the chit had a striking resemblance with that of the petitioner in his answer book. The matter was immediately brought to the notice of the Superintendent. The explanation of the petitioner in his own handwriting was immediately taken and the petitioner was told that the matter would be reported to the University. The whole material consisting of the answer-book, the chit, the explanation of the petitioner and the reports of the Supervisor and the Superintendent were placed before the Examinations Standing Committee which considered the same and disqualified the petitioner for April and September 1961, Examinations.

Held that the action of the University was in accordance with Regulations 11 and 19 framed by the University and was perfectly legal and within its jurisdiction and the same was not open to question under Art. 226 of the Constitution on the ground of violation of principles of natural justice. Civil Appeal No. 132 of 1959 D/- 6-2-1962 (SC) Dist. ('62) 64 Pun L R 944.

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction of High Court—Decision of University—Interference.

If the Regulations under which the University acted are intra vires and the University did act in accordance with those Regulations, the High Court has no jurisdiction to interfere with the decision which was arrived at by the University. ('52) 54 PLR 369.

——Art. 226—Writs against educational authorities—Interference with disciplinary powers—Enquiry in disciplinary matters—Scope of.

Where the authority is exercising its disciplinary power it is only in exceptional cases that the courts should interfere in those powers. Matters of college discipline are entirely internal affairs of the college concerned. (1953) 2 All E R 717 and (1954) 2 All E R 118, Rel. on.

This by no means implies that in no case can the Courts interfere with the orders passed by the authorities in the exercise of their disciplinary powers. In proper cases where the Courts find that orders involving civil consequences to the person concerned have been passed in violation of the principles of fair play and justice they should not hesitate to step in and strike down such orders.

Held, that in the instant case the order of expulsion against the petitioner, a college student, by the Principal of the College for misconduct was neither mala fide nor in disregard of the principles of natural justice. 1961 Raj L W 406 : ILR (1961) 11 Raj 665 : AIR 1962 Raj 103 (105) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quasi public authority — Private College.

Management of private college entirely managed by private funds—Mere fact of affiliation to University does not make it quasi public authority amenable to the jurisdiction of High Court under Art. 226. 1953 Ker L T 773 : ILR (1953) Trav.Co 1224 : AIR 1954 Trav-Co 199 (200) (Pt A) (Prs 8, 9) (DB).

5 (h). Courts.

See also Note 67.

——Art. 226—Writ petition—Practice—Interference by High Court—No interference with directions of Revenue Courts for correction of records—U. P. Consolidation of Holdings Act (5 of 1954), S. 12.

Section 12 of the Consolidation of Holdings Act (5 of 1954) does not expressly provide for correction of papers. But the High Court does not ordinarily interfere with directions of revenue Court for correction of papers. 1961 All W R (HC) 683.

——Art. 226 — U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (1947), S. 83—Panchayati Adalat—No power to convert civil case into criminal one—Relief against petitioner of civil nature — Conviction under S. 420, I. P. C. is without jurisdiction. See Panchayats—U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (28 of 1947), S. 83. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 4165.

5 (i). Statutory bodies.

■ ——Art. 226 — Procedure—Duty of statutory tribunal.

A statutory tribunal is expected to discharge its functions fairly and without bias even in a case where the interests of the Government are involved. Samarth Transport Co. (P.), Ltd. v. Regional Transport Authority, (1961) 1 S C J 368 : (1961) 1 S C R 631 : AIR 1961 SC 93 (98) (Pt D) (Pr 10).

■ ——Art. 226—Writ petition under, against statutory body which is extinct—Petition not maintainable. Babu Ram v. Antarim Zila Parishad, I L R (1964) 2 All 76: 1964 All W R (HC) 167 : 1964 All L J 353 : AIR 1964 All 534 (537) (Pt D) (Pr 30) (FB).

——Art. 226—Nature of direction or order that can be passed under the Article.

In an application under Art. 226, challenging the order of the State Government directing the institution of an enquiry under S. 40, U. P. Municipalities Act, the High Court has no power to give a direction to the State Government to hold an enquiry into the allegations against the petitioner through a judicial officer. The State Government has to hold an enquiry in accordance with the provisions of the U. P. Municipalities Act, 1916; and as long as it does so, the High Court cannot, in exercise of its writ jurisdiction' give any order or direction as to the manner in which the enquiry should be held. AIR 1955 All 106 (109) (Pt D) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226 — Action of statutory body — Reasons for taking action if communicated to petitioner — Matter cannot be looked into under Article 226. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 4163.

——Art. 226—Market owned by Municipality—Business carried within such market—Levy of fee on use and occupation of market is authorised by S. 293, U. P. Municipalities Act — Hence levy is not an unreasonable restriction on carrying on business—U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 293. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 4431.

——Art. 226—Application against statutory body — Individual members, if to be made respondents.

An application under Art. 226 of the Constitution against a Board of Censors constituted under S. 7 of the Cinematograph Act, is maintainable, although the individual members of the Board are not made respondents. Where persons holding the office are a statutory body fluctuating from time to time and who bear an official designation given to them by a statute the proper course is to take proceeding against the body in its official description and not against each of such persons individually. 40 Mad 125, Ref. to. AIR 1952 Cal 653 (654) (Pt A) (Prs 18, 19, 23).

——Art. 226 — Proceedings against statutory body must be taken against the body in its official description and not against individual members of the Board. 40 Mad 125 and 28 Cal 479, Rel. on. AIR 1952 Cal 653 (655) (Pt D) (Pr 37).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Scope—High Court can interfere with orders of Authority under Minimum Wages Act.

The High Court has jurisdiction under Art. 227 to interfere with the orders of inferior courts in appropriate cases. Therefore a writ petition under Arts. 226 and 227 against the orders passed by the authority under the Minimum Wages Act is not incompetent. 1962 Ker L T 618 : (1963) 7 Lab L J 196 : ILR (1961) 2 Ker 637.

——Art. 226—Order passed by Aopellate authority appointed by Madhya Bharat State Government under R. 80, Madhya Bharat Motor Vehicles Rules, 1949 — High Court can interfere with the order, Civil Misc. Case No. 22 of 1951 (MB), Foll—Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 68—Rules under—Motor Vehicles Rules (MB), R. 80. AIR 1952 M B 128 (129) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Right to apply for writs — Against whom available—Statutory corporations.

In addition to the departments of the Governments and local authorities, there are a number of corporations created by statute, statutory corporations properly so called, and almost invariably subject to the considerable control of a State Government or the Union Government. Broadly speaking they partake of the nature of State as defined in Art. 12; they have been treated as amenable to the writs and similar directions. There are, on the other hand, a number of Banks or banking or commercial corporations not created by statute, but incorporated or registered under it, subject to the controlling authorities empowered to enforce the special law on the corporations. These controlling authorities are State as defined in Art. 12 and if they abuse their powers or violate any provision of the law, the aggrieved corporation can seek a remedy by way of a writ, but the employee or a third party contracting with the corporation cannot seek the remedy of a writ against it, because the offending corporation is not State as defined in Art. 12 of the Constitution and exercises no public functions. 1959 M P C 195 : (1959) 1 Lab L J 618 : 1959 Jab L J 459 : 1960 M P L J 715 : AIR 1959 Madh Pra 218 (219, 220) (Pt A) (Prs 5 6, 7, 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—Powers of High Court.

In considering whether statutory authority has acted unreasonably, the Court is only entitled to investigate the action of the authority with a view to seeing if it has taken into account any matters that ought not to be taken into account or disregarded matters that ought to be taken into account Where the authority had not considered the question whether a certain tax was leviable under certain provisions of law, the High Court cannot in a proceeding under Art. 226 state the interpretation of the relevant provisions of the law because the High Court does not act as a Court of appeal. (1948) 1 K B 233, Rel. on. 1961 M P L J 1011 : 1961 M P C 734 : 1961 Jab L J 1327.

——Art. 226 — Proceedings without jurisdiction — Interference. See Sales Tax — C. P. and Berar Sales Tax Act (21 of 1947), S. 11-A. 1961 M P L J 52.

——Art. 226—'Substantial evidence' rule - Statutory tribunal—Test of rationality of determination by.

"Substantial evidence" rule becomes a test of the rationality of determination by the statutory tribunal. It means such relevant evidence as a reasonable mind might accept as adequate to support a conclusion—Question of weight of evidence in determining issues of fact lies with the statutory authority—No interference. I L R (1955) Punj 639 : 56 Punj L R 449 : AIR 1955 Punj 5 (12) (Pt H) (Pr 29) (DB).

5 (j). Public authority.

——Art. 226—Authority—What is, indicated—Relevant criteria—State Bank of India is a public authority with public duties and not a commercial corporation. (1900) 1 Ch 749, Disting.; 1952 A C 452 Rel. on. (1963) 2 Lab L J 304 : A I R 1964 Mad 335 (338, 343, 346) (Pt B) (Prs 4, 10, 11, 14).

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction — Trade Union—Application for registration — No action by Registrar—Petition for writ lies. See Trade Unions Act (1926), S. 8. AIR 1958 Pat 470 (DB).

5 (k). High Court and its departments.

——Art. 226—Writ of Mandamus—U. P. High Courts (Amalgamation) Order (1948), Cl. 8 (2) Second proviso, Cl. 18 — Direction issued by Chief Justice on 25-11-1948 under second proviso to Cl. 8 (2)—After application of Ss. 14 and 19 (2) of Bar Councils Act to new High Court Cl. 8 (2) second proviso to Order of 1948 stood repealed—Direction in nature of writ of mandamus issued restraining Chief Justice from enforcing order of 25-11-1948. See U. P. High Courts (Amalgamation) Order (1948), Cl. 8 (2) Second Proviso, Cl. 18. AIR 1962 All 391 (DB).

● ——Art. 226 and Art. 217 (1)—Mandamus—Writ of —Claim by Judge of High Court that he has not reached age of superannuation — Demand made by him to Chief Justice to supply him with work as Judge of High Court — Decision by Union Government, that Judge has reached superannuation age and should therefore demit office—Decision of Government communicated to Judge and work not supplied to him by Chief Justice—Petition for issue of writ of mandamus filed in High Court by the Judge against the Chief Justice—Difference of opinion between Judges hearing appeal from order of dismissal of application as to whether Rule nisi should issue — Question referred to Special Bench under Cl. 36, Letters Patent (Cal.)—Held by the Special Bench that on materials in the petition and annexures thereto, a Rule nisi should issue. Jyoti Prokash Mitter v. Hon'ble Mr. Justice H. K. Bose, Chief Justice of High Court, Calcutta, 67 Cal W N 662 : AIR 1963 Cal 483 (490, 497, 500) (Pt A) (Prs 33, 77, 92) (SB).

● ——Art. 226—Writ against Chief Justice.

Chief Justice withdrawing duties and functions from Judge of High Court acting on decision of Union as to completion of 60 years of his age by the said Judge—Writ may issue against Chief Justice, notwithstanding absence of Union of India. Jyoti Prokash Mitter v. Hon'ble Mr. Justice H. K. Bose C. J., Cal. High Court, 67 Cal W N 662 : AIR 1963 Cal 483 (489) (Pt F) (Pr 25) (SB).

——Arts. 226 and 217 (1) — Judge, age of—Age given by Judge (J. P. Mitter, J., of Calcutta High Court) at time of appointment disputed and Judge retired on ground of superannuation—Writ proceedings against order of Union of India dismissed by Punjab High Court — Special Leave to appeal also refused by Supreme Court—Request by retired Judge, nevertheless, to Chief Justice of High Court concerned to arrange for his sitting in Court as a Judge—Request not complied with — Writ petition in same Court for issue of Rule against Chief Justice—Petition dismissed summarily by single Judge—Appeal to Division Bench—Difference of views between Judges constituting Bench as regards disposal of appeal. See Ibid, Art. 217 (1). AIR 1963 Cal 183 (DB).

● ——Art 226—Jurisdiction — Calcutta High Court (Vacation) Order, 1960—Resolution by all Judges of High Court fixing vacations in accordance with Order — Application by representative members of legal profession challenging order as ultra vires and restraining Chief Justice from giving effect to resolution — Maintainability — Non-joinder of other Judges—Union of India represented by Home Secretary impleaded as respondent—Effect.

The Calcutta High Court (Vacation) Order, 1960, was issued by the President under S. 23-A of the Court Judges (Conditions of Service) Act, 1954 (as amended by Act XLVI of 1958) curtailing and reducing the vacation as fixed and determined by all the Judges of the Calcutta High Court. In accordance with this Order there was a resolution of the Full Court, dated 27-1-1961 by which the vacations were curtailed. Three representative members of all three branches of the legal profession, an advocate, a barrister and a solicitor, moved an application under Art. 226 of the Constitution challenging S. 23-A and the President's order as ultra vires and unconstitutional. The respondents to the Petition were the Chief Justice of the Calcutta High Court and the Union of India represented by the Home Secretary. A writ in the nature of mandamus was sought against the Chief Justice directing him not to give effect to the Full Court resolution, dated 27-1-1961.

Held : (Per Special Bench) that the petition should be dismissed as being incompetent on technical grounds.

Per P. B. Mukharji, J. : — The impugned presidential order having been made at New Delhi and the second respondent being also at New Delhi, the Calcutta High Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the petition in view of the majority decision of the Supreme Court in AIR 1961 S C 532.

Per Bose J. : As the Judges who were parties to the resolution of the Full Court had not been made parties to the petition, no adjudication could be made in their absence. Hence the application was not maintainable as being defectively constituted.

The application must fail on the ground of bias. The past conduct of the Judges of this Court including those constituting this Special Bench as evidenced by the resolutions passed from time to time show that the judges have all along been opposed to the curtailment of the vacation of this Court. The Judges constituting this Special Bench could not properly deal with this application. So far as respondent No. 2, the Union of India, was concerned the Calcutta High Court had no jurisdiction to grant any relief against the said respondent.

Special Bench constituted of only three Judges of the High Court had no jurisdiction to restrain the Chief Justice from giving effect to those resolutions so long as they stood unrescinded.

Per P. B. Mukharji, J. and Bose, J.—The legal profession has the locus standi to make such an application.

Per P. B. Mukharji, J. — Writ can be issued against the Chief Justice in an administrative matter such as the present one. Pramatha Nath Mitter v. The Chief Justice, Calcutta H. C., 65 Cal W N 920 : AIR 1961 Cal 545 (551, 554; 555, 560) (Pt B) (Prs 25, 26, 28, 46, 47, 50. 51, 60, 62) (SB).

——Art. 226 (1)—Certiorari and prohibition against Tribunal which is branch of High Court.

A writ of certiorari or prohibition cannot be directed by High Court to any tribunal which is a branch of the High Court for the purpose of quashing its proceedings. AIR 1955 M B 69 (69) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226— High Court Judge acting as Industrial Tribunal—High Court can interfere with certiorari. AIR 1958 Mad 433 (441) (Pt C) (Pr 29).

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction—Writ against High Court itself—Maintainability.

The High Court which is not amenable to the writ jurisdiction under Art. 226 is the Court dealing judicially with matters. Where the function of the High Court was merely administrative and even there it merely gave effect to a decision of Government, there is no basis for the objection that the impugned Government Order had requested the High Court to refix the seniority in accordance with the Government decision and as it was the High Court which ultimately gave effect to the reduction, the present writ petition must be deemed to be one to quash an order of the High Court. 70 Mad L W 553: (1958) 1 M L J 38 : ILR (1958) Mad 158 : AIR 1958 Mad 53 (68) (Pt G) (Pr 54).

——Art. 226—'Any person or authority' — High Court cannot issue writ or order directly to itself to quash order made by itself on administrative side—Application for enrolment as advocate rejected by High Court — No writ to quash order against High Court or Assistant Registrar.

Where an application of the petitioner for enrolment as an advocate has been rejected by the High Court on its administrative side, a Bench has no jurisdiction to issue any writ or direction or order to the High Court requiring it to enrol the petitioner as advocate or even to reconsider his application for enrolment. (1925) 2 K B 43, (1898) 2 Q B 680, Rel. on.

Nor can the writ or direction be issued to the Assistant Registrar of the High Court who in the discharge of his duties had only communicated to the petitioner the decision of the Full Court that his application has been rejected. On principle, it is difficult to hold that a writ of mandamus can be granted against one who is an inferior or ministerial officer bound to obey the orders of the higher authority to compel him to do something which is part of his duties in that capacity. 6 T R 169 and 3 Ad & E 414, Rel. on.

Per Ramaswami J.:—It cannot be right to say that High Court can issue a writ or order directly to itself to quash an order made by itself. It is immaterial whether in making the order the High Court acts in a judicial or administrative role. Under Art. 226 (1) the High Court shall have power to issue to any person or authority directions, orders or writs. It is apparent that a writ cannot be issued by the High Court to itself for the process involves rather the absurd position that it calls upon the Judges to show cause to themselves why they should not be directed to quash something they themselves have determined. It is also manifest on principle that a judge is without jurisdiction to issue a writ or order to another judge of co-ordinate jurisdiction and power to compel performance of duties. The very nomenclature of the writs — "Mandamus, certiorari, prohibition" implies superior power—the power of a superior authority to compel an official or an inferior tribunal to act in a certain manner. The same reason which prohibits an inferior court from controlling the conduct of a superior tribunal applies in equally cogent manner to the effort of one judge to compel the action of another judge of co-ordinate jurisdiction and power.

Per Sinha J.:—The High Court cannot issue any of these prerogative writs on the Judges of the High Court on its administrative side as they are not inferior to the High Court sitting on the judicial side. Babul Chandra Mitra In re, ILR 31 Pat 405 : AIR 1952 Pat 309 (310, 311, 312) (Prs 6, 9, 14) (FB).

5 (l). Election Tribunal.

——Arts. 226 and 324 (1)—Petition against Election Tribunal.

A High Court has jurisdiction to entertain a writ petition against an Election Tribunal. 1953 All W R (HC) 216 : 1953 All L J 323 : ILR (1954) 2 All 515 : AIR 1953 All 633 (634) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226—Error of law in decision of Election Tribunal— Issue of writ — (Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 82). AIR 1953 All 633 (637) (Pt D) (Pr 23) (DB).

5 (m). Industrial Tribunal.

● ——Art. 226—Industrial Tribunal ceasing to exist—Writ against its award cannot be issued— (Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 7). Lloyds Bank Ltd. v. Lloyds Bank Indian Staff Association, AIR 1956 S C 746 (747) (Pt B) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226—Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 2 (k) —Industrial dispute—Dismissal—Misconduct — Deliberate disobedience of circular issued by management amounts to misconduct — Dismissal is within discretion of management — Order substituting its punishment by tribunal is liable to be quashed. (1959) 2 Lab L J 709 (AP).

——Art. 226—U. P. Industrial Disputes Act (1947).

Representation — Govt. Notification No. U 464 of 14-7-1954, Cls 17 and 21—Director of company who is a practising lawyer can represent the company as a director — Lawyer-director not allowed to represent Company — Writ under Art. 226 can be issued — (Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 36 (ii) — Companies Act (1913), S. 2 (11)). AIR 1955 NUC (All) 1711.

——Arts. 226 and 227—Order contrary to law—Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 25-G — Question whether there was single industrial establishment or different industrial establishments — Conclusion drawn from facts as found by Industrial Tribunal is not mere questions of fact—Order passed by Tribunal, if not justified in view of S. 25-G, can be challenged and set aside in application under Arts. 226 and 227, as being contrary to law. 62 Bom L R 972 : (1961) 1 Lab L J 42 : (1960-61) 19 F J R 396 : ILR (1960) Bom 1034 : AIR 1961 Bom 277 (279, 280) (Pt A) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Art. 226—Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10-A —Arbitration agreement — Arbitrator appointed by consent of parties under S. 10-A — Award made by Arbitrator — Certiorari — Arbitrator is not statutory arbitrator amenable to writ jurisdiction of High Court. ('61) (1961) 1 Lab L J 81 (Ker).

[Held overruled by AIR 1963 S C 874 in AIR 1963 Ker 324.]

——Art. 226 —Writ against authority constituted by Central Government – Authority functioning within jurisdiction—(Quaere).

Quaere :—Whether the High Court is competent to issue any writ under Art. 226, on the Industrial Tribunal functioning within its jurisdiction though it owes its appointment to the Central Government. (1952) 1 Lab L J 493 : AIR 1952 Pat 56 (61) (Pt D) (Pr 22) (DB).

5 (n). Corporations and companies.

——Art. 226—Writ to private bodies—If can issue.

The writ which is available to an aggrieved party cannot be issued to private bodies or organizations like companies or co-operative marketing societies. It could be issued only to inferior Courts, tribunals and bodies entrusted with powers by the law of the land to affect the rights of parties. AIR 1951 Mad 249 : (1950) 2 M L J 278, Foll. (1959) 1 Lab L J 554 (Andh Pra).

——Art. 226—Writ against corporate body, for doubtful illegalities.

While no doubt, it is correct to say that the fact that the issue of the writ may upset the quiet and peace of a corporation, or may even bring about the dissolution thereof for the time being, is not by itself, a reason for refusing the writ, where the illegalities brought to the notice of the Court are grave and manifest. Where the alleged illegalities are of a doubtful nature, the Court will decline to issue the writ. 112 E R 311, Rel. on. AIR 1952 Orissa 359 (375) (Pt K) (Pr 36) (DB).

5 (o). Income-tax authorities.

● ——Art. 226 — Income-tax Officer acting under S. 34, Income-tax Act, without jurisdiction—Writ of certiorari or prohibition can issue against him. Calcutta Discount Co. Ltd. v. Income-tax Officer, Companies Dist 1, Calcutta, AIR 1961 S C 372 (380) (Pt C) (Pr 27).

5 (p). Administrative authority.

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction—Issue of writs under—Conditions and limits to power.

Under Art. 226 of the Constitution the High Court can issue the writs mentioned in the Article not only for the enforcement of fundamental rights but also for any other purpose. The High Court can issue writs even against any authority or person only in appropriate cases. But the High Court should not be reluctant to issue its prerogative writ whenever it finds that the sovereign Legislature has not been duly obeyed and powers have been assumed which the Legislature never conferred upon the executive. 54 Bom L R 681 : AIR 1952 Bom 468.

——Art. 226 – Himachal Pradesh Administration is not juristic entity and it cannot sue or be sued—Hence no petition under Article is competent against H. P. Administration. AIR 1966 Him Pra 13 (16) (Pt C) (Pr 17).

——Arts. 226, 239 (1), Sch. I, Part II — Himachal Pradesh Administration not being juristic person—Petition under Art. 226 is not maintainable against it, without impleading the President or the Administrator who administers Himachal Pradesh as representative of President. AIR 1964 Him Pra 19 (22) (Pt A) (Pr 8).

5 (q). Board of Revenue.

——Art. 226 — C. P. Land Revenue Act (1917), S. 33 (3) (c)—Second appeal only on ground contemplated by second proviso to S. 40, C. P. Tenancy Act—Ground not pressed—Board of Revenue giving way to extraneous consideration and exercising jurisdiction not vested in it by law and thus misdirecting itself —Case comes within purview of powers of High Court under Art. 226. See C. P. Land Revenue Act (2 of 1917), S. 33 (3) (c). AIR 1953 Nag 1.

——Art. 226 (1) — Writ — Issue of, on Board of Revenue.

A writ can be issued by the High Court on any department of Government or any tribunal; the Board of Revenue is no exception, though in view of its being the final Court in its own sphere, writs and directions on it should be issued only in exceptional circumstances. AIR 1952 Vind Pra 10 (10) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

5 (r). Union of India.

——Arts. 226, 239 (1), Sch. I, Part II — Writ petition against "Himachal Pradesh Administration" as main respondent — Himachal Pradesh a Union territory—Neither President nor Administrator impleaded — Himachal Pradesh Administration, not being juristic person cannot sue or be sued — Order on writ petition would not bind President or Administrator—Frame of petition held defective. AIR 1964 Him Pra 19 (22) (Pt A) (Pr 8).

5 (s). Military authority.

——Art. 226 — Army Instructions (India), No. 212—Transgression of—Removal of petitioner from service

—High Court will not interfere under Art. 226 of Constitution. See Army Instruction (India), No. 212. AIR 1953 Punj 137.

5 (t). Railway Administration.

——Art. 226—Powers of High Court — Inquiry committee functioning under control of authority not amenable to High Court's jurisdiction—Perpetration of injustice—High Court has power to prohibit—(Railway Establishment Code Vol. 1. R. 1707 (c).) A I R 1956 S C 246: 1956 S C J 323, Foll. A I R 1957 All 671 (677) (Pt F) (P. 34) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Railway Establishment Code (1951), App. XIII, Part B, R. 1—'Due cause'—Administrative determination of, by Government—Court cannot revise it under Art. 226 of the Constitution. See Railway Establishment Code (1951), App. XIII, Part B, R. 1. AIR 1965 Cal 389.

6. Aggrieved person.

(a) Existence of right is basis of petition.
(b) Exception to.
(c) Firm, application on behalf of.
(d) Company, corporation and representative body.
(e) Person adversely affected.
(f) Person directly affected.
(g) Joint Hindu family.
(h) Taxing statute.
(i) Tax payer and elector.
(j) Constitutionality of law, right to question.

6. Aggrieved person.

——Art. 226—Right to apply —Person aggrieved — Who is — Kerala Cinemas (Regulation) Act (32 of 1958), S. 12 proviso — "Affected by the order" — Meaning.

Where the petitioner landlord, who had leased out his talkies to the respondent and had issued to him a notice to quit, objected to the grant of a fresh licence to the respondent lessee to exhibit cinematograph films under the provisions of the Kerala Cinemas (Regulation) Act 1958, and applied for a writ of certiorari to quash the order of the State Government granting licence to the respondent :

Held, that the petitioner was not a 'party aggrieved' and had no locus standi under Art. 226. The words 'person aggrieved' do not really mean a man who is disappointed of a benefit which he might have received if some other order had been made. A person aggrieved must be a man who has suffered a legal grievance, a man against whom a decision has been pronounced which has wrongly deprived him of something or wrongfully refused him something or wrongfully affected his title to something. (1880) 14 Ch D 458 (465) and (1959) 2 W L R 194 and A I R 1946 Nag 24 and A I R 1917 All 160, Rel. on ; (1887) 19 Q B D 174 and (1894) 2 Q B 805 ; A I R 1952 S C 319 and AIR 1952 Mad 825 and A I R 1957 Mad 551 and A I R 1959 Mad 528, Disting.

The words "affected by the order" in S. 12 proviso of Kerala Cinemas Regulation Act, in law, imply that the order must bring about or produce a change in the petitioner's legal rights. In short, the words 'affected' and 'aggrieved' though not synonymous are analogous. 1960 Ker L J 725 : 1960 Ker L T 636 : AIR 1960 Ker 378 (379, 380, 381) (Pt A) (Prs 2, 3, 4, 5).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Issue of writ—Person applying for, must be person aggrieved Madh B L J 1954 H C R 1: AIR 1954 M B 161 (167) (Pt D) (Pr 27) (DB).

——Art. 226—Where there is no failure of justice, High Court will decline to interfere on account of a grievance of technical character in writ proceedings. A I R 1957 S C 227, Rel. on. 1965 M P L J (Notes) 166.

——Arts. 226 and 227—Certiorari — Adjudication by Industrial Tribunal—Error made at the instance and in favour of petitioner — Writ will not be granted. AIR 1962 Madh-Pra 172.

——Art. 226 — Interference— Grounds — Held that party had no locus standi to maintain a petition under Art. 226 — Notification under S. 3 (2), M. P. Official Languages Act —Validity. See M. P. Official Languages Act (1950), S. 3 (2). AIR 1959 Madh Pra 208 (DB).

■ ——Art. 226—Right to apply—Person aggrieved.

Held, on facts that even assuming that technically it was necessary for R one of the operators, the petitioner herein to have made a representation at each stage with reference to each notification, substantially he did make a representation opposing the variation. This was the most material circumstance in deciding whether he could invoke the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226. He had not only filed a representation after the notification under S. 47, but he was even allowed to put forward his view before the State Transport Appellate Tribunal. The fact that he was heard by the Appellate Tribunal itself showed that he was treated as a person aggrieved. R was certainly a person aggrieved by the order of the Appellate Tribunal sought to be quashed. The true principle was to determine whether the applicant had an interest distinct from the general inconvenience which may be suffered by the law being wrongly administered. Obviously R had such an interest. (1921) 1 K B 248, Rel. on. Swami Motor Transport (Private), Ltd. v. Raman & Raman (P), Ltd., (1961) 2 Mad L J 127 : ILR (1961) Mad 110 : A I R 1961 Mad 180 (183, 184) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6) (FB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Right to apply for writ—(Madras Rice Mills Licensing Order, 1955).

A statutory right to object to the grant of licence or permission may not be the exclusive test, to apply in deciding whether an applicant for a writ of certiorari is an "aggrieved" person entitled to challenge the validity of the order which he seeks to avoid. The real test is to see whether the applicant has an interest distinct from the general inconvenience which may be suffered by the law being wrongly administered, and if that were the real test a mill owner has an interest of his own in question whether another mill owner should be granted a licence to work a mill in close proximity to his own. Where actually both the licensing authority and the Government which assumed an appellate jurisdiction, permitted him to make his representations objecting to the grant of the licence and considered the objections before the final decision to reject them and grant the licence was reached he should be treated as a "person aggrieved", a special interest of his being affected by the order. This clothed him with a right to invoke the jurisdiction vested in the High Court by Art. 226 of the Constitution to issue a writ of certiorari. (1921) 1 K B 248, Rel. on. 1957 Mad W N 308 : (1957) M L J (Cr) 263 : (1957) 2 M L J 1 : 70 Mad L W 549 : ILR (1957) Mad 845 : AIR 1957 Mad 551 (553, 554) (Pt B) (Prs 10, 11), ——Art. 226—Certiorari—Writ of— Who can apply.

Where by an order a person is declared an evacuee and his property as evacuee property, there is no ground for quashing the order by issuing a writ of certiorari when such a person himself has not chosen to complain before the High Court against such order. 1951 Mad W N 477 : 1951-2 Mad L J 1 : AIR 1951 Mad 930 (934) (Pt E) (Pr 16) (DB).

——Art. 226—Orissa Sales Tax Act (XIV of 1947). S. 14 —Petition for refund of tax paid voluntarily without any assessment order– Case not falling under provisions of S. 14 of Orissa Sales Tax Act — High Court would not exercise its jurisdiction under the Article as there was no right to be enforced against Sales Tax Officer.

Where the claim of the petitioner was for refund of certain amount of sales tax paid by him voluntarily without any assessment order, the High Court would not exercise its jurisdiction under Art. 226. Section 14 of the Orissa Sales Tax Act deals with the right of refund, of an assessee, where sales-tax was not payable by him in whole or in part and the proviso to the section prescribes a special period of limitation for such application of refund. According to S. 14 and the rules made thereunder prescribing the procedure for refund under S. 14, there must be an order of assessment passed by the Sales Tax authorities for claiming refund under the main portion of S. 14. Therefore, when there was no order of assessment, there was no right to be enforced against the Sales Tax Officer under the provisions of Orissa Sales Tax Act, the petitioner must be left to pursue his normal remedies for the purposes of enforcing his right of refund, if any, because the High Court's jurisdiction under Art. 226 in such cases would arise only for enforcing a statutory obligation on the Sales Tax Officer, which could not be exercised in the instant case. AIR 1962 S C 1320, Rel. on. (1964) 15 S T C 855: I L R (1964) Cut 535 : 30 Cut L T 553 : AIR 1965 Orissa 75 (75, 76) (Prs 4, 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Petitioner seniormost stenographer in grade II in office of Commissioner of Commercial Taxes– Subsequent formation of separate cadres for Commissioner's office and range offices — Rules for recruitment, transfer and promotion not framed — Transfer of petitioner as stenographer grade II to range office—R, stenographer grade II in range office promoted to grade I in Commissioner's office — Petitioner challenging order of transfer and claiming right to be promoted — Held that Commissioner had plenary powers of promotion and transfer from one cadre to another in the absence of rules and that R's promotion based on seniority and suitability was proper and that petitioner had no right to claim promotion. 31 Cut L T 619 : (1965) 7 O J D 129.

——Art. 226 — Travancore Public Canals and Public Ferries Act — Fixation of timings under R. 74 by Government — Petition under Art. 226 for quashing the order—Competency—Person aggrieved — Who is. See Travancore Public Canals and Public Ferries Act (VI of 1096), Rules under, R. 74. A I R 1955 N U C (Trav-Co) 6004 (DB).

6 (a). Existence of right is basis of petition.

● ——Art. 226—Who can file petition under—Person having subsisting right on date of petition — Right coming to end subsequently — Person not entitled to relief.

If a scheme was validly promulgated and became final within the meaning of S. 68-D, Motor Vehicles Act it had the effect of extinguishing all rights of a person to ply his vehicles under his permit. After cancellation of his permit he could not maintain a petition for a writ under Art. 226 because a right to maintain such a petition postulates a subsisting personal right in the claim which the petitioner makes. Even if the petitioner at the date of the petition filed in the High Court, held a permit which was to enure till a certain date, if the permit was validly terminated from the date specified, he will not be entitled to any relief. Kalyan Singh v. State of U. P., (1963) 1 S C J 50 : 1962 Supp (2) S C R 76 : ILR (1962) 1 All 906 : 1962 All L J 523 : A I R 1962 S C 1183 (1188) (Pt D) (Pr 14).

● ——Art. 226—Person who can apply—Person who has a legal right to enforce can apply.

The existence of the right to enforce a legal right is the foundation of the exercise of jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226. The legal right that can be enforced under Art. 226, like Art. 32, must ordinarily be the personal or individual right of the petitioner himself who complains of infraction of such right and approaches the Court for relief. In the case of some of the writs like habeas corpus or quo warranto this rule may have to be relaxed or modified. A I R 1952 S C 12 and A I R 1951 S C 41, Foll.

Held, on facts (i) that there was a legal right accruing to the petitioner under the agreement entered into and that was abridged, if not destroyed, by the impugned Act; (ii) that the legal right of the petitioner was infringed by the provisions of the impugned Act; and (iii) that as the petitioner's personal right to manage the Company and to receive remuneration therefor had been infringed by the provisions of impugned Act, he had locus standi to file the petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution. A I R 1961 Cal 267, Reversed. Calcutta Gas Company (Property) Ltd. v. State of West-Bengal, (1963) 1 S C J 106 : (1962) Supp 3 S C R 1 : (1962) 2 S C A 147 : A I R 1962 S C 1044 (1047, 1048) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

● ——Art. 32—Right to apply. See Tenancy Laws — M. P. Abolition of Proprietary Rights (Estates, Mahals and Alienated Lands) Act (1 of 1951), S. 3. A I R 1959 S C 735.

——Art. 226—Who can apply.

A petitioner will be entitled to a writ under Art. 226 only if he establishes a legal right. A I R 1955 Ajmer 33 (37) (Pt C) (Pr 14).

——Art. 226—Right to apply—Conditions—Infringement of substantial right—Necessity.

Before a petitioner comes to the High Court to ask for the extraordinary jurisdiction of the Court under Art. 226, he must himself establish that he has a substantial right which has been infringed.

Where a Municipal Corporation passed a resolution for grant of fresh licences for cycle-rickshaws:

Held, that a petition under Art. 226 challenging the vires of the resolution by one of the several rickshaw owners was not maintainable as the right of the petitioner which would be affected by the grant of more licences was infinitesimal. A I R 1951 S C 41, Foll. A I R 1961 All 72 (73) (Prs 3, 4).

——Art. 226—Migration to Pakistan—Intention—Return to India without permit—Order for deportation to Pakistan — Validity. See Ibid, Art. 7. A I R 1955 N U C (All) 2779.

——Art. 226 — Applicability of S. 5, Influx from Pakistan (Control) Act, 1949 — Applies to Indian Citizen returning under temporary permit — Proceeding cannot be quashed. See Influx From Pakistan (Control) Act (1949), S. 5. A I R 1955 N U C (All) 2777.

——Art. 226 — A patwari tendered his resignation on 2nd February, 1953 and asked to be relieved by 3rd March, 1953. On 10th February, 1953 the Sub-Divisional Officer accepted the resignation. On 24th February, 1953, he sent his application for permission to withdraw his resignation. No orders were passed on this application as Government's orders were awaited and on 7th March, 1953, a G. O. No. 2627/IB was issued that those Patwaris who had withdrawn their resignations before they were ordered to hand over charge and those who had applied for withdrawal after the acceptance of their resignations may be re-employed as Lekhpals provided they had not attained the age of 57 years, 6 months by March 31, 1953 and had an excellent record of work and had not taken an active part in the agitation. The petitioner was fined, suspended and reduced on a number of occasions and it can by no means be said that his service record was good. On petition under Art. 226 that he should have been allowed to continue in service, Held, that no question of withdrawal could then arise, his resignation having been already accepted. Even if his withdrawal of resignation application had been received before the resignation was accepted, he could not claim an absolute right to withdraw his resignation. The resignation was unconditional, and whether he would be permitted to withdraw that resignation was a matter within the discretion of the appointing authority. After his resignation was accepted on 10th February, 1953, he could only be re-employed and the re-employment had to be in accordance with the directions issued by the Government in Government Order, dated the 7th of March. The petitioner could not claim that he had a legal right to be re-appointed. His character roll was not satisfactory. The Sub Divisional Officer being of that opinion, he decided not to re-appoint the applicant. This he was entitled to do and the applicant could not make a grievance of it in a writ petition under Art. 226. 1954 All L J 411 : A I R 1954 All 638 (638, 639) (Prs 2, 4, 5) (DB).

——Art. 226—No invasion of legal right—No action under Art. 226—(Master and servant).

Under Article 226 an applicant can move a writ petition only if a legal right of his has been invaded for which he has no other adequate remedy. But, if the applicant was appointed as a temporary servant, the contract of service providing that the service was terminable on one month's notice and that contract of service has been terminated in accordance with its terms, the action of the authority being in accordance with the terms of the contract, it cannot be said that the authority had done anything illegal or that the rights of the applicant under the contract of service had, in any way, been affected. 1953 All L J 459 : A I R 1954 All 5 (5, 6) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Who can apply—Only persons having present right can apply.

Government appointed ad hoc committee for selection of Text-Books. Director of Public Instruction informed petitioners that their books have been selected and informed them that they should enter into contract with Government. Government cancelled this order before petitioners entered into contract.

Held, that it is only a person who has an existing and specific legal right that can maintain a petition for a writ of certiorari or mandamus or ask for an order or direction under Art. 226. :In the instant case a concluded contract had not come into being. The communication of Government that the petitioners' books had been prescribed and that it was subject to their executing the necessary agreement and making the required deposit was only an offer under the law of contracts. It was only when this offer was accepted by the publishers and the conditions prescribed in that offer were complied with that a concluded and therefore an enforceable contract would have come into being. Therefore the petitioners could not have claimed to acquire any legal right against the Government in the matter of the prescription of certain text books, so as to maintain a writ petition. A I R 1965 S C 685 and A I R 1962 S C 1044 and AIR 1963 S C 507, Rel. on. (1965) 2 Andh W R 95 : (1965) 2 Andh L T 252 : A I R 1965 Andh Pra 425 (429, 430) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus and certiorari, writs of—Who can apply — Government's order alleged to violate statutory provisions, affecting rights of prospective candidate to office of President of Panchayat Samithi—Appropriate writ against Government can issue, on application by prospective candidate — Certiorari and mandamus— Distinction — Existence of alterntive remedy, not bar to issue of Writ —Panchayats—Andhra Pradesh Panchayat Samithis and Zilla Parishads Act (35 of 1959), S. 4 (1) (iv), Proviso (as amended by Act 1 of 1963) — Rules under S. 69 — Rules for the decision of Election Disputes, Part I.

Where a prospective candidate to the office of the President of a Panchayat Samithi complains that the orders issued by the Government allowing certain persons to become members of the Samithi were contrary to the provisions of the Andhra Pradesh Panchayat Samithis and Zilla Parishads Act and that those persons have no right to participate in the elections, the prospective candidate as a person vitally interested in the result of the election, can invoke the jurisdiction of the High Court for the issue of an appropriate writ against the Government. He can rightly claim that a violation of the statutory provisions, if that be true, would affect his right as a member of the Samithi and also his prospective candidature to the office of the President.

A writ of mandamus can issue to direct the Government to discharge their duties in conformity with the provisions of the Act, and to quash their orders by issue of a writ of certiorari if they are found to be in violation of its provision. A writ of certiorari is available for the removal of any judicial act or quasi-judicial act of an inferior tribunal, whereas a writ of mandamus is issued to compel the performance of duties of a public nature. The condition that the act complained of should be a judicial act applies to the former relief and not to the latter.

It is not quite clear whether under the Rules for the Decision of Election Disputes, Part I, framed under the Act (A. P. Act 35 of 1959) it is open to an aggrieved party to impugn, in an election petition, the correctness of the orders of the Government permitting certain persons to become members of the Panchayat Samithi. Assuming however, that it is open to the Election Commissioner to decide the objections with regard to the validity of the impugned orders, the petition cannot be dismissed in limine on the ground of the existence of an equally efficacious alternative remedy.

In a matter which is thus pre-eminently one of discretion, it would not be desirable to lay down inflexible rules which should be applied with rigidity in every case which comes up before the Court. The application of the general principles on which the Court should act must depend on a variety of individual facts which must govern the proper exercise of the discretion of the Court. A I R 1961 S C 1506 ; AIR 1957 S C 882, Foll. (1964) 1 Andh W R 118 : ILR (1965) Andh Pra 160.

——Arts. 226, 19 (1) (g)—Right to apply under.

If in conformity with the licensing provisions contained in the Rice Milling Industry (Regulation) Act, the concerned authorities had given to A permit and the licence and also sanctioned the expansion of his business, it is not open to B to object merely on the ground that there is a likelihood of his profits in the trade being diminished. B is no doubt entitled to his fundamental right under Art. 19 (1) (g) to carry on his trade or business. But he cannot claim the exclusive monopoly to do business in the area. A I R 1957 Mad 551 and (1921) 1 K. B. 248, Disting. (1962) 2 Andh W R 156 : ILR (1963) Andh Pra 595 : (1962) 2 Andh L T 268 : A I R 1962 Andh Pra 363 (368) (Pt C) (Pr 14).

——Art. 226—Right to apply— Petition under — Person's right to acquire property by raising building upon his land—Interference with right under colour of statutory authority. See Ibid, Art. 19 (1) (f). (1960) 1 Andh W R 113 : AIR 1960 Andh Pra 603.

——Art. 226—'Law'—What is — Right to admission to college — Government Orders relating to admission—If laws—Right to relief.

It cannot be predicated that every order issued by the Government constitutes law, simply because it affects a number of people and its operation extends into the future. The essential characteristic of 'a law' is that it lays down a policy either affecting rights or creating rights or liabilities and making it a binding rule of conduct. It should also be enforceable in a Court of law. In judging the character of the act, regard must be had to the nature of the function called in question.

It is within the discretion of the college authorities to allot seats to candidates subject to such rules as govern the admissions. A right of admission into any institution should be derived either from a statute or rules having the force of law. The G. O. Ms. No. 1071 (Health), dated 26th May, 1956, and G. O. No. 1155, dated 4th June, 1958, issued by the Government of Andhra Pradesh cannot be said to be issued in exercise of any legislative authority. These G. Os. do not confer any right or create any liability on any individual or groups of individuals nor could an action be founded on them in a Court of law. (1959) 2 Andh W R 15 : I L R (1959) Andh Pra 137 : A I R 1959 Andh Pra 437 (439, 440) (Pt A) (Prs 6, 7, 13, 15) (DB).

——Art. 226—Right to apply.

A writ of certiorari should be issued as of right only for such an applicant as has suffered an infraction of a personal right.

The petitioner's bus was one out of the ten buses operating on a particular route. The Secretary R. T. A. changed the timings of other buses except that of the petitioner. The petitioner applied for issue of a writ of certiorari for quashing that order.

Held, that the changes in timings of other buses in the interest of public could not amount to a variation of the conditions of permit of the petitioner. Hence, the petitioner could not claim any relief under Art. 226 when he has not been able to show that the changes have affected his legal right. A I R 1951 S C 41 and AIR 1953 Mad 94 and AIR 1953 Punj 176 and A I R 1952 S C 12, Rel. on. AIR 1959 Andh Pra 429 (431, 432) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Right to apply — Other remedy—Treating petition under Art. 226, suo motu as one under Art. 227.

The third respondent was provisionally assigned certain poramboke lands in a village but on subsequent representation by villagers the assignment was cancelled by the collector. However, on fresh application by the third respondent the Government modified its previous order, confirmed the assignment of poramboke land except for a portion of site occupied by poor Harijans.

Held, on a petition under Art. 226 (i) that unless the petitioners establish legal rights in the poramboke lands "under a grant, proved or presumed, or by custom or by prescription," the writ must fail. AIR 1930 Mad 621 and A I R 1957 Andh-Pra 997, Foll. A I R 1958 All 154, Not Foll. (ii) As the petitioners have also an alternative remedy by way of suit, it is not necessary to exercise the extraordinary and discretionary power under Art. 226 of the Constitution. (iii) In the particular circumstances of the case, the High Court would refuse to treat the application under Art. 226 as one under Art. 227 of the Constitution and to decide suo motu whether the order of the Andhra Pradesh Government in question was liable to be set aside. A I R 1954 S C 215 and A I R 1958 S C 398, Rel. on. A I R 1959 Andh Pra 318 (320, 321) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6, 7, 8, 10).

——Art. 226—Right to apply—Conditions.

It is well settled that a party must have a legal right in order to invoke Art. 226. (1959) 2 Lab L J 562 : (1959) 2 Andh W R 482.

——Art. 226—Right to apply—Right to seek directions—Infringement of legal right.

For a petitioner to establish his right to seek the direction, it must be shown that some legal right of his is being infringed by the Government or by any other public body charged with statutory duties. AIR 1958 Andh Pra 632 (637, 638) (Pt D) (Pr 9) (DB).

—Art. 226—Court-fee—Question of vested right as to—If exists. See Court-fees Act (1870), S. 1. (1957) 2 Andh W R 349 : AIR 1958 Andh Pra 267.

——Art. 226—Right to apply—Cancelling gun licence of petitioner—Petition under Art. 226 for cancellation of such order—Subsequently period of licence expiring—Held, that as at the time when the licence was cancelled the petitioner had a subsisting right which he could enforce by means of a petition under Art. 226, the petitioner could enforce such right though term of the licence had expired after the making of the petition. 1961 (2) Cr L J 195 : I L R (1962) 14 Assam 40.

——Art. 226—Right to apply—Award of scholarship by State—(Assam Education Department Rules and Orders, Ch. IV, Prs. 51 and 52)—(Obiter).

Obiter :—It may reasonably be argued that the award of the scholarship is only a privilege granted by the State Government to certain students and refusal to grant such a privilege by itself gives no right to a candidate to come to the Court under Art. 226. AIR 1958 Assam 25 (28, 29) (Pt C) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Existence of legal right resting upon facts to be proved.

(Per Thadani C. J.) — Where the existence of a legal right, as distinct from a fundamental right, rests upon facts which have to be proved, remedy by way of a writ under Art. 226 is highly inappropriate. Facts giving rise to such a right or duty must ordinarily be proved by the person alleging the right in the ordinary civil Courts of first instance having jurisdiction ILR (1951) 3 Assam 348 : AIR 1951 Assam 163 (167) (Pt G) (Pr 34) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 14—Equality before law—Validity of rule 7, Regulations of the Board of Secondary Education, Madhya Pradesh — No legal right infringed — Maintainability of petition. See Ibid, Article 14. AIR 1958 Bom 433.

——Art. 226 — Who can apply — Legislation challenged on ground of contravention of Part III — Party challenging it must show that he is aggrieved by it.

The ordinary accepted principle is that a party must be aggrieved by some legislation before he can challenge it. If he challenges a legislation on the ground of contravention of Part III of the Constitution, then he must satisfy the Court that some fundamental right to which he can lay claim has been impaired or has been threatened by the legislation. If a petitioner comes to the Court contending that his fundamental right has been violated, he can challenge other parts of the statute which do not directly affect him if by that challenge he can bring about a position whereby the Court would hold that the whole legislation was void because in getting the whole Act set aside is saving a threat to himself.

But where a provision which does not affect him is severable and a successful challenge to that provision will not result in the whole Act being held, void, it is not open to the petitioner to make a grievance of a violation of a fundamental right which does not affect him. ILR (1955) Bom 870 : 57 Bom L R 892 : AIR 1956 Bom 21 (28, 29) (Pt G) (Pr 22) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Application under, when can be presented.

An application under Art. 226, can be presented not only after the Petitioner's legal rights have been invaded already but also when they have been threatened with an immediate peril. AIR 1955 S C 661, Foll. 69 Cal W N 219 : AIR 1965 Cal 463 (469) (Pt D) (Pr 47).

——Art. 226 — Who can apply — Non-existence of legal right—Petition is not maintainable.

Where an electric supply company did not obtain sanction under S. 27 of Electricity Act to supply electricity to a municipal water supply pumping station situated outside its "area of supply", on not receiving the contract from the Municipality for the same company could not maintain petition under Art. 226 because no legal right could possibly exist without such sanction having been first obtained, which it never had obtained. AIR 1964 Cal 539 (542, 543) (Pt C) (Pr 5).

■ ——Art. 226 — Rules under Art. 309 — Whether confer legal rights justiciable in Court of law — Bombay Allocated Government Servants (Absorption, Seniority, Pay and Allowance) Rules, 1957—Bombay Government resolution, D/ 25-10-1957 regarding equation of posts — Confer legal rights enforceable in Court of Law. See Ibid, Art. 309. AIR 1965 Guj 23 (FB).

——Art. 226 — Change in practice making goods available for delivery till 8 p. m.—Chief Commercial Superintendent has jurisdiction to issue notice introducing the change — Rules relating to free delivery of goods made by Government under section are not altered by the change — Hence petition for writ to quash notice must fail. See Railways Act (1890), S. 47. AIR 1962 Guj 15 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Right to apply — Auction of trees in Government forest — Default in payment of price — Deficit on re-sale — Recovery of balance as arrears of land revenue—Validity—Writ petition—Competency. See Sale of Goods Act (1930), S. 54 (4). AIR 1957 Him Pra 1.

—— Art. 226—Mere volunteer cannot apply.

The rights of which protection by way of writs is provided for in the Constitution, is a private and personal right. Hence, where the applicant is not amongst the persons who are injured by an order passed by an authority and his position is that of a volunteer he has no locus standi to apply to the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. (1923) 262 U S 447; AIR 1951 All 1 (FB); AIR 1953 Mad 94; AIR 1952 Cal 799, Rel. on. ILR (1953) Hyd 374 : AIR 1953 Hyd 228 (229) (Pt B) (Prs 5, 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Right to apply—Person aggrieved.

Under Cls. (8), (34) and (73) of S. 167 of Sea Customs Act where the Customs Collector confiscates the currency found concealed in a car belonging to the petitioner and in his defence he has all the time disowned the currency notes, even assuming that the confiscation of the car is illegal, he cannot be said to have any grievance against the confiscation of the currency notes and cannot be said to have suffered any injury and he cannot ask the Court to interfere under Art. 226 on his behalf on this score and the order of confiscation (even if illegal) cannot be set aside at his instance. 1959 Ker L T 1326 : 1960 Ker L J 90 : ILR (1960) Ker 295 : 1960 Cr L J 600 : 1960 M L J (Cr) 388 : AIR 1960 Ker 170 (172) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6).

——Art. 226 — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 68-C and 68-D)—Right to apply—Scheme published under Ss. 68 C and 68-D, Motor Vehicles Act — Deviation of route proposed by Director of State Transport — Petitioner not affected by deviation — Interest suggested illusory and too remote — Petitioner has no locus standi to object to deviation and consequently to file writ petition. 1959 Ker L J 1221 : 1959 Ker L R 1271 : 1959 Ker L T 1184.

——Art. 226—Order or direction can be issued only for enforcement of fundamental right or legal right —Unilateral decision of Government to give land on lease to petitioner—No agreement of lease—Petitioner has no present right to the lease of the land — If no lease is granted, no legal right of the petitioner is violated. ILR (1953) M B 175 : AIR 1953 M B 58 (59, 60) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

—— Art. 226—Duty of applicant—Unauthorised dispossession — Petitioner coming to Court for relief against dispossession by authority on ground that it had no jurisdiction to evict him, must show his title to possession — Squatter or trespasser cannot apply under Art. 226 that the authority which evicted him was not the proper authority to do so — The application is not a title suit but a petition in equity and the petitioner should come with clean hands — He must file his documents of title in time to enable other party to examine them. 1961 Jab L J 212 : 1960 M P C 438 : 1960 M P L J 857 : A I R 1960 Madh Pra 265 (267) (Prs 8, 9).

——Art. 226 — Aggrieved person — Appointment of village headman under Madras Hereditary Village Offices Act — Person not applying for post cannot challenge appointment of another person to that post.

A person who has never applied for the post of the village headman, under Madras Hereditary Village Offices Act cannot challenge the appointment of another person to that post, because he is not an aggrieved person and hence will not be competent to invoke writ jurisdiction of a High Court. 77 Mad L W 669 : ILR (1964) 2 Mad 693 : (1965) 1 Mad L J 140 : AIR 1965 Mad 178 (180) (Pt B) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Right to apply — Order passed by Tribunal without jurisdiction — Party to proceedings applying for certiorari — Existence of right claimed by petitioner not decided — Writ should be issued.

A writ of certiorari is issued at the discretion of the Superior Court. But for the exercise of the discretion of the Court, there are some well accepted principles. In issuing the writ, if the Court is moved by a member of the public having no personal or particular interest in regard to the subject-matter, the matter would be one, entirely for the discretion of the Court. But if on the other hand it is moved by a party aggrieved by the order of the inferior tribunal, the Court is bound to issue the writ at his instance, except in cases where he had disentitled himself to the discretionary relief by reason of his own conduct like submission to jurisdiction, laches, etc. Where an inferior tribunal has exceeded its jurisdiction, apart from the question of the subsistence of any right, a party to the proceeding before the inferior tribunal will be entitled to apply for the issue of a writ of certiorari. He would be a person aggrieved by reason of the fact that he contested the application before the Tribunal and that contest was overruled. In such a case there is no question of discretion of the Court except where he by his own conduct had disabled himself from applying for a writ. 6 R B C (1870), 466; 1901 K B

157; (1921) 1 K B 248; (1928) 1 K B 291, Rel. on. 1959 Mad W N 481 : (1959) 2 Mad L J 136 : 1959 Mad L J (Cr) 601 : 72 Mad L W 726 : A I R 1959 Mad 528 (529, 531) (Prs 11, 15).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Right to apply for writ — (Madras Rice Mills Licensing Order, 1955).

A statutory right to object to the grant of licence or permission may not be the exclusive test, to apply in deciding whether an applicant for a writ of certiorari is an "aggrieved" person entitled to challenge the validity of the order which he seeks to avoid. The real test is to see whether the applicant has an interest distinct from the general inconvenience which may be suffered by the law being wrongly administered, and if that were the real test a mill owner has an interest of his own in question whether another mill owner should be granted a licence to work a mill in close proximity to his own. Where actually both the licensing authority and the Government which assumed an appellate jurisdiction, permitted him to make his representations objecting to the grant of the licence and considered the objections before the final decision to reject them and grant the licence was reached he should be treated as a "person aggrieved", a special interest of his being affected by the order. That clothed him with a right to invoke the jurisdiction vested in the High Court by Art. 226 of the Constitution to issue a writ of certiorari. (1921) 1 K B 248, Rel. on. (1957) M L J (Cr) 263 : 1957 Mad W N 308 : (1957) 2 M L J 1 : 70 Mad L W 549 : I L R (1957) Mad 845 : AIR 1957 Mad 551 (553, 554) (Pt B) (Prs 10, 11).

——Art. 226 — Right to apply — Call for tender by District Board — Acceptance of particular tender — Right of unsuccessful candidate to impugn action of Board — (Madras District Boards Act (14 of 1920), S. 199 (2) (n)).

Where a person, instead of depositing the earnest money with the District Board or producing a treasury challan for the amount, sends a cheque with the tender he does not comply with R. 9 of the Rules for the tenders of contracts framed by the Government under S. 199 (2) (n) of the Madras Local Boards Act.

Although there may be such a non-compliance with what is provided for under that rule it must be remembered that the rule does not prescribe an inflexible rule of law. Therefore if in the particular case the Board returns the cheque and accepts at a later date the cash deposited by that person it shows that the Board was prepared to condone the delay and hence there is no real violation of R. 9.

Even if the acceptance of the tender of that person is in violation of a statutory rule, namely R. 9, a writ of certiorari should not issue to the Board at the instance of another who also submitted a tender but which was not accepted. (1940) 84 Law Ed 1108, Rel. on; AIR 1954 S C 592 and A I R 1954 Pat 235, Distinguished. 69 Mad L W 993 : A I R 1957 Mad 149 (150, 151) (Prs 4, 8, 11).

——Art. 226—Persons entitled to apply — (Municipalities — Madras District Municipalities Act (V of 1920), Ss. 7 and 43).

Notification ordering redistribution of wards in Municipality — Application by an individual for writ of 'certiorari' when there is no allegation of petitioner's personal interest having suffered is not maintainable on the allegations that notification did not comply with S. 43 and that redistribution was not in public interests. AIR 1953 Mad 94; AIR 1951 S C 41; 48 Cal W N 767 and (1897) 1 Q B 498, Rel. on. (1953) 1 M L J 252 : A I R 1953 Mad 510 (512) (Pt C) (Prs 8, 9).

——Arts. 32 and 226—Can normally be invoked only by one whose personal rights and interests are adversely affected by the impugned order. A I R 1965 Manipur 39 (43, 45) (Pt E) (Prs 29, 51).

——Art. 226 — Who can invoke — Person having no legal right or fundamental right cannot invoke the article. A I R 1965 Manipur 35 (36) (Pt B) (Prs 9, 11).

——Art. 226—Scope:— Interference with mere finding — Order not affecting rights — If can be challenged — (Houses and Rents— C. P. and Berar Rent Control Order (1942), Cl. 13 (3) (vi)).

The order which can be challenged in a writ petition is an order which affects the rights of the parties; and even in a case where an interlocutory order is made, a writ petition would not be admissible, much less would it be so in a case where the appellate authority has merely recorded a finding on the question of admissibility of a document in evidence before it.

When there was no decision on the rights of the parties no writ petition lay against a finding. 1958 Nag L J (Notes) 42.

——Art. 226—Who may apply.

It is essential for the petitioner who applies under Art. 226 to show at the outset that he has some interest and that he has been injured or adversely affected by the order which is impugned. The person who looks after his mother's house, collects rent and so on, is not a landlord within the definition of that term as used in Cl. (2) (4) and Cl. (13) and therefore is not competent to apply under this Article. A I R 1951 Nag 58 (FB), Foll. ILR (1953) Nag 837 : 1953 Nag L J 189 : A I R 1953 Nag 251 (251, 252) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

[Overruled on another point in A I R 1954 Nag 151 (FB).]

——Art. 226—Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 62 (1), 57 and 58 (2)—Permit granted for four months only without previous enquiry under S. 57 — Permit not falling under Cls. (a), (b) or (c) of S. 62 (1)—Permit held not temporary nor permanent—Permit held irregular—Held, however, that it did not entitle the holder to claim renewal under S. 58 (2)—No legal right was infringed.—Writ under Art. 226 held could not issue. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 62. AIR 1952 Nag 353.

——Art. 226—No justiciable right accrues to ministerial officer to be retained in service after he attains 55th year—Matter is within discretion of Government—Order by Government granting leave to petitioner during period of extension without formal application by him held, on facts of case, not illegal. See Orissa Service Code, Vol. 1, R. 71 (b). I L R (1964) Cut 257.

——Art. 226—Basis of jurisdiction—Existence of right—Condition precedent—Right of possession — (Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 9) — (Criminal Procedure Code (1898), S. 145).

The existence of a right is the foundation of the exercise of the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226. That right need not necessarily be the right of a full owner over his property. Even the possessory right of a person in long continued possession of immovable property may have to be protected.

The power of the High Court, under Art. 226, is not in any way controlled by the provisions of S. 9 of the Specific Relief Act. If the dispute is one between two private parties the Court would not ordinarily exercise its powers under Art. 226 because the parties may be left to fight out their dispute in a Magistrate's Court under S. 145, Criminal Procedure Code if there is an apprehension of breach of peace or by a suit under S. 9 of the Specific Relief Act. But as against Government a private party cannot seek any relief under S. 9 of the Specific Relief Act. Similarly, action under S. 145, Criminal Procedure Code against Government is out of question. It is in such circumstances that Art. 226 should be applied. I L R (1956) Cut 556 : 23 Cut LT 324 : A I R 1957 Orissa 80 (83, 84, 85, 86) (Pt B) (Prs 10, 14, 17, 18) (DB).

[Reversed in AIR 1964 S C 685].

——Art. 226 — Bihar Panchayat Raj Act, 1947 (7 of 1948), S. 4 (as amended by Bihar Act 16 of 1963)—Writ petitioner must have some justiciable right—Petition to set aside Panchayat election, by a mere resident within jurisdiction of Panchayat and not an enrolled elector—Held. petitioner had no right to question validity of election : Decision of Mahapatra, J., dated 14th December, 1964 (Pat), Reversed. AIR 1966 Pat 23 (25) (Pt A) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Who can apply under — Person aggrieved attaining majority — Other person has no legal interest entitling him to make application for writ on behalf of person aggrieved.

Though Art. 226 does not in terms describe the classes of persons entitled to apply thereunder, yet it is implicit in the exercise of extraordinary jurisdiction that the relief asked for must be one to enforce a legal right, and the existence of that right is the foundation of the exercise of jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226. The legal right that can be enforced under Art. 226 must ordinarily be the right of the petitioner himself who complains of infraction of such right and approaches the Court for relief, and the right that can be enforced under Art. 226 also shall ordinarily be the personal or individual right of the petitioner himself, though in the case of some of the writs like habeas corpus or quo warranto this rule may have to be relaxed or modified. Where the person aggrieved has attained majority there is no question of the petitioner having any legal guardianship over the aggrieved person and the petitioner has in such a case no legal interest which entitles him to make an application for a writ of mandamus on behalf of the aggrieved person. A I R 1962 S C 1044, Rel. on. 1962 B L J R 901 : AIR 1963 Pat 295 (296) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Petitioner must establish infringement of legal right—Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Rules (1955), R. 26 — Transfer of evacuee property in favour of non-claimant displaced person—Press-note fixing date for application for transfer—Does not confer any right on displaced person to claim transfer. (1965) CIS (I J) 16 : 67 Pun L R 660

——Art. 226—Who can apply—Person taking part in proceedings before a tribunal, though not formally impleaded cannot seek a writ to quash the order passed in it on the ground that he was not so impleaded—See Tenancy laws—East Punjab Holdings (Consolidation and Prevention of Fragmentation) Act (50 of 1948), S. 21 (2). 67 Pun L R 1122.

——Arts. 226 and 227—Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Act (1954), S. 36—Displaced person has no legal right to allotment of land at particular place and of particular type — Scheme prepared by department for their own guidance categorising lands into 3 blocks—Department's refusal to allot to petitioner land in block designated as special block under scheme on the ground that he had a house in the Basti, infringes no legal right and causes no injustice to him—Hence his application under Articles cannot succeed. 1964 Cur L J 99 (Punj).

——Art. 226—Grant of life disability pension to petitioner serving as clerk in Army, on recommendation of medical board—Pension cancelled subsequently after many years as a result of further medical examination—Right of petitioner to relief against cancellation under Art. 226—Right to pension, if right of "property" within Art. 31. See Ibid, Art. 31 (1). AIR 1962 Punj 503.

——Art. 226—Who can apply.

Proceedings under Art. 226 of the Constitution can be invoked when there is a legal right which has been infringed or is about to be infringed or there is a legal wrong which has been inflicted or is about to be inflicted. If the petitioners were trespassers 'ab initio', had continued to be trespassers all along and were in unauthorised possession of the property it is not open to them to complain that they should not be evicted therefrom. The petitioners had no 'locus standi' to invoke the help of the High Court. A I R 1953 Punj 176, Foll. 56 Punj L R 480 : I L R (1955) Punj 94 : AIR 1955 Punj 34 (37) (Pt D) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Art. 226—Articles in transit seized by police officer—Articles suspected to be stolen property — Arts. 19 and 301 do not apply — High Court will not interfere under Art. 226. See Ibid, Art. 19. (1963) Raj L W 30.

——Art. 226—Firm making default in filing return and producing account books and also in making appearance before Income-tax Officer — Application for renewal of registration refused for that reason under S. 23 (4) — Notice under Proviso to sub-s. (4) is not necessary—Refusal to register or renew registration cannot be regarded to involve deprivation of property—Hence no question of a notice being necessary under principles of natural justice also arises. See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 23 (4). ILR (1961) 11 Raj 181.

——Art. 226—Right to apply—Order under Administration of Evacuee Property Act releasing property—Petitioner in possession of property.

Held, that petitioner had a possessory title if not more and was therefore, interested in setting aside the order of the Custodian which threatened him of eviction by force. (1958) Raj L W 236.

——Art. 226 — Who can apply for writs—Right of third party — Injunction restraining assessment of income-tax on all residents of particular locality.

Generally speaking it is only the person whose fundamental right has been infringed who can approach the Court for relief. There is a well-known exception in the case of the writ of habeas corpus, and it may be that a similar exception might be made in the case of a writ of quo warranto. But so far as the writs of mandamus, prohibition, and certiorari are concerned only the person affected can approach the Court for relief. AIR 1951 All 1 (FB) and A I R 1951 S C 41, Rel. on. English case law considered.

Consequently, an application by a stranger for the issue of an interim injunction under Art. 226 restraining the Income-tax officer of the Jodhpur division from assessing income-tax on all the residents of that locality will not be granted. 1951 Raj L W 239 : ILR (1951) 1 Raj 257 : 1952-21 I T R 33 : AIR 1951 Raj 150 (2) (152) (Pt A) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 226—Writ of certiorari—Who can apply for.

Where the evacuee himself has not questioned the order of his being declared an evacuee, one of his creditors holding a money decree against him personally has, unless a fundamental right is alleged to have been infringed, no right to maintain the application for a writ of certiorari as he is not the aggrieved person. AIR 1951 S C 41 and AIR 1952 S C 12 and AIR 1951 Mad 930 and AIR 1953 Mad 94, Rel. on. AIR 1956 Sau 100 (101) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226—Right to apply under conditions.

The relief under Art. 226 posists the existence of a right in the persons claiming the relief for the infringement of their right. If a person has a personal or direct interest, a petition for a writ will lie at his instance and a person who holds a money decree against an evacuee has a personal interest in the property declared to be evacuee property as he can have it attached in execution of his decree. AIR 1956 Sau 47 (50) (Pt C) (Pr 6) (DB). [See A I R 1956 Sau 100.]

——Art. 226—Right to apply.

A private school teacher has no contractual or other relationship with the Government giving rise to a legal right capable of enforcement in a Court of law. 1956 Ker L T 391 : A I R 1957 Trav-Co 265 (267) (Pt B) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226—Applicability—Education Code.

(Obiter). — The Education Code is at best but a practical rule of caution intended for the guidance of members of the Department. It is not a legislative enactment nor has it the force of a statute and it does not confer any right on private school teachers. Orders of Government in alleged infringement of the provisions of the Code cannot, therefore, be amenable to the judicial review at the instance of private school teachers. 1956 Ker L T 238 : AIR 1957 Trav.Co 214 (215) (Pt B) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226—Who can apply — Person having custody of immovable property.

No person not having a right can present an application for a writ except an application for a writ of habeas corpus. Where a writ asked for in the petition is one affecting immovable property, it is only a person who has an interest in the property that can sustain it. AIR 1952 S C 12 ; A I R 1951 All 1 (FB) and AIR 1953 Mad 94, Rel. on.

Thus where a person has parted with possession and title of certain immovable property and the contact between him and the property is only custody which is loosely called possession, the person has no interest in the property and has no 'locus standi' to maintain an application under Art. 226 in respect of it. 1954 Ker L T 649 : I L R (1954) T C 1135 : AIR 1954 Trav-Co 543 (544) (Pr 3) (DB).

6 (b). Exception to.

●——Art. 226 — Article 226 confers a very wide power on the High Court to issue directions and writs of the nature mentioned therein for the enforcement of any of the rights conferred by Part III or for any other purpose. Persons other than those claiming fundamental rights can also approach the High Court seeking a relief thereunder. Calcutta Gas Co. (Proprietary) Ltd. v. State of West Bengal, (1962) 2 S C A 147 ; (1963) 1 S C J 106 ; (1962) Sup 3 S C R 1 : AIR 1962 S C 1044 (1047, 1048) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226—Delay as ground of invalidity — Petitioner himself responsible for delay — Plea not allowed—(Territorial Councils Act (1956), S. 22 (3)).

When it is the petitioner himself who caused the delay in personal service of notices under S. 22 (3), Territorial Councils Act, 1956, it is open to question whether the petitioner can allege it as a ground of grievance in his writ application. This is based on the principle of law that no man should be permitted to take advantage of his own wrong or to found any claim upon his own inequity. AIR 1960 Manipur 25 (30) (Pt D) (Pr 25).

6 (c). Firm, application on behalf of.

——Arts. 226, 227—Petition for writ—Who can maintain — Notices under S. 34 of Income-tax Act served on one partner of dissolved firm—Petition by such partner alone, though the firm was dissolved, is maintainable—Joinder of all the ex-partners in the petition not necessary — Non-joinder is not fatal to maintainability. (1963) 47 I T R 586 : AIR 1963 All 444 (444) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226—Want of strict compliance with provisions of Evidence Act by Tribunal in inquiry started against Government servant — No justification for interference under Art. 226.

Assuming that any of the provisions of the Evidence Act were not followed by the Tribunal in an inquiry started against a Government servant, that will not furnish justification for interfering with the order of the Tribunal under Art. 226 of the Constitution. The Evidence Act has no application to enquiries by Tribunals. The law only requires that principles of natural justice should be observed in the conduct of enquiries and if a Tribunal keeps in view the rules of natural justice, its decision cannot be assailed. 1960-2 Lab L J 470 (AP).

——Art. 226—Domestic tribunal—Dismissal of workman—Enquiry by management—Labour Court, when will interfere—Findings by Labour Court—Interference under Art. 226 of the Constitution. ILR (1963) 15 Assam 332 : A I R 1963 Assam 162 (163, 164) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Right to apply—Petition in name of firm—If lies.

Article 226 says nothing as to the person who can apply for an appropriate order or writ or direction. But there is no doubt that a person or a body whose interests are directly affected by a statute or an order can have redress under that article. An association of persons, which had applied for a permit for stage carriage on certain route in a district in the name of the firm under the Motor Vehicles Act is entitled to apply under Art. 226 in the name of the firm for a writ of certiorari to quash certain order of the Transport Authorities under the Act. 1961 Jab L J 104 : I L R (1960) Madh Pra 26 : 1961 M P C 131 ; 1961 M P L J 295 ; A I R 1961 Madh Pra 233 (235) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Petition in name of dissolved firm—(Civil P. C. (1908), O. 30, R. 1).

It is not open to the partners of a firm to make petition under Art. 226 in the name of the firm after it has been dissolved on the analogy of O. 30, R. 1, Civil P. C., as the persons who wish to take advantage of it must be partners on the day the cause of action accrued. This means that the partnership must be in existence on the day of the accrual of the cause of action.

Even if it is assumed that because the Income-tax Officer gives a dissolved firm a notice to file the return, the firm can make a petition under Art. 226 in its name, it should be signed by all its partners and not by only one of them on behalf of all partners. I L R (1953) Patiala 451 : A I R 1953 Pepsu 88 (89) (Pt B) (Pr 2) (DB).

6 (d). Company, corporation and representative body.

●——Arts. 32, 19—Corporations and Companies not being citizens cannot petition under Art. 32—In such a case the doctrine of lifting the veil of corporation cannot be allowed—Company Law—Lifting the veil of corporation—Corporation.

The Corporation in law is equal to a natural person and has legal entity of its own. The entity of the Corporation is entirely separate from that of its shareholders ; it bears its own name and has a seal of its own; its assets are separate and distinct from those of its members; it can sue and be sued exclusively for its own purpose; its creditors cannot obtain satisfaction from the assets of its members; the liability of the members or shareholders is limited to the capital invested by them; similarly, the creditors of the members have no right to the assets of the Corporation. 1897 A C 22, Rel. on.

Applying the principles governing the applicability of the doctrine of the veil of a corporation, it cannot be said that the Court can lift the veil of the Corporations who have applied under Art. 32 and say that it is the shareholders who are really moving the Court under Art 32 and so the existence of the legal and juristic separate entity of the petitioners as a corporation or a company should not make the petitions filed by them under Art. 32 incompetent. The effect of confining Art. 19 to citizens as distinguished from persons to whom other Articles like 14 apply, clearly must be that it is only citizens to whom the rights under Art. 19 are guaranteed.

In view of AIR 1963 S C 1811, the petitioners corporations and companies cannot be heard to say that their shareholders should be allowed to file the petitions under Art. 32 on the ground that, in substance, the corporations and companies are nothing more than associations of shareholders and members thereof. Tata Engineering and Locomotive Co., Ltd. v. State of Bihar, (1965) 1 S C W R 26 : (1965) 1 S C R 365 : (1964) 6 S C R 885 : (1964) 34 Com Cas 458 : (1964) 1 Com L J 280 : (1964) 1 S C J 666 : 1964 B L J R 834 : A I R 1965 S C 40 (46, 47, 48) (Prs 24, 25, 26, 27, 28).

■ —Art. 32—Citizenship Act (1955), Ss. 2 (1) (f), 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 11 — Citizen — Includes only natural persons and not juristic persons like corporations—Citizen in Art. 19 has same meaning as that in Part II —State Trading Corporation a company registered under Companies Act, 1956—Not a citizen — Cannot maintain petition under Art. 32 for enforcement of fundamental right under Art. 19—State Trading Corporation whether a department of Government. AIR 1953 Raj 188 and A I R 1961 Cal 258 and A I R 1959 Cal 45 and AIR 1953 Assam 177 Impliedly Overruled. See Ibid, Art. 5. AIR 1963 S C 1811.

——Art. 226—Who can apply under—No confidence resolution passed against president of Municipal Board—Petition for writ by member — Not maintainable.

Though Art. 226 makes no mention as to who shall apply for an appropriate order under the article, other writs, directions or orders cannot be placed on the same footing as the writ of habeas corpus and only those persons whose interests are directly affected by a statute or an order can apply for redress under Art. 226. AIR 1951 All 1 (FB) and AIR 1954 All 319, Rel. on.

Thus when a resolution of no-confidence is passed against the president of a municipal Board, it in no way affects the rights of the members of the Board. A member cannot therefore be said to be a person whose interests or rights have been directly affected by the resolution in question and a petition by him for writs under Art. 226 in respect of such resolution is not maintainable. 1961 All L J 606.

——Art. 226 — Procedure — Petition filed by society in its own name through manager — Maintainability —Controversy as to whether person was manager—Effect of — Societies Registration Act, S. 6. See Societies Registration Act (1860), S. 6. (1957) All L J 790.

——Art. 226—Right to apply under—Statutory body like Municipal Board, if can apply.

A power has been given to the High Court under Art. 226 to issue any direction or writ in favour of any person for the purpose of enforcing any fundamental right as well as for any other purpose. The Municipal Board is a person and if any of its rights which are other than the fundamental rights are infringed the Board has as much a right to approach the High Court for the enforcement of that right by means of a direction as any other person. 1956 All L J 889 : AIR 1957 All 241 (245) (Pt A) (Pr 5)

——Art. 226—Who can apply—Association authorised by its rules to represent members in Court of law can move High Court under the Article. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 4431.

——Art. 226—Who can apply — Industrial dispute—Decision against employees' Unions — Employees' Unions can apply—(U. P. Industrial Disputes Act (28 of 1947), S. 3. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 3298.

——Art. 226—Who can invoke jurisdiction.

A person cannot invoke jurisdiction of Court under Art. 226 in a representative capacity on behalf of others as Secretary of Association, in the absence of such authority. I L R (1955) 7 Assam 7 : A I R 1954 Assam 212 (214) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226—Right to apply Petition moved at the instance of a limited liability non-profit-making company claiming to represent its associated members owning 230 manganese mines — Question raised as to applicability of Minimum Wages Act to manganese industry as a whole—No right special to the petitioner shown to be infringed—As question related to whole of manganese industry the petitioner was allowed to move the petition, especially when the respondents did not object. 1958 Nag L J 185 : 60 Bom L R 489 : (1958-59) 14 F J R 411 : (1958) 1 Lab L J 751 : ILR (1959) Bom 188 : A I R 1958 Bom 332 (332) (Pt A) (Pr 1) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1960 S C 1068.]

——Art. 226 — Right to apply — Notification by Government appointing executive officer to perform duties and functions of Municipal Committee, President, etc. — Application under Art. 226 to quash notification by President on his own behalf as well as on behalf of Municipal Committee — Maintainability— (Municipalities — C. P. and Berar Municipalities Act (2 of 1922), S. 53-A).

Where the Government appoints an executive officer under S. 53-A, C. P. and Berar Municipalities Act, directing him to exercise and perform the powers, duties and functions of a Municipal Committee, President, etc., to the exclusion of the Committee, President, etc., and the President applies under Art. 226 of the Constitution to quash the notification, making the petition on his own behalf as well as on behalf of the Committee, the petitioner will be allowed to prosecute the petition only on his own behalf and not on behalf of the municipal committee.

If, in fact, the petitioner has been prevented from performing his functions as a President in a manner which contravenes the law, then he has got a grievance and he could come up before the High Court under Art. 226 : A I R 1951 Nag 181, 1954 N L J 683 and 1955 N L J 41, Foll. (1957) Nag L J 315 : 59 Bom L R 930 : ILR (1957) Bom 849.

——Art. 226 — Who can apply — Procedure—Company's right infringed - Petitioner, Managing Director himself—Petition declared defective.

The company is a body corporate and has the right to sue and be sued. Neither the Directors nor the Managing Director can be authorised to sue on behalf of the company in their own names. The rules of procedure prevailing in Calcutta High Court, including rules 15 and 19 of the rules in the writ jurisdiction, make provisions for the institution of legal action on behalf of a company and there is no such rule enabling the Managing Director to sue on behalf of a company incorporated under the Companies Act, in his own name.

Petitioner under Art. 226 was the Managing Director of an electric supply company himself and not the company. The provisions of the rules relating to rules made by the company had not been complied with. The right which had been claimed to have been infringed was that of the company.

Held, that the frame of the petition must be declared defective. AIR 1964 Cal 539 (542, 543) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 5).

——Art. 226—Right to apply—Person not aggrieved—Application by in representative capacity—Competency—Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 36.

An application under Art. 226 of the Constitution can only be made at the instance of an individual who is himself an aggrieved person. A person who has not been aggrieved cannot seek a relief under Art. 226 in a representative capacity for others : AIR 1951 S C 41 : 1951 S C J 29, Rel. on. (1961) 2 Fac L R 170 : (1961) 1 Lab L J 59 : 65 Cal W N 23 : (1962-63) 23 F J R 456 : A I R 1962 Cal 45 (47) (Pt A) (Prs 15, 16).

——Art. 226—Pleadings — Application on behalf of limited company—Proper authority to make.

An application for writ on behalf of a limited company should be made by persons of competent authority and not by any employee of the company who calls himself a principal officer but cannot produce any authority from the company. The exception to the general rule is made only in favour of a principal officer of the company. But then the fact that he is such a principal officer able to depose to the facts of the case must have to be satisfactorily shown to the Court. ILR (1959) 1 Cal 161 : 1958 Cr L J 628 : AIR 1958 Cal 232 (233) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Right to apply for—Party affected by impugned order—Appellate orders under Motor Vehicles Act—Association formed to manage, control and regulate omnibus service, if party affected—(Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 47 and 64).

The word "association" in Ss. 47 and 64, Motor Vehicles Act, does not necessarily mean an incorporated association and an application by an unincorporated association lies under Art. 226. In order to maintain an application for a writ of certiorari, the applicant must be a party affected by the impugned order.

An association registered under the Trade Unions Act, one of the objects of which is to manage, control and regulate omnibus service of a particular route can be said to be a party affected by the orders of the transport authorities, and therefore has a right to file an application under Art. 226. 61 Cal W N 217: AIR 1957 Cal 444 (446) (Pt C) (Prs 9, 10, 11).

——Arts. 226 and 300—Application for writ of certiorari by Union of India is maintainable — But it cannot ask for writ of Habeas corpus or possibly writ of quo warranto. See Ibid, Art. 300. AIR 1955 Cal 581.

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Who can apply — [Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47].

R made an application on his own behalf as well as in his capacity as the secretary of an unregistered association of bus owners claiming relief against the reduction of fares in respect of stage carriages plied by them in the district. Some of the bus owners had already accepted the rates fixed by the R. T. A.

Held, that it was not possible for the Court to grant relief to the association as a whole because it was not a legal entity and all the members thereof did not seek the relief which had been asked for. AIR 1951 Cal 255 (SB), Ref to. ILR (1956) 2 Cal 879; 58 Cal W N 553 : AIR 1955 Cal 59 (62) (Pt B) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226—Relief under—Petition by Association—Only individual members aggrieved can claim relief.

The Association as a body corporate, as distinct from the members or shareholders is not a party aggrieved who can claim relief though, the individual members may be.

Where, therefore, the Changanacherry Merchant's Association filed a petition under Art. 226 for quashing the notification, it was held that the Association was not an aggrieved party and hence relief could not be granted to it under Art. 226 : 1951 S C J 29 : AIR 1951 S C 41, Rel. on. (1960) 2 Ker L R 564 : 1960 Ker L J 1481 : 1960 K L T 1137.

——Art. 226—Right to apply—Shebait of deity held entitled to maintain application under Art. 226 on behalf of deity. AIR 1960 Manipur 20 (24) (Pt C) (Pr 22).

——Arts. 226 and 132 — Right to apply—Right to property—Pasturage—Nature of right—Question of interpretation of Constitution held not involved—(Limitation Act (1908), Ss. 2 (5) and 26).

The word 'property' in S. 26, Limitation Act is indicative and descriptive of every possible interest which a party can have. Where, therefore, a certain number of villagers had been grazing the cattle in the land from the time of their ancestors, this customary right of theirs, must be treated a right to property and curtailment of that right would constitute an infringement of their fundamental rights guaranteed to them under Arts. 19 (1) (f) and 31 (1) of the Constitution. Such persons are entitled to a protection of their right under Art. 226 of the Constitution. A I R 1957 Manipur 1 (3) (Pt B) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226—Who can apply—Claim by indefinite body of persons.

A right of pasturage based on custom can be claimed by an indefinite body of persons. A relief under Art. 226 is therefore available to them. A I R 1957 Manipur 1 (3) (Pt D) (Pr 10).

——Art. 226—Individual grievances—Aggrieved persons members of registered association — Association has no locus standi to make an application—A I R 1951 Mys 14, Rel. on.—Resolution of Executive Committee authorising filing of petition not sufficient to make it an agent within O. 3, Civil P. C.—Application is not maintainable even as joint application of aggrieved persons by amendment of cause title. 39 Mys L J 565 : (LR (1961) Mys 450 : (1961-62) 21 F J R 105 : (1961) 2 Lab L J 583 : A I R 1962 Mys 25 (25, 26) (Prs 3, 5, 7, 8, 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Application by an association on behalf of its members—Specific Relief Act, 1877, S. 45.

Under the article an application for the issue of a writ must be made by the aggrieved party. Thus an association, although registered under the Societies

Registration Act, has no locus standi to make an application under the article for the personal and individual grievances of some of its members and not of the association itself. 31 Mys L J 171 : A I R 1951 Mys 14 (15, 16) (Prs 5, 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—Right to apply.

An order made by the Cane Commissioner under S. 15 (l), read with R. 24 (1) of the Bihar Sugar Factories Control Act, 1937, does not affect a Company owning a sugar factory, so as to make any grievance of it, and, as such, it has no locus standi to make an application under Art. 226, Constitution of India. AIR 1956 S C 676, Foll. AIR 1954 Pat 398 (402) (Pt B) (Prs 21) (DB).

——Art. 226—Right to apply—Right of Rate-payers Association to apply on behalf of members to restrain Municipal Corporation from realizing tax from them — (Civil Procedure Code (1908), O. 1, R. 8).

A Municipal Corporation cannot be restrained from realising the taxes from all the members of the Ratepayers' Association on the application under Art. 226 of the President alone. The Rate-payers' Association as a juridical person is not taxed and has, therefore, no right to apply to the Court for issue of an appropriate writ restraining Municipal Corporation from realising the arrears of taxes by issue of distress warrants against its members. 1956 BLJR 727; 1956 Pat L R 16 : AIR 1956 Pat 182 (184, 185) (Pt A) (Pr 6, 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Who can apply — Person having legal right can apply—Construction of new building by Central Government to be used as market alleged to contravence Master Plan and provisions of Delhi Development Act (61 of 1957)—President of Market shopkeepers' Association in locality, who has been subjected to competition by new market, cannot challenge contravention. ('64) 66 Pun L R 1144.

——Art 226—Right to apply—Jurisdiction —(States Re-organization Act (1956), S. 64 (2))—(Payment of Wages Act (1936), S. 17).

Held, on facts (i) that the Divisional Personnel Officer Ajmer, must be held to be the Pay Master for the period under reference and would be the proper person to file the writ applications on behalf of the Railway. (ii) that the High Court of Rajasthan had jurisdiction over the territory in which the case had arisen. Though the order was passed by the Assistant Judge, Mehsana, it was in effect the order of the corresponding Authority, the Authority in Rajasthan, namely the District Judge of Pali. The High Court of Rajasthan therefore had jurisdiction to decide the writ applications. AIR 1953 S C 210, Disting. (iii) that the writ applications having been filed within 3 months of the dismissal of appeals, there were no laches. (iv) that the Bombay amendment to S. 17, Payment of Wages Act, did not apply to the instant case and the Assistant Judge, Mehsana committed an error of law apparent on the face of the record in holding that the appeals were not competent before him. Orders passed by him were, therefore, liable to be set aside. AIR 1957 Raj 336 and AIR 1953 S C 221, Foll. 1958 Raj L W 199 : ILR (1958) 8 Raj 286 : AIR 1958 Raj 124 (125 to 127) (Prs 5, 6, 7, 11) (DB).

——Art. 226— Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 36—Secretary of Union representing workmen — Compromise with employers — Individual workman cannot challenge award based on compromise on ground that secretary exceeded authority. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 36. AIR 1953 T C 380.

6 (e). Person adversely affected.

——Art. 32—Who can apply—Permanent lease of land by registered deed — Subsequent legislations affecting leasehold land—Lessee challenging constitutionality of such legislations — Can maintain petition irrespective of whether such legislations are valid or not so long as lease stands.

The petitioner had obtained certain rights in certain lands under a registered lease from the Zamindar. Subsequently when the State Legislature passed certain laws which affected his leasehold interest in the land and the State also interfered with the right to possession, he filed a petition under Art. 32 of the Constitution challenging the constitutionality of those laws for protection of his fundamental right on the basis of the registered lease.

Held, that the petitioner had a right to maintain the petition irrespective of whether such laws are held valid or not. So long as the lease stood and did create right of property in praesenti whatever be the nature of that right and though the nature of that right may be disputed, the petitioner would have a right to maintain the petition. Mahendra Lal Jaini v. State of U. P., (1963) Supp (1) S C R 912 : (1963) 2 S C A 163 : AIR 1963 S C 1019 (1024, 1025) (Pt B) (Prs 10, 11).

——Art. 226 — Petition under—Maintainability — Existence of right and its infringement are foundation of exercise of jurisdiction under Art 226—Allotment of land to evacuee on quasi permanent basis—Notification under S. 12 of Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Act (1954) — Effect.

The existence of a right and the infringement thereof are the foundation of the exercise of the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. The right that can be enforced under Art. 226 of the Constitution must ordinarily be the personal or individual right of the applicant.

The petitioners who were evacuees from Pakistan were allotted some lands in 1950 on quasi permanent tenure. In 1954 the State Government issued a notification under S. 14 of the E P. Holdings (Consolidation and Prevention of Fragmentation) Act (1948), declaring its intention to make a scheme for the consolidation of holdings and in 1955 the Consolidation Officer published a draft scheme proposing substitution of some other lands of lesser value for the lands allotted to the petitioners. On 24.3 1955 the Central Government issued a notification under S. 12 of the Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Act (1954) acquiring all the evacuee properties. The petitioners filed the petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution for the issue of an appropriate writ to quash the scheme of consolidation.

Held, that notwithstanding a notification under S. 12 of the Act of 1954 an evacuee has a valuable right in the property allotted to him. After the notification issued by the Central Government under S. 12 of the Act, so long as the property remained vested in the Central Government, petitioners continued to be in possession of the property on the same conditions on which they held the property immediately before the date of acquisition, that is, under a quasi-permanent tenure. Therefore on the date when they filed the petition in the High Court they had a very valuable right in the properties allotted to them which entitled them to ask the High Court to give them relief under Art. 226 of the Constitution. In the circumstances of the case, the petitioners had sufficient interest in the property to sustain their petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution. AIR 1957 S C 599, Rel. on. State of Punjab v. Suraj Parkash Kapur, (1962) 1 S C J 108 : (1962) 2 S C R 711 : AIR 1963 S C 507 (508, 509) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 5, 6).

●——Art. 226 — Reference by Government of industrial dispute to Tribunal—Aggrieved party's right to challenge jurisdiction of Tribunal on ground that dispute referred is not industrial dispute. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10. AIR 1957 S C 532.

●——Arts. 32, 14 — Classification—Who can challenge.

The only persons who can impugn any given piece of legislation under Art. 32 are those who are aggrieved thereby. A person who is not a member of a certain class and as such is not aggrieved cannot attack a provision of an Act on the ground that the classification implied therein contravenes Art. 14 of the Constitution Hans Muller of Nuremburg v. Supdt. Presidency Jail, Calcutta, 1955 Mad W N 478 : 1955 S C A 487 : (1955) 1 M L J (S C) 188 : 1955 S C J 324 : AIR 1955 S C 367 (373) (Pt E) (Pr 26).

——Art. 226 — Right to apply under — Expression 'any person' in Notification, Dated 19th August 1955—Meaning of — ((Ajmer) Excise Regulation (1 of 1915), S. 16 (4) — Notification No. E (1)/3/54-P. W.E., Dated 19th August 1955).

Although there is force in the contention that the expression 'any person' in the first part of the Notification, dated 19th August 1955, is only a substitute for the 'Public' against whom the Chief Commissioner had no power to issue the notification, where a writ petition was not filed by the petitioner in assertion of his individual or personal rights but in vindication of his rights as a proprietor of the hotel and restaurant.

Held, that the relief could not be given under the first part of the notificationn. 1956 Cri L J 657 : A I R 1956 Ajmer 50 (50) (Pt A) (Pr 2).

——Art. 226 — Petition challenging land acquisition proceedings—Who can apply— Persons recognised by Revenue Court as tenants of land have sufficient subsisting interest to apply — Fact that litigation with respect to sirdari rights in that land is pending does not affect their right to apply. I L R (1962) 2 All 653 : A I R 1962 All 208 (209, 210) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226 — Who can apply — Order of R. T. A. granting extension of route of permit — Persons who applied for permit can challenge order by writ petition. 1961 All L J 594 : 1961 All W R (H C) 616 : A I R 1962 All 145 (147) (Pt B) (Pr 10).

——Art. 226—Possessory title—Right to apply.

In order to entitle the petitioner to claim relief under Art 226 or certiorari, mandamus or prohibition it is not necessary that he must show that he is the owner of the property in dispute. It is enough for his purpose to show that he is lawfully in possession and that he is not liable to be evicted therefrom under the orders passed against him which he seeks to be quashed. A possessory title is a good title for the purpose of enabling the Court to grant relief under Art 226 of the Constitution 1956 All W R (H C) 240 : A I R 1956 All 486 (489) (Pt A) (Pr 17) (DB).

——Art 226 — Certiorari — Only a person who has suffered an infraction of his personal legal right by an order can seek to remove it on certiorari — Order by R. T. A. granting permits for routes notified under S 68-D of Motor Vehicles Act—Interest of travelling public also advanced by the permits — Application under Art 226 by a private operator who is not entitled to apply and obtain permit for the notified routes and who also does not suffer directly, challenging the correctness or validity of such permits is not competent A I R 1962 S C 1044; A I R 1959 Andh Pra 429 and A I R 1953 Mad 279, Rel on; A I R 1961 S C 1558 and A I R 1962 S C 1135 and 1946 A C 338 Ref. to. (1964) 2 Andh W R 295 : (1965) 1 Andh L T 9 : A I R 1966 Andh Pra 112 (DB).

——Art 226 — Proceedings for compulsory acquisition of land on behalf of municipality for extending Muslim burial ground — Government again issuing order to drop all further proceedings—A member of Muslim Community invoking jurisdiction under Art 226 to direct Government not to stop proceedings—Maintainability.

When the Government issued an order directing the Land Acquisition Collector to drop all further proceedings for the compulsory acquisition of land, started on behalf of the Municipality, for extending the Muslim burial ground, the appellant, a member of the Muslim Community and a rate-payer approached the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution to direct the Government not to drop the proceedings.

Held, the person directly interested in the acquisition is the Municipality; any other person who might get the benefit of the use of the land for a particular purpose in the event of its acquisition cannot be said to be a person having a direct, personal and present interest in the acquisition proceedings or in land. His interest, if any, would be only indirect or remote. The appellant is not a person who has got any legal right which may be enforced against the Government. He cannot invoke the jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution. (1966) 1 Andh W R 140 : (1966) 1 Andh L T 112.

——Art. 226 — Right to apply — Division of constituency into wards and allotment of seats — Validity of election process on ground of unequal distribution —Who can challenge.

Held, on facts that it was the voters in the second and the third wards that could have a just cause for complaint The petitioner who belonged to the first ward was not a person aggrieved and therefore the petition must fail;

Held also, that the powers exercisable by the High Court under Art. 226 should not be drawn upon at the instance of a petitioner inspired by indirect motives. A I R 1958 Andh Pra 252 (253, 254) (Pt B) (Prs 4, 8) (DB).

——Art. 226—Who may apply — Person deprived of his right to be nominated for Siemship—Such person is "party concerned" and can apply.

The foundation for applying under Art. 226 is the existence of any legal right. A I R 1962 S C 1044, Relied on.

Upon the issue of a Parwana requiring the electors to nominate persons for Siemship within 20 days from the date of Parwana, one U. F. was nominated in the Durbar in which all the electors did not attend. The electors had also the right to nominate somebody else within the period fixed. On challenging the Parwana there was stay of election of Siem. The stay was sub.

sequently vacated but the appointment of U. F. was approved by the District Council. On the writ petition filed by a resident of the area:

Held, (i) that the electors having been misled by stay order, were deprived of their right to file nomination and the petitioner's right to be nominated had, therefore, been affected. He was seeking to enforce that right by means of a writ petition which could be maintained ; (ii) that the petitioner was a "party concerned" within the meaning of S. 5 of the Khasi-Jaintia Hills Autonomous District (Appointment and Succession of Chiefs and Headmen) Act, 1959. Persons who come under S. 5 of the Act have undoubtedly locus standi to apply under Art. 226. But it cannot be said that those who cannot be regarded as party concerned under S. 5, cannot say that their right has been affected and apply under Art. 226. There may be cases where persons who are not parties concerned within the meaning of the words in S. 5 of the Act may have a right to apply under Art. 226. A I R 1965 Assam 83 (85) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Industrial Employment (Standing Orders) Act (1946) — Draft standing order — Person affected by such order can file petition individually— He need not be represented by Union. (1965-66) 27 F J R 427 : (1965) 2 Lab L J 614 : A I R 1965 Assam 40 (40, 41) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art 226—Right to apply — Alleged violation of Rules and Procedure for sale of pounds and markets in Assam.

Held, shop-keeper in market on whom restriction if any was placed by the enhancement of fees and not by the auction sale could not challenge the sale and the right of the purchaser to collect the fees from him.

Held further, that the sale was not illegal on the ground that the notice under the Rules did not mention the rate at which the purchaser was entitled to collect from the shop-keeper and that the rules required only term of the lease to be mentioned in the notice. A I R 1958 Assam 156 (159, 160) (Pt C) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Who can apply — Counsel feeling personally aggrieved by order against his client cannot himself apply for high prerogative writ. See Advocates Act (1961), S. 49 (c). (1965) 69 Cal W N 860 : A I R 1966 Cal 250.

——Art. 226—Who can apply — Dispute relating to dismissal of certain employees referred to Industrial Tribunal for adjudication—Right of person taken in to fill in vacancy caused by dismissal, to apply for quashing order directing re-instatement.

Where certain employees were dismissed from service by a Bank and the petitioner was taken in to fill the vacancy caused by the dismissal of those workmen and the dispute is subsequently referred to Industrial Tribunal for adjudication, the petitioner has no 'locus standi' to make an application under Art. 226 to quash or set aside the order passed by the Appellate Tribunal directing the re-instatement of the dismissed employees, as the petitioner is not a party to the trade dispute. (1955-56) 8 F J R 419 : A I R 1955 Cal 309 (310, 311) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 10).

——Art. 226—Who can apply.

If a statutory body acts in excess of its jurisdiction any one affected by it can certainly come up and ask that it should be compelled to restrict its activities within the four corners of the statute which has created it. 58 Cal W N 617 : AIR 1955 Cal 72 (75) (Pt G) (Pr 19).

——Art. 226—Scope—Persons entitled to apply.

Trust property acquired by Government — Beneficiaries not parties to proceedings and represented by receiver of estate — Compensation under award paid to receiver on his giving undertaking to refund if required — Land Acquisition Collector ordering refund, on application for amendment of award by person claiming interest in portion of property — Court on application of receiver directing refund after hearing objections from beneficiaries—No steps taken, to have Court's order modified or set aside:

Held, (i) that application under Art. 226 by beneficiaries to correct Court's order only on allegations against receiver's conduct in acquiescing in and carrying out Collector's order, was inappropriate;

(ii) that they were strangers to Land Acquisition proceedings, and so even if the order of Collector enforcing the undertaking amounted to amendment of award, it was not open to the beneficiaries to challenge the amendment in the proceedings under the Article;

(iii) that their application was not bona fide since its object was to get round Court's order by having the Collector's order set aside;

(iv) and that therefore there was no justification for interference. A I R 1953 Cal 257 (258, 259) (Pt B) (Prs 5, 8, 9, 10).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Himachal Pradesh Panchayat Raj Act (6 of 1953), S. 93 — Revision —Notice to Nyaya Panchayat—Omission to serve — Not sufficient to quash revisional order — Nyaya Panchayat entitled to challenge Magistrate's jurisdiction in a writ petition—See Panchayats — Himachal Pradesh Panchayat Raj Act (6 of 1953), S. 93. 1964 (1) Cri L J 34 : AIR 1964 Him Pra 2.

——Art. 226—Who may apply.

Where it was found that the State has been recording the petitioners and their co-owners as proprietors of the land thus recognised their right after the merger of the former State of Baghat, the right to property can be asserted by them in the Courts established by the present Government and the plea that they have no locus standi is not tenable. A I R 1947 P C 1, Disting. AIR 1953 Him Pra 95 (100, 101) (Pt G) (Pr 21).

——Art. 226—Kerala Education Rules 1959, Chap. 5, R. 9—Government sanctioning opening of new school disregarding R. 9 — Petition for certiorari by person already running a school—Petition is maintainable— Certiorari cannot be refused on ground that petitioner has not suffered economic loss—Authority sanctioning opening of new school does not act administratively but quasi-judicially. 1965 Ker L T 284 : 1965 Ker L J 326 : (1965) 1 Ker L R 145 : I L R (1965) 1 Ker 467 : AIR 1965 Ker 301 (302, 303) (Prs 2, 3, 4).

——Art. 226—Right to apply—Persons having special interest apart from interest as members of public — Municipalities—Madras District Municipalities Act (5 of 1920), Ss. 36 and 278.

Where certain persons residing in the immediate neighbourhood challenge, by an application under Art. 226, an order of the State Government cancelling previous resolution of Municipal Council by which latter had declined to register a certain land as burial ground and directing the Council to sanction registration of such land forthwith, on the ground that the same has been passed in contravenion of Ss. 38 and 278 (1) of the Madras District Municipalities Act, such persons have a special interest of their own, apart from their interest as members of the public in challenging such order, and can apply under Art. 226. AIR 1952 S C 12; A I R 1955 Assam 163; A I R 1957 Mad 551, Rel. on. AIR 1953 Mad 94; AIR 1959 Andh Pra 318; AIR 1959 Andh Pra 429, Dist. 1960 Ker L J 192 : 1960 Ker L T 243.

——Art. 226 — Right to apply — Establishment to which Shops and Establishments Act applied exempted from operation of certain provisions—Employee affected by exemption — Right to apply — (M. B. Shops and Establishments Act (7 of 1952), S. 4).

The employee of an establishment is a person affected by the exemption of the establishment in which he is serving from the operation of Ss. 10, 16 and 17 of the Act. He is, therefore, entitled to challenge the validity of the notification, by applying under Art. 226 of the Constitution. 1958 M P C 143 : (1958) 2 Lab L J 587 : 1961 M P L J 9.

——Art. 226 – M. B. Secondary Education Act, S. 16— Regulations under—Chap. XI —Regn. 4 (a)— Recognition given by Board to new institution — Other institution suffering loss of students and income in fees on that account — No right of petitioner violated — Writ petition held not maintainable. 1959 M P C 52.

——Art. 226—Right to apply.

Where a person has been elected a member of a Panchayat from one ward and has a right to elect other members to fill in the vacancy in another ward but the Government passed an order to hold fresh elections, such a person has a sufficient and proximate interest in the matter to maintain a petition under Art. 226, because if the order of the Government were to stand and elections held in the manner directed by the Government, the petitioner would be deprived of his right. (1960) 1 M L J 472 : AIR 1960 Mad 238 (240) (Pt D) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226—Issue of writ 'ex debito justitiae' — (Municipalities—Madras District Municipalities Act (5 of 1920), Ss. 7 and 43).

It is not incumbent on Government either under the District Municipalities Act or under the rules framed for elections to divide wards so as to ensure their equality of voting strength or to make it easy for members of particular community to be elected. There is no violation of natural justice in not manipulating the wards to ensure their success and hence a writ 'ex debito justitiae' will not be issued on the application of a person who has no personal interest. (1953) 1 M L J 522 : A I R 1953 Mad 510 (512, 513) (Pt D) (Prs 10, 11).

——Art. 226—Janapada Election—Who can challenge.

A voter in a constituency in a Janapada Sabha has sufficient interest to challenge an election to the constituency.

A Janapada Sabha cannot file a petition challenging the election of its councillors. For, it is a statutory corporation and can discharge its statutory duties no matter who are its councillors. As to who are its councillors is no concern of a corporation. It follows therefore that the Sabha can have no interest whatsoever in the elections of its councillors.

A candidate for election can challenge election to his constituency. Kanglu Baula v. Chief Executive Officer, ILR (1954) Nag 875 : A I R 1955 Nag 49 (65, 66) (Pt I) (Prs 57, 66) (FB).

——Art. 226—Writ petition—Who can file—Matter regarding permission for additions or alterations to buildings violating Municipal Rules for constructions and alterations — Owner of adjoining property can file a writ — Orissa Municipal Act (1950) S. 398 — Writ against order under the section — Who can file.

It is now well settled law that a neighbouring owner of a proposed new building, in respect of which provisions of the Municipal rules are violated, has a right, although he does not happen to be the adjoining owner in respect of the portion affected thereby, to insist on a strict compliance of the rules, even where the person who is immediately affected does not object; he is entitled to apply for a mandamus to prevent plans being sanctioned contrary to the relevant Municipal Act and the rules thereunder. It is also well settled that in the matter of building plans, there is a specific legal right in favour of the adjacent owner to prevent plans being passed, contrary to the provisions of the relevant Municipal Act and the rules thereunder; accordingly if a plan is sanctioned by a Building Committee of a Municipality contrary to the relevant Municipal Act and the statutory rules and regulations, an adjacent owner who— by reason of the particular situation of his property, is likely to be injured as to light, air, health and other amenities, — suffers an infringement of his right, has undoubtedly a right to seek relief. The granting of permission to build in contravention of the building rules of the Municipality may amount to such an invasion of legal rights in respect of the adjoining owner as will warrant the exercise of the special jurisdiction. Although a provision may be primarily framed for the benefit of the general public yet, in appropriate cases if the breach is of such a nature as in the nature of things must injure a specific individual to quite a different degree, such a right will also be assumed in favour of such specific individual. Whether the rules infringed amount to an injury to a specific individual depends on the facts of each case.

It is an individual right of each member of the resident public, within the municipality to insist on compliance with Municipal rules, conducive to the general good of the community of which each such individual is a competent member. A I R 1941 Cal 386; A I R 1941 Cal 391, Foll. (1963) 5 Orissa J D 97.

——Art. 226—Right to apply.

Where the Government has settled paimali right to third persons over raiyati lands such an interference would, in effect, amount to confiscation of private property without a corresponding award of compensation and thus taking away rights of private individuals and vesting the same in the public. But where the raiyats whose rights are alleged to be interfered with by the settlement in question have not made any grievance and come to Court, it is not possible to issue any writ at the instance of the petitioner who has not claimed to have acquired any interest from the raiyats concerned. 1958 B L J R 343 : AIR 1959 Pat 72 (73) (Pt B) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226—Who may apply.

The applicant claimed that the property, which had been declared evacuee property on the ground that it belonged to one N who was an evacuee, was really his property.

Held, that the applicant had interest in making the application. 1955 Raj L W 95 : ILR (1954) 4 Raj 528 : AIR 1954 Raj 214 (217) (Pt G) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Cess levied under Jaipur District Boards Act—State grantees ha interest to challenge validity of cess under Art. 226 — [Jaipur District Boards Act (947), 3. 32 (b)] 1954 Raj L W 1 ; I L R (1953) 3 Raj 606 : AIR 1954 Raj 104 (111) (Pt F) (Pr 27) (DB).

——Art. 226—Who can apply—Introduction of two more buses—Income of petitioners likely to decrease —Loss quite substantial — Petitioners could not be said to have been substantially affected—Being aggrieved they are entitled to challenge order on ground of total lack of jurisdiction. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64 (a). AIR 1953 Raj 193 (DB).

6 (f). Person directly affected.

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Who can apply—Order by Chancellor in reference under S 39, Lucknow University Act — Decision of Executive Committee of University and appointment made thereunder declared null and void—Appointee is directly affected by the decision and therefore is an aggrieved person who is entitled to get the decision of the Chancellor quashed by a writ of certiorari : (1880) 14 Ch D 458; (1887) 19 Q B D 174, (1952) 2 W L R 194 and (1961) 2 All E R 504, Ref. to.

The fact that the appointee was only a probationer is not important because the appointment itself had been put in jeopardy by the order. I L R (1961) 2 All 634 : 1962 All L J 289.

——Art. 226—Who can apply—Petition for quashing order of Assistant Custodian declaring property as evacuee property, on ground that it is waqf property—Proper persons to apply are either the waqif or mutawalli or the Sunni Waqf Board—Members of Sunni Waqf Board cannot apply.

Petition under Art. 226 by some members of the Sunni Waqf Board, for quashing the orders of the Assistant Custodian declaring a certain property as evacuee property and the subsequent proceedings, on the ground that the said property is waqf property, being a graveyard and a takia attached to it, is not maintainable, if the petitioners nowhere in their petition have stated what their individual rights are and how they are affected. Their merely being members of the Sunni Waqf Board does not entitle them to any right. AIR 1952 S C 12, Rel. on. Proper persons to apply would be the waqif or the mutawalli or if the Sunni Waqf Act applies, the Sunni Waqf Board. AIR 1961 All 299 (300) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 4).

——Art. 226—Right to apply.

The services of an electric wireman were terminated by the Kanpur Tannery Ltd., and the matter was taken up by the Industrial Employees Union, which was registered as a 'miscellaneous' trade Union and referred to the Adjudicator. The Adjudicator held that the wireman was rightly discharged and was not entitled to any relief. The Union thereupon applied under Art. 226 challenging the order.

Held, that the petitioner Union had no right to present the petition on behalf of the discharged workman because :

(1) in a writ jurisdiction it is only the individual or the corporation whose rights are affected who can come to the High Court : AIR 1951 All 1 (FB) and AIR 1960 All 366 and AIR 1951 S C 41, Rel. on.

(2) Since the case of the discharged wireman had not been taken up by any of the Unions of leather industry the petitioner Union was not entitled to take up the case and represent the discharged wireman. (1960) 1 Fac L R 569 : AIR 1960 All 738 (739, 740, 741) (Prs 6, 7, 8).

——Art. 226 — Petitioner occupying premises in dispute—Notice under S. 7-A (2), U P. Control of Rent and Eviction Act served on his brother—Right of petitioner to file write petition. A I R 1960 All 218 (221) (Pt A) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226 — Right to apply — Interest of petitioner.

Where a person applies to certain Licensing Board for grant of license and his application is refused he has an interest justifying an application to the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution and it is open to him to point out that the constitution of the Licensing Board was itself not proper. AIR 1957 All 773 (777) (Pt B) (Pr 12).

——Art. 226—Who can apply under.

Though Art. 226 of the Constitution makes no mention as to who shall apply for an appropriate order an application for the issue of a writ of mandamus prohibition, or other orders cannot be filed by a person unless, his rights are directly affected. Indian Sugar Mills, Ltd. v. Secretary to Government, U. P., 1950 A L J 767 : ILR (1952) 1 All 186 : A I R 1951 All 1 (2, 3) (Pt B) (Prs 8, 9) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Writ—Stage Carriage permit—Change of timings whether variation of condition of permit — Person aggrieved is the holder of of permit — No other person has a right of appeal. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64 (b). AIR 1965 Andhra Pra 115.

——Art. 226—Who can apply—Persons whose rights are affected by notification issued under Act can apply.

A notification was issued by the State Government in exercise of powers claimed to have been given by the provisions of the Andhra Pradesh Panchayat Samities and Zilla Parishads Act 1959. The petitioners claimed that there was no power vested in the Government under the Act to reconstitute or redelimit a block in such a way as to abolish any of the existing Blocks and Panchaya Samities; consequently, the impugned notification issued was ultra vires the powers of the Government and must be quashed. To this claim the State Government raised a technical objection that since personal rights of none of the petitioners were affected their petition could not be prosecuted.

Held, that the true test, for determining the petitioners' locus standi to maintain an application was whether the petitioners were directly affected by the statute that is whether they are persons whose legal rights are governed by the impugned Act and whether they are judicially affected by the differential treatment prescribed by the impugned statute. So considered the petitioners who were elected to the village Panchayat which formed part of the abolished Panchayat Samithi and were not only electors but also had right to say to which Samithi they should belong, had locus standi to challenge the validity of the notification. (1965) 1 Andh W R 317 : A I R 1965 Andh Pra 40 (50, 51) (Pt E) (Prs 31, 33) (DB).

——Art. 226—Applicability — Person aggrieved by notification under S 3, Madras Essential Articles Control and Requisitioning (Temporary Powers)

Act (I of 1949) as amended by Andhra Amendment Act (1955), Ss 3 and 21—Right to issue of writ.

Under S. 21 of Madras Act (I of 1949) (Andhra Amendment) right of suit in respect of any act done in pursuance of the Act is barred and, therefore, a person aggrieved by Government notification under S. 3 has no other effective alternative remedy provided under the Act, and his petition under Art. 226 is maintainable. 1957 Andh L T 422 : (1957) 2 Andh W R 29.

——Art. 226 — Right to apply under — "Interest" — Right to settlement of Government khas land.

The Government is the owner of the land and it has a discretion to grant settlement in respect thereof in favour of such party as it liked. As such no person can claim any absolute right to get settlement of Government khas lands from the Collector and he has no such right which he can enforce with the aid of Art. 226 of the Constitution.

But where the petitioner succeeds in obtaining from the Collector settlement of such land in his favour and it is confirmed by the Commissioner, he has a sufficient interest for the protection of which he can seek the interference of High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. ('57) 61 C W N 301.

——Art. 226 — Re-formation of wards in village for panchayat elections — Petitioner remaining voter in same ward after re-formation but instead of three members, two members to be elected as result of re-formation—Petition under Art. 226 against re-formation of wards cannot be dismissed on ground that petitioner remains voter in the same ward as he is directly affected by the reformation of the wards and besides, whole village is interested in the matter —Panchayats—Bombay Village Panchayats Act (3 of 1959), S. 10. (1962) 3 Guj L R 56.

——Art. 226 —Who can apply—Other remedy open —Laches.

It is only a person who is affected or whose rights are affected that can invoke the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution and seek to get the order of the tribunal set aside on the ground that it violated any of the fundamental rights conferred by the Constitution or that it was against any provision of the Constitution or for any other matter such as want or excess of jurisdiction. In order to justify the granting of this extraordinary relief, the absence of an adequate remedy at law must clearly appear.

If a party entitled to complain about want of jurisdiction neglects to do so he must be held bound by the judgment. Laches or delay also would justify the rejection of the application under Art. 226. (1914) 235 U S 151 and AIR 1951 S C 41, Foll. Waheed Munwar Khan v. State, I L R (1955) Hyd 768 : AIR 1956 Hyd 22 (23, 24) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 5) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Petitioners owning certain mills run on electric power supplied by respondents—No contract to supply electricity entered into between some of petitioners and respondents—Former cannot maintain writ petition. AIR 1960 J & K 12 (13) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226 — Who can apply — Bidder at auction-sale.

A bidder at an auction sale has a sufficient legal interest to move the High Court under Art. 226 to challenge the auction sale if the authorities conducting the same have failed to act within the bounds of their authority. AIR 1954 S C 220 and AIR 1954 S C 592, Rel. on. I L R (1955) Madh Bha 266 : M B L J 1955 H C R) 590 : M B L R 1953 Cri 121 : AIR 1955 Madh B 161 (164) (Pt B) (Prs 29, 30) (DB).

——Art. 226—Application under Art. 226 for review of order of Magistrate under S. 8-B, of Press and Registration of Books Act—Petitioner not aggrieved —Petition, if granted likely to affect right of appeal of opposite party under S. 8-C—Petition not granted.

Where a person, who was neither printer nor publisher nor owner of any newspaper bearing a title similar to a certain other newspaper, made a plea to a High Court that it should, under Art. 226 of the Constitution, review the decision of a Sub Divisional Magistrate that the declaration of the latter newspaper did not offend Cl. II of S. 8 B of the Press and Registration of Books Act:

Held, that the petitioner not being a person, affected by printing and publication of the said newspaper, could not seek remedy under Art. 226. The object of the proviso to S. 6, and clause II of S. 8-B of the Act, permitting the cancellation of a declaration is clearly to prevent unfair competition between two newspapers published by different persons under the same name and title. The question of circulation of any paper for the purpose of securing advertisement is not a matter which can be taken into account in proceedings for authentication of a declaration or its cancellation.

Section 8 C, provides that any person aggrieved by an order of a Magistrate cancelling a declaration under S. 8 B, may prefer an appeal to the Appellate Board. The Magistrate to whom a writ of mandamus is issued for cancelling a declaration is bound to comply with it, and when pursuant to that direction he cancels that declaration, then his order would be open to appeal under S. 8 C of the Act. It would, therefore, be altogether improper for the High Court to issue any direction to the Magistrate asking him to refuse to authenticate a declaration under S. 6 or cancel a declaration under S. 8-B of the Act. 1965 M P L J 227 : 1965 Lab L J 479 : AIR 1965 Madh Pra 128 (131) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art 226—Applicability—Assuming that Sch. III, Para. 3 of Citizenship Rules (1956) is invalid, the individual directed by the notice under S. 3 of the Foreigners Act (1946) to remove himself from India can invoke the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 including a writ of prohibition. ILR (1960) Mad 697 : (1960) 2 Mad L J 290 : AIR 1961 Mad 129 (145) (Pt R) (Pr 56) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Life Insurance Corporation of India (Staff) Regulations 1956 — Dismissal of employee in violation of — Employee can apply under Art. 226 — (Obiter). AIR 1960 Mad 333 (335) (Pt B) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226—Petitioner registered as headman under S. 10, Madras Hereditary Village Offices Act—Respondent filing suit to set aside order and to get himself registered in his place—Respondent succeeding before first tribunal but failing before second tribunal—Revenue Board restoring order of first tribunal—Petitioner held had personal interest in applying under Art. 226—Judgment in W. P. No. 244 of 1952, Distinguished. (1953) 2 M L J 644 : 66 Mad L W 700 : AIR 1953 Mad 972 (973) (Pt C) (Pr 5).

——Arts. 226 and 32—Who can apply.

Powers under Arts. 32 and 226 can normally be invoked by one whose personal rights and interests are adversely affected by the impugned law or order —Road-side Government land settled by Chief Commissioner in excess of statutory powers and in violation of settlement rules upon respondent who constructing shops on it—Petitioner's right of free excess from public road to his homestead infringed — It is petitioner who has right to file writ petition—Administrator is not aggrieved party. AIR 1965 Manipur 39 (43, 45) (Pt E) (Prs 29, 51).

——Art. 226—Writ petition — Locus standi to maintain —Ordinarily petitioner has to make out personal interest except in the case of a writ of quo warranto strictly so called.

In India, unlike in England, there is nothing like a writ of right because, the issue of any type of writ, order or direction under Art. 226 is clearly a matter of discretion with the Court. The question therefore whether the petitioner has or has no locus standi to make the petitioner to seek the issue of a writ appropriate to the facts of his case is necessarily related to the nature of the relief he seeks. The only general proposition which can be stated on the question of locus standi of petitioners in writ petitions or petitions under Art. 226 of the Constitution is that ordinarily a petitioner will have to make out some personal interest which the law recognises as sufficient, unless having regard to the nature of the relief and particular facts and circumstances of the case the petitioner is merely in the position of an informer or a relator and the situation is such that it becomes the duty of the Court to act in public interest or to uphold the Constitution.

If the writ asked for is strictly a writ of quo warranto in respect of a public office, the petitioner need have no personal interest. If, however, the position or the office held by the respondent cannot be described as a public office the case will not be one for quo warranto in the strict sense but will be one only for some other type of appropriate writ, order or direction under Art. 226 of the Constitution, before getting which the petitioner will have to establish that he has some personal interest in the matter which the law recognises as sufficient. (1963) 2 Mys L J 383 : AIR 1964 Mys 159 (164, 165) (Pt C) (Prs 10, 13) (DB).

——Art. 226—Writ petition challenging validity of appointments to certain posts of readers made by Board of appointments of a University — Person who was one of the applicants for the post but who was not selected. has locus standi to maintain petition. (1963) 2 Mys L J 383 : A I R 1964 Mys 159 (166) (Pt E) (Prs 16, 17) (DB).

——Art 226—Municipalities— City of Bangalore Improvement Act (5 of 1945), S. 29 — Disposal of sites acquired under, by Board of Trustees— Validity of — By whom can be challenged— General challenge not permitted—Constitution of India, Art. 226. ('62) 40 Mys L J 313 (DB).

——Art. 226—Who can apply.

Only a person aggrieved can move the Court by a writ. No one except those whose rights are directly affected by a law can raise the question of the constitutionality of that law. A I R 1951 S C 41 : AIR 1951 Mys 14; AIR 1953 Hyd 227 and AIR 1951 All 1 (F B), Rel. on. 34 Mys L J 178 : ILR (1954) Mys 255 : AIR 1954 Mys 161 (161) (Pt A) (Pr 1) (DB).

——Art. 226—Courts not to pronounce upon vires of legislation unless matter is properly before it in case of controversy—Threat to rights of petitioner—Petitioner successfully establishing that import is illegal —Writ can be issued. (1955) 6 S T C 93 (Nag).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1958 S C 590].

——Art. 226—Who can apply — Member of Governing Body of College also holding office of Secretaryship —Term expiring on 1-5-1962—Writ petition filed by him before that date against order of Vice-Chancellor approving elections of respondents to the Governing body for next term — Stay order made by High Court restraining respondents from holding any meeting—Petitioner held continued to be member and Secretary even after expiry of his term, in view of stay order—He had locus standi to apply under Art. 226—Patna University Act (25 of 1951), Statute 13, Para 2 (2) (b) and (c). A I R 1963 Pat 394 (395, 396) (Prs 5, 8) (DB).

——Art. 226—Who can apply.

When any statute imposes a duty upon an authority in respect of any matter, any person, whose interest is affected adversely by a breach of such statutory duty, and if he is within the range of those persons to whom such authority owed statutory duty, is entitled to ask the court to issue a writ under article 226, so that the authority, who is clothed with such statutory powers, does not exceed those powers.

Where the petitioners, who were either intending bidders at the auction of tolls of a public ferry under the Bengal Ferries Act (1 of 1885) or those who actually offered bids at the subsequent auction, base their claim in a petition under Art. 226 on the breach of statutory obligation imposed upon the District Magistrate in the matter of settlement of the public ferry under the Act, there is sufficient legal interest vested in the petitioners which entitle them to maintain the application under Art. 226; AIR 1953 Pat 370 and AIR 1954 Pat 235, Rel. on. AIR 1955 Pat 483 and AIR 1954 S C 119 and AIR 1954 S C 493 and AIR 1954 SC 592, Ref. 1956 B L J R 592.

——Art. 226—Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) Act (6 of 1941) (as extended to Delhi), S. 5 — Consumer who was required to pay Sales Tax and had given undertaking for the same is an aggrieved party — Petition by such consumer is maintainable — Sales-tax — (Bengal Finance (Sales tax) Act 6 of 1941), S. 5).

Held, on facts that as the Sales-tax Authorities recognised the fact that the party who would be directly affected and consequently aggrieved would be the petitioner who would have to pay the tax from his own pocket and not the dealer who had been made responsible for payment of the tax under the Act. Therefore it was petitioner who aggrieved by being forced to make payment in respect of tax at rate at which that tax cannot be legally levied. As he could not resort to any other remedy, there was no reason or justification for declining to afford him relief in exercise of the extraordinary powers conferred by Art. 226 of the Constitution. AIR 1951 S C 41, AIR 1954 S C 119, AIR 1956 Pat 182, AIR 1961 Raj 150 and (1918) 1 K B 7, Foll. ('62) 64 Pun L R 827 : ILR (1962) 2 Punj 699 : (1963) 14 S T C 51.

——Art. 226— U. P. Entertainment and Betting Tax Act (8 of 1937) —Notice to petitioners by Entertainment Tax Officer appointed under the Act to pay entertainment tax on charges levied by them from persons using swimming pool owned by them—Notice is a serious threat to petitioners that their fundamental rights are about to be infringed — Preliminary objection to the petition under Art. 226 challenging validity of the notice on the ground that they should wait till proceedings under S. 5 of the Act were taken against them —Objection held not sustainable : A I R 1954 S C 403, Foll. ILR (1961) 1 Punj 66.

——Art. 226 —Motive —Relevancy — Land acquisition — Petitioners dissatisfied by amount of compensation and therefore applying for writ — Right to relief.

Even though petitioners are induced to challenge the acquisition or to assert their fundamental right to hold the property because they are dissatisfied by the amount of compensation offered to them by the Land Acquisition Collector, this motive will not and should not debar them to enforce their fundamental right by applying under Art. 226 if it is in fact infringed. 61 Punj L R 609 : I L R (1959) Punj 1665 : AIR 1959 Punj 544 (547) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Writ Petition— Who can apply—Mere licensee when could apply.

Where the petitioners who were alleged to be mere licensees of the lands in dispute but had created structures and shops, both Kacha and Pakka, on the said lands and rent paid by them had been accepted from them, even after the alleged period of license was over, were served with notices to remove the structures and vacate the land occupied by them within a month with a threat that if they were not removed the structures would be forcibly removed by the Government and it was argued that the petitioners being mere licensees had no right to invoke the extra-ordinary jurisdiction for the issuance of a writ.

Held, that the threat to demolish the structures certainly affected valuable rights of the petitioners which entitled them to secure a mandate from the Court. 1962 Raj L W 29 : ILR (1962) 12 Raj 39.

——Art. 226 — Refusal to renew permit for motor vehicle interfered with—Operator's fundamental right to carry on — Aggrieved operator can apply for writ. See Ibid, Art. 19 (1) (g). ILR (1961) 11 Raj 333.

——Art. 226—Right to apply.

A person whose licence to possess arms has been cancelled under S. 18 has a right to apply to the High Court under Art. 226. A I R 1952 S C 12, Rel. on. 1954 Cri L J 1672 : ILR (1954) 4 Raj 170 : A I R 1954 Raj 264 (266) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64 (a) — Introduction of two more buses by illegal order —Income of petitioners likely to suffer substantially— Petitioners were aggrieved persons. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64 (a). A I R 1953 Raj 193.

——Arts. 226 and 265 — Who can apply against illegal levy of tax.

Where an entertainment tax levied by the Municipal Board on the cinema-goers and collected by the proprietor of the cinema who is also responsible for paying it to the Board, is found to be illegal the proprietor can maintain an application under Art. 226, against the illegal levy, he being a person interested in the matter. AIR 1951 All 1 (FB), Dist. ILR (1953) 3 Raj 52 : 1953 Raj L W 335 : AIR 1953 Raj 180 (181) (Pt C) (Pr 7) (DB).

6 (g). Joint Hindu family.

——Art. 226 — Income tax recovery proceedings against Hindu undivided family — Disruption of family after assessment—Order recognizing disruption not passed—Family is deemed to continue as undivided family for purposes of Act—Continuance by legal fiction of existence of undivided family as an entity would enable aggrieved family to maintain writ petition for challenging orders passed in recovery proceedings. See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 25-A (3). A I R 1966 All 176.

6 (h). Taxing statute.

——Art. 226—Application, whether premature.

The notice under Bihar Sales Tax Act calling upon a company to forthwith get itself registered as a dealer and to submit a return and to deposit the tax in a treasury in Bihar, places upon it considerable hardship, harassment and liability which, if the Act is void under Art. 265 read with Art. 286 constitutes in praesenti an encroachment on and an infringement of its right which entitles it to immediately appeal to the appropriate Court for redress. A I R 1953 Pat 87, Reversed. Bengal Immunity Co., Ltd. v. State of Bihar, ILR 34 Pat 905 : (1955) 6 S T C 446 : (1955) 2 S C R 603 : (1955) S C J 672 : 1955 S C A 1140 : (1955) 2 M L J (SC) 168 : 1955 Andh W R (SC) 422 : A I R 1955 S C 661 (669) (Pt D) (Pr 7).

——Arts. 226, 265—Taxing Statutes—Point of hardship—Consideration of.

The point whether a particular tax is burdensome and whether it would cause hardship to the tax-payer cannot be decided by Courts, if the taxing statute is constitutional, and its legality cannot be questioned. A I R 1962 Andh Pra 415 (416) (Pt B) (Pr 15) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction — Petition challenging validity of taxing Act—Competency—Power of High Court to entertain—See Sales Tax — Andhra Pradesh General Sales-Tax Act, S. 19 (1) (f) (b). (1960) 1 Andh W R 374.

6 (i). Tax-payer and elector.

——Art. 226 — Who can apply — Right of voter— Though voter has no direct interest in election, he can move High Court for relief under Art. 226 against an order allowing an election petition under S. 12 (c) of the U. P. Panchayat Raj Act, as being interested in the result of the election and its propriety. AIR 1963 All 607 (607) (Pt B) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226—Madras District Municipalities Act (5 of 1920), R. 12 (1) (f) of the Rules made thereunder — Lease of buildings owned by Municipalities — Failure to hold public auction — Power of Government to direct Municipality to waive rule in individual cases — Petition at the instance of rate-payer to compel Municipality to hold public auction — Maintainability.

Held, there is no provision in the Madras Municipalities Act or in the Rules made thereunder which authorise the Government to give directions in individual cases abrogating the mandatory rule contained in R. 12 (1) (f) of the Rules made under the Madras District Municipalities Act. If the order of the Government is bad, what remains is the resolution of the Municipality resolving to lease out the Municipal Theatre by public auction. Section 22 of the Act imposes an obligation on the executive authority, namely, the Commissioner, to carry out the resolutions of the Municipal Council. Mandamus should, therefore, issue to nullify the order of the Government and to carry out the lawful resolution of the Municipal Council. The contention that the petitioner has no locus standi to maintain the application under Art. 226 of the Constitution and ask for a writ of mandamus cannot be accepted. He is not only a resident of the Municipality but is also a rate payer thereof and as such is interested in the conservation and proper application of the municipal funds. The petitioner's case is that if a public auction is held he wished to take part in it. The circumstances are sufficient to clothe the petitioner with an interest and a right to move the High Court to restrain a public body from acting in violation of statutory rules and misusing its powers, thereby causing detriment to public revenue. A I R 1949 Bom 229, Rel. on.; A I R 1953 Mad 94, Distinguished. (1963) 1 Andh L T 149 : (1963) 1 Andh W R 151 : A I R 1963 Andh Pra 212.

——Art. 226 — Exercise of jurisdiction under — Infraction of personal legal right must be proved.

It is the infraction of an individual and personal right which gives the petitioner a right to approach the High Court under Art. 226. The petitioner, thus, in the absence of any personal legal right which has been infracted cannot come to the High Court under Art 226. A I R 1962 S C 1044 Rel. on. I L R (1963) 15 Assam 29 : A I R 1963 Assam 168 (170) (Pt C) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Art. 226—Writ of certiorari—Who can apply.

Where an order of the subordinate Court or Tribunal is without jurisdiction or apparently erroneous, the attention of the Court may be drawn to the matter by any individual interested therein in praying for a writ of certiorari and the High Court if satisfied may grant the writ in question and remove or demolish the erroneous record. Thus, even when the petitioner an elector is not even a party to the election having been called in question by one of the unsuccessful candidates at the election and the person directly affected by the order of the Tribunal who has made no complaint against the said order, yet an application for a writ of certiorari by him will lie. ILR (1955) 7 Assam 159 : A I R 1955 Assam 163 (169, 170) (Pt F) (Prs 14, 15) (DB).

——Art. 226—Who can apply — Municipal Corporation — Order of Mayor likely to cause financial loss to or not likely to be in interest of Corporation—Competency of rate payer to question legality of Mayor's orders under Art 226

A rate payer has sufficient interest to complain against any action of the Mayor or Corporation which according to him would cause financial loss to the Corporation or would not be in the interest of the Corporation. A rate-payer is not a mere stranger. He is directly interested in the moneys which can be realised or are realisable under the Act for being credited in the municipal fund and in the proper application of the fund The rate payer's interest may be small but it is none the less real and sufficient to entitle him to question the action of the Corporation or the Mayor. His right to do so does not depend on the question whether the action of the Mayor or the Corporation has or has not actually resulted in any loss to the Corporation. If he is a rate payer and if according to him the action taken is not in the interest of the Corporation, then he is entitled to complain against it by applying for a writ under Art 226. A I R 1925 Cal 48, Dissent from.; A I R 1949 Bom 229 and A I R 1960 Cal 102, Foll. 1961 M P L J 1410 : 1962 M P C 133 : I L R (1963) Madh Pra 13.

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari — Powers of High Court - Who can apply—Nomination of members to Legislature by Governor — Right of a person either as legislator or as citizen to apply for writ — Infringement of mere potitical rights no ground for issue of writ.

It is not the province of the High Court to interfere either suo motu or at the instance of any person whenever there is any disregard or violation of any of the provisions of the Constitution. Its power under Art. 226 of the Constitution can only be invoked at the instance of a person who has a personal grievance against any act of the State in its executive capacity which inflicts a legal injury on him since the right which is the foundation of a petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution or a corresponding provision, is a personal and individual right. 63 Mad L W 89 (Journal) and AIR 1951 S C 41, Rel. on.

A person either as a member of the legislature or a citizen has no such personal and direct interest in the matter of the nomination of a member to legislature as to enable him to invoke the provisions of Art. 226 of the Constitution.

As a remote consequence of the nomination, it may be that he had been deprived of the opportunity, along with the other members of his party in the legislature, of forming the ministry and having the nomination to the legislature made on the advice of that ministry. But where that cannot be said to affect his personal rights even in an indirect manner, he cannot question the validity of nomination by an application under Art. 226:

His political rights if any cannot come into play in a Court of law unless such rights have the character of a legal right. Otherwise any discussion of such rights would be outside the scope of judicial decision. (1952) 2 Mad L J 671 : AIR 1953 Mad 94 (95, 96) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 4, 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Who ann apply — Public, right of — Municipal Board — Order passed by Collector suspending resolutions of Board concerning civic amenities — Tax payers have right to agitate under Art. 226 against unauthorised interference with functioning of Board—Municipal Board not necessary party — Rajasthan Municipalities Act (38 of 1959), S 285.

There are a number of duties cast by the Rajasthan Municipalities Act, 1959, on the Municipal Board. Whoever interferes in the performance of these duties can also be made answerable to the electors and rate-payers who have a right to see that the Board functions in accordance with the law. Hence, the electors and rate payers of a municipal board have every right to invoke the aid of the Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution against any unauthorised interference with the proper functioning of the Board in providing for their civic amenities.

To such a petition the Municipal Board is not a necessary party. AIR 1951 S C 41, Disting. 1961 Raj L W 266 : ILR (1961) 11 Raj 273.

6 (j). Constitutionality of law, right to question.

● ——Art. 226—Validity of Act Who can dispute—Statute dealing with rights arising out of contract—Right to challenge—Validity.

It is no doubt true that a question as to the constitutionality of a statute can be raised only by a person who is aggrieved by it; but where the statute deals with rights arising out of contract, that presupposes the existence of at least two parties with mutual rights and obligations. The fact is that a statute which operates on a contract must affect the rights of all the parties to the contract and if it is bad as regards one of them, it should be held to be bad as regards the others as well. Either party can therefore, challenge its validity by an application for a writ. Bombay Dyeing & Manufacturing Co. Ltd. v. The State of Bombay, 1958 SCA 254 : (1958) 1 Lab L J 778 : 1958 S C J 620 : 60 Bom L R 731 : 1958 S C R 1122: AIR 1958 S C 328 (339) (Pt D) (Pr 28).

——Art. 226—Who can apply.

No one except those whose rights are directly affected by a law can raise the question of the constitutionality of that law. AIR 1956 Ajmer 25 (27) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226 and Part III, Art. 13—Civil P. C (1908), S. 113 —Constitutional invalidity of Act —Who will not be permitted to raise plea in appeal — (Madras Hereditary Village Offices Act (3 of 1895), S 6 (1).) See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 113. AIR 1958 Andh Pra 322.

——Art. 226—Right to apply—Constitutionality of law—Who can challenge.

The issue of the constitutionality of a law cannot be allowed to be raised at the instance of a person whose rights are not directly affected by the law which he impugns. AIR 1958 Andh Pra 252 (253) (Pt C) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Right to apply—Personal interest to maintain application.

As a rule of guidance applicable to ordinary cases, a person, in order to maintain an application under Art. 226, must be able to specify any right be it proprietary right or personal right, which has been infringed by the passing of an Act. But, in extraordinary cases, where, for instance an Act is passed by the Parliament or by a Legislature in excess of its constitutional power reshaping the map of India, it is difficult to say that a citizen of India, who lived his lifetime as a permanent resident of one of the States abolished, has no personal interest to maintain an application. (1957) 2 Andh W R 43 : ILR (1957) Andh Pra 345 : AIR 1957 Andh Pra 734 (739) (Pt C) (Pr 16) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Requisitioning and Acquisition of Immovable Property Act (30 of 1952), S. 8 (3) — Constitutional validity of provision of Act—Constitutional objection if cannot be sustained in limine because no assessment has been made by arbitrator. See Requisitioning and Acquisition of Immovable Property Act (30 of 1952), S 8 (3). 67 Bom L R 85 : 1965 Mah L J 271 : AIR 1966 Bom 36 (DB).

● ——Arts. 226, 29, 30—Statute contravening provisions of Arts. 29 and 30 — Person whose rights as distinct from infringements of fundamental rights are affected can maintain petition under Art. 226—Threat to right is sufficient — Actual infringement not necessary.

If an Act is inconsistent with the provisions of Arts. 29 (1) and 30 (1), it is bad because it is violative of them. It is not necessary for a petitioner to establish that his fundamental right is affected or infringed in order to be able to maintain a petition under Art. 226, challenging the constitutionality of an Act which contravenes the provisions of Part III of the Constitution. It would be sufficient that it causes or threatens injury to him.

As a result of the University Statutes 207, 208 and 209 and Ss. 4 (27), 5 and 38-A of the Gujarat University Act and for no other reason the petitioner who wants his son to be instructed in English language must be held to be a person whose interests are affected and to whose right and liberty, injury is caused and therefore is a person having sufficient interest to maintain the petition challenging the validity of the impugned provisions of the Act which violates the fundamental rights of minorities and is therefore void. It would be sufficient if he can show from an examination of the provisions of the impugned Act that the effect or the real object or purpose is such that it is violative of the provisions of Art. 29 (1) or 30 (1). (1924) 69 Law Ed. 1070 and (1922) 67 Law Ed. 1042 and AIR 1954 S C 561 and AIR 1951 S C 226 and (1952) 97 Law Ed. 1586 and AIR 1954 S C 119, Rel. on. Shri Krishna Ranganath Mudholkar v. Gujarat University, (1962) 3 Guj L R 204 : AIR 1962 Guj 83 (120, 121, 122) (Pt C) (Prs 61, 62) (FB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1963 S C 708].

——Art. 226—Validity of law — Right to question—Person asking for relief under particular provisions —He cannot challenge their validity. See Ibid, Article 13. AIR 1962 Madh Pra 128 (DB).

——Arts. 226 & 246 — Tax, meaning of — Tax not a levy for service—M. P. Motor Vehicles (Taxation of Passengers) Act, 1959, was not ultra vires the State legislature.

A petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution was filed for declaration that the Madhya Pradesh Motor Vehicles (Taxation of Passengers) Act, 1959 (Act No. 17 of 1959), was ultra vires.

Held that section 3 of the Act was its charging section. Under Entry 56 in List II of the Schedule VII of the Constitution read with Art. 246 thereof the State Legislature had been permitted to levy 'taxes on goods and passengers carried by road or on inland water ways.' The tax imposed by the Act would be valid provided it was 'a tax on passengers carried by road' within the meaning of the aforesaid entry. It was not the name of the tax but its real nature its pith and substance which must determine into what category it falls. (AIR 1945 P C 98 Rel. on.)

A tax was a compulsory exaction of money by public authority for public purposes enforceable by law and was not payment for services rendered. It would thus be apparent that a tax by a State by its very nature did connote that it was imposed in the common interest of all. It could not be said that the import in question was not commensurate with the purposes for which the tax was levied nor that it substantially impeded or was intended to impede the freedom of trade, commerce and intercourse. The impugned Act could not be declared unconstitutional on the ground that it contravened the provisions of Arts. 301 and 304 of the Constitution. The Act only imposed reasonable restrictions in the interest of the general public on its exercise of the right conferred on it by Article 19 (1) (g) of the Constitution. 1962 M P L J (Notes) 79.

——Art. 226—Cantonments Act (1924), S. 210 — Section does not impose unreasonable restriction to carry on trade and is not invalid— Refusal to grant licence to carry on trade in charcoal — Absence of provision to give reasons or for appeal or for opportunity to be heard does not make provisions invalid — Natural justice requires hearing of applicant — No such opportunity given—Order quashed. See Cantonments Act (1924), S. 210. AIR 1961 Madh Pra 361 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 245—Scope of inquiry — Question relating to validity of statute.

In the normal course, High Court would refrain from investigating the alleged invalidity of a statutory provision when the questions of fact on which such a contention could be based have not been concluded. (1956) 2 M L J 83 : (1956) 29 I T R 246 : ILR (1956) Mad 1154 : A I R 1956 Mad 387 (387, 388) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Who can apply— Right to question constitutionality of law.

Where the petitioner knew when he applied for a permit for a stage carriage and when he obtained it that the condition imposed by R. 160-B of the Rules framed under S. 68, Motor Vehicles Act, was one of the conditions of the permit and had the advantage of the permit since obtaining it and still retained the advantage it is not open to him to challenge the validity of that condition of the permit in the proceedings under Art. 226 of the Constitution. 1955 Mad W N 910 : (1956) 1 M L J 179 : 69 Mad L W 1051 : ILR (1956) Mad 1272 : A I R 1956 Mad 349 (349, 350) (Pt A) (Pr 2).

——Art. 226—Right to form association—Extent of—Disciplinary action for contravention of R 16 of Madras Government Servants Conduct Rules — Petition under Art. 226 — Validity of R. 16— See Ibid, Art. 19 (1) (c). AIR 1955 Mad 468.

——Arts. 226 and 19 (g) - Petition under, maintainability — Fundamental right threatened (Madras Commercial Crops Markets Act (20 of 1933))

Where the petitioners contend that the Madras Commercial Crops Market Act has become void under the Constitution and the notices issued by the Marketing Committee calling upon them to obtain licences were a threat to the exercise by them of their fundamental right to trade, the petitions are maintainable under Art. 226. AIR 1952 S C 115 and AIR 1953 S C 252, Rel. on, (1954) 1 M L J 117 : A I R 1954 Mad 621 (625) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in A I R 1959 S C 300].

——Art. 226 — Municipalities — City of Bangalore Improvement Act (5 of 1945), S. 29 — Disposal of sites acquired under, by Board of Trustees— Validity of—By whom can be challenged— General challenge not permitted — Municipalities — City of Bangalore Improvement Act (5 of 1945), S. 29. ('62) 40 Mys L J 313 (DB).

■ ——Art. 226 — 'Any other purpose' — Scope of authority—Constitutionality of legislation — Examination of, without any injury.

Per Hidayatullah J.—It is true that Art. 226 gives the power not only for the enforcement of fundamental rights but also for 'any other purpose'. The words 'any other purpose' are of very wide significance, but it cannot be postulated that the High Courts were given unlimited power to do anything by their writs, orders or directions. Some limitations must be placed by the High Court on its own powers. Thus, a petition for the examination of the constitutionality of an Act does not lie even under the wide powers conferred by Art. 226. In no country is the constitutionality of a statute examined on a mere petition to a superior Court. In other words advisory opinions or declaratory judgments on the constitutionality of legislation cannot be given apart from some concrete injury or controversy. (Procedure in England Australia, Canada and U.S.A. considered and limitations on the power of Court stated.) Sheoshankar v. State Government of Madhya Pradesh, 52 Cri L J 1140 : ILR (1951) Nag 646 : A I R 1951 Nag 58 (66, 69) (Pt C) (Prs 43, 44, 61) (FB).

——Art. 226—Bihar Sales Tax Act (9 of 1959), S. 20-A —Validity—Dealer has no right to challenge its validity on ground of violation of Art. 19 (1) (f) of the Constitution — S. 20 A is valid and intra vires the State Legislature. See Ibid, Art. 19 (1) (f). AIR 1966 Pat 54 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Municipalities — Bihar and Orissa Municipal Act (1922), S. 98 — Validity. See Municipalities — Bihar and Orissa Municipal Act (7 of 1922), S. 98. AIR 1953 Pat 117.

——Art. 226—Sales Tax—Bihar Sales Tax Act (1947) —S. 2 (c) — Validity —(Interpretation of statutes) — (Civil P. C. (1908), Pre.) See Sales-tax — Bihar Sales Tax Act (19 of 1947), S. 2 (c). AIR 1953 Pat 87.

[Reversed in AIR 1955 S C 661]

——Art. 226:— Who can apply — Right to question constitutionality of law — (Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 16).

The validity of a statute can be impugned only by a person whose rights have been or are about to be prejudicially affected by the application or enforcement of the statute. One who invokes the power of the Court to declare an Act of the Legislature to be unconstitutional must be able to show not only that the statute is invalid but that he has sustained, or is in immediate danger of sustaining, some direct injury as the result of its enforcement. One who does not belong to the class that might be injured by a statute cannot raise the question of its invalidity. Where, therefore, the Central Government issues a certificate under S. 16, Administration of Evacuee Property Act, a displaced person from West Pakistan cannot be said to have been prejudicially affected thereby so as to entitle him to challenge the validity of that section by applying for the issuance of a writ. (1870) 5 Q B 466; (1901) 2 K B 157 and (1921) 1 K B 248, Disting. ILR (1955) Punj 963 : 57 Punj L R 475 : A I R 1956 Punj 19 (20, 21) (Prs 4, 6) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 23 — Locus standi to challenge validity of Act — [Punjab Passengers and Goods Taxation Act (16 of 1952), Ss. 3 (3) and 4].

A statute may be assailed only by a person relying on an alleged invasion of his own constitutional rights. The invasion must affect his interests adversely and this interest must be a genuine proprietary interest and not merely a remote interest. Under the Punjab Act 16 of 1952 the tax is to be paid not by the petitioners who are applying their vehicles on hire but by the passengers who are carried or by the owners of the goods which are transported. The petition challenging the validity of the Act is, therefore incompetent. (1955) 6 S T C (Sup) 1 : ILR (1955) Punj 58 : A I R 1954 Punj 264 (265) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

7. Alternative remedy.

(a) Adequate and prompt.
(b) Appeal or revision.
(c) Appeal or revision or suit, when no adequate remedy.
(d) Burden as to.
(e) Contractual rights.
(f) Costly or ineffective.
(g) Fundamental rights, infringement of.
(h) General rule applies to othe rections, orders and writs.
(i) Special responsibility of Supreme Court.
(j) Inconvenience or delay in getting redress.
(k) Matter pending before ordinary Court or tribunal.
(l) Matters to be taken into consideration.
(m) Patent assumption of jurisdiction or want of jnrisdiction or flagrant disregard to principles of law.
(n) Disregard of principles of natural justice.
(o) Question of great constitutional or public importance.
(p) Sales tax, illegal taxation.
(q) Specific remedy provided.
(r) Statute providing self-contained machinery.
(s) Suit, remedy of.
(t) Other remedy barred, or exhausted or not taken or not available.

7. Alternative remedy.

■ ——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Discretion of High Court to grant relief under Art. 226 — Interference by Supreme Court. See Ibid, Art. 136. AIR 1965 S C 1321.

■ ——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — The High Court has a discretion to grant relief under Art. 226, even if there are other alternative statutory remedies. Collector of Monghyr v. Keshav Prasad Goenka, (1962) 2 S C A 708 : (1963) 1 S C R 98 : I L R 42 Pat 112 : 1962 B L J R 863 : A I R 1962 S C 1694 (1703) (Pt G) (Pr 20).

■ ——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Issue of writ. See Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 7. AIR 1961 S C 1087.

■ ——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Issue of writ.

The jurisdiction of the High Court to issue writs against orders of the Tribunal is undoubted; but then, it is well settled that where there is another remedy provided, the Court may properly exercise its discretion in declining to interfere under Art. 226. Veluswami Thevar v. Raja Nainar, 1959 S C A 424 : (1959) 2 Mad L J (SC) 48 : (1959) 2 Andh W R (SC)

48 : 1959 S C J 751 : (1959) Supp 1 S C R 623 : AIR 1959 S C 422 (429) (Pt D) (Pr 18).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — It will not ordinarily be issued where petitioner has adequate legal remedy.

Mandamus is a supplementary remedy of which use is made where a person has a legal right and no other appropriate redress to prevent a failure of justice. Mandamus, will not, therefore, ordinarily issue where the petitioner has an adequate legal remedy. The matter lies however within the discretion of the Court. A I R 1954 All 393, Foll. A I R 1956 Ajmer 25 (27) (Pt C) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226 — Adequacy of alternate remedy — Meaning of remedy.

When the question is of adequacy of alternate remedy against the impugned order, it means the final remedy and not any interim remedy that may be given for the time being. Gyan Chand Bhatia v. Rent Control and Eviction Officer, Lucknow, 1965 All L J 924 : 1965 All W R (HC) 676 : AIR 1966 All 57 (62) (Pr 21) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Petitioner's land attached for default to pay revenue dues — Auction sale on 22-11-1958 — Balance of 75 per cent. of purchase money not deposited by auction purchaser till 8-6-1959 — Sale confirmed on 10-7-1959 — Held, sale was a nullity due to non-payment of balance within 15 days of sale — Confirmation of invalid sale was also invalid — There being no alternative remedy to petitioner, writ jurisdiction of High Court would be appropriate forum for ventilating grievance particularly as the only relief would be a re-auction of property. 1965 All L J 277.

——Art. 226 — Alternative remedy — Provision for revision by State Government under S. 7-F of U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act against Rent Controller's Order confers no right to have mistake corrected — Remedy, held, does not amount to alternative remedy — Writ jurisdiction can be exercised. 1965 All L J 211.

[Overruled in AIR 1966 All 57 (FB).]

——Art. 226—Alternative remedy—Mala fides—Proceeding under S. 34, Income-tax Act—Writ petition by assessee—Interim order by High Court directing that no assessment in respect of escaped income be passed upon that proceeding — Another assessment proceeding under S. 34 for another year — Assessment in respect of escaped income — Writ petition against — Income-tax Officer held did not act mala fide — Defence of existence of alternative remedy can be raised at final hearing of writ petition — Relief held could not be granted only because time for appealing against assessment had expired — Income-tax Act (1922), S. 34.

In a proceeding initiated under S. 34, Income tax Act, the Income-tax Officer, despite the objection by the assessee that he had no jurisdiction to initiate proceedings under S. 34 in respect of the assessment year 1950-51, continued the proceeding under S. 34; and this led to the assessee filing a writ petition wherein an interim order was issued directing that no assessment order be passed in respect of escaped income upon that proceeding. Thereupon the Income-tax Officer turned his attention to the pending assessment proceeding, also under S. 34, for the assessment year 1949-50 and included a sum of Rs. two lacs, which was sought to be taxed as escaped income in 1950-51 assessment year. The assessee for the second time filed a writ petition wherein it was urged that the existence of an alternative remedy could be no bar when the principal allegation upon which the petition was founded was that the Income-tax Officer had acted mala fide in assessing the assessee in order to circumvent the interim order passed by the High Court.

Held that there was no sufficient material before the High Court to justify the finding that the Income-tax Officer acted mala fide. The interim order issued by the High Court in the earlier petition merely restrained the Income-tax Officer from making an assessment order in the proceedings for the assessment year 1950-51, and did not prohibit him from completing the assessment of the year 1949-50. There was no question here of circumventing or by-passing the interim order of the High Court, which related to the assessment year 1950-51. Even assuming that the effect of the interim order was to restrain the Income tax Officer from at all assessing the sum of Rs. two lacs, the Income-tax Officer could not be said to have acted mala fide. To substantiate the charge of mala fide it was necessary for the assessee to show that the sum of Rs. two laes could not have been assessed to tax at all by the Income-tax Officer for the assessment year 1949-50 and that it was not possible for him to have reasonably taken the view that the sum was assessable in that assessment year. The assessee would only succeed if he was able to establish that the act of the Income-tax Officer in assessing the sum of Rs. two lacs for the assessment year 1949-50 was so patently unreasonable, arbitrary and perverse that the Court could not but conclude that he was acting mala fide. AIR 1957 S.C 354, Disting. Held further that the assessee when he filed the petition, was aware that there was an alternative remedy available to him and that the objection as to the existence of that remedy could be raised both at the stage when the petition was heard in admission and also subsequently upon its final hearing. Merely because the petition had been admitted did not deprive the Income-tax authorities of raising the objection as to the existence of an alternative remedy at any time after the admission of the petition. It was a risk which the assessee took when he filed the petition and which risk he faced throughout the pendency of the petition. It was, therefore, not possible to grant relief in this case only, because the period of limitation for appealing against the assessment order had expired. (1965) 1 I T J 68 : (1966) 59 I T R 141 (All).

——Art. 226—Writ of prohibition—Another remedy open —Petitioner is not entitled to a writ. (1964) 1 Lab L J 724 : I L R (1964) 1 All 560 : 1964 All L J 42 : AIR 1964 All 328 (328, 329) (Pt B) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art 226—Existence of alternate remedy — Exercise of jurisdiction under Arts. 227 and 226. See Ibid, Art. 227. AIR 1963 All 280.

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Existence of alternative remedy is no bar — Income-tax Act (1922), Ss. 33B (2), 26A.

Where a writ of certiorari is concerned, the existence of an alternative remedy can be no bar. In any case the existence of an alternative remedy is only one of the matters to be taken into consideration by the High Court in exercising its discretion under Art. 226. Alternative remedy of revision to the Commissioner under S. 33-B (2) of the Income-tax Act, against the order of I.-T. Officer cancelling the registration certificate of the assessee firm, held no bar to the grant of the writ of certiorari. (1963) 47 I TR 493 (All).

——Art. 226——Writ—Alternative remedy open—No bar to issuance of writ. AIR 1961 S C 1615, Foll. (1962) 13 S T C 302 (All).

——Art. 226—U. P. Large Land Holdings Tax Act (31 of 1957), S. 16—Rectification — Alternative remedy-See U. P. Large Land Holdings Tax Act (31 of 1957), S. 16. 1962 All W R (H C) 57.

——Art. 226—Alternative remedy—Not an absolute bar to grant of relief by way of writ.

The practice of not granting relief in writ proceedings when an alternative remedy exists, is based on the self discipline of the High Court and is not to be rigidly applied in every case. A I R 1958 S C 86 and AIR 1952 All 836, Rel. on. (1962) 1 Lab L J 7 : (1961) 3 Fac L R 25 (All).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Issue of writ. See Ibid, Art 311. A I R 1961 All 502.

——Art 226 Other remedy open—Writ petition—Competency. See Ibid. Art. 19 (1) (F). 1960 Cri L J 867 : AIR 1960 All 402.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Interference.

Ordinarily, the High Court will decline to lend it extraordinary powers under Art. 226 in any case where an alternative remedy existed but has not been pursued but this is a rule of self discipline and in appropriate cases the Court will, notwithstanding the existence of any alternative remedy, extend its assistance ILR (1959) 1 All 787 : AIR 1960 All 353 (358) (Pt A) (Pr 28) (DB).

—— Art. 226—Other remedy open—Issue of writ.

Normally the High Court is hesitant in interfering with proceedings before authorities specially entrusted with deciding those proceedings by issue of a writ of certiorari and the Court refrains from doing so if the Court is of the opinion that the alternative remedy is suitable and convenient. The considerations, however, are different where the principal writ sought is a writ of prohibition. (1960) 39 ITR 265 : ILR (1959) 2 All 152 : AIR 1960 All 97 (103) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Mandamus—Alternative remedy — If bar to issue.

It is a well established rule that a writ of mandamus will be refused if there is an alternative remedy AIR 1958 S C 86, Foll. But quite apart from the question whether or not the existence of an alternative remedy is an absolute bar to the issue of a writ of mandamus, it is well known that normally a Court would not be justified in issuing it when there is a clear alternative remedy and when there is no complaint of the breach of a fundamental right. AIR 1960 All 72 (78, 79) (Pt D) (Prs 15, 17).

——Art. 226—Petitioner having equally efficacious remedy open—Petition not maintainable. 1959 All L J 514 : 1959 All W R (HC) 380 : ILR (1959) All 529: AIR 1959 All 460 (462, 463) (Pt B) (Prs 13, 16).

—— Art. 226—Other remedy open.

It is well known that the relief contemplated by Art. 226 is discretionary and is refused if ordinary remedy of approaching the Courts is open to the petitioner. 1957 All W R (H C) 268 : AIR 1957 All 505 (516, 517) (Pt J) (Pr 19) (DB).

——Art 226—Other remedy open—Exercise of discretion by High Court.

There may be considerations on which the High Court may exercise its discretion in favour of the petitioner even though there is an alternative remedy available to him. AIR 1956 All 564 (568) (Pt C) (Pr 12) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1963 S C 799.]

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—High Court will not give any relief to the petitioner. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 6046.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open. See U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947), S. 85. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 1175.

——Art. 226—Another remedy available—Powers of High Court See U. P District Boards Act (10 of 1922), S. 114. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 172 (DB).

——Art. 226—Mandamus—Another remedy open.

Mandamus is a supplementary remedy, of which use is made where a person has a legal right and no other appropriate redresss to prevent a failure of justice. Mandamus will not, therefore, ordinarily issue where the petitioner has an adequate legal remedy. The writ will be granted provided the circumstances are such in other respects as to warrant the granting of the writ. ILR (1954) 1 All 582 : AIR 1954 All 393 (399) (Pt H) (Pr 28) (DB).

——Art 226—Issue of writ—Other remedy open.

The power to issue writ vested in the High Court under Art. 226 shall not be exercised in cases where a party has adequate or specific remedy available to it. 1953 All L J 125 : AIR 1953 All 399 (400) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other adequate and specific remedy open to applicant—Application will not be entertained. 1950 A L J 767 (FB) : 1951 A L J 576 (FB), Foll. 1952 All L J 733 : 1953 A I W R (HC) 113 : AIR 1953 All 109 (110) (Prs 2, 3) (DB).

——Art. 226—Powers under—When exercised.

Powers under Art. 226 to grant a writ of mandamus not to enforce a particular decree or order or to make a certain declaration should not be used when the applicant has another equally efficacious remedy available to him. I L R (1953) 2 All 849 : 1952 R D (H C) 4 (2): 1952 All W R (HC) 139 : AIR 1952 All 697 (697) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226—Scope of powers under.

Art. 226 is not intended to give an alternative easy remedy to enable a person to move the High Court instead of seeking his ordinary remedy under the law. The power under Art. 226 would be sparingly used by the High Court and only in those exceptional cases where there is no adequate remedy and an application under Art. 226 is the only convenient, beneficial and effectual means of getting redress. An application under Art. 226 for a writ in the nature of mandamus can be filed only if it is established that the opposite parties had refused to do their duty when called upon to do so.

The further power given to the Court under Art. 226 to issue directions and orders is clearly intended to enable the Court to secure inter alia the enforcement of any of the rights conferred by Part III of the Constitution in those cases in which the circumstances do not justify the grant of one or more of the five named writs or where such remedy would not be appropriate. The Court's power in such cases to issue directions or orders or writs should be exercised with caution and circumspection and ordinarily only in those cases where grave injustice may otherwise ensue and no other remedy equally convenient, beneficial and effectual is available. Motilal v. State of Uttar Pradesh, ILR (1951) 1 All 269 : AIR 1951 All 257 (265, 284, 285) (Pt J) (Prs 35, 134) (FB).

——Art. 226—Scope of powers under — When to be exercised.

Art. 226 of the Constitution was not intended to provide an alternative method of redress to the normal process of a decision in an action brought in the usual Courts established by law. The powers under this Article should be sparingly used and only in those clear cases where the rights of a person have been seriously infringed and he has no other adequate and specific remedy available to him. Indian Sugar Mills, Ltd. v. Secretary to Government, U. P., ILR (1952) 1 All 188 : 1950 A L J 767 : AIR 1951 All 1 (3) (Pt A) (Pr 11) (FB).

——Art 226—Other remedy open — If bar to issue of writ. See Estate Duty Act (1953), Ss. 3 (1) (a), 5 and 6. AIR 1962 Andh Pra 107.

——Art. 226 —Other remedy open. See Income Tax Act (1922), S. 46 (2), Proviso. A I R 1960 Andh Pra 525.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

It is true that the Courts are reluctant to interfere by certiorari, where an alternative remedy exists. But it is equally true that the existence of such a remedy does not oust the jurisdiction of the Court to issue the writ in appropriate cases. It is a matter of discretion whether any particular case is fit for granting the relief or relegating the party to his ordinary remedy of suit. (1957) 2 Andh W R 123 : (1957) M L J (Cr) 376 : ILR (1957) An Pra 35 : A I R 1958 Andh Pra 140 (141, 142) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226— Other remedy open — Mandamus — Issue of.

In the matter of the issue of mandamus, ordinarily, the High Court will not issue the writ unless the petitioner has one or other of the rights mentioned in S. 45 of the Specific Relief Act and the public body is doing or forbearing to do an act which is enjoined to do or not to do under. The High Court also will not ordinarily issue a writ if the petitioner has another effective remedy and particularly when that remedy has been availed of. There is no provision of the Madras Co-operative Societies Act or the rules made thereunder which compels the Bank not to hold election of the office bearers if there was a dispute in regard to he election of one or more of the Directors. I L R (1956) Andhra 294.

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Issue of writ.

Even when an alternative remedy is available, the jurisdiction under Art. 226 may be exercised in appropriate cases. AIR 1954 S C 403 Foll. (1957) 2 Lab L J 238 : AIR 1956 Andhra 203 (208) (Pt E) (Pr 22).

——Art. 226—Assam Co-operative Societies Act 1949 (1 of 1950), S 36 — Alternative remedy — Order not complying with S. 36, Assam Co-operative Societies Act —Order is not one under Act —Question of existance of adequate remedy does not arise.

It cannot be said that in every case where the petitioner has an alternative remedy to go up in appeal even though the order may be held to be without jurisdiction, the High Court will not exercise its discretion under article 226. AIR 1961 S C 609, Ref. to.

An appeal can lie against an order under the Act. If the order does not comply with the provisions of section 36 of the Act it is not an order under the Act and thus the question of the adequate remedy being available to the petitioner does not arise in such a case. AIR 1961 S C 372, Disting. ILR (1962) 14 Assam 231.

——Arts. 226 227—Other remedy.

It is not an absolute rule that in all cases where there is an alternative remedy available, the High Court will not exercise its powers under Art. 227 of the Constitution. It is not desirable for this court to exercise its powers in those cases but that is not an absolute bar. There may be cases where the alternative remedy may not be equally efficacious and the High Court may find it necessary to interfere under Art. 227 or under Art. 226. AIR 1958 Assam 77 (79) (Pt C) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226—Powers of High Court—When may be invoked.

The article is not intended to provide an additional or an alternative remedy where another effective remedy is available, particularly when an inquiry into facts is involved. The extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court under the article may be invoked in cases where no adequate remedy is available to the aggrieved party and application of Art. 226 alone affords a convenient and effective mode of redress. 3 F J R 195 : I L R (1951) 3 Assam 147 : A I R 1951 Assam 96 (101) (Pt F) (Pr 25) (DB).

——Art. 226—Another remedy being available writ petition will not lie. See M. P. Land Revenue Code (II of 1955), S. 228. 1962 Nag L J 446 : AIR 1963 Bom 117 (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open —Issue of writ in exercise of discretion — Interference in appeal. I L R (1961) Bom 299 : 62 Bom L R 1030 : AIR 1961 Bom 234 (235, 236) (Pt A) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Issue of writ.

It cannot be contended that when the Income-tax Act provides a particular machinery the aggrieved party can challenge a threat to assessment only by means of that machinery. A I R 1951 S C 23 Foll. 58 Bom L R 184 : (1956) 29 I T R 856 : I L R (1956) Bom 374 : A I.R 1956 Bom 530 (534) (Pt C) (Pr 10) (DB).

[Reversed an another point in AIR 1963 S C 1356].

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Exercise of jurisdiction under Art. 226 is discretionary.

If a citizen can obtain equally adequate, equally efficacious and equally prompt remedy in ordinary Courts of Law, ordinary High Court would not exercise its discretion in his favour under Art. 226—AIR 1951 All 1, 56 Cal W N 264 Referred—Held alternative remedy open to petitioner — Exercise of special jurisdiction under Art. 226 refused. 55 Bom L R 77 : ILR (1953) Bom 614 : A I R 1953 Bom 195 (195, 196) (Prs 4, 6) (DB).

——Arts 226, 227—Another remedy open—Remedy under Art. 227.

In order that a petition for a writ of certiorari would not lie, the petitioner must have a specific legal remedy, and specific legal remedy in this context can only mean that he must have a right to approach a Court and he must have a right to a remedy if his case was just. Article 227 only deals with the power of the High Court and not with the rights of a litigant. A litigant may approach the High Court, but he has no right to do so, nor has he a right to a remedy because the High Court may refuse a remedy under Art. 227. Therefore the mere power of superintendence conferred upon the High Court does not disentitle a petitioner seeking a writ of certiorari from coming to the High Court and asking for that writ. It cannot be said under the circumstances of the case that he had an alternative specific legal remedy open to him which he should have availed of before he asked for a prerogative writ. 53 Bom L R 674 : ILR (1952) Bom 864 : A I R 1951 Bom 423 (426) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Issue of writ of certiorari

There is no rule with regard to certiorari as there is with mandamus, that it will lie only where there is no other equally effective remedy. Provided the requisite grounds exist, certiorari will lie although a right of appeal has been conferred by statute. This, of course, does not mean that if the aggrieved party has another and an adequate remedy, it should not be taken into consideration. A I R 1958 S C 86, Rel. on. ('58) 62 Cal W N 397.

——Art. 226—Another remedy open.

An alternative remedy is not an absolute bar to the making of the order under Art. 226 of the Constitution. In an appropriate case the High Court has power to exercise its jurisdiction. 60 Cal W N 933 : (1957) 1 Lab L J 494 : AIR 1956 Cal 662 (668) (Pt C) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226—Alternate remedy is not absolute bar—Each case depends upon its own special circumstances. A I R 1955 N U C (Cal) 401.

——Art. 226—Scope—Other remedy—Principle of.

The High Court will not interfere when there exists other adequate legal remedies, nor will it impose its will upon the exercise of executive discretion. But that course of conduct is dependent upon expediency and not want of jurisdiction. The existence of an alternative remedy is not absolute bar, and the abuse of a power even though discretionary can always be controlled. 57 Cal W N 397 : ILR (1955) 1 Cal 401 : A I R 1953 Cal 548 (559) (Pt O) (Pr 49).

● ——Art. 226 — Application under — Existence of alternative remedy—If a bar.

The existence of an alternative remedy is not an absolute bar against an application for a writ or order under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Chairman Budge Budge Municipality v. Mangru Mia, 57 Cal W N 25 : A I R 1953 Cal 433 (444) (Pt K) (Pr 46) (SB).

——Art. 226—Another remedy open—Jurisdiction to issue writs when barred.

(a) The writs of mandamus, certiorari and prohibition, and for the matter of that all high prerogative writs, are ordinarily not issued where there exists an alternative remedy equally efficient and adequate.

(b) But there is no inflexible rule that such writs cannot be issued where the Court thinks it just and convenient to do so. The fact that it ordinarily does not do so is a question not of want of jurisdiction but of expediency.

(c) Whether the alternative remedy is equally efficacious or adequate is a question of fact to be decided in each case.

(d) Where a complaint is made against any act done or purported to be done under any statutory provision, the fact that there exists in the Statute itself a possible remedy, is an important fact to be taken into consideration. Where such provisions exist, the Court will be extremely reluctant to interfere by way of high prerogative writs and especially so if the applicant has actually taken recourse to his remedy under the Statute.

(e) But the fact that there exists a remedy under the Statute does not take away the jurisdiction of the Courts to issue the writs in appropriate cases.

(f) In the following cases it has been held that a writ will be issued notwithstanding an alternative remedy, whether under a statutory provision or otherwise.

(i) Where an inferior tribunal assumes jurisdiction and the want of jurisdiction is patent on the face of it.

(ii) Where the proceedings complained of are against the principles of natural justice; and (iii) where the alternative remedy is too costly or ineffective or entails such delay that the applicant would be irreparably prejudiced or the remedy might prove valueless. Case law Ref. A I R 1952 Cal 171 (175) (Pt C) (Pr 20).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — High Court may still entertain writ petition. A I R 1954 S C 403 and AIR 1958 S C 86, Rel. on. AIR 1965 Him Pra 41 (43) (Pt B) (Prs 12, 13).

——Art. 226 (1)—Another remedy open.

High prerogative writs are ordinarily not issued, where an alternative remedy equally efficient and adequate exists, unless there is any exceptional reason for ousting the jurisdiction of the ordinary Courts of the land and to deal with the matter under the writ jurisdiction. A I R 1954 Him Pra 87 (88) (Prs 5, 7).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

Where a person has an equally efficacious remedy, the High Court would not interfere in writ proceedings, for the jurisdiction exercised in writ proceedings is an extra-ordinary one and the powers are to be exercised in rare and exceptional cases. I L R (1956) Hyd 630 : AIR 1957 Hyd 19 (20) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

Article 226 is not intended to provide an alternative method of redress to the normal process of a decision in action brought in the usual course established by law. ILR (1956) Hyd 630 : A I R 1957 Hyd 19 (21) (Pt D) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

Where there is an equally adequate and efficacious remedy the High Court would not interfere by way of writ. ILR (1953) Hyd 665 : A I R 1954 Hyd 25 (27) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction under Art. 226.

The jurisdiction conferred by Art. 226 does not provide an alternative mode of redress to the normal process of litigation in ordinary Courts of law. The powers under it are exercised only for meeting extraordinary cases where personal and private rights of persons have been seriously infringed, and they are otherwise unable to obtain any adequate or prompt remedy for the redress of their grievance. ILR (1953) Hyd 374 : A I R 1953 Hyd 228 (229) (Pt D) (Pr 7) (DB).

● ——Art. 226—Other remedy – Existence of—Effect of. See Constitution of Jammu and Kashmir (1957), S. 103. A I R 1958 J & K 11 (FB).

——Art 226—Other remedy open—Issue of writ. See Co-operative Societies—Madras Co-operative Societies Act (6 of 1932), S. 2 (a). A I R 1961 Ker 123.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Issue of writ.

The existence of another remedy has never been treated as an absolute bar to the exercise of the powers under Art. 226. If the Court has otherwise jurisdiction to deal with the matter, the fact that it is open for the parties to institute a suit is no bar to interference by the Court. 1959 Ker L R 1195 : 1959 Ker L J 1267 : 1959 Ker L T 1208 : (1960) 1 Lab L J 319 : A I R 1960 Ker 220 (221) (Pt E) (Pr 13).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Issue of writ. See Ibid, Art. 19 (1) (g). 1960 Ker L T 1087.

——Art. 226 – Writ petition under—Existence of alternative remedy—Effect.

Though the existence of an alternative remedy is not per se a bar to the exercise of the jurisdiction under Art. 226, the High Court will not, ordinarily, interfere under the article when the alternative remedy has not been pursued. AIR 1958 S C 86 and 1959 K L J 1416, Rel. on. 1960 Ker L T 260.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

The existence of an alternative remedy has never been held to debar the exercise of its jurisdiction by the High Court under Art. 226. 1959 Ker L J 410 : 1959 Ker L T 521 : 1959 Ker L R 1107 : ILR (1959) Ker 1124 : AIR 1959 Ker 347 (350) (Pt F) (Pr 8).

[Impliedly Overruled on another point in AIR 1963 S C 274.]

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

The existence of a suitable and adequate remedy before a Court of law which will be in a position to know all the facts and allegations is a consideration which makes the High Court disinclined to exercise its powers under Art. 226, which are discretionary. Madh B L J 1955 H C R 1560 : AIR 1955 M B 200 (202) (Pt E) (Pr 31) (DB).

——Art. 226—Writ of mandamus—Issue of, when alternative remedy is open — Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45.

A Court would be loath to make an order of mandamus or certiorari where there is an alternative remedy which is equally appropriate and convenient, unless there has been a denial of natural justice. ILR (1952) Madh Bha 231 : AIR 1950 Madh B 46 (53) (Pt I) (Pr 15) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 62. AIR 1963 Madh Pra 274 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Question not raised before Panchayat — It cannot be raised for the first time in High Court—Alternative remedy no bar to petition under Art. 226.

Held, that the question which was not raised before the Nyaya Panchayat could not be allowed to be raised in the High Court. 1961 M P L J 761, Foll. Held also that petition under Article 226 of the Constitution could be entertained by the High Court even though there was an alternative remedy. The existence of an alternative remedy was no bar to a petition under Articles 226 and 227 of the Constitution. AIR 1953 Nag 213 and 1955 N L J 323, Foll. 1962 M P L J (Notes) 126.

●——Art. 226—Other remedy open — No absolute bar to issue of direction or writ.

Where a petitioner has an alternative remedy the fact of the existence of the remedy may be taken into consideration in the exercise of the jurisdiction under Art. 226. The existence of an alternative remedy is however, not an absolute bar to the issue of a direction or writ under Art. 226. Colonel Lal Rampal Singh v. State of Madhya Pradesh, 1961 M P L J 1 : ILR (1960) Madh Pra 934 : 1961 M P C 94 : 1961 Jab L J 32 : AIR 1961 Madh Pra 154 (158) (Pt B) (Pr 13) (FB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1966 S C 820.]

——Art. 226 - Other remedy—Issue of writ.

Before one can be permitted to avail of the discretionary and extraordinary remedies under Art. 226 of the Constitution, he must have exhausted the special remedies provided by the special law. 1958 M P L J (Notes) 116.

——Art. 226—Whether establishment is within or outside Act, is mixed question of fact and law — Disputed questions of fact—Jurisdiction of High Court under Art. 226 to investigate—Recourse to S. 19-A of Employees' Provident Funds Act (1952) proper course —Application under S. 19 A by owner of establishment is competent—Commissioner cannot enforce Act until decision of dispute by Central Government on application by owner. See Employees' Provident Funds Act (1952), Sch. I. AIR 1963 Mad 238.

——Art. 226—Subsisting alternative remedy does not preclude Court from issuing writ, when matter had fully been gone into.

However convenient or expedient it may be to dismiss a writ petition before issuing rule nisi on the ground of subsisting alternative remedy, it may not always be just to do so at the final stage, when the parties have incurred all the expenses and the Court has gone into the matter fully. The availability of other remedies to the aggrieved party may weigh with the Court in refusing a writ under Art. 226 of the Constitution but cannot disentitle him to get the relief or preclude the Court from issuing the writ. 1940-2 M L J 860, Rel. on. 73 Mad L W 437: 1960-2 Mad L J 392 : ILR (1961) Mad 305.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open—Issue of writ.

The existence of an alternative remedy is only a circumstance which would influence the discretion of the High Court. It is not a matter which would affect its jurisdiction. (1960) 1 M L J 472 : AIR 1960 Mad 238 (240) (Pt C) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226 — Objection on ground of availability raised at late stage—Issue of writ.

Where, in an application to issue appropriate writs or directions to restrain the Inspector of Factories and the Government from enforcing the provision of the Factories Act and certain other Acts against the petitioner, it was contended that the question raised by the petitioner could be raised in the criminal proceedings which were pending against him under those Acts.

Held, that although that objection would have been good as a preliminary point on which the petition might have been dismissed at the stage of admission, it would not be right to dismiss the petition on that ground after the entire matter had been argued. (1958-59) 14 F J R 445 : 71 Mad L W 552 : 1958 Mad W N 429 : ILR (1958) Mad 999 : (1958) M L J (Cr) 699 : (1958) 2 M L J 346 : AIR 1958 Mad 602 (607) (Pt B) (Pr 21).

——Art. 226—Alternative remedy—Other remedy by suit—Mere balance of convenience not sufficient. AIR 1958 Mad 501.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Issue of writ. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947). (1958) 2 M L J 74 : 1958 M L J (Cri) 584 : AIR 1958 Mad 398 (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—If bar to writ—Admission of petition.

The existence of an alternative remedy does not bar the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 but is merely a matter to be taken into account in exercising its discretion to issue the writ or not. At that stage the Court would consider not the mere existence of the remedy but its reality, adequacy and effectiveness. The numbering of the writ petition however need not be refused on this ground. 70 Mad L W 60 : (1957) 1 Mad L J 26 : AIR 1957 Mad 338 (338, 339) (Pt A) (Pr 1).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Mandamus — Existence of other remedies — Remedy need not be same or identical—Considerations.

A right may carry with it more than one remedy, so that a person whose right is invaded may sue for remedies such as (1) specific performance, (2) injunction and (3) damage. He may not succeed in getting the reliefs of specific performance and injunction. That does not mean that he has no remedy for his right. He has still the remedy of damages—such damages as would afford complete satisfaction. It is not necessary that the remedy should be more or less of the same character, if not identical, with the one asked for under the writ. (1956) 26 Com Cas 431 : ILR (1957) Mad 383 : 70 Mad L W 28: (1957) 1 Mad L J 254 : AIR 1957 Mad 309 (318) (Pt G) (Pr 22) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Alternative remedy — Discretion of Court.

The existence of an alternative remedy is not a statutotry bar to the exercise of jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution, though the Court would be slow to exercise its discretion in favour of the issue of a writ if there is an alternative remedy open to the petitioners. 68 Mad L W 777: ILR (1957) Mad 631 : 1955 Mad W N 865 : (1955) 2 M L J 612 : AIR 1956 Mad 146 (150) (Pt C) (Pr 21).

——Art. 226—Alternative remedy — Discretion of Court.

No doubt the existence of an alternative remedy will very often dissuade the High Court from granting an application for a writ. But this is a matter of discretion and the Court is not bound to refuse a writ merely because an alternative remedy exists. (1955) 1 M L J 243 : 68 Mad L W 26 : AIR 1955 Mad 120 (121) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Discretion—Prohibition and certiorari.

The existence of an adequate alternative remedy would be a strong dissuading factor ; nevertheless if after taking into account all the relevant circumstances the High Court reaches the conclusion that the case is an appropriate one in which the writ should go it has got authority to issue the writ.

The existence of an alternative remedy would not, where the prayer is for the issue of a writ of prohibition be as strongly dissuasive as where the prayer is for the issue of writ of certiorari since it avoids expense and waste of time. Case law discussed. (1955) 6 S T C 1 : 68 Mad L W 132 : 1954 Mad W N 960 : (1955) 1 Mad L J 189 : I L R (1955) Mad 1042: A I R 1954 Mad 1144 (1147, 1148, 1149) (Pt A) (Prs 13, 17, 21, 23) (DB).

——Art. 226—Another remedy. See Madras Commercial Crops Market Act (20 of 1933), S. 4. (1954) 1 Mad L J 117 : A I R 1954 Mad 621 (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedies available.

If the assessee seeks to obtain from the High Court any relief which he would have been entitled to obtain under any of the provisions of the Income-tax Act, then certainly the High Court would not exercise its power to issue prerogative writs to give such relief to an assessee. But where the application is only to direct the Commissioner to entertain an application under S. 33-A (2) provided by the Act itself on the ground that the assessee has been improperly denied that right, the assessee cannot obtain this relief under any of the provisions of the Income-tax and the application for mandamus is maintainable. ('51) 64 Mad L W 270 : (1951) 19 I T R 402 : (1951) 1 Mad L J 417 : 1951 Mad W N 257 : I L R (1951) Mad 815 : A I R 1951 Mad 204 (206) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226—Alternative remedy—When no bar to issue writ.

The existence of an alternative remedy is not per se a bar to the issue of a writ by the High Court which is a matter depending on its discretion to be judicially exercised on the facts and circumstances of each case. A I R 1962 S C 1694, Rel. on. A I R 1965 Manipur 39 (42) (Pt D) (Pr 27).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

Where an alternative efficient and adequate remedy is available, writ of mandamus should not be issued. A I R 1956 Manipur 1 (4) (Pt D) (Pr 15).

——Art. 226—Exercise of jurisdiction under — Existence of alternative remedy, not an absolute bar. I L R (1960) Mys 73.

——Art. 226—Existence of other remedy—Effect.

Ordinarily, the Court will not allow parties to invoke the aid of Art. 226 when they have other means of obtaining redress and their rights or interests are not substantially affected by the acts or orders of the authorities. I L R (1955) Mys 203 : A I R 1955 Mys 81 (85) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

● ——Art 226 — Writ of certiorari — Existence of other remedy.

The existence of an adequate specific legal remedy would affect a writ of mandamus but not certiorari. A I R 1952 All 99, Rel. on.

An alternative remedy is not considered to be always an absolute bar to the issue of a writ though it may be a ground for reluctance to issue it. A I R 1952 All 753 (FB), Rel. on. Sampu Gowda v. State of Mysore, I L R (1953) Mys 440 : 32 Mys L J 12 : A I R 1953 Mys 156 (161) (Pt G) (Pr 19) (FB).

——Art. 226—Power under—Exercise of, when other remedy is open.

The power conferred by Art. 226 ought not, ordinarily, to be exercised where other means of redres are available to a party. This provision is not to be so construed as, virtually, to take away the jurisdiction of the ordinary Courts of the land. I L R (1952) Nag 331 : 1954 Nag L J 327 : A I R 1952 Nag 301 (302) (Pt C) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Where another remedy is available, a writ of certiorari is not usually granted. A I R 1942 Mad 384 and A I R 1948 Mad 304, Foll. ('51) 1951 Nag L J (Notes) 107 (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

Unlike Art. 32 (2), Art. 226 confers only powers on the High Court which it is left to its discretion when to exercise and when not to exercise. When the petitioner has already filed a civil suit in which the same issues as those raised in the petition under Art. 226 arise for decision, the High Court will not entertain the petition ; Case law referred. ('51) Nag L J 79 (80, 81) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Levy of Cess on lands under Orissa Cess Act — Petitioner must first avail himself of remedies provided in that Act before asking for a writ — Petition must be dismissed. I L R (1964) Cut 665.

——Art. 226 — Alternative relief through another tribunal—Interference under Art. 226.

Where the statute provides an alternative relief through another tribunal the Court would not ordinarily interfere in exercise of its prerogative powers until the other remedy has been exhausted. (1917) 1 K B 176, Rel. on. I L R (1951) Cut 441 : 1952 Cri L J 1039 : A I R 1952 Orissa 52 (59) (Pt B) (Pr 22) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 227—Writ—Maintainability of petition—Other remedy open — Matter to be decided controversial—Writ application is not appropriate. I L R 44 Pat 294 : 1964 (2) Cri L J 492.

——Art. 226—Quo Warranto — Petition challenging election—Principles governing issue of writ—Candidate not qualified to be a commissioner on date of election elected as chairman of municipality—Election petition challenging election dismissed on technical ground — Candidate not only qualified at time of writ petition but also commanding requisite majority of votes—Quo warranto information will not be issued against him.

Where there are statutory provisions dealing with the conduct of an election the writ of quo warranto is displaced. An election can then be challenged in the manner laid down by the statute. A I R 1954 Bom 116, Rel. on.

Further the High Court would refuse to entertain an application under Art. 226 for grant of information in the nature of quo warranto to invalidate an election on the ground that the candidate was not qualified to be elected on the date of his election when at the date of the hearing of the petition he has become qualified and there is nothing to bar his re-election. A I R 1954 All 227 (FB), Rel on.

Held, on facts that the relief sought by the petition under Art. 226 could as well be sought by an election petition under the rules and that alternative remedy was equally appropriate and effective. The relief in fact had been so sought but was not granted, whatever might be the reason. Therefore to grant quo warranto information against him would be 'vexatious to do so' or 'futile in its results'. A I R 1961 Pat 475 (479, 480) (Prs 10, 11) (DB).

——Art. 226—Another remedy open — Effect. A I R 1953 Pat 103 (104) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 -Other remedy open — Issue of writ—Propriety—Practice.

It is a well established and undoubted rule of practice that a mandamus ought not to be granted where there is another appropriate remedy. It is not necessary that the other remedy must be as convenient; if no reasonable objection can be taken to the alternative remedy, a mandamus ought not to be granted. 31 Pat 145 : A I R 1953 Pat 47.

——Art. 226—Issue of writ—Essentials for—Applicant claiming right or title depending on disputed questions of fact - Issue of writ—It justified.

The remedy given by Art. 226 of the Constitution is an extraordinary remedy and can be invoked only in exceptional circumstances by those who have no alternative remedy by way of suit or otherwise. The essential requirements are that (i) that the applicant has some fundamental or legal rights; (ii) that the said right has been violated or there is an imminent threat to that right; and (iii) that the petitioner has either no other remedy available to him, or even if there is such a remedy available that remedy would not be equally prompt, adequate and efficacious and that in case he is left to that remedy, is likely to suffer incalculable loss and harassment. Where the petitioner has not established a clear title or legal right necessitating interference by the High Court, and his right or title, if any, depends upon disputed questions of fact which cannot be satisfactorily determined in such summary proceedings, the High Court ought not to grant any writ. 29 Pat 491 (FB); 30 Pat 735, Ref. AIR 1952 Pat 194 (200) (Ft F) (Pr 29) (D B).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1953 S C 215].

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Not a bar.

Where a person, being reverted, challenges the order of reversion by presenting a petition under Art. 226, even if a suit does lie, for the relief claimed, that would not stand as a legal bar to the petition. ILR (1955) Patiala 202 : AIR 1955 Pepsu 106 (108) (Pt B) (Pr 6).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Other remedy open—Power of High Court to interfere — Extent — Existence of alternative remedy not per se constitutional bar to exercise of writ jurisdiction.

The jurisdiction conferred on High Court by Art. 226 is not appellate and it is accordingly not empowered to act as a Court of appeal. What is conferred by this Article is supervisory jurisdiction which reserves to the writ Court power to remedy failure of justice caused inter alia by violation of Rule of law Justice as enshrined in the Preamble of our Constitution occupies the first place on the list of cherised human values which have been sought to be secured to all citizens of this Republic. Article 226 seems to have its roots in this purpose and is apparently designed to assume to the citizen, justice denied to him by the subordinate Tribunals. Consistently with this superior status the writ Court does not ordinarily compete or come into conflict with the subordinate Tribunals in their normal functioning nor is it intended to serve as a substitute for them. It is for this, among other reasons, that if a citizen can have justice elsewhere, the extraordinary jurisdiction of the writ Court is ordinarily not allowed to be invoked and the citizen is expected first to seek redress of his grievances from the subordinate Tribunals. But this is not a constitutional bar : it is merely a self-imposed restriction dictated by considerations of practical working, with the result that if the alternative remedy is not equally adequate, efficacious and speedy, this self-imposed restriction must give way in favour of interference to facilitate the cause of substantial justice and further its ends. 67 Pun L R 413 : ILR (1965) 1 Punj 466 : AIR 1965 Punj 170 (172, 173, 174) (Pt B) (Prs 3, 5, 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Alternative remedy — Question of alternative remedy being availavle is merely a matter to be considered while exercising jurisdiction under Art. 226 but is not an absolute bar for its exercise. ILR (1962) 1 Punj 176.

——Art. 226 — Alternate remedy — Not an absolute bar to writ petition.

An alternative remedy has never been held to be absolute bar to a writ petition and it is a matter for consideration in each case whether in the circumstances disclosed this Court should or should not interfere on the writ side. 64 Pun L R 586 : ILR (1962) 2 Punj 27 : 1962 Cur L J 108.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Disputed question of facts.

Where another remedy equally adequate and efficacious is available, where it has not been alleged, far less proved, that the respondent has exceeded his jurisdiction, where the High Courts' attention has not been invited to any error which is apparent on the face of the record, and where facts are in dispute which ought primarily to be decided by the administrative authorities concerned, the High Court will not entertain a writ petition under Art. 226. (1959) 10 S T C 150 (Punj).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open—Failure to avail of it — Effect. See Municipalities—Punjab Municipal Act (3 of 1911), S. 121. AIR 1950 Punj 143.

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari — Existence of alternative remedy — No bar for entertaining writ petition.

It is well settled law that the fact that the aggrieved party has another and adequate remedy is only one factor to be taken into consideration in deciding whether to issue or decline to issue writ but it cannot be allowed to operate as absolute bar and it cannot be accepted that a writ of certiorari will lie only where there is no other equally effective remedy. The rule requiring the exhaustion of statutory remedies before the grant of writ is a rule of policy, convenience and discretion rather than a rule of law. 1963 Raj L W 339 : ILR (1963) 13 Raj 489.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy. See Marwar Land Revenue Act (1949), S. 86. ILR (1959) 9 Raj 413.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy. See Rajasthan Court of Wards Act (1 of 1951), S. 12. AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 2193 (DB).

——Art. 226—Alternative remedy—Issue of writ of prohibition—Marwar Village Panchayats Act (1945), S. 60.

It cannot be said that the Court cannot issue an order if there is another remedy available. The power of the Court is there, though it may not be exercised in case where an adequate, specific and convenient remedy is otherwise available. There is no inflexible rule that such writs could not be issued where the Court thought it just and convenient to do so. The fact that it ordinarily did not do so is a question not of want of jurisdiction but of expediency. Even if another remedy is available, it is open to the High Court, where the order is in the nature of prohibition, to issue such order in a proper case.

Section 60 of the Marwar Village Panchayats Act, 1945 does not confer any right on any party. It only gives power to the Minister-in.Charge. Of course it is possible for an aggrieved person to go to the Minister-in Charge and ask him to suspend or abolish the panchayat for reasons mentioned in that section. But the exercise of powers under S. 60, however, presupposes the existence of a valid Panchayat and necessity for abolition arises by improper conduct of the said Panchayat. Where the very constitution of the Panchayat is illegal and where the lack of jurisdiction is patent, a writ of prohibition is the proper remedy. Case law discussed. 1952 Raj L W 184 : ILR (1952) 2 Raj 301 : AIR 1952 Raj 144 (146) (Pt C) (Prs 7, 8, 9, 10, 11) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Effect.

It is well-settled that the extraordinary powers conferred on the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution are not to be ordinarily exercised unless there is no other remedy open to an applicant, or, if any remedy is open at all, it is not as convenient, beneficial and effective as the remedy under Art. 226. ILR (1951) 1 Raj 361 : 1951 R L W 389 : AIR 1951 Raj 161 (162) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open. See Constitution of India, Art. 31. AIR 1955 NUC (Trav.Co) 1384.

——Art. 226—Availability of other remedies—Interference

It is for the High Court to consider in each case the necessity or desirability of interference notwithstanding the availability or the existence of other remedies or proceedings. 1952 Ker L T 555 : ILR (1952) Trav-Co 463 : AIR 1954 Trav.Co 193 (195) (Pt D) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Rule—Object of writ — Application with the object of harbouring delinquent party—Maintainability.

When a distinct and appropriate remedy is open to a party aggrieved by an order of an inferior Court, resort should be had to that remedy. It is an abuse of the process of the Court to approach the High Court for the issue of a writ of certiorari in such a case, especially when the subordinate Court acted within its jurisdiction. This is not, however, an absolute or inflexible rule; if it be shown that before resort is made to such other remedy the mischief sought to be prevented or avoided would be committed, the High Court will interfere by the issue of a writ. But no writ can issue where the object of the application for the writ is harbouring of delinquent persons; its object is to protect the fundamental rights of the citizens AIR 1932 Mad 171; 1932 Mad 321; 1942 Mad 348, Foll. 1950 K L T 217 : 1950 T C L R 604 : 1952 Cri L J 598 : AIR 1952 Trav-Co 101 (101, 102) (Pr 2).

——Art. 226 — Other remedies open—Application whether can be entertained.

Availability of other remedies creates no legal bar to the Court exercising the jurisdiction under Art. 226. Hence the fact that the jural relationship between the petitioner on the one hand and the State on the other is merely contractual. On that the petitioner if aggrieved has other remedies cannot be a ground for rejecting an application made under Art. 226. 1951 K L T 159 : I L R (1951) T C 496 : A I R 1951 Trav-Co 197 (200) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226—Applicability — Other remedies available.

Article 226 is so widely worded that theoretically it can be invoked in any dispute. That is, however, not the intention of the framers of the Constitution. The remedy provided by this article is at all events an extraordinary one. There should be either no other alternative remedy or the alternative remedy should be so inexpedient or round about that it would be unconscionable to drive the party to have recourse to it. But, when it is a common grievance of every day happening, usually redressed by a routine machinery it is altogether unnecessary to invoke Art. 226. A I R 1951 Vindh Pra 41 (42) (Pr 7).

7 (a). Adequate and prompt.

——Art. 226—Prohibition — Other remedy open—If a bar.

An alternative remedy even though equally adequate and efficacious is not a bar to a writ of prohibition. AIR 1956 Ajmer 63 (67) (Pt G) (Pr 15).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1961 S C 1743].

——Art. 226—View taken by the Additional Commissioner not so manifestly wrong that it should be set aside by certiorari—Appellant having remedy by way of appeal to the Supreme Court with special leave—High Court held was powerless to interfere even though it might consider decision as erroneous. 1965 All L J 290.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

Even if another remedy is open to the petitioner, yet if it cannot be regarded as an equally adequate remedy as the remedy by means of a writ petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution, the High Court will entertain the petition under Art. 226. 1957 All L J 126 : 1957 All W R (HC) 193 : AIR 1957 All 155 (159) (Pr 10).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy—Notice under S. 186, U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916)—Maintainability of petition under Art. 226—(Municipalities—U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 186.)

The petitioner started construction after the expiry of the statutory period given in the notice under section 180 (3), U. P. Municipalities Act. Thereafter a notice was issued against the petitioner under S. 186, U. P. Municipalities Act, asking her to demolish the construction within certain period. Thereupon the petitioner made an application under Art. 226 of the Constitution of India.

Held, that there was no appeal provided for against the order. Even if it be assumed that it was open to the petitioner to challenge the notice if and when an order demolishing the construction was passed or a prosecution was launched against the petitioner, it could not be said that such a remedy would be equally adequate and efficacious in the circumstances of the case. Hence the petitioner could approach the High Court by an application under Art. 226 of the Constitution of India. 1957 All W R (H C) 377 : 1957 All L J 269.

——Art 226 — Other remedy open — Government refusing to pay pension — Maintainability of suit—(Pensions Act (1871), Ss. 4, 5 and 7).

Where the Government refuses to pay pension to the claimant it cannot be said that the claimant has an alternative remedy by means of a suit available to him. Further when there is a dispute with regard to the right of the claimant to claim the pension against the Government, he cannot apply to the Collector under S. 5 for such a relief. Such an application would not provide an adequate remedy when the Government itself is contending that the claimant has lost his right to the pension under the U. P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act. AIR 1956 All 564 (567) (Pt A) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 226—Another remedy open (Per Sapru J.)

The fact that the procedure of a civil suit is a somewhat dilatory one, on account of congestion of work in the civil suit, is no ground to invoke the jurisdiction of the High Court under Article 226. AIR 1951 All 1 (FB), Rel. on. ILR (1952) 1 All 880 : AIR 1953 All 739 (744) (Pt C) (Pr 19) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

A writ of mandamus will not issue when there is an adequate alternative remedy available to a party, (1959) 2 Andh W R 426 : 1959 Mad L J (Cr) 788.

——Art. 226—Another remedy open.

The powers of the Court under this Article cannot be utilised as a substitute for ordinary remedies. The remedy provided by Art. 226 may be availed of only where ordinary legal process cannot give adequate and prompt relief. A I R 1954 Assam 74 (75, 76) (Pt C) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Discretion of Court — Existence of alternative remedy.

It is not merely the existence of an alternative remedy that should justify declining action under Art. 226 of the Constitution. It is only when adequate and prompt relief is available otherwise, that Art. 226 would not be permitted to be utilised as an easy and inexpensive substitute for it. To persuade the Court to grant discretionary relief immediately by an extraordinary process it should be for the petitioner to show if he has alternative remedy that the recourse to it would not bring him adequate and prompt relief. ILR (1951) 3 Assam 348 : AIR 1951 Assam 163 (167) (Pt F) (Pr 30) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Issue of writ.

A power in the State Government which it can exercise in its discretion is certainly not an adequate legal remedy. 59 Bom L R 1088 : I L R (1958) Bom 113.

——Art. 226—Other adequate legal remedy—Effect. See Ibid, Art. 227. AIR 1956 Bom 545 (DB).

——Art. 226—Alternative remedy—Estate Duty Act (1953), S. 57—Imminent threof of illegal assessment of sthanam property—Absence of alternative remedy —Jurisdiction of High Court can be invoked.

The imminent threat to the receiver in respect of the sthanam properties of the deceased sthanamdar of an illegal assessment and the absence of adequate alternative remedy seems to be sufficient to invoke the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. 1965 Ker L T 1149 : 1965 Ker L J 991 : (1965) 2 Ker L R 415 : AIR 1966 Ker 99 (100) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Petitioner in permanent service of integrating State declared surplus to requirement by new Government — Subsequent absorption of petitioner in permanent service on condition that period of discontinuance could be treated as of leave — Petitioner accepting offer—Petitioner if had legal right to be absorbed in new State—Right to salary for period of discontinuance—Another remedy open. See Ibid, Art. 310. A I R 1957 Madh B 100 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ petition under—Existence of alternate remedy — Effect—Order plainly absurd—Other remedy by way of election petition not so expeditious — Petition held maintainable — Mysore Village Panchayats and Local Boards Act (10 of 1959), S. 13.

The argument that the case was not one in which the High Court should exercise its jurisdiction under Art. 226 since the petitioner had neglected to avail himself of the remedy provided by section 13 of the Act by way of an election petition would not be available where the order brought up for being quashed before the High Court is so plainly absurd that it would amount to an abdication of jurisdiction if it is not quashed at the earliest stage, particularly when the application to the Court was presented with the utmost expedition. 1961 Mys L J 319, Rel. on. 1963 Mys L J (Supp) 236 (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Writ of certiorari—Art. 329 (b).

A petition for issue of a writ of certiorari is maintainable to quash an order of the Returning Officer rejecting the nomination paper of the petitioner for the election to the office of the President of the Town Municipal Council in spite of the provision of an appeal provided by R. 10, Mysore Town Municipalities Election Rules, 1951. The said R. 10 does not give an adequate remedy in such a case. Further, unlike the provision in S. 80 of the Representation of the People Act, 1951 and Art. 329 (b) of the Constitution, there is no provision in the Mysore Town Municipalities Act against any intermediate application. W. P. No. 254 of 1958 (Mys), Foll.; A I R 1952 S C 64 and A I R 1954 All 234 and A I R 1954 Cal 32, Disting. 37 Mys L J 637 : I L R (1959) Mys 608 : A I R 1960 Mys 189 (189, 190) (Prs 2, 3, 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Existence of remedies under an impugned Act does not prevent the issue of a writ to the Sales Tax Authorities when certain provisions of the impugned Act are found ultra vires. (1955) 6 S T C 93 (Nag).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1958 S C 560.]

——Art. 226 — Alternative remedy—Existence of—Not a bar to exercise of writ jurisdiction — High Court may refuse to interfere when alternative remedies are more efficacious and complete.

It is no doubt well settled that no provision in any Act passed by any Legislature, Union or State, can cut down the extensive jurisdiction conferred on the High Court by Art. 226 of the Constitution and in special circumstances there may be jurisdiction for the High Court to exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction even if there is an alternative remedy. The question is not whether the jurisdiction of the High Court is barred but whether in the peculiar facts and circumstances of a case the High Court should decline to exercise its jurisdiction. A I R 1961 S C 1506, Rel. on.

Held, on the facts and circumstances of the case that the remedy of arbitration provided by the parties themselves in the agreement of mining lease and the remedy by way of revision under S. 30 of the Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Act, 1957, were more efficacious and complete to solve the controversy between the parties and as the petitioner had not availed of these remedies it was not a fit case for exercising the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226. I L R (1962) Cut 331 : A I R 1962 Orissa 183 (186, 187, 188, 189) (Pt A) (Prs 9, 12, 14, 18) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

A writ of mandamus is a most extensive remedial measure. Its purpose is to supply defects of justice and it will issue to the end that justice may be done in all cases where there is a specific legal right and no specific legal remedy for enforcing such right and it may issue in cases where, although there is an alternative legal remedy, yet such mode of redress is less convenient, beneficial and effectual.

The Government of Orissa issued orders withdrawing and cancelling their permissions granted to the petitioners temporarily to work certain mines and the petitioners had been called upon to deliver vacant possession of the mining premises to the State and were directed to remove their assets appertaining to respective mines within a fortnight.

Held that before petitioners could initiate a civil action against the Government they were bound under the law to give them notice of 60 days. As they were served with notice to quit and were given a very brief span of time to enable them to remove their assets, they could hardly be said to have been left an opportunity to do necessary preliminaries that they had to before they could sue the Government in a competent Civil Court. In case they were thrown back upon the only alternative of vacating the premises, they had to undergo irreparable and irremediable loss of possession of the mining leases involving a huge waste of labour, machinery and other resources of equipments of immense value hardly capable of being remedied by payments of money as compensation even if they succeeded in the long run in establishing their right to remain in occupation of the lease-hold interest. In the circumstances, till three months from the date of the order, or one week after the institution of their contemplated suit, whichever was earlier, the Government of the State of Orissa was directed to refrain from disturbing the petitioners' possession over the mining areas in question, and thereafter the order would cease to have effect. (Opinion as to the respective merits of the rival contentions not expressed) ILR (1951) Cut 398 (DB).

——Arts. 226, 227 — Powers under—When exercised stated — Effective and adequate remedy available — Power under Arts. 227 and 226 may be exercised — Power is discretionary. See Ibid, Art. 227. A I R 1955 N U C (Pepsu) 2514.

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Effect—Facts of each case.

The question whether the other remedy open to the applicant in a particular case is specific and adequate should be decided upon the facts of each case. ILR (1953) Patiala 451 : A I R 1953 Pepsu 88 (96) (Pt C) (Pr 28) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Another remedy available but not availed of — Facts and circumstances showing that such remedy would not have been efficacious and adequate — High Court can entertain writ petition. Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Act (1954), S. 33. AIR 1966 Punj 274, Rel. on. 1965 Cur L J 817 (Punj) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Writ application claiming stay with respect to payment of estate duty.

The High Court has always the discretion to refuse to grant a writ if it is satisfied that the aggrieved party can have an adequate or suitable relief elsewhere.

Under Art. 226 of the Constitution the petitioners are not as of right entitled to claim a stay order from the High Court with respect to the payment of estate duty. The High Court would, while exercising its extraordinary powers under Art. 226 of the Constitution, grant relief by way of stay in its discretion and only in special cases in which the normal statutory relief is not likely to meet the ends of justice. (1960) 40 I T R (E D) 26 : A I R 1960 Punj 288 (290, 291) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Arts. 226 and 19 — Other remedy open—Citizen deported — Compliance required within 3 days — Writ application — (Foreigners Act (1946), S. 14)—(Citizenship Act (1955), Ss. 9, 10, Sch. 3, Cl. 1).

The Foreigners Act does not lay down any machinery for determining whether a particular person is a foreigner or not. The deportation orders issued under the Act generally give only a few days within which the person concerned must leave the country. Where only three days were allowed for this purpose it is not possible for the person concerned to apply to the Central Government under the Citizenship Act and obtain a decision from it within the limited time available to him that he is a citizen of India. Article 19 of the Constitution guarantees freedom of movement to every citizen of India and this guarantee will be negatived if a citizen can be deported under the Foreigners Act, without any previous enquiry.

Where a person who claimes to be a citizen of India, is served with a deportation order under Foreigners Act, and is asked to leave the country within three days, the writ application filed by him against the order is a proper remedy, the remedy under the Foreigners Act or the Citizenship Act being inadequate. 60 Punj L R 696 : A I R 1959 Punj 261 (264) (Pt D) (Pr 12).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Issue of writ of mandamus.

If a petitioner has a clear legal right to the performance of a particular duty, if he has no other specific legal remedy which is adequate to afford complete relief and if there would be failure of justice if the aid of the High Court is not extended, remedy by way of mandamus may be invoked. In a case where a writ of mandamus is sought by employers to recall a reference of an industrial dispute to an Industrial Tribunal under S. 10 (1) (c) of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 it cannot be said that the petitioners have no other legal remedy adequate to afford the desired reliefs. (1780) 2 Doug. 524 (526) and (1884) 12 Q B D 461 and (1861) 30 L J Q B 271 and (1881) 21 Q B D 131, Rel. on. 60 Punj L R 425 : (1958-59) 15 F J R 49 : (1959) 1 Lab L J 274 : I L R (1958) Punj 2061 : A I R 1959 Punj 75 (79, 80) (Pt E) (Prs 13, 14) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedies— Petitioners informed in last week of February 1961 regarding cancellation of their admissions in LL.B (Pre.) classes which would have entailed their being debarred from appearing for examination commencing from 21-4-1961—If instead of approaching President of India, under S. 8A of Rajasthan University Act, petitioners files writ petition, relief should not be refused on this ground — Further, writ petition having admitted and interim directions being issued it would not be proper to refuse hearing of petition on merits : I L R (1958) 8 Raj 893, Disting., ILR (1961) 11 Raj 768.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Panchayat Election dispute—Rajasthan Panchayat Samitis and Zila Parishads Act (37 of 1959), S. 13.

An election petition under S. 13 of the Rajasthan Panchayat Samitis and Zila Parishads Act (37 of 1959) is not an effective remedy for remedying the defects in the very constitution of the Panchayat Samiti. There is no procedure prescribed in the rules for setting aside an invalid co-option of members. An illegal co-option can only be set aside by the High Court on a petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution. 1960 Raj L W 440 : ILR (1960) 10 Raj 770.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Prayer for countersigning permit under Motor Vehicles Act not accepted — Permit having only three months to run—Suit against non-acceptance of prayer is not proper remedy Writ is maintainable. 1956 Raj L W 359 : ILR (1956) 6 Raj 44.

——Art. 226—Another remedy open—District Magistrate by order prohibiting pistol shooting game at applicant's varietys show — (Rajasthan Dramatic Performances and Entertainments Ordinance 29 of of 1949), S. 3 (c). 1952 Raj L W 369 : ILR (1952) 2 Raj 364 : A I R 1953 Raj 101 (104) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open —Suit not speedy.

An application under Art. 226 may lie in spite of an alternative remedy by way of civil suit being available when such remedy is not equally expedient and speedy in the circumstances of the case. A I R 1954 Vin Pra 50 (53) (Pt F) (Pr 13).

7 (b). Appeal or revision.

● ——Art. 226—Custodian-General had power under S. 27 to revise order passed by Custodian under Mysore Act 47 of 1949—Appeal against order passed in proceedings under S. 8 of the Mysore Act 47 of 1949 after its repeal lay to the Custodian-General under Act of 1950 and not to the High Court under Mysore Act — High Court could not interfere under Art. 226 of Constitution with order of Custodian holding certain person as evacuee under S. 2 (c) of the Mysore Act 47 of 1949. The Custodian of Evacuee Property, Bangalore v. Abdul Shukoor, (1961) 3 S C R 855 : (1963) 1 S C J 554 : A I R 1961 S C 1087 (1090, 1091) (Pr 9).

● ——Art. 226—Other adequate remedy open—Order imposing penalty affirmed by Appellate Assistant Commissioner of Income-tax — No appeal to Tribunal—Jurisdiction under Art. 226 cannot be invoked.

The Income-Tax Act provides a complete machinery for assessment of tax and imposition of penalty and for obtaining relief in respect of any improper orders passed by the Income-tax authorities. A person who is aggrieved by an order of the Appellate Assistant Commissioner imposing a penalty, cannot be permitted to abandon resort to that machinery and to invoke the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 when he had adequate remedy open to him by way of appeal to the Tribunal. C. A. Abraham v. I. T. Officer, (1961) 2 S C R 765 : (1961) 1 S C J 673 : (1961) 1 Mad L J (S C) 183 : (1961) 1 Andh W R (S C) 183 : 1961 Ker L J 165 : A I R 1961 S C 609 (611) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226—Writ petition — Remedy of appeal and revision available — Absence of good ground for by-passing remedy of appeal — Petition should be dismissed — Central Excises and Salt Act (1944), S. 35. AIR 1965 All 305 (306, 307) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226—Alternative remedy.

In a taxation matter an assessee cannot be permitted to invoke the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court when he has an alternative remedy by way of appeal to the departmental authorities. (1964) 15 S T C 523 (All).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Writ petition — Order passed under S. 34 of the Income Tax Act—Remedy of appeal available—Remedy under Art. 226 not to be allowed to by-pass the remedies under the Income-Tax Act. (1963) 47 I T R 472 (All).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Remedy under Income-Tax Act open — Writ petition will not be entertained.

Where the petitioners instead of pursuing their remedy by way of appeal to the Income Tax Appellate Tribunal and a further reference to the High Court on questions of law, have filed a writ petition to the High Court, they cannot be legitimately allowed to invoke the extraordinary writ jurisdiction of the High Court. AIR 1961 S C 609, Foll. (1963) 2 I T J 107 (All).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Income-Tax Act (1922), S. 33-A (2)— Remedy by revision — Nature of—Relief under Art. 226 of Constitution. See Income Tax Act (1922), S. 33A (2). (1962) 46 I T R 529 (All).

——Art. 226—Other remedy by way of appeal or revision or review available—Writ petition will not be entertained. AIR 1960 All 732 (734) (Pt C) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226 — Award under U. P. Consolidation of Holdings Act—Refusal to set aside—Appeal available — Writ petition not maintainable. See Arbitration Act (1940), S. 39. AIR 1959 All 330.

——Art. 226—Other remedy — Issue of writ —(Sales Tax—U. P. Sales Tax Act (15 of 1948), S. 21).

It is within the jurisdiction of the Sales Tax Officer to arrive at a finding that the entire turnover of the assessee was liable to sales tax because the entire goods were purchased by him outside U. P., and re-assess him accordingly. The assessee, if aggrieved by the order can go in appeal and there challenge the correctness of the order. This cannot be a case where question of jurisdiction is involved. Thus there being a remedy of appeal the assessee cannot invoke the High Court's powers under Art. 226, against the orders of the Sales Tax Officer. AIR 1954 S C 403, Disting. 1958 All L J 774 : (1959) 10 S T C 277 : AIR 1959 All 246 (246, 247) (Prs 2, 3) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Other remedy open—Revision maintainable — Application under Arts. 226 and 227 — Competency. See Debt Laws—U. P. Encumbered Estates Act (25 of 1934), S. 45. 1958 All L J 844.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Municipalities—U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 160.

An importer who is not satisfied with an assessment has a right of appeal to the Board and where the applicant has made no attempt to avail himself of this remedy, and it is not shown that such remedy would not be equally beneficial, convenient and effective, no relief under Art. 226 can be given to the applicant. 1951 All W R (HC) 552 : 1951 R D (HC) 329 : 1952 All L J 33 : I L R (1953) 2 All 327 : A I R 1953 All 551 (551) (Pt B) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Application for writ — Existence of alternate remedy — Effect — Dispute referred to Industrial Tribunal — Plea of want of jurisdiction—Decision appealable under Act 48 of 1950 — No writ can be issued. (Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act (1950), S. 7).

In an industrial dispute referred for adjudication to the Additional Regional Conciliation Officer, the employer pleaded that the Officer had no jurisdiction to adjudicate as there was no 'industrial dispute'. The proceedings were stayed and the employer filed a petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution for a writ or direction to the Officer not to proceed with the case.

Held, that as an appeal lay to the Appellate Tribunal against the decision of the Officer on the question of jurisdiction under S. 7 of Act 48 of 1950, an alternative remedy was available to the petitioner and hence no writ could be issued under Art. 226. 1952 All L J 353 : 1958-1 Lab L J 1 : (1952-53) 4 F J R 479 : AIR 1952 All 992 (998, 1000) (Pt A) (Prs 8, 17, 18) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Andhra Pradesh Urban Areas Surcharge on Property Tax Act (13 of 1958), S. 5—Non-compliance with procedure — Remedy is by way of appeal and not by writ petition—See Andhra Pradesh Urban Areas Surcharge on Property Tax Act (13 of 1958), S. 5. AIR 1963 Andh Pra 379.

● ——Art. 226—Writ of certiorari — Other remedy by way of appeal open—(Per Majority) Existence of alternative remedy is no bar to the grant of writ of certiorari (Per Nayudu, J., Contra).

Per Mehrotra, C. J. and Dutta, J.—The existence of an alternative remedy is no bar to the grant of a writ of certiorari. The existence, however, of an alternative remedy may be taken into consideration by the High Court in exercising its discretion under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Ordinarily the High Court will require the petitioner to have recourse to his ordinary remedies, but if it finds that there is a breach of any, fundamental principle of justice, the High Court will certainly not hesitate to issue a writ of certiorari. If the inferior Tribunal has no jurisdiction to act or in the exercise of its jurisdiction violates the principles of natural justice, the High Court will not refrain from granting the relief to the petitioner, simply because the alternative remedy by way of appeal has not been availed of. AIR 1958 S C 86, Rel. on.

Per Dutta, J.—Moreover to be a bar to the issue of certiorari the other remedy must be adequate. It is the inadequacy and the failure of justice, and not the mere absence of another remedy that determines the right to certiorari. For instance, the effect of the provisions of S. 189 of the Sea Customs Act, is that before a person can appeal under S. 188 of the Act, he has to deposit in the hands of the Customs Collector the amount of duty, or penalty adjudged against him. And in case heavy penalties are imposed it would be very burdensome for the accused to prefer an appeal under S. 188. For this reason alone the writ petitions are maintainable. A I R 1954 S C 403, Rel. on.

Per Nayudu, J. (Contra) —The High Court should not exercise its jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution in a matter where a regular right of appeal is provided by the statute under which the impugned action is taken and which right of appeal has not been availed of or exhausted by the petitioner. AIR 1954 Punj 73, Foll.; AIR 1952 Cal 656, Dissent from. Sanwarmal Purohit v. Collector of Central Excise and Land Customs, Shillong, 1964 (2) Cri L J 507 : A I R 1964 Assam 121 (123, 124, 131, 134, 135) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 31, 33, 42, 50) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open—No bar to issue writ of certiorari.

The condition precedent for exercise of power under S. 23 (4) of the Income-tax Act is the failure to file a return on the notice being given under S. 22 (2) of the Act. Under S. 23 (4) the Income-tax Officer has not been given any exclusive jurisdiction to determine the fact whether notice under section 22 (2) was or was not served and any determination by the Income-tax Officer, is amenable to a writ of certiorari by the High Court. Even if the existence of the preliminary condition has been assumed by the Income-tax Officer it is examinable by the High Court in a writ of certiorari, whether the condition did or did not exist in a particular case. AIR 1947 P C 78 and AIR 1953 Punj 55 and AIR 1947 F C 32, Disting. (1841) 1 Q B 66 and (1888) 21 Q B D 313 and (1922) 2 A C 128 and A I R 1951 S C 23 and A I R 1956 Bom 530 and (1951) 20 I T R 432 (Cal) Rel. on.

Section 27 does provide the method by which the validity of the service of notice under S. 22 (2) may be challenged. But where that remedy was already resorted to, a right of appeal against the order passed under S. 27 cannot be said to be an adequate legal remedy available to the assessee petitioner. AIR 1959 Bom 342, Rel. on. (1960) 1 Assam L R 35 : (1961) 43 I T R 562 : I L R (1960) 12 Assam 164 : A I R 1960 Assam 162 (168, 170, 171) (Pt C) (Prs 18, 25) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Certiorari may issue—Order under Sea Customs Act — Error of law —Effect.

There is no rule with regard to certiorari as there is with mandamus that it will lie only where there is no other equally effective remedy. The existence of another remedy may be taken into consideration in the exercise of the discretion.

Where there is a manifest error of law in the order confiscating goods and imposing penalty passed by the Collector of Central Excise and Land Customs under the Sea Customs Act, the High Court can properly issue a writ of certiorari to correct the error even if an appeal or a revision lay from the order of the Collector under the Sea Customs Act : AIR 1958 S C 86, Foll. 1960 Cri L J 1307 : I L R (1960) 12 Assam 271 : AIR 1960 Assam 150 (158, 159) (Pt C) (Pr 20) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 7.

Article 226 is an extraordinary remedy and is not intended to be a substitute for other effectual and normal remedies available to a party. Where remedy by way of appeal against award of Industrial Tribunal under section 7, Industrial Disputes Act, is available, there is absolutely no justification for the aggrieved party not having availed himself of the remedy by way of appeal which the law provided, of applying for the issue of a writ. ILR (1954) 6 Assam 161 : AIR 1954 Assam 161 (167, 168) (Pt K) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Issue of writ—Services of Ghat Inspector terminated by notice by Health Officer—No appeal filed—Relief under Art. 226. See Municipalities — City of Nagpur Corporation Act, 1948 (2 of 1950), S. 53. 1959 Nag L J (Notes) 106.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—(Nagpur University Act (5 of 1923), S. 40 (1)).

Where the nomination paper of the petitioner along with those of five others had been rejected by the Registrar of the Nagpur University.

Held, that the petitioner had a right of appeal under S. 40 (1) of the Nagpur University Act and he having failed to avail himself of that right the High Court would not be justified in entertaining a petition under Art. 226 to quash that order. 1957 Nag L J 67 : 59 Bom L R 300 : A I R 1957 Bom 215 (217) (Pt B) (Prs 10, 11) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Right of appeal. See Payment of Wages Act (1936), S. 17. A I R 1955 Bom 75 (DB).

——Art. 226—Scope—Other remedy open by way of appeal —(Government Premises (Eviction) Act (1950), Ss. 3 and 5).

Where the notice under S. 3, Government Premises (Eviction) Act, 1950 is given by a person who is not a competent authority at all, an application under Art. 226, Constitution of India, directly to the High Court is maintainable. If, however, it transpires that the notice is properly issued, the High Court will refuse to go into the disputed fact of possession, which should have been agitated before the tribunal provided for such matters by the Act itself by way of appeal. AIR 1950 F C 129, Ref. A I R 1953 Cal 729 (731) (Pt D) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226—Writ of mandamus—Cannot be issued when there is more effective and beneficial other remedy.

A was prosecuted for an offence of staying in India longer than what was allowed to him by his permit. His defence was that he was a subject of the Indian republic and that the statute and the rules did not apply to him. He also applied to the High Court under Art. 226 for writ of mandamus directing the State Government not to proceed with the prosecution.

Held, (1) that the Court would not exercise its powers under Art. 226 in the case as A had even more effective beneficial and convenient remedy by way of applying under S. 439, Criminal P. C., for quashing the proceedings before the Magistrate.

(2) that if there is an adequate and specific remedy other than by a writ and such a remedy is equally convenient then it would be an abuse of Art. 226 to ask the Court to interfere under that Article. A I R 1950 S C 163, Expl. 1952 Cri L J 1738 : A I R 1952 Cal 853 (854, 855) (Prs 10, 15) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy available — Hyderabad Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act (21 of 1950)—Order passed by Tahsildar under S. 32 (4) against petitioner—Remedy by way of appeal, second appeal and revision provided in Ss. 90 and 91 of the Act — Writ cannot be issued. Case law considered. I L R (1953) Hyd 29 : A I R 1953 Hyd 120 (120) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226—Madras Preservation of Private Forests Act (1949), S. 4—Order of Collector under S. 3 (2)—Adequate and effective alternative remedy provided —Writ petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution will not be entertained by High Court — Madras Preservation of Private Forests Act, 1949, S. 4.

Where an alternative remedy is provided and it is equally efficacious, a litigant must pursue that remedy and not invoke the special jurisdiction of the High Court to issue a prerogative writ under Art. 226 of the Constitution, not because the existence of another remedy affects the jurisdiction of the High Court, but because the existence of an adequate alternative remedy is of paramount importance for refusal of a writ which is discretionary. The normal rule in such cases is to refuse an interference under Art. 226 of the Constitution. A I R 1957 S C 882, Rel. on.

Section 4 of the Madras Preservation of Private Forests Act, 1949 provides an adequate and effective remedy by way of an appeal to the State Government against an order passed by the Collector under S. 3 (2) of the Act. That remedy is in no way more costly or less efficacious or speedy than an application under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Proceedings under the Article are not substitutes for ordinary remedies and the alternative remedy provided should not be allowed to be short-circuited by an application under the Article. 1964 Ker L J 154.

——Art. 226 — Another remedy open—(Municipalities—Bombay Municipal Boroughs Act (18 of 1925), S. 110).

A writ under Art. 226 would not ordinarily be issued where there exists an alternative remedy equally efficient and adequate. Whether alternate remedy is equally efficacious is a question of fact to be decided in each case. Where a statute provides a remedy, the Court would be reluctant to interfere under Art. 226 though in appropriate cases it would do so.

Where a tax was sought to be recovered under the Boroughs Act :

Held, that an appeal under S. 110 was an adequate remedy and therefore the Court would not interfere under Art. 226. A I R 1954 Kutch 50 (51, 52) (Pt D) (Prs 9, 10).

——Arts. 226, 227—Scope — Merits of the best judgment assessment cannot be considered in proceedings under Arts. 226 and 227—An assessment under S. 19 of the M. P. General Sales Tax Act is appealable under S. 38 and the assessee-petitioner should have canvassed the merits of the assessment by filing an appeal before the competent authority. 1962 M P L J 825 : 1962 M P C 337 : (1962) 13 S T C 759 : 1962 Jab L J 716 : ILR (1963) Madh Pra 822.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Scope of power of Superintendence—Order of Court of District Judge under S. 12 — Revisable under S. 115, Civil P. C. — Remedy under Art. 226 or 227, Constitution of India not available. See Houses and Rents — M. P. Accommodation Control Act (23 of 1955), S. 12. A I R 1963 Madh Pra 218 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Another remedy open — Failure to avail of — Absence of exceptional circumstances — Dismissal of petition justified — Arms Rules (1951), Rr. 41, 41-A and Arms Act (1878), S. 17 (a).

In cases of cancellation of current licence for fire-arms and refusal to renewal of licence, an appeal under R 41-A and R. 41 respectively of the Arms Rules, 1951, is particularly appropriate, because the executive authority immediately superior to the licensing authority will be able to examine the factual correctness and the sufficiency of the reasons better than the High Court which is unconnected with such executive functions. Failure to appeal would justify the dismissal of the petition under Art. 226. 1961 M P L J (Notes) 291 : 1962 Jab L J 475 : A I R 1962 Madh Pra 133 (135) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 227—Other remedy open.

Where there is an adequate alternative remedy, the powers under Arts. 226 and 227 of the Constitution should not ordinarily be exercised. Hence, where the right of appeal can be invoked, it would be wrong for the High Court not to insist upon a proper appeal being filed but to resort to the extraordinary jurisdiction under Arts. 226 and 227 of the Constitution. 1958 M P L J 150 : 1958 Jab L J 168 : 1958 M P C 135 : A I R 1958 Madh Pra 224 (226) (Pt B) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Appeal under S. 188, See Customs Act — If bar to issue of writ — (Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 189.)

Where the Collector of Excise imposes a penalty on a person who is charged with smuggling gold besides the confiscation of the gold, it cannot be said that there is total absence of jurisdiction in the Collector so that a writ of certiorari would lie and that such person need not proceed by way of appeal. 1958 Mad W N 140 : 1958 Cri L J 778 : (1958) 2 Mad L J 115 : A I R 1958 Mad 306 (307) (Pt A) (Pr 1) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other effective remedy open — Payment of Wages Act (1936), Ss. 16 and 17.

A combined reading of the provisions of S. 16 and S. 17 of the Payment of Wages Act indicates that for the purpose of the pecuniary limit the total amount awarded by the Commissioner in a single application is the guiding factor. In a single application, whether filed by one employee or by employees belonging to the same unpaid group, the Commissioner can direct payment of wages or award compensation. When a single application can be filed by an unpaid group, it is reasonable to hold that for the purpose of appeal, the total amount awarded in that application should be taken into consideration. Clause (a) of S. 17 (1) confers a right of appeal on an employer if the total amount directed to be paid by him in a single application should exceed Rs. 300.

The absence of the words "unpaid group" in cl. (a) will not establish that in the case of an employer the total amount paid by him to each of the employees alone should exceed Rs. 300. As the employer has a right of appeal to the Court of Small Causes against the order of the Commissioner, the writ of certiorari asked for will not issue when the petitioner employer who has got an adequate remedy has not availed himself of it. 65 Mad L W 460 : 1952 Mad W N 591 : 1952-1 Mad L J 703 : A I R 1952 Mad 808 (809) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Right of appeal under Art. 136.

It is true that the writ of certiorari will not be issued if a party has other effective remedies. Under Art. 136 of the Constitution of India the Supreme Court's residuary power to grant special leave cannot be an effective remedy which the petitioners could have resorted to for, apart from the fact that the granting of special leave is within the discretion of the Supreme Court, it is not likely that the Supreme Court will grant special leave unless there are extraordinary circumstances. 1952 Mad W N 519 : (1952)

1 Lab L J 772 : (1952-53) 4 F J R 77 : 1952-2 Mad L J 805 : AIR 1952 Mad 659 (662) (Pt A) (Pr 2).

——Art. 226—Mandamus—Other remedy open.

Article 226 is not intended to give an alternative easy remedy to enable a person to move the High Court instead of seeking his ordinary remedy under the law. It should be used only in those exceptional cases where there is no adequate remedy and the application under Art. 226 is the only convenient, beneficial and effectual means of getting redress. Where the petitioner had his remedy in revision but he failed to avail himself of it, the Article could not be invoked. 1956 Cri L J 252 : AIR 1956 Manipur 11 (12) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Issue of writ of certiorari is matter of discretion — Equally efficacious remedy of appeal open to petitioner—High Court refused to exercise discretion in favour of petitioner.

The existence of other adequate legal remedies is not per se a bar to the issue of a writ of certiorari; in a proper case it may be the duty of the superior Court to issue a writ of certiorari in order to correct the errors of an inferior Court or tribunal exercising judicial or quasi-judicial functions and not to relegate the petitioner to other legal remedies available to him.

It is true that the availability of adequate alternate remedy is an aspect that has to be taken into consideration in exercising the discretion of the High Court. But this discretion being a judicial discretion, its limits are well defined. It will ordinarily be exercised subject to certain self-imposed limitations. Resort to that jurisdiction is not intended as an alternative remedy for relief which may be obtained otherwise. Ordinarily, the High Court will refuse to entertain a petition for a writ where the petitioner has an alternative remedy, which without being unduly onerous, is equally efficacious. AIR 1964 S C 1419, Rel. on.

From the decision announced by the Regional Transport Authority declining to grant to the petitioner the permit prayed for by him, the petitioner, instead of filing an appeal under S. 64 (a), Motor Vehicles Act as was done by a number of other applicants who were all refused the grant filed a writ petition in the High Court.

Held, that the petitioner could not be permitted to defeat the course of law by adopting an unreasonable attitude and that no compelling reasons which might justify interrupting the proceedings before the Authorities constituted under the Motor Vehicles Act, were shown to exist. (1965) 1 Mys L J 488 : AIR 1966 Mys 55 (57, 58: 60) (Pt A) (Prs 6, 7, 8, 18) (DB).

——Art. 226 and C. P. Land Revenue Act, Ss. 33. 128, 218 and 225 — Interference — D. C. imposing penalty on 20-8-45 for unauthorised quarrying—Petitioner not appearing but trying to reopen matter in recovery proceedings—High Court will not interfere under Art. 226.

A penalty was imposed on the petitioner by the D. C. on 20-8-45 for unauthorised quarrying. There was no appeal and recovery proceedings were started. The N. T. who was entrusted with the proceedings reported the matter for further instructions and the D. C. after satisfying himself that no deposit was made returned the case to N. T. with an endorsement that recovery of the amount be made. The endorsement was signed by an E. A. C. and the petitioner appealed to the D. C. who again called for a detailed report. The mining officer reported that there was due notice and enquiry before imposing penalty. The report was accepted. A revision to Government was dismissed.

Held, that the order dated 20-8-45 had become final and apart from the fact that it was passed before the Constitution, not having been challenged under the provisions laid down in the Land Revenue Act, the High Court will not interfere with it. AIR 1951 Nag 8, Foll. 1951 Nag L J (Notes) 186 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Appeal made available during pendency of petition—Mixed question of fact and law—Petition for writ—(Sales Tax — Orissa Sales Tax Act (14 of 1947) as amended by Act (26 of 1958), Ss. 9, 10, 11, 23 and 24).

Cases may arise where the unconstitutionality or the illegality of the order under challenge is so apparent that notwithstanding the existence of the alternative remedy the High Court may interfere under Art. 226.

Where the Orissa Sales Tax (Amendment) Act, 26 of 1958 provided right of appeal to the Tribunal against the Collector's order, the assessee should file a regular appeal to the Tribunal. Where when his application under Art. 226 was pending in the High Court the legislature conferred on him a regular right of appeal before an independent Judicial Tribunal, he should be directed to seek his redress before that Tribunal when the question involved is one of mixed question of law and fact. I L R (1960) Cut 129 : (1960) 11 S T C 12 : (1959) 10 J D 545 : AIR 1960 Orissa 79 (80, 81) (Prs 8, 11) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Life Insurance Corporation Act (1956), Ss. 11, 49 (2) (b) — Regulations under — Life Insurance Corporation of India (Staff) Regulation 1956 — Both new employees and old employees taken over by Corporation are governed by Regulations—Employee has a right of appeal against his dismissal under Regulation 42—Remedy of appeal not availed of — Writ petition is not maintainable — See Life Insurance Corporation Act (1956), S. 11. I L R (1963) 1 Punj 308.

——Art. 226 — Assessment of octroi duty under wrong item—Suit involving main issue whether goods fell under one item or other of octroi schedule—Jurisdiction of civil Court is barred under S. 86, Punjab Municipal Act (3 of 1911) — Remedy of appeal and reference under S 84, Punjab Municipal Act (3 of 1911) should be pursued. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9. AIR 1962 Punj 389 (FB).

——Art. 226 — Order of Collector refusing to make reference—Revision application is maintainable—That remedy being available writ refused and application treated as revision. See Land Acquisition Act (1894), S 18 (3). AIR 1956 Punj 231.

——Art. 226—Another remedy open — [Administration of Evacuee Preporty Act (1950), S. 26].

Where an order is passed by the Custodian leasing out the premises to another person and ejecting the petitioner, he has the right to go in revision under S. 26 of the Administration of Evacuee Property Act. If another remedy is open to the petitioner he cannot come to the High Court to invoke the extraordinary power of the Court. 53 Punj L R 11 S N Rel. on. 56 Punj L R 94 : I L R (1954) Punj 923 : AIR 1954 Punj 165 (166, 167) (Pt B) (Prs 1, 10).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Interlocutory order liable to be challenged in appeal against final decision — No writ maintainable against such order.

The High Court will decline to go into the merits of a writ petition directed against the interlocutory order of the Election Tribunal directing a recount of the ballot papers as the order can be challenged in an appeal against the final decision of the Tribunal. AIR 1959 S C 422 and AIR 1961 S C 1506 and AIR 1963 Raj 157 and Civil Writ Petn. No. 55 of 1962, D/- 25.3-1963 (Raj), Rel. on. I L R (1963) 13 Raj 766 : 1964 Raj L W 98 : AIR 1964 Raj 99 (101) (Pt A) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Issue of writ.

Where no part of the Income-tax Act is being attacked, there is no justification for the High Court to intervene under Art. 226 of the Constitution at an intervening stage of an income-tax proceeding when number of remedies by way of appeals which are not necessarily onerous are still open to the applicant under the Act. (1957) 32 I T R 592 : I L R (1956) 6 Raj 867 : 1958 Raj L W 183 : AIR 1957 Raj 54 (56, 57) (Pt B) (Pr 19) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Order under S. 7 (1), Administration of Evacuee Property Act by Deputy Custodian—Party failing to file appeal against order—Petition under Art. 226 cannot be maintained — Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), Ss. 7, 24. AIR 1955 NUC (Raj) 365 (DB).

——Art. 226—Another remedy open.

The extraordinary jurisdiction vested in the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution to issue writs cannot be invoked for the purpose of setting aside interim orders of inferior tribunals unless there are very special circumstances justifying the exercise of that jurisdiction.

Appeal against order of Road Traffic Board issuing permit—Central Road Traffic Board ordering grantee of permit not to put the buses on road until disposal of appeal or until stay was vacated.

Held, that the order was only an interim order and that the remedy of the grantee of the permit was to seek to get the interim stay vacated by the Central Road Traffic Board itself and not to invoke the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court at that stage. 1953 Ker L T 879 : ILR (1953) Trav Co 1039 : AIR 1954 Trav-Co 303 (304) (Prs 4, 7).

——Art. 226—Other effective remedy—(Income tax (1922), Ss. 23, 30 and 66).

Where the petitioner gets an opportunity for getting complete efficient and effective redress by way of appeal and further appeal and reference in the matter of his complaint regarding assessment to income-tax that is made by him in his petition under Art. 226 and when there is no legality or fatal irregularity in the pursuit or the procedure provided by the Income-tax Act or a usurpation or excessive exercise of jurisdiction, then a resort to the High Court for relief in exercise of the extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution cannot be permitted. I L R (1953) Trav.Co 173 : AIR 1953 Trav.Co 296 (298) (Pt C) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226 — Order under V. P. Cloth & Yarn Dealers' Licensing Order—Application for writ of mandamus instead of revision—Maintainability.

The applicant instead of moving J.C.'s court for the issue of any direction of the nature of writ against an order passed under the V. P. Cloth & Yarn Dealers Licensing Order 1948, should move the Government in revision under the Order as it is an easy expedient alternative remedy available. AIR 1951 Vind Pra 47 (49) (Pt D) (Pr 10).

7 (c). Appeal or revision or suit, when no adequate remedy.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Remedy provided by S. 7 F, U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947) is not equally adequate and efficacious alternate remedy.

Section 7-F of U. P. Control of Rent and Eviction Act can hardly provide an equally adequate and efficacious alternate remedy, as the very wordings of that section show that the matter is left entirely to the discretion of the State Government to call or not to call for the record of the case and to interfere or not. It is not a right given to the party. He cannot claim any relief as a matter of right, such as he could have done if there was remedy by way of an appeal. 1959 All L J 263, Rel. on. 1964 All W R (HC) 732.

——Art. 226—Income-tax Act (1961), Ss. 146 and 246—Existence of alternative remedy to petitioner is not absolute bar to the exercise of writ jurisdiction under Article—Income-tax Officer not allowing filing of voluntary returns by assessee and passing ex parte assessment order—Assessee filing appeal under S. 246 and also application under S. 146 for setting aside ex parte assessment — Petition under Art. 226 alleging mala fides and bias also filed—Held, that alternative remedy by way of appeal was wholly inadequate and not equally efficacious and hence the writ petition could be entertained—(Order of Income-tax Officer quashed under writ jurisdiction.) (1964) 2 I T J 396 (All).

——Art. 226—Issue of writs under — Existence of adequate legal remedy not an absolute bar—In spite of right to appeal, writ may be issued in special circumstances—Case whether appealable doubtful — Writ can be issued. 1961 All W R (HC) 142 : 1961 All L J 109.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Citizenship Act (1955), S. 9 (2)—Writ for declaration that petitioner had not forfeited his Indian citizenship by applying for Pakistan passport—Civil suit for declaration of petitioners's rights or petition to Central Government for declaration of his status—Not convenient and efficacious alternative remedies and no bar to issue of writ in petitioner's favour—Section 9 (2), Citizenship Act 1955, read with R. 30, Citizenship Rules, 1956, does not provide for any application being made to Central Government by person who claims to be Indian national but whose status is disputed by Indian authorities—AIR 1958 All 165 and Civil Misc. Writ No. 1920 of 1957, D/- 31-7-1957 (All), Dissent from. 1960 All L J 461 : 1960 All WR (HC) 346 : AIR 1960 All 637 (641) (Pt E) (Pr 9).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1962 S C 1052].

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Issue of writ.

Where the petitioner had been removed from the municipal board for objectionable conduct under S. 40 (3) of the U. P. Municipalities Act and fresh elections were likely to come within a few months and the petitioner if he were to file a suit in the civil Courts could not have obtained a final decision due to the congested state of the lists in those Courts, before the elections would be held.

Held, that in the circumstances the alternative remedy of suit was not an adequate remedy and therefore the petitioner was entitled to seek relief by way of a writ petition. 1957 All W R (HC) 864 : 1957 All L J 885 : AIR 1959 All 26 (28) (Pt D) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Failure to avail of, when does not bar application—(Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S, 64.)

The existence of another remedy is not an absolute bar to entertaining a petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution. All the circumstances and the facts of the case have to be taken into consideration and, if as a result of the consideration, the Court thinks that the justice of the case requires interference, it is open to the Court to interfere with the order, even though the other remedy was not availed of by the petitioner.

Thus although under S. 64 (f) of the Motor Vehicles Act any person, who has been providing transport facilities, will have a right to go up in appeal against an order granting a permit provided he opposes the grant of the permit before the Transport Authority. Yet where if an appeal had been filed the appeal may not have come up for hearing for months and the entire purpose of filing the appeal would have been frustrated because the period of temporary permits would have expired and there is also the additional fact that, according to the admissions contained in the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the State, a clear illegality is being committed by the department, the Court cannot shut its eyes to the illegality because the petitioners committed the mistake of not filing an appeal against the order. 1957 All L J 818 : 1957 All W R (HC) 824.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open— (Houses and Rents—U. P. Cantonments (Rent Control and Eviction) Act (10 of 1952), S. 10 (4))—Writ petition.

The power given under S. 10 (4) is revisional power given to the Central Government against the order passed by the Commanding Officer. That, however, gives no power to the Central Government to stay the operation of the order or to stay the ejectment of an occupant during the pendency of the revision proceedings. If an occupant is threatened with forcible ejectment he naturally needs an immediate relief and it cannot be said that relief, by way of revision would be equally adequate and efficacious so as to disentitle the occupant from obtaining any relief under Art. 226 of the Constitution. 1957 All L J 183 : 1957 All W R (HC) 35.

——Art. 226 — Another remedy open — Re-sale of Government forest produce—Deficit—Recovery of, as arrears of land revenue—Remedy by way of suit not adequate—Relief under Art. 226 is available—(Forest Act (1927), S. 82)—(Sale of Goods Act (1930), S. 54) —(Contract Act (1872), S. 73). AIR 1956 All 721 (723) (Pt B) (Pr 15) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Appeal under Art. 136, Constitution of India is not alternative remedy.

Where an order has been passed by the Labour Appellate Tribunal granting leave to the employer to dismiss workmen, an appeal to the Supreme Court by special leave under Art. 136, Constitution of India cannot be said to be an alternative procedure since such an appeal does not lie as of right. That is not an effective remedy and does not deprive the workmen of their right to apply to the High Court for the issue of a writ under Art 226 if the other circumstances justify it I L R (1957) 1 All 109 : (1957) 1 Lab L J 603 : AIR 1956 All 644 (648) (Pt B) (Pr 21) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Order of Municipal President refusing to accept withdrawal of resignation by municipal servant— Writ to quash such order — (Municipalities — U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 74).

There is no provision in the U. P. Municipalities Act which gives any statutory right to a servant of a Municipal Board to go up in appeal to the State Government against an order of the President refusing to accept the withdrawal of a resignation.

The remedy of the municipal servant to go up by way of a representation to the State Government entirely depends on the discretion of the State Government and cannot be regarded as an adequate and efficacious alternative remedy. (1956) 1 Lab L J 736 : 1955 All L J 676 : AIR 1956 All 70 (70, 71) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226 — Another remedy not adequate or efficacious—Petition can be entertained — Income tax Act (1922), S. 30.

Section 30 of the Income-tax Act (1922), which is the appeal section does not provide for the filing of any appeal against an order passed under S. 49E of that Act. But since in fact, the assessee was asking for a refund an appeal would lie against an order passed under S. 48, granting or refusing to grant a refund. But an appeal lies against an order of only the Income-tax Officer. Where no such order was passed by the Income tax Officer himself but there was an order issued after receiving the instructions of the higher authorities, in these circumstances, it would have been futile for the petitioner to have filed any appeal against the order of the Income-tax Officer. The remedy of an appeal, under circumstances, could not be said to be an adequate or efficacious remedy. Writ petition could therefore be entertained. (1956) 29 I T R 60 (All).

——Art. 226— Other remedy open — (U. P. District Boards Act (10 of 1922), S. 174 (2) (k)).

Where a District Board acting under bye-laws framed under S. 174 (2) (k) of U. P. District Boards Act has imposed heavy licence fee for running a brick-kiln, the owner, it is true, can go in appeal against the assessment order but this remedy is not equally efficacious as a petition for writ under Art. 226, Constitution of India, so as to deprive the brick-kiln owner of his remedy by means of a writ petition under Art. 226, Constitution of India. A I R 1952 All 753 (FB), Rel. on. A I R 1955 All 541 (542) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Other remedy open — Enhancement of municipal tax without hearing party — Appeal not preferred due to some incorrect action by Municipality—Petition for certiorari cannot be thrown out. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 1988.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Not equally efficacious.

The non-availability of a remedy is not a sine qua non of the exercise of powers under Art. 226 though if any equally efficacious remedy is available, the petitioner must have recourse to that remedy and not invoke the extraordinary powers of the High Court.

Where the remedy by way of a suit for declaration and mandatory injunction would not be equally efficacious and undue delay would result, the High Court has power to grant appropriate reliefs including one of possession under Art. 226 AIR 1952 All 746 and AIR 1953 S C 373. I L R (1958) 1 All 162 : AIR 1954 All 608 (622) (Pt H) (Prs 85, 86) (DB).

● ——Art. 226—Appeal provided in Act against orders under Act—No reasons given for orders—Remedy by way of mandamus — Motor Vehicles Act, 1939, Ss. 47, 64.

Where no order under the Act (Motor Vehicles Act) has been passed or at any rate no reasons are given for refusal to grant permanent permits, no question of an appeal under S. 64 arises. In such a case an appeal would not be as satisfactory a remedy as a writ of mandamus.

Per Sapru J.— The principle that mandamus will not issue where the applicant has not exhausted his right of appeal, is not a rule from which no deviation can be made in appropriate cases. It is, however, only in the most exceptional cases where the conduct of the authorities concerned is such as to make it clear that they have not been discharging their duties and are not likely to do so without the guidance of the Court, that the Court will be justified in issuing mandamus. Moti Lal v. Govt. of Uttar Pradesh, I L (1951) 1 All 269 : AIR 1951 All 257 (264, 265, 290, 316) (Pt C) (Prs 33, 160, 161, 302) (FB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — (Sea Customs Act (1878), Ss. 188 and 191).

Though two remedies are open to a petitioner, one by way of appeal under S. 188, the other a revision under S. 191 of the Sea Customs Act before the petitioner could avail of these remedies he has to deposit the entire amount under S. 189 of the said Act. Such a provision can hardly be described as an adequate alternative remedy. (1957) 2 Andh W R 207 : A I R 1958 Andh Pra 122 (124, 125) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Notification under S. 6, Land Acquisition Act—Intention of the Government to contribute portion of cost of acquisition not made manifest prior to notification — Remedy by suit not effective— Jurisdiction under Art. 226 can be invoked —(Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 6). (1956) Andh W R 1135 : AIR 1957 Andh Pra 686 (687) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open —Issue of writ.

Where subordinate Police officers after their conviction have been dismissed in violation of the mandatory provisions of the Madras Police Standing Order 77 and the effect of the general pardon granted by the Andhra government G. O. Ms. 26, dated 12-1-1954 has not been properly understood by the authorities, this is a fit case where the High Court should issue a a writ under Art. 226 even though the petitioners have not availed of the alternative remedy of an appeal under R 9 of the Madras Police Subordinate Services Discipline and Appeal Rules. 1956 Andh W R 682.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Other remedy open — Orders under Sea Customs Act — (Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 188).

The remedy of appeal provided by S. 188, Sea Customs Act is available only against orders under that Act and further is not an absolute bar to the exercise of the powers of the High Court under Art. 226. Where there was no justification in law for the issue of a notice to the petitioner demanding the payment of some money as customs duty the order if at all is without jurisdiction and the High Court will not stay its hands from giving relief to the petitioner on the ground that he could have approached the higher authorities under S. 188, Sea Customs Act. ILR (1958) 10 Assam 311 : A I R 1959 Assam 136 (138, 139) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 - Mandamus — High Court when will interfere.

No writ of mandamus should issue unless the circumstances are such that referring the petitioner to seek remedy in civil Court would almost make the result nugatory, or the relief delayed beyond measure. Breach of contractual obligations would always give a chance to the party to seek relief in civil Courts and a petition under Art. 226 is not a fit vehicle for seeking redress. Case-law Ref. ILR (1953) 5 Assam 263 : AIR 1953 Assam 145 (149) (Pt E) (Pr 27) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Writ against administrative order —S. 87, Sea Customs Act —(Sea Customs Act (1878), Ss. 87 and 188).

The reason why the Courts refuse to entertain writs when an alternative remedy is available is that the Legislature has set up tribunals for decision in appeals and that the remedy which the Court could give the petitioner could be obtained from these tribunals. But whether the petitioners should be disentitled to maintain the petition or not is a matter of discretion with the Court and if the Court is satisfied that the petitioner will not get justice from the appellate tribunal then the Court is not bound to accede to the submission that it should not hear the petitioner.

Where the Collector of Customs had clearly prejudged the decision of the appeal from an assessment order under S. 87, Sea Customs Act, the assessee cannot be compelled to go in appeal before him and the High Court would not refuse to entertain a writ application by the assessee under Art. 226 of the Constitution against the assessment order. 61 Bom L R 1 : ILR (1959) Bom 923 : AIR 1959 Bom 372 (380) (Pt F) (Pr 17) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Writ to quash order levying additional duty — (Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 189).

Where a person has to put in the entire amount demanded as additional duty, under S. 189, Sea Customs Act as a condition precedent for filing an appeal against an order levying additional duty complained of or for maintaining it, an appeal cannot be said to be an adequate alternative remedy. AIR 1958 S C 86, Foll. AIR 1958 Cal 694 (696) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Right of appeal under S. 30 (1-A), Income-tax Act—(Income-tax Act (1922), Ss. 18 (3-B), 30 (1-A)).

Where a statute requires the entire money to be paid or deposited before an appeal could be preferred, that is not an alternative remedy which is adequate. A I R 1954 S C 403, Foll. As an appeal under S. 30 (1-A), Income-tax Act is dependent on the petitioner aggrieved by an order under S. 18 (3-B) of the Act depositing the entire sum claimed to be chargeable, it is not an alternative remedy which precludes an application for a high prerogative writ. (1956) 30 I T R 525 : AIR 1956 Cal 450 (453) (Pt C) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226—Alternative remedy not adequate—Application under Art. 226 lies—(Income-tax Act (1922), S. 33-A). AIR 1955 N U C (Cal) 5917.

——Art. 226—Another remedy open—Unless party has right to have his case heard it cannot be said that he has adequate remedy at law—S. 33-A, Income-tax Act, gives discretion to Commissioner—Assessee cannot ask for his interference as matter of right—He cannot be said to have another adequate remedy. A I R 1955 N U C (Cal) 411.

——Art. 226—Alternative remedy not absolute bar.

As an alternative remedy is not an absolute bar to the Court exercising its jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution the existence of a remedy by way of suit does not prevent the Court from granting reliefs in appropriate cases, No hard and fast rule can be laid down as to cases in which the Court will or will not grant relief under Art. 226. Each case will depend upon its special circumstances. 57 Cal W N 157 : AIR 1955 N U C (Cal) 40.

——Art. 226—Another remedy open.

Final electoral roll published by registering authority — District Magistrate on appeal by some voter under S. 529-A, Bengal Municipal Act, ordering amendment of the Roll by removing certain persons— Petition under Art. 226 by a voter who had taken no steps to challenge the Final Electoral Roll as published by the registering authority and who had not preferred an appeal, for direction to amend and republish the Electoral Roll according to the District Magistrate's order.

Held, that if the order passed by the District Magistrate in appeal was a valid order and free from all blemish, the petitioner could take advantage of it and say that the amendment should have been carried out irrespective of whether the order of amendment was procured at his instance or not. A I R 1954 Cal 285 (288) (Pt C) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226 — Alternative remedy — (Sea Customs Act (1878), Ss. 188, 191).

The existence of an alternative remedy is not an absolute bar to the maintenance of an application for a writ. Further where the Central Board of Revenue had itself taken the action impugned, it can hardly be said that the alternative remedy under S. 188 of the Sea Customs Act and a further right of an application in revision to the Central Government under S. 191 was or would be an adequate remedy. 58 Cal W N 209 : A I R 1954 Cal 151 (157) (Pt I) (Pr 15) (DB).

——Art. 226—Alternative remedy not equally efficacious—Writ may be issued (Municipalities—Bengal Municipal Act (15 of 1932), Ss. 156, 535).

Section 535 of the Bengal Municipal Act under which no suit or legal proceedings can be brought against the Commissioners of the Municipality without giving them one month's prior notice does not abrogate the powers of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution.

Where a machine belonging to an occupier was seized under S. 156, Bengal Municipal Act, 1932, in execution of a warrant issued against the owner of the premises and if the occupier had pursued his ordinary legal remedies the result would have been that the machine would have been sold and lost to him before any effective action could have been taken the alternative remedy is not equally convenient or efficacious and under the circumstances, the occupier is justified in coming to the High Court for relief under Art. 226, for a writ against the administrator to forbear from levying distress illegally and in contravention of the Bengal Municipal Act. AIR 1954 Cal 131 (133, 134) (Pt C) (Pr 10).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction under — Exercise of — Existence of remedy by way of appeal — Special Officer hearing objections under S. 140, Calcutta Municipal Act, not giving opportunity to objector to place evidence.

The existence of an alternative remedy is not an absolute bar to the Court exercising jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Further the remedy by way of an appeal under the Calcutta Municipal Act would not be an adequate remedy in a case where the petitioner did not get any opportunity to place any material or evidence in support of the objections filed by him before the special officer who heard them under S. 140 of the Act. ('51) 55 Cal W N 667.

——Art. 226—Applicant having adequate remedy—Power of High Court to interfere—Order of attachment not within S. 46 (5-A) of Income-tax Act — Remedy provided by S. 33-A of that Act — If disentitles High Court from giving relief.

Under Art. 226 of the Constitution the High Court should not interfere if there is an adequate legal remedy provided in the statute itself. The remedy in question must be a specific remedy at law such which is not less convenient, beneficial and effective. Where an order of attachment of an Income tax Officer does not come within the four corners of S. 46 (5-A) of the Income-tax Act, the remedy provided by S. 33-A of that Act is not such a remedy which should disentitle the High Court from giving relief on an application under Art. 226 of the Constitution. (1951) 19 I T R 538 : 87 Cal L J 109 : A I R 1951 Cal 430 (434, 435) (Pt D) (Pr 16).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Gujarat Panchayat Act 1961 (6 of 1962), S. 131 (3) (ii) (a) — Order under S. 131, rendering petitioner disqualified to remain Chairman of Education Committee, in view of election of President of Panchayat as member of that Committee — Order neither resulting in any public inquiry nor showing any default in duty on part of Officer of Panchayat — Alternative remedy under Ss. 294 (6) and 296 (3) of the Act not open to petitioner—Writ petition maintainable—Gujarat Panchayat Act 1961 (6 of 1962), Ss. 131 (3) (ii) (a), 294 (6) and 296 (3). (1965) 6 Guj L R 329 : I L R (1965) Guj 326.

——Arts. 226, 227—Other remedy by way of revision open—Order of Land Acquisition Collector rejecting petition under S. 18, Land Acquisition Act — No bar to exercise of powers under Arts. 226 and 227—Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 18. A I R 1963 Him Pra 1 (2) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226—Prohibition—Forest Act (1927), S. 82—Loss sought to be recovered from petitioner as land revenue under S. 82—High Court can grant relief by issuing a writ in the nature of prohibition although remedy by way of suit is available, as the alternative remedy is not equally efficacious. See Forest Act (1927), S. 82. AIR 1960 Him Pra 30.

——Art. 226—Other remedies open.

Article 226 of the Constitution could not be construed so as to replace the ordinary remedies by way of suits, etc. Nevertheless, the Sales Tax Act has been introduced for the first time in Hyderabad in 1950. Being a taxing Statute it is but proper that any doubt with regard to the liability to tax is made clear by a decision of the highest Court in the State so that it may serve as a guidance to the taxing authorities. Remedy by way of a suit would not serve the purpose, for it would entail enormous delay. Under such circumstances remedy by way of certiorari alone would ensure a pronouncement by the Highest Court in the State. A I R 1950 S C 163, Foll. Konduri Buchi Raialingam v. State of Hyderabad, I L R (1953) Hyd 673 : AIR 1954 Hyd 1 (2, 3, 9) (Pt B) (Prs 4, 30) (FB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Court may issue a writ provided requisite grounds exist in spite of there being a right of appeal conferred on the petitioner by statute. A I R 1958 S C 86, Rel. on. 1961 Ker L T 423: 1961 Ker L J 577; (1961) 2 Lab L J 368: (1961) 3 Fac L R 166 : I L R (1961) 1 Ker 647.

——Art. 226 — Alternative remedy by way of suit available—Writ, when may be issued.

The real question to be considered is whether the alternative remedy is equally convenient, speedy, beneficial and effectual. And if the alternative remedy by way of suit is not equally efficacious the High Court will issue a writ under Art. 226; especially so, if the issue of a writ will be speedier and more beneficial than the remedy by way of suit. Case-law Ref AIR 1954 Kutch 11 (14) (Pt D) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Registrar cancelling without any power registration of sale deed made by Sub-Registrar — Certiorari to quash Registrar's order — Remedy of suit under S. 77, Registration Act, if available—Writ, whether can be refused on that ground — (Registration Act (1908), S. 77).

The Registrar cancelled the registration of a sale deed made by the Sub-Registrar. The sale deed was executed by the opponent in favour of the petitioner. The execution of the document validly presented had not been denied by the executant (opponent). In a petition under Art. 226 for certiorari to quash the order of the Registrar, it was urged for the opponent that the petitioner was not entitled to any relief as he had a remedy by way of suit under S. 77, Registration Act.

Held, that even assuming that it is open to the petitioner to file a suit for setting aside the Registrar's decision under S. 77, Registration Act, or a suit for registration or a suit for specific performance of the contract or for possession of the property, this doubtful remedy of a suit cannot be regarded as equally convenient and efficacious remedy when the Registrar had clearly no power to cancel the registration of a document made by the Sub-Registrar and the execution of the document validly presented had not been denied by the opponent.

If the opponent had not received the full price or any part of the price, it was a matter which the opponent had to contest only in a regularly constituted suit. But it was not a ground for refusing the writ. Madh Bha L R 1954 Civ 354 : Madh Bha L J 1954 H C R 1628 : A I R 1955 Madh Bha 205 (207) (Pt E) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Alternative remedy by way of revision under S. 115, C. P. Code — Alternative remedy was not adequate or sufficient—High Court not precluded from exercising discretion in writ proceedings even though alternative remedy by way of a revision lay in the case. AIR 1958 S C 86; A I R 1961 S C 1506 and AIR 1962 S C 1694, Rel. on. 1965 M P L J (Notes) 131.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Grant of permit under Motor Vehicles Act behind back of other permit-holder who could have opposed the grant — Fact of grant of permit becoming known after more than 30 days — Writ petition for cancellation of grant is maintainable, even though the remedy by way of appeal or revision was not availed of. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64 (f). 1964 Jab L J 127.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Certiorari — Central Excises and Salt Act (1944), Ss. 35, 36 — Remedies under—Availability of—No bar to invoke extraordinary jurisdiction of High Court under Art. 226, to quash proceedings under Act.

Mere availability of remedies under Ss. 35 and 36 of appeal and revision respectively is no bar for invoking the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution for issue of writ for quashing the proceedings taken under the Act. After there is an unsuccessful departmental appeal a revision under S. 36 of the Act is not an equally efficacious remedy. AIR 1958 S C 86 and A I R 1961 Madh Pra 154 (FB), Relied on. 1961 M P C 727 : 1961 Jab L J 1185 : ILR (1962) Madh Pra 197 : 1961 M P L J 1314 : A I R 1962 Madh Pra 112 (114) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — If bar to writ — Remedy of revision under section 64-A no bar for petition under Art. 226 — High Court however may decline to interfere in its discretion. See Motor Vehicles Act S. 64A. 1961 M P L J (Notes) 140.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

The scheme of Madhya Bharat Municipal Corporation Act is different from the Representation of the People Act, in that it provides an interim remedy against the rejection of the nomination paper. Cl. (3) of R. 31 of the Municipal Election Rules says that an order passed by Nirwachan Padadhikari would be final. In such a case the existence of another remedy in S. 441 of the Corporation Act is not, in every case, a bar to the exercise of the powers of a High Court under Art. 226 and the High Court can interfere if the circumstances of the case demand interference. AIR 1958 Madh Pra 181 and AIR 1955 Nag 49 (FB), Foll. 1958 Jab L J 227 : 1958 M P C 334 : 1959 M P L J 1222 : A I R 1958 Madh Pra 182 (183) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 4) ——Arts. 226, 311—Service agreement — Employee governed by State Bank of India (Sub-Accountants and Head Cashiers) Service Rules, 1959 — Termination of service under rules — Writ petition — Maintainability—Alternative remedy by way of suit for damages for breach of contract no bar.

The petitioner, who was a cashier in the former Imperial Bank of India, was taken over into the service of the State Bank of India under an agreement for service; and was governed by the State Bank of India (Sub-Accountants and Head Cashiers) Service Rules of 1959. His services were terminated under R. 14 of the said Rules. On his petition under Art. 226, it was contended on behalf of the State Bank that even though the State Bank was a public authority, the relationship between the State Bank and the petitioner was but that of ordinary master and servant and the termination of service as a unilateral act of the Bank, as an employer, was not like any other private employer subject to scrutiny under Art. 226. At the worst the remedy for wrongful termination was only to sue for damages for breach of contract of service :

Held, that the petition under Art. 226 could not be dismissed as not maintainable because the petitioner's case which had to be examined, was that the rules relating to his service were statutory and the order of termination being in effect an order of dismissal, it was in violation of those rules or of the principles of natural justice and therefore a nullity. The alternative remedy by way of a suit for damages might influence the discretion of Court but it did not limit the wide power under Art. 226. If the petitioner was unable to establish the grounds, the petition has to be dismissed as a result but not on the ground of maintainability of the petition. (1963) 2 Lab L J 304 : AIR 1964 Mad 335 (344) (Pt C) (Pr 12).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — When a bar to writ petition.

In Income-tax proceedings High Court can on a writ petition interfere with an order of an Income-tax Officer if the assessee has been illegally mulcted with a heavy payment of tax and such tax is likely to be recurrent for subsequent years, even though the assessee has a right of appeal against the order of the Income-tax Officer. (1964) 51 I T R 82 (Mad).

——Art. 226 — Order retiring Railway servant prematurely—Remedy—Application for writ of mandamus—Competency — Remedy by way of suit—Adequacy.

Where a person in the service of the Railway alleges that he is entitled to remain in service till 1963, but that the Railway passed an order that he must retire in 1957, wrongly entering his date of birth as 1902 instead of 1908, the most efficacious remedy is by way of an application for a writ of mandamus under Art. 226 of the Constitution. A suit is not the proper or appropriate remedy. (1958) 2 Mad L J 517 : 1958 Mad W N 623 : (1958) 2 Lab L J 324 : 71 Mad L W 864 : AIR 1959 Mad 88 (89) (Pt A) (Pr 1) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Effect — Proceedings by Collector to recover income-tax as arrears of land revenue — Property in name of person other than defaulter—Issue of writ (Income-tax Act (1922), S. 46)—(Madras Revenue Recovery Act (2 of 1864), S. 25).

Though an aggrieved party may have a right of suit, he will not be precluded from invoking the power of High Court under Art. 226 to obtain appropriate orders for preventing the Collector from proceeding to attach and sell property registered in his name for the recovery of arrears of Income-tax on the ground that the property is held benami for the defaulter. 70 Mad L W 234 : (1957) 31 I T R 460 : AIR 1957 Mad 376 (378, 379) (Pt B) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition — Right to issue when alternative remedy is open. See H. R. and Charitable Endowments Act (19 of 1951), Ss. 20, 21, Etc. AIR 1952 Mad 613 (DB).

——Arts. 226, 258 246, 162, 73 and Sch. 7, List 1, Entry 41—Imports and Exports (Control) Act (1947), S. 3—Imports and Exports (Control) Order (1955), Clauses

8, 9 and 10—Import Trade Control Policy for April to September, 1963—Para 51 — Other remedy open—Disposal of applications for import licence — State Government constituting committee including State Government Officer who was acting as sponsoring authority under Act—Order constituting committee amounted to encroachment upon exclusive jurisdiction of Union Government and sponsoring authority ought to have exercised its own individual judgment —Applications could not be said to have been finally disposed of—Any remedy by way of appeal against improper rejection of licences was not adequate and relief could be granted in writ petition. (1964) 1 Mys L J 513 : A I R 1965 Mys 143 (147, 148, 149) (Pt B) (Prs 10, 14, 15, 16) (DB).

——Art. 226—Another remedy — Remedy by way of appeal — No appellate tribunal notified in Gazette, though Motor Vehicles Act providing for one on the date of writ petition — Writ petition against order of Regional Transport Authority, lies — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64. (1964) 1 Mys L J 307 : AIR 1964 Mys 288 (290) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

A petition under Art. 226 cannot be thrown out on the ground that there is an alternative remedy by way of suit when the ordinary remedy by way of civil suit is not equally expeditious and effective to preserve the rights of the petitioner. ILR (1956) Nag 27 : AIR 1956 Nag 34 (36) (Pt A) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy if, a bar to exercise of power under Article.

Where the provision in the statute, which granted a remedy, was introduced shortly before the impugned orders, when it was not possible for the parties to comprehened its true scope and there was no authoritative decision as to whether the power of review conferred by the provision was unlimited or should be deemed to be circumscribed and one thing, however was certain that the clause in question did not extend to the parties any legal right, and the relief that it contemplated was only discretionary with the appellate authority, such a remedy, would not be a ground for refusing to exercise jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution. 1955 Nag L J 367 : I L R (1955) Nag 408 : A I R 1955 Nag 158 (159) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Held, though suit could be instituted it was not speedy and adequate remedy and hence application under Art. 226 was maintainable. AIR 1955 N U C (Nag) 1236 (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

Obiter—Where the remedy of a civil suit, even if available would not be equally efficacious and expeditious, it cannot serve as a bar to the granting of immediate relief under Art. 226 in appropriate cases. 1954 Nag L J 287 : ILR (1954) Nag 363 : AIR 1954 Nag 205 (206) (Pt D) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 – Prerogative writ—Power of High Court to issue—Alternative remedy.

The High Court will exercise the power when the ordinary remedy which exists is not really effective and the High Court may issue a writ of quo warranto where the alleged intrusion is patent. AIR 1951 Nag 138, Ref. I L R (1953) Nag 267 : 1953 Nag L J 503 : AIR 1953 Nag 81 (85) (Pt E) (Pr 19) (DB).

——Art. 226—Another remedy not adequate.

Where the ordinary process of law is not equally adequate or effective in safeguarding the right of the petitioner, it is but appropriate that the Court should exercise the power under Art. 226 to afford redress to the citizen. I L R (1951) Nag 959 : AIR 1951 Nag 138 (141) (Pt C) (Pr 20) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Application for writ—Maintainability.

Where a Hindu father has executed a surety bond guaranteeing the honesty of certain contractor and the contractor having committed default in making the payment an order is made directing recovery of the surety debt from the son of the surety, the Court can exercise its jurisdiction under Art. 226. The demand made on the son of the surety is prima facie unsustainable in law and the High Court would not be justified in putting the petitioner to harassment and expense of driving him to the Civil Court for establishing his right when the position leaves no room for doubt. 22 Cut L T 153 : A I R 1956 Orissa 144 (144) (Pt B) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Alternative remedy by way of regular suit not equally convenient or beneficial or effective—Application under Arts. 226 and 227 is maintainable. 18 Cut L T 267 : ILR (1952) Cut 615 : AIR 1953 Orissa 238 (239) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Another remedy open — Remedy by way of revision under S. 27, Administration of Evacuee Property Act, 1950 — (Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 27).

When another remedy is open to a petitioner the Court may refuse to entertain an application for grant of a writ of mandamus or for any other kind of prerogative writ but this rule is applied only where the alternative remedy is speedy as well as efficacious. The right to move the Custodian General under S. 27 cannot be regarded a remedy of that nature, because unlike the case of an appeal even if the petitioner succeeds in establishing that the proceedings resulting in the order of the Custodian were without jurisdiction and illegal the Custodian General is not bound to interfere and grant him the proper relief. 3 Pepsu L R 195 : AIR 1952 Pepsu 115 (118) (Pt B) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction of High Court not fettered by consideration of alternative remedy.

Though the jurisdiction of the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution is not fettered by any such consideration as that of alternative remedy, it is one of the things which must weigh with the Court in the exercise of its writ jurisdiction.

Where the questions involved are pure and patent questions of law and do not involve any question requiring any elaborate inquiry, a suit is not an equally efficacious alternative remedy to be adopted. ('66) 68 Pun L R 174.

——Arts. 226, 19 (1) (f) and 31—Other remedy open —Deprivation of property without notification under S. 4, Land Acquisition Act (1894)—Alternative remedy by way of civil suit available — High Court can still exercise its power where alternative remedy is not equally effectual and the petitioner is likely to suffer irretrievable loss and damage—AIR 1951 Pat 434, AIR 1952 All 753 and AIR 1952 Orissa 344, Rel. on. ('65) 67 Punj L R 616.

——Art. 226—Mandamus, writ of—Auction sale of excise licence—Highest bidder acquiring status of licensee after due compliance of law — Government not issuing any formal license but instead reauctioning same license without giving any reasons—Mandamus if can issue—Alternative remedy by way of suit for damages inadequate—Action of Government held was without jurisdiction and in violation of excise law—Writ issued. ILR (1963) 1 Punj 148 : AIR 1963 Punj 76 (86, 87) (Pt D) (Prs 31, 32, 35, 38) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy—Quo warranto—Discretion—(Municipalities — Punjab Municipal Act (3 of 1911), S. 240 — Election Rules under, by Pepsu, R. 52—Scope) - (Elections).

The power of the High Court cannot be affected by any legislative provision; in spite of anything contained in any legislative enactment, the High Court can issue such writs, directions and orders under Art. 226 of the Constitution, as they deem fit. R. 52 of the Election Rules framed by Pepsu under S. 240 of the Punjab Municipal Act only provides an alternative statutory remedy to call in question a Municipal Election. It cannot be said that when there is an adequate alternative remedy, an application to the High Court under Art 226 will not lie. All that can be said is that in such cases the High Court will not generally, in the exercise of its discretion grant the application and will refuse to interfere. The rule is only a rule of discretion and expediency and not one of jurisdiction or limitation on the power of the High Court. In the case of quo warranto also, the existence of alternative remedy, which is adequate for the needs of a case, is a matter to be taken into consideration in granting the writ. Where the proposed alternative remedy is not equally appropriate or efficacious and the circumstances of the case demand interference, the High Court will be well within its rights to exercise its discretion in favour of the petitioner and issue an appropriate writ, direction or order under the Article. ILR 1958 Punj 1938: AIR 1959 Punj 83 (87, 88) (Pt C) (Prs 15, 17) (DB).

——Art. 226 - Other remedy open—Objection to proceedings under S. 7, Administration of Evacuee Property Act dismissed -Same matter disputed in proceedings under S. 8 (4)—Appeal under S. 24 not filed — Matter can be agitated in proceedings under Art. 226 of the Constitution. See Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), S. 7. A I R 1957 Punj 197.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

The existence of an alternative remedy is not of itself a bar to the exercise of jurisdiction under Art. 226 and if in fact the existing alternative remedy is found not to be efficacious then an applicant should not be deprived of the remedy afforded to him by the Constitution 54 Pun L R 206 : A I R 1952 Punj 268 (269) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — If absolute bar to writ.

The circumstance, taken by itself, that an alternative remedy exists cannot operate as an absolute reason for the High Courts refusing to exercise jurisdiction irrespective of the surrounding circumstances of the case, and particularly where the alternative remedy cannot and would not be an equally convenient, speedy and efficacious remedy. ILR (1959) 9 Raj 821 : 1960 Raj L W 486 : AIR 1960 Raj 25 (43) (Pt I) (Pr 80) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Remedy by appeal or revision likely to be a farce—Interference under Art. 226—(Sales Tax—Rajasthan Sales Tax Act 29 of 1954), S. 10).

Where the main contention of the applicant under Art. 226 is that the assessment order of 8-12-1956 in Sales tax proceedings could not be passed at all because there was already an order of 17-5-1956 and the Additional Commissioner has already ruled administratively that the order of 17-5-1956 did not exist, the High Court would not refuse to interfere on the ground that the order of 8-12-1956 was open to appeal, etc., under the sales tax Act. 1957 Raj L W 431, Foll. ILR (1958) 8 Raj 947.

——Art 226—Order under S. 98 can be passed at stage of conclusion of trial only — Trial — Meaning of—Order made irrespective of stage of conclusion of trial dismissing petition—No appeal lies—Petition under Art. 226 of Constitution lies. See Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 98. 1959 Raj L W 421 : ILR (1958) 8 Raj 474.

——Art 226—Other remedy open — Issue of writ—(Municipalities - Rajasthan Town Municipalities Act (23 of 195), Ss. 12 (5), 207 and 210).

Section 210 does not authorise the Government to revise orders passed by an officer to whom its powers are delegated under S. 207. Where, therefore the Director of Local Bodies to whom the Government has under S. 207 delegated its powers under S. 12 (5) passes an order under S. 12 (5), the aggrieved party cannot be said to have any remedy under S. 210. 1957 Raj L W 500 : ILR (1957) 7 Raj 993 : AIR 1958 Raj 91 (92) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open —(Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64).

On the direction by the Regional Transport Authorities to the Superintendent of Police, to take action against the applicant in the matter of permits which were not counter-signed, petition was filed under Art. 226. Objections to it were taken that the applicants had a remedy by way of appeal under S 64 (d) Motor Vehicles Act and that they could even file a suit for declaration and injunction. There was no order of the Regional Transport Authority refusing to countersign the permit and all that was urged in the writ petition was that the prayer for counter-signature was not accepted and therefore that amounted to a refusal ;

Held that the right of appeal arises under S. 64 (d) when there is a refusal to counter-sign, and such refusal can only be by an order of the Regional Transport Authority to that effect. In the circumstances it was not possible for the applicant to appeal to the higher authority and hence the objection to the writ petition was not maintainable. ILR (1956) 6 Raj 44 : 1956 Raj L W 359.

——Art. 226—Other remedy.

Notice on applicant to deposit amount of illegal fine on the threat of attachment of Jagir — Petition under Art. 226 held maintainable—Remedy of suit and injunction held would not be equally effective, beneficial and convenient. 1954 Raj L W 543 : ILR (1954) 4 Raj 743 : AIR 1954 Raj 200 (202) (Pt F) (Pr 8) (DB).

● ——Art. 226—Other remedy by way of suit.

The fact that suit would involve consideration of Articles of Constitution and would therefore be tried by the High Court, is immaterial, for even if the suit were to be tried by High Court it would be basically different from the procedure which is adopted in the disposal of writ applications. If and when a suit is filed, both parties will have an opportunity to lead their full evidence, definite issues will be fixed and tried, and when all that will have been done, the Court would be in a far better position to appreciate and adjudicate upon the complex nature of the right claimed and to decide the further question whether such a right was enforceable at law. (To such a case the more appropriate provision that would apply is Art. 226 and not S. 113 (as amended) of Civil P. C.), Manohar Singh v. State of Rajasthan, 1955 Raj L W 98 : ILR (1954) 4 Raj 113 : AIR 1954 Raj 85 (96) (Pt E) (Pr 35) (FB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—(Matsya Customs Ordinance (1948), S. 48).

Impugned order under S. 48 of Matsya Customs Ordinance of the Deputy Commissioner, Customs and Excise, Jaipur Division, without jurisdiction—Property of a very great value involved—High Court would not be justified in dismissing the application under Art. 226 on ground of there being an adequate and alternative remedy by way of a regular suit. AIR 1953 Raj 22, Rel. on. 1953 Raj L W 47 : I L R (1952) 2 Raj 511: AIR 1953 Raj 158 (162) (Pt D) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Another remedy by way of suit — Arguments in petition under Art. 226 heard — Validity of certain Ordinances challenged — If suit were filed, the question would have been referred for opinion of High Court under proviso to S. 113 Civil P. C. — Application under Art. 226 would not be dismissed.

Normally a person who is deprived of his property has a right to file a suit and should go to the Civil Court and should not invoke the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court.

But the High Court would not dismiss the application under Art. 226, challenging the validity of certain Ordinances after having heard the arguments, on the ground that the applicant has another remedy by way of a suit, where if the suit were filed the only point that would arise for its decision would be whether Ordinances were void in view of certain provisions of the Constitution and under recent amendment of S. 113, Civil P. C., that question would have to be referred to the High Court for its opinion. 1952 Raj L W 81 : ILR (1951) 1 Raj 888 : AIR 1953 Raj 22 (24, 25) (Pt B) (Prs 7, 8) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Expediency of writ — (Houses and Rents—Travancore-Cochin Buildings (Lease and Rent Control) Order (1950)).

Clause 16 of the Travancore-Cochin Buildirgs (Lease and Rent Control) Order, 1950, gives a revisional jurisdiction to the Government and normally the High Court would be inclined to direct a party aggrieved to exhaust his normal remedy by way of revision before he approaches the High Court. Where however the Appellate authority having heard the appeal at Ernakulam took seven months to pronounce his order at Trichur without notice to parties and on the next day of the order it resumed its work at Ernakulam, the long delay that occurred and in view of the fact that two months' time granted to the tenant had already lapsed, the High Court could interfere at that stage and exercise the powers under Art. 226. 1955 Ker L T 392 : I L R (1955) Trav-Co 572 : AIR 1957 Trav-Co 177 (179) (Pt B) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 226 (1) — Certiorari — Industrial Tribunal under misapprehension as to points that arose before it for decision—Misapprehension appearing on face of order granting interim award—High Court would issue writ of certiorari even assuming that appeal would lie against such award—(Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 15). AIR 1953 Trav Co 167 (171, 172, 173) (Pt D) (Prs 9, 10).

7 (d). Burden as to.

——Art. 226—Another remedy open.

The remedy under Art. 226 is apparently extraordinary and should avail only when recourse to ordinary law cannot lead to adequate and prompt redress or where failure or miscarriage of justice flowing from the act complained of cannot otherwise be averted. It is not merely the existence of an alternative remedy that should justify declining action under Art. 226. It is only when adequate and prompt relief is available otherwise that Art. 226 would not be permitted to be utilised as an easy and inexpensive substitute for it. To pursuade the Court to grant discretionary relief immediately by an extra-ordinary process it should be for the petitioner to show if he has alternative remedy that the recourse to it would not bring him adequate and prompt relief. ILR (1951) 3 Assam 348 : AIR 1951 Assam 163 (167) (Pt F) (Pr 30) (DB).

——Art. 226—Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act (67 of 1948), S. 32—Section cannot be impugned on the ground that it purports to take away the jurisdiction of the High Court under Arts. 226 and 227. See Tenancy Laws — Bombay Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act (67 of 1948), S. 32. AIR 1957 Bom 252.

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1959 S C 459]

——Art. 226—Alternative remedy is not bar to application under Article — However applicant must satisfy Court that alternative remedy is not adequate.

An alternative remedy by itself is no bar to an application under Art. 226. But before such an application can be entertained and relief granted to an applicant, he must satisfy the Court that the alternative remedy would not be sufficient or adequate or would be infructuous. AIR 1957 S C 882 ; AIR 1950 S C 163 ; AIR 1964 S C 1451, AIR 1961 S C 1506; AIR 1958 S C 86 and AIR 1964 S C 506, Rel. on. ('65) 69 Cal W N 439.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Issue of writ.

Where an adequate alternative remedy lies, then unless very good reasons are shown, an application for a writ will not lie. 62 Cal W N 169 : (1959) 1 Lab L J 374 : AIR 1958 Cal 633 (634) (Pt B) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Burden of proof.

The burden lies on the applicant asking the High Court to exercise the jurisdiction under Art. 226 to show that he had no other specific and adequate legal remedy or that the remedy of a suit is not convenient, beneficial or effectual and one by which justice could be satisfactorily obtained by him. I L R (1953) Madh B 393 : AIR 1953 Madh B 165 (169, 171) (Pt B) (Prs 8, 12) (DB).

——Art. 226 (1)—Other remedy open — Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45, Proviso (d) — Mandamus — Application for—Existence of other remedy—Effect of—Burden of proof.

Normally, the High Court will not issue a writ where there is an alternative remedy. But there is not absolute bar to entertaining writ petitions and issuing a writ, when the alternative remedies are, in the opinion of the Court, not effective, speedy, adequate or sufficient. The facts of each case have to be considered before deciding whether the alternative remedies are speedy, effective, sufficient or adequate. AIR 1956 Mad 454, Rel. on.

It is for the petitioners to satisfy the Court that they cannot get the remedy in a regular action for mandamus. (1956) 26 Com Cas 431: 70 Mad L W 28: (1957) 1 Mad L J 254 : ILR (1957) Mad 383 : AIR 1957 Mad 309 (317) (Pt E) (Prs 20, 21).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Right to apply for writ — Burden of proof — (Administration of Evacuee Property (Central) Rules (1950), R. 22).

The remedy provided for in Art. 226 is a discretionary remedy and the High Court has always the discretion to refuse to grant a writ if the aggrieved party has an adequate or suitable alternative remedy. A petitioner who applies for a writ of certiorari to quash the order of the Assistant Custodian declaring a person evacuee and his property an evacuee property has a remedy under R. 22, Administration of Evacuee Property Rules. The burden of proving that the alternative remedy is not adequate or equally efficacious is on the petitioners. A I R 1956 Sau 47 (50, 51) (Pt D) (Pr 7) (DB).

7 (e). Contractual rights.

——Art. 226—Availability of other remedy — Market owned by Municipality — Matter is one of contract between parties — Rights and obligations can be enforced by suit—Enhancement of rent—High Court will not restrain Municipality under Art. 226. A I R 1955 N U C (All) 4431.

——Art. 226—Scope — Withdrawal of permission to carry on occupation of petition writer in collectorate compound — Remedy is by way of suit for breach of contract and not by a petition under Art. 226. See Ibid, Art. 19 (1) (g). A I R 1954 All 317 (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Writ petition—Whether maintainable.

The Income tax Officer having issued a certificate under S. 46 (2) of the Income tax Act to the Collector of Bombay, the latter issued a prohibitory order under O. 21, R. 46, Civil P. C. prohibiting and restraining the respondent firm from making any transfer of shares belonging to the respondent but standing in the name of the petitioner as a benamidar of the respondent. The petitioner therefore filed a petition under Art. 226 challenging the prohibitory order and praying for the issue of a writ of mandamus.

Held, that assuming that he had, however, an interest in the property in question, it was not right nor proper to allow him to take out a petition which invoked the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court and to make that petition an arena to resolve the differences between the partners inter se. 60 Bom L R 748: A I R 1959 Bom 102 (106) (Pt B) (Pr 14).

——Art. 226—Scope — Order under Administration of Evacuee Property Act—Issue of writ — Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), Ss. 2 (f) and 7—Other remedy open.

Held, on facts that the title was still with the Evacuee and the Custodian was prima facie entitled to take actual possession; that if the petitioner who was the final transferee of the field sold had any claim to the property by virtue of certain contract it was for him to establish those claims in an ordinary Court and that High Court would not entertain such claims under Art. 226, Constitution of India. 1958 Nag L J (Notes) 21.

——Art. 226 — Constitution of Jammu and Kashmir, S. 103—Scope—Contractual rights — Other remedy available — Power of High Court to issue writ. See Constitution of Jammu and Kashmir, S. 103. A I R 1959 J & K 10.

——Art. 226 — Contract with Government under provisions of certain Government Orders — Contract alleged to be result of duress — Proper remedy is by civil suit and not by petition under Art. 226.

Where a person enters into a contract with the Government under certain provisions of Government Orders, a petition under Art. 226 for a declaration that the contract was void because of duress etc. is hardly the correct remedy and the proper course for the person is to go to a civil Court and file a regular suit. A I R 1951 Pat 231 and A I R 1952 Cal 496, Rel. on. I L R (1952) Patiala 482: A I R 1953 Pepsu 9 (11, 12) (Pt B) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226 — Alternate remedy — Breach of contract—Issue of writ.

On demand of previous dues for the supply of electrical energy made by the Electrical Department of Rajasthan Government, the consumer company filed a writ petition urging that their consumptions were at concessional rates as per sanction accorded by the then Jaipur Government and that the demand of the present Rajasthan Government at the normal rates was in breach of that contract. The State Government denied any such contract.

Held, that even assuming that there was a case of a breach of contract, the consumer company has its remedy by way of a suit. 1959 Raj L W 439: I L R (1959) 9 Raj 786: A I R 1959 Raj 275 (277) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

Where the contract was concluded between the State and the applicant, and later the State went back on that contract, and decided to call for fresh tenders the High Court should not exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction under Art. 226 as even if there has been a breach of the contract, a specific, adequate and convenient remedy is available by a suit for damages for breach of contract. As the damage done can be compensated for by a decree for damages, the fact that the applicant would have had to give notice under S. 80 of the Code of Civil Procedure and could not file the suit for two months does not mean that that there was not an adequate remedy available to him. A I R 1947 Cal 307, Rel. on. 1952 Raj L W 66: I L R (1951) 1 Raj 755: A I R 1952 Raj 151 (151, 152) (Prs 4, 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Both in the matter of mandamus and other appropriate directions under Art. 226 the powers under Art. 226 are extraordinary powers and should be sparingly used under law, only in those cases where the rights of a person have been seriously infringed, and he has no other adequate and specific remedy available.

The relationship between the petitioner and the State of Rajasthan was that of a lessee and lessor, a lease deed had been executed between them. There were a number of terms in the lease-deed and under one of the terms the lessors had been given a right to distrain as well as to re-enter on the leased land. It was disputed between the parties whether there was any amount due from the petitioner and if so, whether the conditions giving rights of distraint and of re-entry had accrued.

Held, that the petitioner had another remedy against the opposite party by way of a regular suit and for an injunction restraining the opposite party from realising the amount of dues and also for the recovery of possession of the leased property, which had been re-entered upon by the opposite party. Case law discussed. 1951 Raj L W 426: I L R (1951) 1 Raj 496 (DB).

7 (f). Costly or ineffective.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Existence of alternative remedy is not an absolute bar — Alternative remedy not equally adequate or efficacious where vires of Rule is under challenge—Court is competent to quash orders passed under ultra vires Rule even though alternative remedy is available. A I R 1964 Ker 131 (FB) Rel. on. (1965) 16 S T C 21: A I R 1965 All 483 (486) (Pt B) (Pr 10).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Banaras Hindu University Act (1915) (asamended by Act 55 of 1951), S. 5 (7) and Statute No. 22 — Disciplinary action taken against students by Standing Committee—Issue of writ.

The Standing Committee is the executive of the Academic Council and, according to Statute No. 22, the duties of the Standing Committee are subject to revision and control of the Academic Council. By sub-s. (7) of S. 5 of the Act the visitor has been authorised to annul any proceeding of the University. The language of Statute No. 22 and of sub-s. (7) of S. 5 of the Act can be interpreted only to mean that wide powers had been conferred on the above Authorities, but neither the Statute nor the sub-section conferred any right on the students to take their cases to these Authorities. It was in the absolute discretion of these Authorities to entertain the representations or to refuse to look into them. As such, they could not be said to afford an adequate remedy to the petitioners justifying the rejection of the writ petitions on this ground. A I R 1960 All 256 (262, 263) (Ft B) (Prs 31, 39).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Effect.

The existence of an alternative remedy does not prevent writ petitions being entertained or a remedy by way of a writ being afforded to aggrieved parties, if that alternative remedy is not efficacious or involves the party in expenses and harassment. (1958) 33 I T R 457 : (1958) 1 Andh W R 322.

——Art. 226 — Alternative remedy — Long and tedious.

The fact that the petitioners have another remedy is no bar to a petition under Art. 226 where it is directed against the orders of the Government which have no justification in law and constitute an unauthorised attack on the petitioner's rights, and where it would be sheer harassment of the petitioners to be left to follow a long and tedious remedy by way of a suit. ILR (1954) 6 Assam 347 : AIR 1955 Assam 45 (46, 47) (Pt B) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Existence of alternative remedy no bar to jurisdiction, particularly when interference with impugned decision would save costs and avoid further judicial proceedings. 65 Mah L J (Notes) 62.

——Art. 226 —Other remedy open — Petition under Art. 226 Maintainability — (Life Insurance Corporation Act (1956), S. 11)— (Specilic Relief Act (1877), S. 45).

Where the powers of the Life Insurance Corporation of India and of the Central Government to alter under s. 11 of the Life Insurance Corporation Act, 1956, the pay scale and other conditions of service of the employees of the insurer units taken over by the Corporation are challenged, a petition for the issue of a writ is the proper remedy for the purpose. An application under the Industrial Disputes Act. 1947 or the Payment of Wages Act is not an adequte legal remedy. 60 Bom.L R 318 : AIR 1958 Bom 451 (455) (Pt A) (Prs 9, 10)

——Art. 226— Alternative remedy—Statute requiring appellant to deposit full amount of duty demanded pending appeal —Remedy being onerous and burdensome is not adequate alternative remedy—Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 189. A I R 1954 S C 403 Foll. 69 Cal W N 328 : AIR 1965 Cal 428 (433) (Pt A) (Pr 14).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Remedy by way of appeal — Applicability of Income-tax Act (1922), S. 30 (1-A).

Under S. 30 (1-A), a person who denies his liability to make a deduction under S. 18 (3-A) and to pay the amount deducted can prefer an appeal only if he has actually deducted and paid the tax And when a statute requires the entire amount to be paid or deposited before appeal can be preferred, the alternative remedy by way of an appeal is not an adequate remedy. The company can in such a case move the High Court by a petition under Art. 226 A I R 1954 S C 403, Rel. on. (1958) 33 I T R 866 : (1957-58) 12 F J R 324 : A I R 1957 Cal 514 (519) (Pt B) (Pr 18) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Interference under — Attachment order under S. 46 (5 A), Income Tax Act — Revision of—Income-tax Act, 1922, S. 33-A.

If there is an adequate legal remedy provided in the Statute itself then High Court should not interfere under Art 226 of the Indian Constitution. But the remedy in question must be a specific remedy at law which is not less convenient, beneficial and effective.

Where the petitioner sought under Art. 226 the revision of an attachment order passed by the Income Tax Officer under S. 46 (5.A), Income Tax Act, as it was inconsistent with the order for instalment passed by the Collector subsequently.

Held that the remedy provided by S. 33A was not such a remedy which would disentitle the Court from giving relief under Art. 226 of the Constitution. (1951) 19 I T R 538 : 87 Cal L J 109 : AIR 1951 Cal 430 (434, 435) (Pt D) (Pr 16).

—Arts. 226 and 133—Other remedy open—Remedy by suit — Dismissal of application under Art. 226—Expensiveness of remedy whether ground for the petition to succeed. See Ibid, Art. 133. AIR 1956 Him Pra 25.

—— Art. 226 —Order under S. 167, Sea Customs Act for confiscation and imposition of fine - Heavy sums imposed as fine by the order — Appeal to Central Board of Revenue not only very expensive but also not an effective remedy in the circumstances—Held, the absence of an explanation in the affidavit as to why the petitioner did not avail of the alternative remedy did not bar the exercise of jurisdiction by the High Court under Art. 226—Sea Customs Act (1878) S. 167 (3) 1962 Mad W N 302 : 1962 Mad L J (Cri) 659 : 75 Mad L W 276 : (1962) 2 Mad L J 499 : AIR 1962 Mad 366 (367) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Removal of President under S 47 (4), Madras Village Panchayats Act — Remedy under S. 47 (4) — Madras Village Panchayats Act (10 of 1950), S. 47 (1) and (4).

The general rule is that the High Court does not interfere by the issue of a writ of certiorari or grant such extraordinary remedies when there is another convenient and adequate legal remedy open to a petitioner. But where action under S. 47 was taken by the Inspector against the President of a Panchayat Board only after prior consultation with the Government, the alternative remedy given by S 47 (4) which empowers the Government to cancel the notification under S 47 (1) is really illusory and his petition under Art. 226 ought not to be rejected on the ground that he should seek his remedy at the hands of the Government. (1955) 2 Mad L J 116 : 1955 Mad W N 639 : 68 Mad L W 419 : A I R 1955 Mad 584 (586) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Application for writ of certiorari — Existence of other remedy—Effect.

The existence of other remedy is not a bar to the High Court's entertaining an application in 'certiorari.'

Held, on facts, that the order dismissing the petitioner from service was ultra vires and void and it would be unjust, if not cruel, to deny the petitioner the benefit of that adjudication as pursuit of the remedy in another Court meant further expenses and delay. A I R 1956 Trav-Co 35 (41, 42) (Pt E) (Prs 24, 29).

7 (g) Fundamental rights, infringement of.

——Art. 32 — Applicability — Alternative remedy open—If bar to petition under Art. 32.

Even if the existence of other adequate legal remedy may be taken into consideration by the High Court in deciding whether it should issue any of the prerogative writs on an application under Art. 226 of the Constitution, the Supreme Court cannot, on a similar ground, decline to entertain a petition under Art 32, for the right to move the Supreme Court by appropriate proceedings for the enforcement of the rights conferred by Part 3 of the Constitution is itself a guaranteed right. The mere existence of an adequate alternative legal remedy cannot per se be a good and sufficient ground for throwing out a petition under Art. 32 if the existence of a fundamental right and a breach, actual or threatened, of such right is alleged and is prima facie established on the petition A I R 1950 S C 163 and A I R 1950 S C 124, Rel. on. Kochunni Nayar v. State of Madras, (1959) Supp (2) S C R 313 : 1959 Ker L J 464 : (1959) 2 S C A 248 : 1959 S C J 858 : (1959) 2 Andh W R (S C) 70 : (1959) 2 Mad L J (S C) 70 : A I R 1959 S C 725 (729, 730) (Pt A) (Pr 8).

——Arts. 32, 226—Petition under Art. 226 complaining breach of fundamental rights — Existence of alternative remedy under the impugned Act.

The powers of the Supreme Court under Art. 32 and of the High Court under Art. 226 are concurrent and if the Supreme Court cannot refuse the application of any petitioner who comes before it complaining of contravention of fundamental rights equally so the High Court cannot refuse to entertain the application of a person who comes before it under Art. 206 on the ground that his fundamental rights should be protected.

The principle that a Court will not issue a prerogative writ when an equally adequate alternative remedy is available which has always been applied when the Court is called upon to issue writs like writs of certiorari and mandamus would not, therefore apply when a party comes to the Court with the allegation that his fundamental rights have been contravened and he wants relief from the High Court under Art. 226. AIR 1950 S C 124, Rel. on.

Further though the Bombay Sales Tax Act, 1952 provides the machinery for challenging the Act, when the petitioners contend that the authorities under the Act have no right to assess them because the Act is ultra vires of the Legislature, they are challenging the very authorities who are supposed to decide the assessment made against them. It is not open to those authorities to decide whether the very statute of which they are the creatures is a valid statute or not. Moreover, the jurisdiction of those authorities is limited to decide questions regarding the validity of the assessment, but no jurisdiction has been conferred upon them to adjudicate upon the validity of the Act on the ground that it affects the fundamental rights of the petitioners. AIR 1947 P C 78, Disting. ('53) 55 Bom L R 246 : (1953) 4 S T C 10 (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1953 S C 252.]

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Violation of fundamental rights made out—Existence of adequate other remedy not a bar to exercise of jurisdiction under Art. 226.

The existence of an alternative remedy is not a bar to the existence of jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. It is one of the factors germane to the exercise of it. When violation of fundamental rights has been made out, it will be a sound exercise of discretion to exercise these powers and undo the mischief. (1965) 2 I T J 85: A I R 1966 All 176 (181) (Pt F) (Pr 26).

——Arts. 226, 19 (1) (f) and (g) —Imposition of sales tax—Infringement of fundamental right —Validity of Sales Tax Law challenged—Relief through writ petition is a more proper remedy — Existence of alternative remedy, no bar to issue of writ. AIR 1964 All 284 (288) (Pt B) (Prs 10, 11).

——Art 226 - Certiorari—Cancellation of motor permit under S. 60, Motor Vehicles Act—Application for writ made on allegation of infringement of fundamental right to ply vehicle — Petitioner also pleading that S. 60, Motor Vehicles Act was ultra vires—Petition is maintainable even if alternative remedy by way of appeal under S. 64, Motor Vehicles Act, available to petitioner, is adequate AIR 1954 S C 403, Rel. on It is maintainable also because it involved consideration of constitutional validity of S. 60, Motor Vehicles Act. Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 60 and 64. 1962 All L J 116.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Infringement of fundamental rights.

The principle that a Court will not issue a prerogative writ when an adequate alternative remedy was available could not apply where a party comes to the Court with an allegation that his fundamental right has been infringed and seeks relief under Art. 226. AIR 1953 S C 252 and AIR 1954 S C 403, Foll. 1955 All L J 860 : AIR 1955 All 653 (656) (Pt A) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226 – Another remedy open—Application for sanction for scheme under S. 204, U. P. Municipalities Act—Applicant reminding Board of failure to sanction—Applicant treating scheme as sanctioned —Board warning people against purchasing plots from applicant — Application under Art. 226 held called for. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 2778.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy available - Infringement of fundamental right—Duty of Court.

Though it cannot be said that in all cases in which there is an infringement of a fundamental right a relief under Art 226 should be granted necessarily, nevertheless the Court must in each case see whether in the circumstances it would be more convenient, effectual and beneficial to grant relief by means of a writ than to ask the applicant to seek it by a regular suit. 1952 All L J 163 : 1952 All W R (HC) 241 : 1952 R D (H C) 161 : I L R (1953) 1 All 216 : A I R 1952 All 836 (838) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

—Art. 226—Jurisdiction—Palayam enfranchised as Inam –If Zamindary Estate — Government seeking to take over possession and management—Other remedy. See Tenancy Laws — Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act (26 of 1948), S. 2 (16) (ii). AIR 1957 Andh Pra 23.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open— Exceptions to rule.

The two exemptions to the ordinary rule that the Court will not give relief by means of a writ when the petitioner can get the same relief by ordinary legal remedies available to him are these : One is that if the threat involves an encroachment upon the fundamental right of the petitioner, the Court will interfere and will not compel him to exhaust his legal remedies, and the other exception is that if the authority against whom a complaint is made has violated rules of natural justice, the Court will interfere and protect the petitioner. 58 Bom L R 184 : (1956) 29 I T R 856 : I L R (1956) Bom 374 : A I R 1956 Bom 530 (534) (Pt D) (Pr 12) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1963 S C 1356.]

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open—If bar to writ—Order opposed to fundamental principles of justice—Quashing of. See Ibid, Art. 226. A I R 1952 Bom 213.

——Arts. 226, 286, 19 (1) (g) — Fundamental right violated — Question of alternative remedy as a bar does not arise.

Where fundamental rights are violated, the question of alternative remedies as a bar to relief under Art. 226, does not arise. It is, also settled that the imposition of a sales tax in contravention of the prohibition contained in Art. 286, constitutes an infringement of the fundamental right guaranteed to the assessee under Art. 19 (1) (g). AIR 1953 S C 252 and AIR 1954 S C 403, Rel. on. 68 Cal W N 776 : A I R 1965 Cal 236 (241) (Pt B) (Pr 37).

——Art. 226—Fundamental rights of persons interfered with — Adequate remedy provided in law—Jurisdiction of High Court under Art. 226 if can be invoked.

The extreme proposition namely, that under S. 226 of the Constitution the Court has power to grant relief only in cases where either the State or an officer of the State interferes with the fundamental rights of the subject, is not acceptable. However, if adequate and specific remedy has been provided in law and a subject whose fundamental rights have been interfered with can take recourse to the ordinary course of law, the jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constition should not be invoked in such circumstances.

Thus, where it is alleged that a policeman who was posted to keep watch over the petitioner's activities, intimidated the petitioner's customers but it had not been established that such alleged intimidation took place by virtue of any instructions received from any higher authorities then the remedy open to the petitioner in such a case is to file either civil or criminal proceedings, against the particular policeman or if he can establish that the higher authorities are concerned in the matter, he may take appropriate proceedings against them as well as in an appropriate court of law. In such a case the High Court will not pass any order under Art. 226. 1952 Cri L J 345 : I L R (1952) 1 Cal 94 : A I R 1952 Cal 137 (138, 139) (Prs 10, 11).

——Arts. 226 and 311 — Another remedy open — Fundamental principle of justice not violated — Dismissal from Government service — High Court will not interfere.

Unless a fundamental principle of justice appears to have been violated, the High Court will refuse to interfere under Art. 226 by issuing a writ against the Collector who has dismissed the petitioner from Government service when such servant has an adequate and specific remedy by way of appeal to the Financial Commissioner which he did not choose himself to avail of. AIR 1947 Bom 46 and AIR 1952 Bom 209, Foll. AIR 1956 Him Pra 71 (72) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Petition, maintainability of.

There must be exceptional reasons for asking for the exercise of the extraordinary jurisdiction, for otherwise, the ordinary legal remedy by a suit under the general law would be rendered wholly nugatory. Such an exceptional reason must be invariably held to exist where an application for relief under the said Article is based on infringement of one of the fundamental rights guaranteed by the Constitution. Such an exceptional reason would also seem to exist, where, though not for enforcement of any of the fundamental rights, such an application is moved for "any other purpose," if that purpose cannot be served by an ordinary suit. It has therefore been held that the extraordinary jurisdiction in question may be invoked if the alternative remedy by suit is less convenient, beneficial or effective. A I R 1953 Him Pra 33 (35, 36) (Pt B) (Prs 10, 13, 14).

——Art. 226 — Infringement of fundamental right — Another remedy is not open. See Ibid, Art. 19 (1). AIR 1953 Him Pra 8.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy under taxing statute — Infringement of fundamental right — Existence of other remedy which is onerous and not efficacious is no bar to writ petition. A I R 1952 S C 115 and AIR 1954 S C 403 and AIR 1961 S C 65, Rel. on. AIR 1962 J and K 48 (58) (Pt B) (Pr 18).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Breach of fundamental or statutory right — Issue of writ. See Jammu and Kashmir Constitution, S. 103. A I R 1959 J and K 13.

——Art. 226 — Another remedy open — Fundamental right invaded.

A petitioner is not in error in coming to the High Court on a consolidated petition challenging the order both on the ground that it violated the fundamental right and that it was in violation of fundamental principles of justice even though he has a right of appeal against the order. Madh B L J 1955 H C R 959 : Madh B L R 1955 Civil 674 : AIR 1954 Madh B 173 (176) (Pt H) (Pr 23) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open.

The objection regarding another remedy under the Act cannot prevail where the complaint of the petitioner is as regards his fundamental right. AIR 1954 S C 403 and AIR 1953 S C 252, Rel. on. 1957 M P C 214 : ILR (1957) Madh Pra 206 : 1957 Jab L J 373 : (1957) 8 S T C 429 : 1957 M P L J 317 : AIR 1957 Madh Pra 109 (111) (Pt B) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 32 — Infringement of fundamental right — Another remedy is not open. See Ibid, Art. 19 (1). AIR 1953 Him Pra 8.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Writ of mandamus — Existence of other remedy — Exception to general rule — Infringement of fundamental right.

The principle that a Court will not issue a prerogative writ when an adequate alternative remedy was available could not apply where a party came to the Court with an allegation that his fundamental right had been infringed and sought relief under Art. 226. AIR 1954 S C 403 and AIR 1956 Bom 530, Rel. on. (1956) 28 Com Cas 431 : ILR (1957) Mad 383 : 70 Mad L W 28 : (1957) 1 Mad L J 254 : AIR 1957 Mad 309 (318) (Pt H) (Pr 23) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Writs of certiorari or prohibition — If can issue.

The general rule as to another adequate remedy open has an exception in a case where the want of jurisdiction complained of is based upon the violation of some fundamental principle of justice. In such an exceptional case, the existence of a remedy by way of appeal or revision is no answer to an application asking for a writ of certiorari or prohibition. AIR 1955 Pat 49 (55) (Pt E) (Pr 18) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari or prohibition.

A case where the want of jurisdiction complained of is based upon the violation of some fundamental principle of justice, is an exceptional case where the existence of a remedy by way of appeal or revision is no answer to an application asking for a writ of certiorari or prohibition. (1927) 1 K B 491, Rel. on. ILR 32 Pat 630 : 1953 B L J R 494 : AIR 1954 Pat 43 (46) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Powers of High Court — Bihar Administration of Evacuee Property Ordinance (1948), S. 29 — Special remedy provided by special statute under which action complained of is taken — If bar to exercise of power to issue writ or direction: — Duty of High Court in case of flagrant and unjustified invasion of fundamental right of citizen.

Under Art. 226 of the Constitution it is not only open to the High Court, but it is its duty to interfere when there has been a flagrant and unjustified invasion of the fundamental rights of citizens. S. 28 of the Bihar Administration of Evacuee Property Ordinance of 1949 (or of the Administration of Evacuee Property Act 31 of 1950) does not stand in the way of the High Court exercising the powers which has been vouchsafed to it under Art. 226. Even where a special remedy is provided under the special statute, in the case of a flagrant and unjustified invasion of the fundamental rights of a citizen the High Court must act in the exercise of its powers to protect him against injury and afford him relief, if the circumstances of the case are such that otherwise the alternative remedy available to the citizen may not be equally effectual, convenient and beneficial, and by the time he gets the relief the citizen may have suffered irretrievable loss and damage. ILR 30 Pat 21 : AIR 1951 Pat 434 (436, 437) (Pt B) (Prs 6, 7, 11) (DB).

[Reversed in AIR 1955 S C 282].

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Government order sanctioning sale of entire resin from Government stock to Co-operative Society — Order challenged by petitioner on ground that it was mala fide and in violation of Arts. 14 and 19 (1) (g) — Remedy by way of suit – Remedy not equally adequate and efficacious as delay likely to be caused by resorting to it would defeat cause of justice — Petition held maintainable. ILR (1965) 2 Punj 32 : 67 Punj L R 921 : AIR 1966 Punj 16 (20) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open—Deprivation of property without notification under S. 4, Land Acquisition Act (1894) — Alternative remedy by way of civil suit available – High Court can still exercise its power where alternative remedy is not equally effectual and the petitioner is likely to suffer irretrievable loss and damage. See Ibid, Art. 226. ('65) 67 Pun L R 616.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Fundamental right to hold and dispose of property infringed — Petition under Art. 226.

Where the petitioner, who was holding a lease of private forest from the zamindar of certain village, and was in actual possession of the forest, and whose rights and interests as lessee of the property were recognised by the State Government, suddenly received an order from the Ranger of Forest given in pursuance of the order of the Government to stop the cutting of the forest immediately without any prior notice and was deprived of his possession over the forest, and the petitioner challenged the validity of that order under Art. 226, the petitioner's fundamental right to hold and dispose of the property has been infringed and there is no justification in the contention that the High Court should not exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction but should ask the petitioner to move the Government to reconsider its order or to exercise his alternative remedy by way of suit. 1959 Raj L W 476.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Invasion of fundamental rights.

Where the petitioner's fundamental rights are infringed the fact that an adequate alternative remedy is available to the party and has not been taken will not prevent, the High Court from granting relief under Art. 226. Case law Ref. 8 Sau L R 90 : AIR 1955 Sau 57 (62) (Pt F) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 32 — Existence of other remedy — Effect of, in case of breach of fundamental right.

Where the other remedy provided by a statute is in respect of acts done "under the Act" but the petition under Art. 226 is filed against acts alleged to be 'ultra vires' the statutory authority, it is certainly open to the complaining parties to approach the High Court and get immediate relief by way of writs in case of breach of fundamental right. ILR (1955) Trav Co 1089 : 1957 Cri L J 105 : AIR 1957 Trav-Co 2 (5) (Pt C) (Pr 13) (DB).

7 (h). General rule applies to other directions, orders and writs.

——Art. 226 – Powers of High Court — Extent of — Other specific and adequate remedy – Effect – Whether remedy is specific and adequate depends on facts of each case — Firman-i-shahi issued by Government of erstwhile Patiala State for mutating lands attached to religious Institutions — Infringement of Art. 19 – Application under Art. 226 – Maintainability – Principles of English Courts stated — (Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45).

The powers given to the High Court by Art. 226 to issue various kinds of writs vest the High Court with an extraordinary jurisdiction which is of summary but coercive nature. They are very wide and go much beyond the powers of the High Court of England and of those of Presidency High Court before the Constitution.

They are not confined to the issuing of high prerogative writs but extend to the issuing of all kinds of directions and orders and those writs and directions, etc., can be issued not only for the enforcement of the fundamental rights conferred by Part 3 of the Constitution but for any other purpose and to all kinds of authorities and public officials and even to any Government, i.e., to the Government of a State or the Central Government. Further the relief is discretionary with the Court and though the discretion must not be exercised arbitrarily, capriciously or indiscriminately, no hard and fast rule can be laid down as to how it should be exercised. Each case must depend upon its peculiar facts. The Court should, however, follow the same principles that were observed by the English Courts in so far as they are consistent with the provisions of our Constitution and other laws. The powers are much wider than those given to the three High Courts by S. 45, Specific Relief Act.

With all this, when it is shown that there is open to the applicant another remedy and that remedy is specific and adequate an application under Art. 226 does not lie. Whether the other remedy can be regarded specific or adequate must depend upon the facts of each case.

Principles of English Courts stated. [Facts of the case set out].

Held, the petitioners could file a civil suit for establishment of their title, and such a remedy was specific but not adequate. The question involved was of public importance and it affected a large number of mahants of other deras in addition to the petitioners and if these petitions were thrown out and the petitioners were left to file civil suits ; it would subject them to great hardship inasmuch as the onus would be placed upon them to prove that the lands belonged to them whereas if the deras were to file suits against the petitioners or worshippers of the deras were to take proceedings under S. 92, Civil P. C., it would be for them to establish that the lands belonged to the respective deras and not to the petitioners. These were not, therefore, the kind of cases in which petitioners' prayer for relief under Art. 226 of the Constitution should be refused because of an alternate remedy of a suit that was open to them.

Tendency to apply for issue of writs deprecated. Case law examined. I L R (1953) Patiala 63 : A I R 1953 Pepsu 58 (61, 62, 63) (Prs 9, 10, 11, 12) (DB).

7 (i). Special responsibility of Supreme Court.

● ——Art. 32 — Jurisdiction of Supreme Court — Its scope.

An act of the State executive infringes a guaranteed liberty only when it is not authorised by a valid law or by any law as in this case, and every such illegal act would obviously give rise to a cause of action — Civil or criminal—at the instance of the injured person for redress. It is wholly erroneous to assume that before the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court under Art. 32 could be invoked the applicant must either establish that he has no other remedy adequate or otherwise or that he has exhausted such remedies as the law affords and has yet not obtained proper redress, for when once it is proved to the satisfaction of the Supreme Court that by State action the fundamental right of a petitioner under Art. 32 has been infringed, it is not only the right but the duty of the Supreme Court to afford relief to him by passing appropriate orders in that behalf. Kharak Singh v. State of U. P., (1964) 2 S C J 107 : (1964) 1 S C R 332 : 1963 All L J 711 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 329 : A I R 1963 S C 1295 (1301, 1302) (Pt H) (Pr 16).

● —Arts. 226, 32 — Though the existence of an adequate legal remedy is to be taken into consideration in the matter of granting prerogative writs, the powers given to the Supreme Court under Art. 32 are much wider and are not confined to issuing prerogative writs only. See Ibid, Art. 13 (1). AIR 1950 S C 163.

7 (j). Inconvenience or delay in getting redress.

—Art. 226—Another remedy open—Issue of writ.

A petitioner is entitled to avail himself of the expeditious remedy provided by Art. 226 when an alternative remedy of raising the objection before the criminal Court is not so speedy as the matter might have to be taken to two or three Courts before final decision could be available. A I R 1956 Ajmer 73 (77) (Ft G) (Pr 27).

● —Art. 226 — Existence of alternative remedy—Effect of — Party should normally exhaust it before applying under Art 226 — Alternate remedy whether onerous — Question of fact — S. 129 of U. P. District Boards Act, 1922, held not onerous.

Taxing statutes provide a complete machinery for assessment of tax and for remedy against the assessment, and normally the party aggrieved should exhaust that remedy before invoking the aid of the Court. Whether the remedy of appeal under the taxing statute is onerous or not is not to be determined in abstract. It is a relative matter. The remedy may be onerous in one case and not in the other. The quantum of the assessment, the time when the tax is to be paid for obtaining a rehearing in appeal, and the financial condition of an assessee should all be considered in deciding about the onerousness of the remedy. Attachment of any condition to the exercise of the alternative remedy does not as a matter of law render it inadequate.

Held, that judged by these criteria S. 129 of the U P. District Boards Act, 1922 which required the deposit of tax assessed, before the hearing of appeal and not at the time of filing appeal was not onerous. Babu Ram Ashok Kumar v. Antarim Zilla Parishad, ILR (1964) 2 All 76 : 1964 All W R (HC) 167 : 1964 All L J 353 : AIR 1964 All 534 (535, 536, 537) (Pt B) (Prs 4, 13, 28) (FB).

—Art. 226 — Rule as to alternative remedy and refusal to act under Art. 226 — Nature of — Rule is one of self-discipline and not absolute — U. P. Entertainment and Betting Tax Act (VIII of 1937), S. 9-A.

The rule regarding the existence of an alternative remedy and refusal to act under Art. 226 on that ground is not an absolute rule but is a rule in the nature of self-discipline imposed upon itself by the High Court. In appropriate cases where owing to urgency or other similar considerations the Court considers that a substantial injustice will be caused to the person affected by requiring him to pursue the alternative remedy, the Court will not hesitate in granting redress under Art. 226.

Where the District Magistrate cancelled the licenses to carry on a cinema house under S. 9-A of the U. P. Entertainment and Betting Tax Act without giving notice to the proprietors and the cancellation was to take effect forthwith as a result of which they were debarred immediately from carrying on the business and the damage to their right to carry on the business had already occurred

Held, that, in the circumstances, it was a fit case for not declining the relief under Art. 226 on the ground of the existence of an alternative remedy. 1960 All W R (HC) 685 : 1960 All L J 894.

——Art 226 — Other remedy open — Certiorari — Order of dismissal of public servant.

Where a dismissed Sub-Inspector of Police sought the issue of a writ of certiorari to quash the order of his dismissal and the only question raised was one of law.

Held, that apart from the fact that it was eminently desirable in the public interest that cases, in which the validity of the dismissal of a public servant was in question, should be speedily determined, it was difficult to hold that the remedy by way of suit was in the instant case equally convenient or beneficial and effective. 1958 All Cri R 217 : 1958 All W R (HC) 265 : 1958 All L J 205 : (1958) 2 Lab L J 27 : AIR 1958 All 607 (609) (Pt C) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Another remedy — Order without evidence—Litigation will delay and be costly.

The question whether the other remedy open to the applicant in a particular case is specific and adequate should be decided upon the facts of each case.

Considering the fact that the applicant was a poor man and a resident of a village and that his complaint was simple one viz., that he was removed from service under the garb of his alleged resignation which he had never tendered and which was not found on any of the documents or files in possession of the Government or the Collector and was non-existent, that he could not afford to indulge in a costly litigation with a formidable opponent like the Government and what was complained of was that the mandatory provisions of Art. 311 (2) were violated, it was held to be fit case where petition under Art. 226, could be entertained. A I R 1954 Bhopal 25 (28) (Pt D) (Prs 13, 14).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Legal remedy available but not immediately or at the moment — Risk of loss incapable of being compensated in money — Jurisdiction to issue writ. ILR (1951) Cut 398.

[Reversed in AIR 1952 S C 12.]

——Art 226 - Other remedy—Powers of High Court to issue writ under Art 226 — Panchayats — Bihar Panchayat Election Rules (1959), R. 70.

It is true that ordinarily the special remedy provided for in any law or statute for violation of its provisions must first be resorted to. There is however no inflexible rule to oust in all cases the jurisdiction of the High Court to correct an error or illegality by means of proper writs. Where resort to the special remedy available may prove inadequate and dilatory and the mischief sought to be averted may not be remedied in time, then notwithstanding the remedy available under ordinary law, the extraordinary powers of the High Court under Art. 226 may be invoked to remove an error or to cure an illegality on the well-recognised grounds. AIR 1952 S C 84 and A I R 1954 Cal 52, Distinguished. 1960 Pat L R 263 : 1961 B L J R 43.

——Art. 226 — Petitioner dismissed Government employee — Full salary allowance sought to be recovered— Other remedies open to petitioner does not bar maintainability of petition —Reference to larger Bench by Single Bench — Preliminary objection of maintainability of petition can be considered.

The petitioner who was in the employment of Government was placed under suspension pending departmental enquiry against him. On a civil suit filed by him the order of his suspension was modified and he was treated as on duty for the period and was awarded full pay and allowances. He, however, continued to be under suspension till the completion of the departmental enquiry held against him when he was dismissed from service. The order of dismissal was later quashed by the High Court on his petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution, on the finding that the departmental enquiry was vitiated because of the refusal to supply to the petitioner previous statements of witnesses taken under Ss. 61 and 164, Criminal P. C Consequent upon this verdict the petitioner was reinstat d but by the same order he was again placed under suspension pending completion of the departmental enquiry and it was stated in the order that during period of suspension he w uld get subsistence allowance admissible to him under R. 7.2 of the Punjab Civil Services Rules Vol. 1 Part 1. The petitioner claimed arrears of his full salary and allowances.

Held, that the existence of other legal remedies was not per se a bar to the issue of writ under Art. 226 and there was no obligation imposed on the Court to relegate the aggrieved party to other legal remedies available-

In the case in question the reference to the larger Bench was made under proviso (b) to sub-rule (20) of R. 1 of Chapter 3 B of the Punjab High Court Rules and Orders which enabled the Single Judge to obtain the assistance of another Judge for disposal of petition under Art. 226 and hence the preliminary objection of maintainability of the petition could be considered. Case law discussed.

The provision contained in R. 7 (2) applies even to cases of interim suspension pending a departmental enquiry or criminal proceeding Further Rule 7.3 of the Punjab Civil Services Rules, Volume I Part I being inapplicable to the petitioner's case the order fixing the amount that is to be paid to the petitioner for the period of his suspension prior to his dismissal is clearly without any legal basis and is of no effect. Since there is no corresponding rule for fixing the amount payable to a Government servant whose dismissal has been set aside by a Court, the Government will have no power to deprive the petitioner of his full emoluments even for the period during which he had remained suspended pending departmental enquiry against him. 67 Pun L R 1092.

——Art. 226 - Other remedy — Discretion of High Court.

The High Court is not altogether barred from interfering under Art. 226 of the Constitution if any alternative remedy is available to the petitioner. The High Court exercises its discretion in the matter of petitions under Art. 226 and if it thinks in its discretion that although technically there might be an alternative remedy, yet no useful purpose would be served if that remedy is resorted to, the High Court can in its discretion interfere under Art. 226. I L R (1959) 9 Raj 297 : 1959 Raj L W 443 : A I R 1959 Raj 220 (222) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art 226—Other remedy open.

The language of Art 226 of the Constitution of India is certainly very wide but it cannot be so construed as to provide an alternative remedy to all sorts of civil or criminal actions. The intention of the makers of the Constitution should be understood to be to provide a remedy where no specific and adequate legal remedy would otherwise be available. The remedy provided by Art. 226 is an extraordinary one and some inconvenience or delay in getting redress by filing a regular suit in the law Courts alone should not be considered sufficient to entitle a person to have recourse to the extraordinary remedy under Art. 226 unless it can be shown that delay and inconvenience would be such as to make the relief nugatory : Case law discussed.

(Remedy by suit under S. 42 of the Specific Relief Act held available). 1951 Raj L W 429 : I L R (1951) 1 Raj 474: AIR 1952 Raj 112 (113, 114) (Prs 9, 12) (DB).

——Art. 226— Another remedy open — Nomination paper accepted by Officer in charge of elections — Executive heads usurping appellate jurisdiction and rejecting nomination paper—Aggrieved party having his remedy by way of election petition — Yet High Court should issue writ — (Municipalities —Jodhpur Municipal Act (1943), S. 27).

The applicant's nomination paper had been accepted under S. 27, Jodhpur Municipal Act by the Officer in charge of the elections but that acceptance had been set aside by the Additional Commissioner which order in its turn had been upheld by the Minister and these two authorities had no business to interfere with the order of the Officer in charge of the elections.

Held, that it would not be right to leave the applicant to the remedy of an election petition against the order of what could be considered at the best busy bodies when the order of a properly constituted authority namely, the Officer in charge of the elections was in his favour. There was also another danger if the High Court were to follow the principle that it should not interfere in case like the present because it was possible to get redress by an election petition. That danger was that if some authority decided to interfere with the decisions of the officer in charge of elections, or the returning officer and rejected all nomination papers accepted by him of candidates belonging to particular parties, the result would be that candidates of one particular party might get elected unopposed. It was possible to have a wholesale abuse of this kind and it was therefore necessary for the High Court to interfere at this stage so that no authority may ever be disposed to take the course mentioned above. Therefore, even though the applicant might be able to get his remedy in this case through an election petition, there was good reason why the High Court should grant him relief at this stage. 1952 Raj L W 199 : ILR (1952) 2 Raj 18 : AIR 1952 Raj 104 (106, 107) (Pt E) (Pr 15) (DB).

7 (k). Matter pending before ordinary Court or tribunal.

● ——Art. 226—Discretion of Court —Other remedy available and being pursued - Taxation of Income (Investigation Commission) Act (XXX of 1947), S. 8.

The remedy provided for in Art. 226 of the Constitution is a discretionary remedy and the High Court has always the discretion to refuse to grant any writ if it is satisfied that the aggrieved party can have an adequate or suitable relief elsewhere. Where the petitioners have already availed themselves of the remedy provided for in S. 8 (5) of the Taxation of Income (Investigation Commission) Act and a reference has been made to the High Court in terms of that provision which is awaiting decision it would not be proper to allow the petitioners to invoke the discretionary jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution at this stage. In case the proceeding occasions a gross miscarriage of justice, there is always the jurisdiction in Supreme Court to interfere by way of special leave. Rashid K S. v. Income.Tax Investigation Commr., 1954 S C J 264 : 1954 S C A 264 : 1954 S C R 738 : (1954) 25 I T R 167 : A I R 1954 S C 207 (210) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226—Other remedy — Interference by writ —Discretion of High Court.

High Courts are lenient in admitting petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution where fundamental rights of persons are affected. It is where fundamental rights are not affected that High Courts do not interfere with the orders of a subordinate authority if an alternative remedy, equally efficacious, is available to the aggrieved person. Where it was in the interest of the parties that the writ petition against the order cancelling the petitioner's permit should be decided on merits, the fact that an appeal against that order was pending would not be valid ground for not exercising jurisdiction under Art. 226. A I R 1960 All 247 (249) (Pt A) (Pr 13).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Interference.

Where the petitioners have not only an alternative but they are pursuing that remedy, the High Court will not interfere under Art. 226. The fact that the petitioners have not been able to obtain stay of execution of sales tax assessment order from the Sales Tax authority pending their appeal against the assessment order, is no reason to enterain the writ petition. 1958 All L J 44 : AIR 1958 All 676 (677) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Petition for, during pendency of appeal from order — Maintainability — (Municipalities — U. P. Municipalities Act (II of 1916), S. 40 (1) (c)).

Where a member of a Municipal Board applied for a writ of certiorari under Art. 226 on the ground that the order of removal passed against him under S. 40 (1) (c), U. P. Municipalities Act, 1916, is without jurisdiction, the fact that the petitioner has filed an appeal against the order before the State Government which is still pending is no bar to his petition for the writ. A I R 1956 All 147 (148, 149) (Pt D) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Suit challenging the order pending—Writ petition not entertained. (1957) 2 Andh W R 250.

——Art. 226 — Alternative remedy — Other remedy available and being pursued—Writ cannot issue.

It is not a proper course or a proper exercise of the discretion of the High Court to grant relief under Art. 226 of the Constitution by pre-judging a pending appeal or revision which the petitioner himself has chosen. No doubt, an alternative remedy is not always a bar to exercise of discretion by the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. But where the petitioner has actually availed of an alternative remedy and that remedy is being pursued and prosecuted and is pending, a constitutional writ under Art. 226 should not be issued, for that will encourage gambling in litigation because the petitioner in such cases would take the chance of asking for the writ from the High Court and winning it, and if he fails then trying his luck in the alternative remedy which he had already initiated before he has come to the High Court for constitutional relief. The Constitution should not be lent or used for such legal betting. A I R 1954 S C 207, Rel. on. (1963) 67 Cal W N 405.

——Art. 226—Remedy by appeal open—Appeal preferred against impugned order — Appeal pending — Appellant will not be allowed to move High Court under Art. 226.

Normally, an application for a writ in the nature of mandamus will not lie if there is an alternative remedy which grants adequate relief. In the case of a writ of certiorari or prohibition, the existence of an alternative remedy is by itself no bar to an application in the writ jurisdiction under Art. 226, provided certain factors exist, e.g., an initial lack of jurisdiction, violation of the rules of natural justice, etc. But the Court is not bound to entertain such an application. In neither case is the Court's jurisdiction to entertain an application ousted by the existence of an alternative remedy, and in a suitable case such an application may be entertained. A I R 1955 Cal 241, Foll.; A I R 1958 S C 86; A I R 1956 Cal 273, A I R 1954 S C 207, Rel. on. 1963 Cal L J 24 : 66 Cal W N 170 : A I R 1962 Cal 180 (181, 182) (Prs 1, 2, 5).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Other remedy open.

The existence of alternative remedy is no bar or at least not an absolute bar to the issue of a writ of certiorari when the circumstances call for its issue although the fact that such a remedy exists may be taken into consideration by the Court approached for a writ. But where, after moving the Court for a writ and after obtaining a Rule, the petitioner went to pursue simultaneously a parallel remedy by way of an appeal under the ordinary law and kept its recourse to the alternative remedy from the knowledge of the Court up to the last moment the pendency of the appeal would be sufficient reason for refusing to issue a writ even if the Court is satisfied that the petitioner is entitled to the remedy on the merits. (1959) 36 I T R 365 : ILR (1960) 1 Cal 49 : A I R 1959 Cal 131 (140, 141) (Pt F) (Prs 34, 35) (DB).

——Art. 226—Right to apply—Adoption of alternate remedies under a special Act — If bar to application for writ.

The question as to whether the adoption of alternative remedy as prescribed in a Special Act precludes the petitioner from invoking the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art 226 of the Constitution should be decided on the special facts of the case.

Held, on the facts and circumstances of the case, that the writ petition could not be thrown out on the ground that the petitioner by pursuing the remedies provided in the Bengal Public Demands Recovery Act had precluded itself from having recourse to Art. 226 of the Constitution. 61 Cal W N 694 : (1958-59) 15 F J R 193 : (1958) 1 Lab L J 285 : A I R 1957 Cal 702 (708, 709) (Pt D) (Prs 19, 20).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open—Issue of writ — Failure to disclose facts—Effect.

Though the existenee of an alternative remedy is not an absolute bar to the maintenance of an application under Art 226, if a party has chosen to betake itself to the alternative remedy provided by the relevant statute itself, it cannot possibly be allowed to abandon that remedy in the middle of the way, as it were, and elect to proceed from that point of the road by way of Art. 226. Parties will be justified in coming to the High Court and invoking its extraordinary jurisdiction under Art 226, only when there is either no alternative remedy at all or the alternative remedy is bound to prove a wholly inadequate remedy. Article 226 was not intended to provide a substitute in a condensed form for all types of litigation. (1957) 8 S T C 517 (Cal).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Whether bar to application under Art 226 — Order of Collector imposing penalty under Sea Customs Act — Party preferring appeal under S. 188, Sea Customs Act and appeal pending — Party cannot apply under Art. 226—(Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 188)

It is quite true that when there is an alternative remedy, the mere existence of such remedy is not an absolute bar to the entertainment of an application under Art. 226, but far different is the case when the party moving the Court under Art. 226 has already availed himself of the alternative remedy and whether or not he is entitled to any relief in that chain has not yet been decided.

Thus, where a party has preferred an appeal under S. 188, Sea Customs Act, against the order of the Collector of Customs imposing penalty under the Sea Customs Act and that appeal is pending the party cannot be allowed to move the High Court under Art. 226, Constitution of India. A I R 1955 Cal 241 (244) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art 226 and Sales tax Act — Petitioner pursuing remedy of appeal under the Act and also moving High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution—High Court would not exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction under Art. 226. (1962) 2 S C R 81 : 1961 S T C 449, Rel. on. 1965 M P L J (Notes) 91.

——Art. 226—Other remedy.

The petitioner preferred an appeal against an order of assessment of sales tax as well as moved the High Court for a suitable writ to quash the assessment order.

Held, that the applicant had already availed itself of the remedy of appeal. In the circumstances it would not be proper to permit the petitioner to invoke the discretionary jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. A I R 1954 S C 207, Rel. on. 1961 M P L J (Notes) 89.

——Art. 226 — Disciplinary proceeding pending against railway servant—Servant suspended—Power of High Court to interfere.

The circumstance that disciplinary proceedings are pending against a Government servant may be treated by the High Court as a good ground for refusing to interfere under Art. 226; but such a circumstance is not an absolute bar and does not deprive the High Court of its jurisdiction to act in appropriate instances. Thus, where the said servant has been suspended from his duties and has thereby been actually and substantially hurt, the High Court will discountenance the contention that as he has not been injured he has no right to come to the High Court. A I R 1954 S C 403, Rel. on. 1956 Mad W N 262 : (1956) 1 Lab L J 29 : A I R 1956 Mad 220 (222) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226—Writ of Certiorari—Matter not finally decided—Petitioner able to defend himself in Lower Courts—Writ not to be issued.

A Magistrate rejected an application under S. 144, Criminal P. C. on the ground that the applicant did not show any bona fide right on his part and directed the police to institute proceedings under S. 107, Criminal P. C., against the applicant, if he intended to exercise the right claimed by him. The applicant applied for a writ of certiorari quashing the direction.

Held, that the High Court was not called upon to exercise its jurisdiction under Art. 226 simply on an executive direction given by the Magistrate which did not finally decide the right of the applicant. Moreover, the applicant had the right to defend himself fully if and when the proceedings under S. 107, Criminal P. C., were instituded. 1952 Mad W N 268 : 1952 Mad W N Cr 68 : 1952-1 Mad L J 471 : 1953 Cri L J 63 : AIR 1952 Mad 880 (880) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy—Supplementary election roll — Names of large number of voters illegally entered at more than one place—Pendency of election petition is no bar to grant of relief in writ petition. See Representation of the People Act (1950), S. 18. AIR 1965 Punj 361.

——Art. 226 — Party availing himself of the alternative remedy by filing suit—It would not be proper to allow him to invoke the discretionary jurisdiction under Art. 226: AIR 1954 Pat 476 and AIR 1954 S C 207, Rel. on. ('63) 65 Pun L R 125 : I L R (1963) 1 Punj 297.

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Other remedy—Income tax Act (1922), S. 34 — Reassessment proceedings resulting in assessment order — Pendency of appeal by assessee — Petition to quash reassessment proceedings—Maintainability.

There is a distinction between cases where an assessee moves the High Court under Article 226 immediately after the receipt of notice and where he waits till the assessing authorities have made assessments. The Income-tax Act itself provides remedies for wrong assessments and once an assessee has chosen to prefer his remedies under the Act he cannot invoke the extraordinary jurisdiction of High Court. In case of reassessment of tax on escaped income when the Income-tax authorities have actually assumed jurisdiction and passed assessment orders against which the assessee has also preferred an appeal which is pending, the reassessment proceedings cannot be challenged in writ proceedings under Art. 226 of the Constitution. (1962) 46 I T R 633 : AIR 1962 Punj 375 (377, 378) (Prs 11, 12).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Other remedy open — (Employees Provident Funds Act (1952), Ss. 16 (b) and 19-A)—Reference of dispute under S. 19-A, to Central Government pending — Petition under Arts. 226 and 227 not maintainable till decision of dispute — Proceedings for recovery of contributions not to be started till final decision. (1959-60) 17 F J R 85 : (1960) 1 Lab L J 489 (Punj).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open—Futile or unnecessary writ—Notice against assessee under S. 34, Income-tax Act — Assessee assessed and penalty also imposed under S. 46 (1) — Appeal by assessee pending—High Court will not interfere.

The High Court will not exercise its powers under Art. 226 of the Constitution in the case of a self-contained Statute like the Income-tax Act, when there is no allegation of the invalidity of any provision of the Act, and the allegation only is that a particular income tax officer was acting without jurisdiction in taking action under S. 34 and in assessing the applicant.

Further, with respect to the penalty imposed on the assessee under S. 46 (1), Income-tax Act, when the main question in an application by the assessee under Art. 226, Constitution of India, which has to be decided is whether the assessee has been properly assessed on a notice under S. 34 (1) and that question is pending before the proper appellate authority, the High Court will refuse to go into the question of penalty for the penalty will fall with the assessment immediately the assessee succeeds in appeal. (1958) 33 I T R 812 : 1957 Raj L W 92 : I L R (1957) 7 Raj 509 : AIR 1957 Raj 210 (211) (Prs 6, 7, 10) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Best judgment assessment under Income-tax Act — Appeal against pending — High Court will not act under Art. 226—(Income-tax Act (1922), S. 23 (4)). AIR 1952 S C 192 and AIR 1953 Punj 55 and AIR 1953 Trav-Co 296; AIR 1954 S C 207 Rel. on. AIR 1957 Tripura 15 (18) (Pt C) (Prs 24, 25).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Application under S. 43, Rewa State Municipalities Act, pending with Government—Application under Art. 226 to set aside election will not be entertained—(Municipalities—Rewa State Municipalities Act (1946), S. 43). AIR 1955 N U C (Vin Pra) 5784.

7 (l) Matters to be taken into consideration.

——Art. 226 — Nature of jurisdiction exercised by High Court — Existence of alternative efficacious remedy—Discretion of High Court to entertain writ petition.

The jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution is couched in wide terms and the exercise thereof is not subject to any restrictions except the territorial restrictions which are expressly provided in the Articles. But the exercise of the jurisdiction is discretionary; it is not exercised merely because it is lawful to do so. The very amplitude of the jurisdiction demands that it will ordinarily be exercised subject to certain self-imposed limitations. Resort to that jurisdiction is not intended as an alternative remedy for relief which may be obtained in a suit or other mode prescribed by statute. Ordinarily the Court will not entertain a petition for a writ under Art. 226, where the petitioner has an alternative remedy, which without being unduly onerous, provides an equally efficacious remedy. Again the High Court does not generally enter upon a determination of questions which demand an elaborate examination of evidence to establish the right to enforce which the writ is claimed. The High Court does not therefore act as a Court of appeal against the decision of a Court or tribunal. to correct errors of fact, and does not by assuming jurisdiction under Art. 226 trench upon an alternative remedy provided by statute for obtaining relief Where it is open to the aggrieved petitioner to move another tribunal, or even itself in another jurisdiction for obtaining redress in the manner provided by a statute, the High Court normally will not permit by entertaining a petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution the machinery created under the statute to be by-passed, and will leave the party applying to it to seek resort to the machinery so set up. Thansingh Nathmal v. Superintendent of Taxes Dhabri, I L R 16 Assam 203 : (1964) 6 S C R 654 : (1964) 15 S T C 468 : AIR 1964 S C 1419 (1423) (Pt B) (Pr 7)

● ——Art. 226 — Existence of alternative remedy — How far a bar to entertainment of writ petition — Matter is one for proper exercise of discretion — No inflexible rules can be laid down.

The rule that the party who applies for the issue of a high prerogative writ should, before he approaches the Court, have exhausted other remedies open to him under the law is not one which bars the jurisdiction of the High Court to entertain the petition or to deal with it, but is rather a rule which Courts have laid down for the exercise of their discretion. The wide proposition that the existence of an alternative remedy is a bar to the entertainment of a petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution unless (1) there was a complete lack of jurisdiction in the officer or authority to take the action impugned, or (2) where the order prejudicial to the writ petitioner has been passed in violation of the principles of natural justice and that in all other cases. Courts should not entertain petitions under Art. 226, cannot be accepted. The two exceptions are by no means exhaustive, and even beyond them a discretion vests in the High Court to entertain the petition and grant the petitioner relief notwithstanding the existence of an alternative remedy. A V. Venkateswaran, Collector of Customs, Bombay v. Ramchand Sobhraj Wadhwani, (1962) 1 S C J 170 : (1962) 1 Mad L J (S C) 83: (1962) 1 Andh W R (S C) 83 : 64 Bom L R 386 : (1962) 1 S C R 753 : (1961) 2 S C A 622 : AIR 1961 S C 1506 (1508, 1509, 1510) (Pt B) (Prs 8, 9, 10).

● ——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Issue of writ.

Under the law, a person whose services have been wrongfully terminated, is entitled to institute an action to vindicate his rights, and in such an action, the Court will be competent to award all the reliefs to which he may be entitled, including some which would not be admissible in a writ petition. It is true that the existence of another remedy does not affect the jurisdiction of the Court to issue a writ; but, the existence of an adequate legal remedy is a thing to be taken into consideration in the matter of granting writs. Where such remedy exists it will be a sound exercise of discretion to refuse to interfere in a petition under Art 226, unless there are good grounds therefor: AIR 1950 S C 163 and AIR 1954 S C 207, Relied on. Union of India v T. R. Verma, 1958 M L J (Cr) 123 : 1958 All W R (H C) 165: 1958 M P C 61 : 1958 All L J 126 : 1958 S C R 499 : 1958 S C J 142 : 60 Punj L R 126 : 1958 S C A 110 : (1958) 1 M L J (S C) 67 : (1958) 1 Andh W R (S C) 67 : (1957) 13 F J R 257 : I L R (1958) Punj 274 : AIR 1957 S C 882 (8 4) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Guiding considerations — (Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), Ss. 26, 27).

An alternative remedy is not a bar to an application for the enforcement of a fundamental right. The exercise of power for any other purpose' under Art. 226 is discretionary and ordinarily the existence of an alternative remedy is a bar. But where there is no jurisdiction or it has been exercised in violation of the principles of natural justice, then an alternative remedy is not a bar.

Where the custodian passes an order cancelling the appointment of the petitioner as manager of an evacuee property or the Assistant custodian passes an order cancelling a lease of the property and for the recovery of rent from the petitioner even for a period which according to the petitioner is barred by limitation and the petitioner has in fact preferred a revision against the order of the Assistant Custodian cancelling the lease and could file revisions against the other two orders as well, it would not be open to him to invoke the discretionary jurisdiction under Art. 226. AIR 1955 Ajmer 41 (42, 43) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 7, 10).

——Art. 226 —Other remedy open — (Houses and Rents — U P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (III of 1947), S. 7 (a).)

The remedy by way of revision to the Commission under S. 7 (a), U. P (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act, is not a legal remedy and, in any case, not as efficacious as a petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Moreover, the proper time in most cases to consider this question of alternative remedy is at the time when a petition is moved before the High Court. It cannot, however, be held that the question of alternative remedy can never be raised at the final hearing of the writ petition. AIR 1959 All 440 (444, 445) (Pt B) (Pr 13).

——Art. 226—Alternative remedy — Balance of convenience.

It is not the balance of convenience at the time of the application which has to be considered, but the balance of convenience—in cases in which the matter is material—at the time the applicants first had the choice of pursuing alternative remedies. ILR (1952) 1 All 880 : AIR 1953 All 739 (741) (Pt F) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Quo warranto— Application for writ admitted—Parties heard — Court coming to the view that application should be allowed — The argument that application should not be allowed because applicant had another alternative remedy and because of the delay on the part of the applicant and the fact that general elections were drawing near will not be entertained at such a late stage. (1952) R D (H C) 388 : 1953 All W R (H C) 35 : 1953 All L J 81 : ILR (1953) 1 All 891 : AIR 1953 All 193 (194) (Pt D) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226—Existence of alternative remedy—Not an absolute bar to exercise of jurisdiction

The existence of an alternative remedy does not operate as an absolute bar to the grant of prerogative writs under the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court. It is true that the High Court will as a general rule and in the exercise of its discretion refuse a Writ of Mandamus when there is an alternative specific remedy at law which is not less convenient, beneficial and effective. But it is a matter to be considered on the facts and circumstances of each case whether such remedy will be an adequate remedy. ('51) 87 Cal L J 369 (374) : AIR 1953 Cal 333 (335) (Pt B) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

Under Art 226, the power of the Court is not confined to the power to issue writs in the nature of mandamus and other writs mentioned therein. Under the Article the Court has wider powers. But the power of the Court is discretionary and the proceedings under Art. 226 being of a summary and coercive nature the powers under the Article should be sparingly used and only in those clear cases where the rights of persons have been seriously infringed and he has no other adequate and specific remedy available to him. 55 Cal W N 326 : ILR (1952) 1 Cal 282: AIR 1951 Cal 420 (422) (Pt B) (Prs 22, 25, 26).

——Art. 226—Existence of alternative remedy — Still discretion is vested in High Court to entertain petition and grant relief—Petitioner an election candidate aggrieved by wrong rejection of his nomination papers -Alternative remedy of applying under S 24, Gujarat Panchayats Act, 1961 (Guj Act VI of 1962), not resorted- Question as to existence of alternative remedy was highly debatable one—Petition if thrown out, petitioner was to become without any remedy—Held, it would not be right to refuse relief merely on ground that petitioner did not pursue alternative remedy. AIR 1961 S C 1506, Rel. on. ILR (1966) Guj 111 : (1965) 6 Guj L R 200 : AIR 1966 Guj 19 (28) (Pt B) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Art. 226—Issue of writs —Conduct of petitioner, if to be considered —Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45.

The conduct of the petitioner, ought to be taken into consideration in determining whether the Court will exercise the discretionary jurisdiction to issue the writ. Thus where a party who owing to his own default did not avail himself of the only remedy given to him by law, is not when the remedy of the issue of a writ becomes subsequently available, entitled to that remedy ILR (952) Madh Bha 231 : AIR 1950 Madh Bha 46 (53) (Pt J) (Pr 15) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Alternative remedy open — Where impugned order is plainly absurd and unjustifiable under statutory provisions concerned, existence of alternative remedy will not be ground for denying relief : 1961 Mys Law Jour 319 Rel on. (1965) 4 Law Rep 405 : (1965) 2 Mys L J 486 (DB).

——Art. 226—Another remedy—Jurisdiction of High Court to issue writs — Limitation Another remedy not absolute bar to exercise jurisdiction—Rules of guidance.

Article 226 confers on the High Court power of very comprehensive magnitude. Save for the territorial restrictions there are no other restrictions imposed by the Constitution. But absence of express constitutional limitation does not imply that the jurisdiction to issue writs etc , must be exercised whenever it is invoked merely because it is permissible on the language of the Article. The general words of that Article have a content and a significance, which is enforcement of the rule of law and furtherance of the cause of substantial justice according to law. The question of interference under Art. 226, is therefore left to the judicial discretion of the High Court on the facts and circumstances of each case. The High Court as the final and the highest Court of law and justice in the State is apparently expected not to decline exercise of the power of issuing writs arbitrarily if the true dictates of justice, consistently with the rule of law, in a given case demand its exercise to further the cause of justice.

Hence mere existence of an alternative remedy cannot by itself or per se enjoin the High Court to decline interference on the writ side. It must consider and weigh all the facts and circumstances before it, eliminate prejudice and sympathy, and judicially determine whether or not interference would further the purpose of securing justice to the citizens Ordinarily a right created by a statute should be enforced through the machinery provided by the statute creating it. But if the remedy provided by the statute is not reasonably adequate, effective and speedy, the High Court would not hesitate to interfere provided the nature of the right and of its violation is such that the cause of justice would be better promoted by interference. If the nature of the dispute requires for its adjudication evaluation of evidence and determination of disputed facts, then the High Court is almost invariably disinclined to interfere and would prefer to refer the parties to the statutory or other alternative remedy provided : even in cases of clear-cut violations of law, the High Court would undertake to go into the merits of the controversy only if the statutory or alternative remedy is not adequate or efficacious so as to afford to the aggrieved party effective redress of his grievance. True dictates of justice on the facts and circumstances of the given case thus constitute the requisite yardstic which the High Court employs in determining in its discretion whether or not to exercise its constitutional prerogative.

Where in order to adjudicate upon the election petition the prescribed authority would have to consider the correctness of his own previous order, the order of the prescribed authority finally disposing of an election petition was not subject to any appeal or revision, the election petition was likely to take longer time for its disposal than the writ petition and further, some more elections under the law relating to the Panchayat Samitis and Zilla Parishads were likely to take place.

Held, that these were all important factors justyfying disposal of the writ petition on the merits. 67 Pun L R 1238 : ILR (1966) 1 Punj 347 : AIR 1966 Punj 274 (278, 279) (Pt A) (Prs 6, 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Wrong rejection of nomination papers in an election to Panchayat Samiti—Writ petition challenging the same — Alternative remedy open -No bar to issuance of writ under article in a fit case— Punjab Panchayat Samitis and Zilla Parishads Act (III of 1961), S. 121.

The existence of an alternative remedy does not per se operate as an absolute legal bar to the exercise of jurisdiction of the High Court to issue a writ of certiorari, etc under Art. 226 or to such relief being granted on its writ side and this factor has only self-created relevance in the exercise of the Court's judicial discretion. In so far as interference on writ side with grievances relating to elections to Municipal Committees or to the Panchayats, etc. is concerned, one of the basic and fundamental considerations which largely influence the judicial mind of the writ Court inducing it to interfere is when manifest injustice resulting from jurisdictional or grave and material legal infirmity, patent on the face of the record, is plainly discernible without requiring deep probe into conflicting facts, and the alternative remedy, if any, is not equally effective.

In order to determine whether or not a given alternative remedy is equally adequate and quick so as to merit refusal by High Court to go into the controversy, it is necessary to consider the nature of the challenge to the order rejecting petitioner's nomination paper as also the conduct of the writ petitioner. Thus, where the challenge to the order rejecting petitioner's nomination paper was based on a clear-cut legal argument urging grave error of law on the face of the record which did not require enquiry into the disputed fact and the petitioner's conduct was also free from blame and the writ petition was presented with the utmost expedition, the existence of alternative remedy could not deprive the petitioner of his right to claim adjudication of his grievance from High Court on the writ side : 66 Pun L R 1185 and Civil Writ No. 927 of 1964 (Punj) and AIR 1963 Punj 28 and AIR 1961 S C 65, Foll. 67 Pun L R 413 : ILR (1965) 1 Punj 466 : AIR 1965 Punj 170 (172, 173) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 4) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 228 - Prosecution of person for violation of some section or rule — Procedure to be followed - (Criminal P. C. (1898), S 438).

The proper course of a person who is being prosecuted for the violation of some section or rule of an Act is to raise an objection before the trying Court for its decision on that point and to move the High Court on revision if the decision goes against the petitioner or in the alternative to move the High Court under Art. 228 and to satisfy the High Court that a case pending in a Subordinate Court involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Constitution the determination of which is necessary for the disposal of the case and to request the High Court to withdraw the case to itself and either to dispose of the case or to determine the question of law involved. Instead of this where he puts in an application for a writ under Art. 226 to have the provisions declared ultra vires the High Court would reject the petition on the ground that the proper procedure had not been followed. I L R (1953) Punj 618 : 1953 Cri L J 549 : 55 Punj L R 187 : AIR 1953 Punj 77 (73) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

7(m). Patent assumption of jurisdiction or want of jurisdiction or flagrant disregard to principles of law.

——Art. 226—Other remedy — Income-tax Officer acting without jurisdiction under S 34, Income-tax Act—Other remedy under S. 66 (2) of Income tax Act available — It is not sufficient reason for refusing a party quick relief by a writ or order prohibiting the authority acting without jurisdiction from continuing such action. Calcutta Discount Co., Ltd v. Income tax Officer, Calcutta, (1961) 2 S C R 241 : (1963) 1 S C J 741 : (1961) 1 S C A 661 : (1961) 41 I T R 191 : AIR 1961 S C 372 (380) (Pt D) (Pr 28).

——Arts. 226, 19 and 31—Illegal seizure of goods in possession of petitioner in India, under no authority of law, at instance of Jammu and Kashmir Police — Infringement of fundamental rights —Writ under Art. 226 — Remedy under S. 523, Criminal P. C. (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 523).

Where the police in India seized goods in possession of the petitioner in India, at the instance of Police of Jammu and Kashmir, and the seizure was not under any authority of law, inasmuch as they were not under orders of any Magistrate nor were they under any of the Ss. 51, 95, 98 and 165 of the Criminal P. C., since no report of any offence committed by the petitioner was made to the Police in India and the Indian Police were not authorised to make any investigation and the whole affair was a hole-and-corner affair between the officers of the Kashmir Police and the Indian Police, the seizure of the goods from the possession of the petitioner amounted to an infringement of his fundamental rights both under Art. 19 and Art. 31 and relief should be granted to him under Art. 226.

The fact that the petitioner had made an application under S. 523, Criminal P. C., to the Magistrate will not bar the remedy under Art. 226, inasmuch as S. 523 would have no application to the facts of the case and the Magistrate would have no jurisdiction to order the return of the goods. Wazir Chand v. The State of Himachal Pradesh, 1954 S C J 600 : 1954 S C A 1257 : 1954 Cri L J 1029 : 1955 S C R 408 : AIR 1954 S C 415 (417) (Prs 8, 9).

——Arts. 32 and 226—Breach of rules framed under Act—Remedy open to person aggrieved thereby.

Where there has been any breach of the rules framed under an Act by the officers concerned, the remedy for such breaches is as provided for in the Act itself. Mere irregularities committed in conducting an auction sale held under the provisions of the Act cannot be said to have abridged the petitioner's fundamental rights and so, Art. 32 is not attracted. It is open to the petitioner under Art. 226 to approach the High Court for a mandamus if the officers concerned have conducted themselves not in accordance with law or if they have acted in excess of their jurisdiction. Cooverjee B Bharucha v. Excise Commissioner, 1954 S C J 246 : 1954 S C A 258 : 1954 S C R 873 : AIR 1954 SC 220 (224) (Pt E) (Pr 10).

——Art. 226—High Court can issue direction to return amount of tax realised without authority of law—Existence of alternate remedy is not an absolute bar to entertain petition under Art. 226. See Excess Profits Tax Act (1940), S. 21 (1965) 1 I T J 192 : I L R (1965) 1 All 193 : (1965) 58 I T R 777.

——Arts. 226 and 227—Remedy by way of certiorari open for quashing conviction on ground of lack of juri diction—Petition under Art. 227 is not maintainable. 1963 All Cr R 208 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 595 : I L R (1964) 1 All 178 : A I R 1963 All 585 (587) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Order passed without jurisdiction — Existence of alternative remedy — No bar.

A certiorari will lie against an order which is held to be without jurisdiction; the presence of an alternative remedy where the initial competence is wanting is no answer. AIR 1962 All 77 (80) (Pt C) (Pr 17).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—If, bar to issue of writ of prohibition.

The existence of an alternative remedy is not a bar to the issue of a writ of prohibition. Where the question whether a house was evacuee property was decided in 1953, to reagitate the same matter would amount to harassment of the petitioner. So in spite of the existence of the alternative remedy, the proceedings ought to be terminated by the issue of a writ of prohibition. 1959 All W R (HC) 685 : 1959 All L J 880.

——Art. 226—Other remedy—If bar to writ of certiorari—Initial want of jurisdiction—Effect of.

Where certain Licensing Board constituted under a Statute could act only if it was properly constituted refuses certain application for license before it and the applicant applies for a writ of certiorari for quashing its proceedings on the ground of initial want of jurisdiction, it cannot be objected that the petitioners had an alternative remedy by way of appeal against the order. Further, the right to go up in appeal is not an absolute bar to the maintainability of a petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution and in circumstances of the case it could not also be said that the alternative remedy was equally adequate and efficacious. A I R 1957 All 773 (777) (Pt D) (Pr 15).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Issue of writ—Rent Control proceedings - Order of allotment without jurisdiction — Issue of certiorari and madamus. See Houses and Rents—U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 7. 1957 All L J 93.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—(Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64).

Ordinarily the High Court will not exercise its discretion under Art. 226 if another alternative remedy is available.

Where the petitioner's application for grant of stage carriage permit had already been rejected once on the ground that there was no vacancy and the order of the Appellate Authority confirming the decision of the Transport Authority was also set aside by the High Court and in spite of the directions issued by the High Court to consider the application, the application had again been rejected on a ground which was beyond the provisions of S. 47.

Held, that in those circumstances it could not be said that the alternative remedy was equally adequate. 1956 All L J 375 : 1956 All W R 505 : AIR 1956 All 594 (596, 597) (Pt B) (Pr 2).

——Art. 226 — Adequate alternative remedy open — Writ of certiorari it can be issued.

The question of existence of a specific and adequate alternative remedy is material only when the question of issue of a writ of mandamus is under consideration and not in the case of a writ in the nature of certiorari or a prohibition. Misc. Writ. No. 287 of 1950, Rel. on.

Where the High Court comes to the view that jurisdiction not vested in a judicial or quasi-judicial tribunal has been exercised and a writ of certiorari should issue, such a writ can be issued even if there is an alternative remedy. I L R (1952) 2 All 949 : AIR 1952 All 99 (104) (Pt D) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226—Tribunal or authority acting without jurisdiction — Existence of an alternative remedy — Whether bars petition under Art. 226.

The existence of even an adequate remedy does not bar the High Courts from issuing a writ under Art. 226 in appropriate cases. Since the remedy is a discretionary one, Courts will not interfere where an adequate alternative remedy is available. But if it appears that the Tribunal or authority entertaining a particular matter is totally devoid of jurisdiction, it will be nothing short of oppressiveness to refuse to entertain a petition and leave the aggrieved party to pursue the alternative remedy. (1963) 47 I T R 101 : (1961) 2 Andh W R 393 : A I R 1962 Andh Pra 323 (326, 327) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226—Prerogative writ—Issue of — Alternative remedy available—Assumption of jurisdiction by Estate Duty Officer not vested—Writ can issue—Petition not barred. AIR 1962 Andh Pra 107 (109) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Exercise of jurisdiction—Article—Rule — (Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act (1951), S. 87).

Under S. 87, Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act, it is obligatory on the Commissioner to give notice to the affected parties and to consider their objections before issuing a certificate. The enquiry before the Commissioner is intended to give an opportunity to the person in possession to prove his title and for the purpose of ascertaining prima facie whether the office-holder or the servant, as the case may be, has title to the property. Section 87 gives the aggrieved party an alternative remedy by way of a suit. That being the position, the petitioner is not entitled to invoke the jurisdiction of High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. (1957) 1 Andh W R 13 : AIR 1957 Andh Pra 777 (778, 779) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—(Income-tax Act (1922), Ss. 33-A, 45).

The Commissioner's jurisdiction under S. 33-A of the Income-tax Act depends upon the order passed by the authority subordinate to him. Where no order has been made by the Income-tax Officer and the complaint is that he did not make an order giving stay but issued a certificate to the revenue authorities for collecting the amount by coercive process and that the revenue authorities are bringing properties of the assessee to sale, the grievance being that the Income-tax Officer did not exercise his duty under S. 45 and that he should be compelled to do so the provisions of S. 33-A may not avail the assessee. Even if it does, the mere existence of revisional jurisdiction is not necessarily fatal to the maintainability of the application under Art. 226 of the Constitution. (1956) 30 I T R 252 : I L R (1956) Andh Pra 994 : 1956 Andh L T 656 : 1956 Andh W R 752 : AIR 1957 A P 114 (120) (Pt C) (Pr 16-A) (DB).

——Art. 226—Prohibition—Writ of—Other remedy open—(Madras Co-operative Societies Act (6 of 1932), S. 51 (1) (c)).

Where the Deputy Registrar entertains a claim by the society under S. 51 (c) of the Madras Co-operative Societies Act, although the claim is barred under R. 15 (1-A) of the rules framed under the Act, the alternative remedy by way of appeal and revision provided under the machinery of the Madras Act is no bar to the issue of a writ of prohibition against the Deputy Registrar from taking any further action in respect of the claim in a case of this kind. AIR 1952 Mad 613 : (1952) 1 M L J 557, Foll. A question of limitation involves a question of jurisdiction : AIR 1949 P C 239 (242), Rel. on. If on the facts it is clear that the High Court would interfere ultimately with the order that might emerge from proceedings taken under the Act, it is certainly not only proper but necessary for that Court to interfere earlier by way of a writ of prohibition. AIR 1957 Andh Pra 98 (100) (Pt B) (Prs 5, 7, 8, 9).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Issue of writ—Consideration — (Sales tax — Assam Sales-tax Act (17 of 1947), Ss. 10 and 32).

In appropriate cases, the High Court can always interfere by prerogative writs where it finds that manifest injustice is likely to result from unauthorised and unwarranted acts of the Taxing Authorities which are not sanctioned by the law. It is not correct to say that there being a remedy under the Sales Tax Act itself the person aggrieved unless he questions the constitutionality of the Act itself cannot seek his remedy under Art. 226 against any action proposed to be taken under the Act by the authorities. It is open to the person who is served with the notice, to question the validity of the notice, even by an application under Art. 226. (1958) 9 STC 60 : ILR (1957) 9 Assam 365 : AIR 1957 Assam 179 (180, 181) (Pt A) (Prs 2, 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open—Mistakes by Sales-tax authority in exercise of jurisdiction.

Where the authorities under the Sales Tax Act have admittedly jurisdiction to go into certain matters and they committed mistakes in the exercise of their jurisdiction the aggrieved party can have recourse to the remedies prescribed by the Act for setting matters right. If he has failed to do so the extraordinary jurisdiction of the Court under Art. 226 may not in these circumstances be permitted to be invoked. AIR 1953 Cal 712, Rel. on. ILR (1954) 6 Assam 191 : AIR 1955 Assam 195 (200) (Pt C) (Pr 20) (DB).

——Art. 226—Mandamus—Another remedy available—Comissioner of Sales Tax failing to exercise jurisdiction (Sales Tax — Assam Sales Tax Act (17 of 1947), Ss. 31 and 32).

The fact that there is a specific remedy available is not in all cases an absolute bar to the entertainment of an application under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Where in a sales tax proceeding the order by the Assistant Commissioner dismissing the appeal of the assessee was passed on 20-8-52 and communicated to the petitioner on 4-9-52, and on 24-10-52 well within 90 days from the date of that order, the petitioner moved the Commissioner against the appellate order of the Assistant Commissioner, but the Commissioner instead of acting under section 31 of the Assam Sales Tax Act and dealing with the application presented by the petitioner made a reference to the High Court under S. 32 because the application of the petitioner was wrongly made for reference, which was misconceived, and the reference was dismissed by the High Court as being misconceived, and by this time, the remedy of the petitioner under the Act had become time barred and it was clear that both the petitioner as well as the Commissioner were under a misapprehension of the real position in law.

Held, that in case like this, and under the circumstances aforesaid, the High Court would be justified in issuing a writ quashing the orders which are found to be wrong and direct the Commissioner to exercise his power under section 31 of the Act. ILR (1954) 6 Assam 207 : AIR 1954 Assam 170 (172, 173) (Pt C) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226—Another remedy—Order wholly void.

Orders passed by Minister of Excise in exercise of powers under notification No. M E. X. 120/48/1 dated 15-8-1948—Orders are wholly void and should be set aside in order that appellants may have their appeals disposed of—They can be quashed even if they are treated as orders of administrative authority —Petitioners having no other remedy for obtaining disposal of appeals—Relief under Art. 226 may not be refused AIR 1951 Assam 96, Dist. I L R (1953) 5 Assam 363: AIR 1953 Assam 170 (176) (Pt C) (Pr 29) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Patent want of jurisdiction—Interference—Income-tax Officer exceeding authority — (Income-tax Act (1922) S. 34).

A patent want of jurisdiction entitles the petitioner to obtain immediate relief from the High Court, even though he could raise the plea of want of jurisdiction in a higher tribunal and even though he may have acquiesced in the want of jurisdiction. But the want jurisdiction must be a patent one. 58 Bom LR 184 : (1956) 29 ITR 856 : ILR (1956) Bom 374 : AIR 1956 Bom 530 (536) (Pt F) (Pr 16) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1963 SC 1356].

——Art. 226—Other remedy—R T. A. refusing application for grant of permit — Appeal — Adverse order by Appellate Authority—Order of R T. A., if can be challenged by writ petition—Relief against appellate order when can be granted—(Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 47, 64).

It is quite true that the existence of an alternative remedy is not an absolute bar to a recourse to Art. 226 of the Constitution, but if a party has availed himself of the ordinary remedies provided for by a special Act, he cannot thereafter turn round and begin once again from the bottom by challenging the original order under Article 226 of the Constitution. The petitioner can only attack the order of the Appellate Authority and the High Court can grant relief if the Court is satisfied that there is in such appellate order any error apparent on the face of it or the order is tainted with any illegality on the face of it. I L R (1958) 1 Cal 486 : 61 Cal W N 726 : AIR 1957 Cal 638 (643, 644) (Pt E) (Prs 18, 21).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Want of jurisdiction in Tribunal—Effect.

Though no exception can be had to the principle that if a person has an alternative legal remedy which is sufficient, then he must exhaust it before coming to High Court where a person can show initial lack of jurisdiction in any judicial or quasi-judicial Tribunal, the High Court should deal with such matter and grant relief. 61 Cal W N 759 : (1958) 33 ITR 794 : AIR 1957 Cal 591 (592) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226—Resolution under S. 138 (1) (c), Bengal Municipal Act, 1923, in excess of powers—Remedy under S. 148 Bengal Municipal Act (1923), inadequate — High Court can interfere under Art 226. See Municipalities — Bengal Municipal Act (15 of 1932), S. 138 (1) (c). AIR 1955 NUC (Cal) 2073.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Proceedings to quash order of Rent Controller under W. B Premises Rent Control (Temporary Provisions) Act, 1950 — Inferior Court acting wholly without jurisdiction — High Court will interfere even though there is other remedy, such as right of appeal or review—(Houses and Rents—W. B. Premises Rent Control (Temporary Provisions) Act (1950) Ss. 5 and 32). AIR 1955 NUC (Cal) 798.

——Art. 226 — Although the Writ is not of course it will nevertheless be granted ex debito justitiae, to quash proceedings which the Court has power to quash, where the application is by aggrieved party and it is shown that the Court below has acted without jurisdiction or in excess of jurisdiction and the Writ is available to the applicant although there is an alternative remedy. The Commissioner for Workmen's Compensation has no right to refuse hearing and deny natural justice to the party Where the objection to jurisdiction was apparent on the face of the proceedings, the alternative remedy of appeal cannot stand in the way of the Writ being issued if there is found to be an absence of or excess of jurisdiction in the Commissioner of Workmen's Compensation in dealing with the matter in question. I L R (1952) 2 Cal 412 : 88 Cal L J 137 : 56 Cal W N 73 : AIR 1952 Cal 112 (115) (Pt C) (Prs 16, 20, 21).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open—Writ petition challenging jurisdiction of adjudicating authority and also challenging enquiry and order as being ex facie erroneous — High Court can entertain petition although petitioner has not exhausted remedies under Sea Customs Act (1878).

It is well settled that where a petitioner challenges the jurisdiction of the adjudicating authority or the validity of the enquiry itself or the impugned order on the ground that there is an ex facie error thereunder, he need not wait until he has exhausted the alternative remedy and therefore can file a petition to set aside the impugned order without having recourse to such alternative remedy: A I R 1962 S C 1621, Disting. (1964) 5 Guj L R 633 : AIR 1965 Guj 135 (138) (Pt C) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Election of director of Bank held invalid by misinterpretation of bye-law — Issue of writ Himachal Pradesh Co-operative Societies Act (13 of 1956), S. 112)

Where an arbitrator appointed by the Registrar Co-operative Societies under S. 88, Himachal Pradesh Co operative Societies Act, 1956, holds the election of the petitioner as a Director of the Co-operative Bank as invalid by misinterpreting bye-law 59 (v) of the Bank, resulting in the miscarriage of justice, and the decision of the Arbitrator is upheld by the superior authorities, this is a fit case where the High Court should exercise its powers conferred by Art. 226 and not drive the petitioner to the necessity of filing a regular civil suit. The petitioner may have a right of suit, under S. 112 of the Himachal Pradesh Co-operative Societies Act but under the circumstances of the case it would not be considered as an equally efficacious remedy. A I R 1959 Him Pra 1 (2) (Pt A) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari — Other remedy open.

It is true that a writ of certiorari will not ordinarily be entertained or issued where the applicant has a remedy under the law and could easily pursue it, but where proceedings are taken by an inferior tribunal without jurisdiction a writ of prohibition will lie. AIR 1955 S C 233 : (1955) 1 Mad L J (S C) 157 Rel. on. ILR (1955) Hyd 818 : A I R 1956 Hyd 56 (57) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Ex parte assessment of income-tax — Application under Article— (Hyderabad Income tax Act (8 of 1357.F) S. 31 (4).)

An ex parte assessment having been made under S. 31 (4) against the applicant he applied for the issue of a writ of certiorari. No notice of demand under S. 41, Hyderabad Income-tax Act, was made upon the petitioner and he could not therefore file the application within 30 days from the service of notice of demand as specified in S. 39 nor could he present an appeal or a revision within the time specified in Ss. 42 and 45. The petitioner, however, filed a petition under S. 39 before the Income-tax Officer and under S. 45 before the Commissioner. The Income-tax Officer did not agree to reopen the assessment in spite of reminders by the petitioner. The Commissioner on the other hand rejected the petition on the ground that it was barred by limitation :

Held that in these circumstances the objection that the applicant could have pursued other remedies under the Act had no validity. ILR (1955) Hyd 486 : AIR 1955 Hyd 187 (189) (Pt A) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Another remedy open—Remedy by way of suit open under Hyderabad Endowments Regulation — (Hyderabad Endowments Regulation (1358 H.) S. 10 (b) and R. 83 framed under S. 16).

Where the petitioner had another remedy open under s. 10 (b) of the Regulation and R. 83 by way of a regular suit, but the Minister had acted without due authority of law and without any jurisdiction or in excess of his legitimate jurisdiction in ordering de novo inquiry and in the imposition of the committee of his own choice.

Held, that the High Court was not fettered by the circumstance that an alternative remedy existed in issuing an order under Art. 226. I L R (1955) Hyd 337 : AIR 1955 Hyd 82 (93, 94) (Pt D) (Pr 47).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy - Contract Act (1872), S. 72—Party entitled to relief by way of refund under S. 72, Contract Act—Not precluded from resorting to relief under Art. 226 — Contract Act (1872), S. 72. 1963 Ker L J 356.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open—Issue of writ—(Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 62 and 64).

If the petitioner is able to satisfy the Court that in granting a temporary permit to the Director of State Transport, the Regional Transport Authority has acted, not merely erroneously but in patent and total disregard of the provisions of the Motor Vehicles Act, or in flagrant violation thereof, the Court is not debarred from exercising the jurisdiction under Art. 226 on the ground that the petitioner could have obtained his remedy in some other manner. By issuing a temporary permit on such a ground to the State Transport what is achieved by the Regional Transport Authority is to set at naught the provisions of S. 62 of the Motor Vehicles Act. Therefore, in such a case the Regional Transport Authority acts in patent and total disregard of the provisions of the Motor Vehicles Act and in excess of its powers and the petition under Art. 226 is maintainable though the petitioner has a remedy by way of appeal under S. 64 of the Act. 1959 Ker L J 549 : 1959 Ker L T 601 : I L R (1959) Ker 1224 : AIR 1960 Ker 35 (37) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 5).

——Art. 226—Who can apply — Private school governed by Kerala Education Act, 1958 – Petition by teacher against order of transfer by manager on allegation that order was beyond competence of manager Defiance of order of manager, even if petitioner was entitled to do so, could not afford adequate remedy to petitioner and his petition for relief under Art. 226 could not be rejected on that ground. A I R 1952 S C 16 (21), Ref. 1960 Ker L T 803 : (1960) Ker L J 1182.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open—Writ of certiorari—When can be issued.

There is no rule, with regard to certiorari, that it will lie only where there is no other equally effective remedy. Ordinarily, the superior court will decline to interfere until the aggrieved party has exhausted his other statutory remedies, if any. But this rule is a rule of policy, convenience and discretion rather than a rule of law. If an inferior court or tribunal (a) acts wholly without jurisdiction or (b) patently in excess of jurisdiction or (c) manifestly conducts its proceedings contrary to the rules of natural justice and all accepted rules of procedure which offends the superior court's sense of fair play, the superior court may issue the writ of certiorari. In a proper case of the kind mentioned above the superior Court should interfere. A I R 1958 S C 86; AIR 1957 S C 882 and AIR 1952 S C 192, Rel. on.

The fact that the petitioner, acting on the wrong advice had not preferred any appeal under S. 17, Payment of Wages Act, against a direction made under S. 15 (3) of that Act is no ground for departing from the ordinary rule against interference by certiorari under Art. 226. (1960) 1 Lab L J 299 : 1959 Ker L J 1416.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open—Order without jurisdiction—Interference.

Where the question raised is one of want of jurisdiction the judicial review under the Article is always available, and the objection that the remedy by way of appeal available precluded an application under Art. 226 has no substance in such a case. 1959 Ker L J 93.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Returning officer accepting nomination paper not validly presented—Relief can be granted under Art. 226—Remedy under R. 130 of Madhya Bharat Municipal Election Rules (1950) is wholly inadequate — (Municipalities — Madhya Bharat Municipal Election Rules (1950), R. 130). Madh B L J 1955 H C R 848 : ILR (1955) Madh Bha 387 : Madh B L R 1955 Civ 254 : AIR 1955 M B 179 (181) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Preliminary objection raised by petitioner regarding consideration of his application alone for grant of permit rejected by R. T. A. — Objection being one which goes to root of matter can be taken in writ proceedings even if not raised in appeal—Omission to take any steps against rejection order, before filing of appeal, does not preclude petitioner from challenging that order in writ proceedings. 1965 M P L J 272 : 1965 Jab L J 486 : A I R 1965 Madh Pra 145 (147, 148) (Pt B) (Prs 5, 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Act (1954), Ss. 19, 22 — Notice under S. 19 issued—Conditions laid down in the Act however not complied with—Interference under Art. 226 of the Constitution held justified though petitioner had not filed an appeal under S. 22 of the Act. See Displaced Persons (Compensation and Rehabilitation) Act (1954), S. 19. AIR 1962 Madh Pra 56 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Error on part of inferior tribunal very manifest and patent—High Court will interfere though other remedy open.

It is always discretionary with the High Court to exercise its writ jurisdiction when another remedy, equally efficacious, is available to the party coming to the High Court for issuance of any writ. But when the error on the part of the inferior tribunal is so manifest and patent, the High Court will be fully justified in stepping in to correct the same instead of directing the party aggrieved to go the proverbially tortuous way of a regular suit to have it corrected. 1961 Jab L J 952 : 1961 M P C 698 : 1961 M P L J 1081 : ILR (1962) Madh-Pra 38.

——Art. 226–Other remedy — Order without jurisdiction — Issue of writ to quash — (Income-tax Act (1922), S. 33-A.)

The existence of another remedy by way of revision to the Commissioner of Income-tax may not be sufficient to refuse relief to the petitioner, if she is otherwise entitled to it. The question is really one of jurisdiction. Where the Income-tax Officer had no jurisdiction to include minor partner's income in the income of his mother who was also a partner in the firm in the sense the law did not authorise such an inclusion, there is no bar to the exercise of discretion in favour of the petitioner to grant her the relief to which she is entitled, as ex debito justitiae. (1959) 2 Mad L J 437 : (1959) 37 I T R 204 : A I R 1960 Mad 357 (358, 359) (Ft C) (Frs 9, 12).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Issue of writ — (Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act (19 of 1951), Ss. 39 (2) and 41).

The Area Committee under Madras Act (19 of 1951) exercises a quasi-judicial function in making the appointment of non hereditary trustees under S. 39 (2) and they have to bring to bear on the question an independent and unbiassed judgment. Where the Area Committee had really no reasons, to make the appointment the order of appointment cannot be treated as one passed as contemplated by Ss. 41 and 39 (2) of the Act. The existence of an alternative remedy and the failure to resort to it cannot be a bar to the jurisdiction of the High Court. (1958) 2 M L J 47 : ILR (1958) Mad 637 : 71 Mad L W 265 : A I R 1958 Mad 275 (277) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction of High Court — Other remedy open—It bar to interference with erroneous finding of subordinate tribunal — Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act (26 of 1948)—Erroneous decision of Abolition Tribunal on no evidence at all or on no real evidence — Interference by High Court under Art. 226–Practice.

The fact that under the Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act, 1948, the party aggrieved by an order of the Estates Abolition Tribunal has a remedy open to him by way of a suit to establish his claim, does not preclude the High Court from interfering with an erroneous finding of the Tribunal, in exercise of its jurisdiction under Art. 226.

Where the majority of the Estates Abolition Tribunal decided that three grants of five isolated hamlets in rain-fed areas with wet and dry lands and isolated wet blocks in scattered places in four villages, together constituted an estate as defined by S. 3 (2) (d) of the Madras Estates Land Act, which has been incorporated into the definition in S. 2 (7) of the Madras Act (26 of 1948), on no evidence at all, or at least on no real evidence, such an error apparent on the face of the record can be rectified by the High Court in exercise of the powers vested in by Art. 226 of the Constitution. (1956) 1 M L J 382 : AIR 1955 N U C (Mad) 4333.

——Art. 226 — Order without jurisdiction — Other remedy open. See Income-Tax Act (1922), S. 5-A (8). (1955) 2 M L J 26 : AIR 1955 Mad 39 (DB).

——Art. 226—Prohibition writ of — Existence of alternative remedy is irrelevant consideration in granting writ.

A writ of prohibition lies to prevent an inferior tribunal from exceeding its jurisdiction or even from assuming a jurisdiction which does not vest in it under law. It also lies if a provision of a statute is contravened by the tribunal or even if any principles of law are contravened. In deciding the question whether a writ of prohibition should issue or not, the existence of an alternative remedy is an irrelevant consideration when the complaint is that an inferior tribunal is exceeding its jurisdiction or is assuming a jurisdiction not vested in it by law. If the tribunal is permitted to exercise that jurisdiction which is objected to, if it exercises it wrongly, the mischief would be done before the alternative remedy is availed of. It is unnecessary to insist upon a party complaining that he should first suffer and submit himself to the jurisdiction which is being wrongly exercised or is wrongly exceeded and then take advantage of the alternative remedy. 1952 Mad W N 299 : 1952-1 Mad L J 557 : AIR 1952 Mad 613 (631) (Pt G) (Fr 26) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Constitution of the statutory tribunal which passed the impugned order can be challenged only by writ petition — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 44 (2).

Where the petitioner challenges the constitution of the Regional Transport Authority on the ground that there was no non-official member appointed to that Authority, as required by S. 44 (2) of the Motor Vehicles Act that question can properly be urged only in a writ petition and not before statutory tribunals under the Act. (1964) 1 Mys L J 307 : A I R 1964 Mys 288 (290) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Panchayats — Bombay Village Panchayats Act (6 of 1933), Ss. 9, 107-A—Enquiry under —Powers of Enquiry Officer — Extent of—Production of oral evidence disallowed –Parties asked to prove allegations exclusively by documentary evidence–Order held arbitrary and beyond jurisdiction—Existence of remedy under S. 107-A—Not a bar to seek relief under Art. 226 of Constitution. See Panchayats — Bombay Village Panchayats Act (6 of 1933), S. 9. ILR (1960) Mys 442.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Want of jurisdiction—Writ petition–(Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 62, 134 (2)).

Where the Regional Transport Authority in passing the orders granting temporary permits has failed to apply its mind to find out whether one or other of the circumstances mentioned in section 62, Motor Vehicles Act, did exist, he acts without jurisdiction and the grant of the temporary permits is liable to be quashed in a petition under Art. 226, Constitution of India, although the aggrieved party has not exhausted the remedies available under the Motor Vehicles Act. 37 Mys L J 113 and 37 Mys L J 115, Rel. on. The existence of an alternative remedy is, no doubt, an important circumstance to be taken into consideration in the matter of the exercise of the jurisdiction under Art. 226. But when there is a patent want of jurisdiction, the petitioner would be entitled to obtain immediate relief from the High Court. AIR 1956 Bom 530, Rel. on.

There is nothing in S. 134 (2) of the Motor Vehicles Act which can be construed as being applicable to a case in which a competent authority under the Act, acts wholly without jurisdiction. Nor can the powers of the High Court under Art. 226, be affected in any way, by such a provision. 37 Mys L J 117 : I L R (1959) Mys 143 : A I R 1959 Mys 120 (121, 122) (Prs 3, 4, 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Alternative remedy — Jurisdiction of High Court—Writ of quo warranto.

No doubt, the fact that there is an alternative remedy does not take away the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226; but none of the remedies provided by that Article are as of right. Where there is another remedy available, which is adequate and effective, a writ will not ordinarily be issued, but the Court may issue a writ of quo warranto where the alleged intrusion is patent. AIR 1953 Nag 81, Relied on. 1954 Nag L J 644 : ILR (1955) Nag 557 : A I R 1955 Nag 9 (10) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Petitioner challenging demand made upon him under S. 7 (2) of Finance Act, 1951 as being wholly without jurisdiction — Validity of S. 7 (2) itself challenged — Contention that in case section be valid, case did not fall under it, raised — Contention that before invoking Art. 226, petitioner should have exhausted remedy provided by Act 1 of 1944 held not maintainable in view of fact that Government had not proceeded under Act 1 of 1944 and also because the petitioner questioned the very authority and jurisdiction to make the demand which was alleged to be not under the Act but wholly outside it I L R (1952) Nag 156 : A I R 1952 Nag 139 (141) (Pt A) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open—Order made by authority having no jurisdiction — Appeal from order not availed by petitioner—Writ petition is not barred.

The work of a contractor and a sub-contractor cannot be termed as work and employment. The Bihar Shops and Establishments Act has therefore no application where the relationship between the petitioners and respondent is that of a contractor and a sub-contractor. Since the Act has no application to the relation of contractor and his sub-contractor the authority prescribed under the Act has no jurisdiction to deal with the matter; and this absence of jurisdiction in the authority is a special circumstance in the case for the maintainability of the writ application under Art. 226, even though the petitioners have not availed themselves of the alternative remedy. C W I C No. 135 of 1965 (Pat), Foll.; A I R 1955 S C 661 and A I R 1954 Pat 43, Rel. on. 1965 B L J R 702 : A I R 1966 Pat 127 (129) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 5, 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — (Bihar and Orissa Public Demands Recovery Act (IV of 1914), Ss. 43 and 44—Applicability).

Sections 43 and 44 of Act (IV of 1914) apply only to a case where the certificate has been 'duly filed' under the Act; in other words, when 'public demand' is due within the meaning of S. 3 (6) of the Act. If at the time when the certificate is signed by the Certificate Officer there is no 'public demand' due from a person the certificate is ultra vires and all the proceedings founded thereon are null and void. In such a case, Sections 43 and 44 of the Act have no application, and the person is not bound to have recourse to the special machinery provided in these sections. 25 Cal 833 (PC) Foll. A I R 1928 Cal 808, Rel. on. AIR 1956 Pat 89 (90) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Other appropriate remedy open but not availed — Discretion of High Court to issue writ.

The power to grant relief under Art. 226 of the Constitution is discretionary — Where the petitioner has another effective remedy open to him but has failed to avail of it a petition under Art. 226 will not generally be entertained. It is only in most exceptional cases where the conduct of the authorities concerned is such as to make it clear that they have not been discharging their duties and are not likely to do so without the guidance of the Court that the Court will be justified in issuing mandamus. (1952) 3 S T C 7 : A I R 1952 Pepsu 106 (108, 109) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ Petition under — Existence of alternative remedy — Effect — Irregularity in conduct of election — Writ petition is maintainable though election petition could have been filed.

The existence of an alternative remedy is an extremely important factor, and more particularly so in those election contests in which the Legislature has provided remedy by way of election petition. But it does by no means per se affect, curtail or impinge upon that jurisdiction under Art. 226 which can be invoked in a fit case by an aggrieved party when the true dictates of justice so demand. The matter is pre-eminently one of judicial discretion. No inflexible and rigid rule can or should therefore be formulated to serve as a straight jacket in all cases. Each case has to be dealt with in its own peculiar setting and circumstances. The mere availability of an alternative remedy does not itself impose an obligation on the High Court to relegate the aggrieved party to such remedy. (1964) 66 P L R 1185, Rel. on. When the irregularity committed by the Returning Officer has gone to the very root of the matter, the mere fact, therefore, that the petitioners did not file an election petition will not debar them from seeking the appropriate remedy by way of a petition under Art. 226. 1965 Cur L J 482 : 67 Pun L R 672.

——Art. 226 — Punjab Co-operative Societies Act (XXV of 1961), Ss. 27 68 (1) (c) — Action under S. 27 (1) by Registrar — Condition precedent — Non-compliance — Removal of directors held contrary to S. 27—Remedy of appeal under S. 68 (1) (c) available — Petition of directors under Art. 226 of Constitution not barred. See Punjab Co-operative Societies Act (XXV of 1961), S. 27. 1964 Cur L J 157 (Punj).

——Art. 226—Other remedy.

Ordinarily, the High Court does not interfere in writ proceedings if the petitioner has not made use of any alternative remedy available to him under the law, but where the impugned order, is patently illegal and has resulted in great injustice to the petitioners, it is a fit case in which the High Court should interfere by issuing the prerogative, writ of certiorari. 65 Pun L R 742 : 1963 Cur L J 60.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy available — Grant of temporary permit under S. 62 of Motor Vehicles Act — It is doubtful whether appeal lies against such grant — But even if an appeal lay, if the authority acted without jurisdiction in granting temporary permits without applying its mind whether the circumstances mentioned in S. 62 (c) existed or not, the High Court would be justified in quashing the grant by way of a writ of certiorari even though the petitioner had not exhausted the remedies available under the Act. A I R 1959 Mys 120 and A I R 1958 Ker 19, Rel. on. 64 Punj L R 34 : AIR 1962 Punj 17 (23) (Pt E) (Pr 13).

——Art. 226 — Alternative remedy — Though open not availed of — Effect — Discretion of Court to entertain writ petition.

The existence of an alternative remedy is not an absolute bar to the entertainment of writ petition and the Court has discretion to entertain the petition even though the petitioner had not availed of the alternative remedy provided by law.

Where the writ petitioner challenged the order of assessment to sales tax as being without jurisdiction in view of Art. 286 (1) (b) of the Constitution, without filing any appeal against that order as provided by S. 13 (1), Rajasthan Sales Tax Act.

Held, that in the circumstances it would not be proper to dismiss the petition in limine on ground that the petitioner had not availed of the alternative remedy. A I R 1961 S C 1506, Rel. on. (1964) 15 S T C 966 : I L R (1963) 13 Raj 908 : 1963 Raj L W 517 : AIR 1964 Raj 5 (8) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

[Reversed in A I R 1966 S C 142, wherein the Supreme Court held that the High Court should have declined to entertain the petition as there must be something more in a case to warrant the entertainment of a petition under Art. 226, something going to the root of the jurisdiction of the Sales Tax Officer, something to show that it would be a case of palpable injustice to the assessee to force him to adopt the remedies provided by the Act. But the case was, however, reversed on the ground that the High Court should not have decided disputed questions of fact, but should merely have quashed the assessment order on the ground that the Sales Tax Officer had not dealt with the question raised before him and remanded the case—Ed.]

——Art. 226—Other remedy — Plea of bias—Proper approach.

The existence of an alternative remedy is no doubt one point to be considered in deciding whether a writ application should be entertained or not. But it does not affect the jurisdiction of the High Court to entertain such application even though there may be available to the petitioner an alternative remedy keeping in view the special circumstances : I L R (1957) 7 Raj 723, Rel. on. Where the interest and bias of the appellate authority is alleged to be the ground for not following the alternative remedy, the proper approach to the case is to determine whether there are reasonable grounds for inferring a bias justifying a reasonable apprehension that the appellants will not secure a fair and objective determination of their appeals. A I R 1960 S C 468 Rel. on. I L R (1960) 10 Raj 1392 : 1962 Raj L W 523 : AIR 1961 Raj 130 (132, 133) (Pt A) (Prs 6, 8).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Issue of writ.

Where the local limits of an existing municipal board are sought to be altered, but they have not been altered by a competent authority, and in this state of affairs the municipality goes to the polls and elects its members, then it is not the duly delimited municipality which has gone to the polls but a different body, and the error is so fundamental that it is not an error merely in the holding of an election but something which goes to affect the very constitution of the municipality in the eye of law. Every substantial error made in violation of the provisions of the Act may not be capable of being challenged before an election tribunal. In such a case the error can be corrected under Art. 226 of the Constitution. ILR (1959) 9 Raj 1084 : AIR 1960 Raj 152 (156, 157, 158) (Pt A) (Prs 12 to 14, 17, 20, 21) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Rajasthan Public Demands Recovery Act (V of 1952), S. 20 — Conditions requisite for laying foundation for proceeding under the Act not complied with—Defaulter should not be driven to remedy of suit under S. 20 — High Court should issue order in the nature of prohibition.

There are four essentials which are the foundation for proceedings under the Rajasthan Public Demands Recovery Act. It is only when all these conditions are present that foundation is laid for the Collector to take action for recovery under the Act. If any of these conditions is not present, there is a patent lack of jurisdiction in the Collector to proceed under the Act. In such a case, a defaulter should not be driven to the remedy of a suit under S. 20, for such a remedy would not be equally effective, beneficial and convenient, and it is but right that High Court should prohibit the Collector in his extraordinary jurisdiction from proceeding in a matter in which he has not laid the foundations of his jurisdiction. The remedy sought by the defaulter in such a case would be of the nature of prohibition 1957 Raj L W 370 : I L R (1957) 7 Raj 148 : AIR 1958 Raj 17 (18) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Rajasthan Public Demands Recovery Act (5 of 1952), S. 20—Conditions requisite for laying foundation for proceeding under the Act not complied with—Defaulter should not be driven to remedy of suit under S. 20 — High Court should issue order in the nature of prohibition. AIR 1958 Raj 17 (18) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Another remedy open — (Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), Ss. 26 and 27).

Held, that the action of the custodian authorities was apparently so unauthorised that the petition under Art. 226 against their orders would not be dismissed simply on the ground that the Custodian or Custodian-General, as the case may be, had discretionary powers of interference in revision under S. 26 and 27 of the Evacuee Property Act and the petitioner did not avail of it. 1958 Raj L W 308.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — (Municipalities —Aimer-Merwara Municipalities Regulation (VI of 1925), S. 93).

Section 93 permits appeal against assessment or levy of the tax — Where what is objected to in the petition under Art. 226 is the very foundation of the imposition of the tax the application is entertainable. 1958 Raj L W 304 : ILR (1958) 8 Raj 195.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Order impeached not showing under what law it was passed—Effect.

Unless an order interfering with the rights of certain persons shows under what law it was passed and by what officer, so that they may know what alternative remedy they have, the High Court would not be prepared to deny justice to them under Art. 226 on the ground of availability of another remedy. 1954 R L W 664 Explained and Distinguished. 1958 Raj L W 241 : ILR (1958) 8 Raj 205.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — (Panchayats — Rajasthan Panchayat Raj Rules 1954), R. 19).

Rule 19 contemplates election petition against individual Panchayat. It does not contemplate an election petition asking the tribunal to declare the entire election invalid on the ground of a fundamental deficiency in carrying out the mandatory rules relating to the holding of the election. Where by the petition under Art. 226 it is not the election of any individual panch or Sarpanch or Up sarpanch that is challenged but that the entire election is void on the ground of a fundamental deficiency in the procedure preceding the election, the High Court is entitled to interfere in the exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction. 1957 Raj L W 317 : ILR (1957) 7 Raj 177 : AIR 1957 Raj 95 (97, 98) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Another remedy—Election proceeding — Rajasthan Panchayat Election Rules (1954), R. 20 Election of candidate though declared, ignored by Returning Officer and another election held — Misconduct of Returning Officer—Remedy of candidate is under Art. 226.

Reading R. 20 as it stands, there can be no doubt that the misconduct or corrupt practice referred to therein must refer to the misconduct or corrupt practice of the candidate or his agent, and not to the misconduct or corrupt practice of the Returning Officer. Therefore, no election petition will lie on the ground of any irregularity committed by the Returning Officer. In such a case, as the candidate, whose election has been ignored, cannot obtain a remedy by filing an election petition, he can rightly move the High Court by a writ petition filed under Art. 226, Constitution of India. 1956 Raj L W 311 : I L R (1956) 6 Raj 797 : A I R 1956 Raj 188 (190) (Pt C) (Prs 6, 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open—Ss. 92 and 95 of Jaipur Customs Act only permit appeal or revision against orders under Act—Action of customs officer not authorised by Act — There is no necessity of recourse to remedy under Act They are not bar to petition under Art. 226 — (Jaipur Customs Act (XLV of 1943), Ss. 92 and 95). AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 1631 (DB).

——Art. 226 - Other remedy open—(Matsya Customs Ordinance (1948), Ss. 48, 72).

Where the order under S. 48 of the Matsya Customs Ordinance has not been made by the Superintendent Customs, the appeal would not lie to the Civil Judge under S. 72. 1953 Raj L W 47 : I L R (1952) 2 Raj 511 : A I R 1953 Raj 158 (162) (Pt C) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226—Prohibition, writ of — Other remedy open.

Where the superior Court comes to the conclusion that an inferior tribunal is exercising jurisdiction which is not vested in it, the superior Court will issue a writ of prohibition, even though there may be an alternative remedy. 1951 R L W 56 ; 1952 R L W 71 and 1952 R L W 184, Rel. on. A I R 1953 Raj 71 (72) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64 — Application for permit — No orders given — That because no orders have been given, it cannot be held that application has been rejected - Question of appeal under S. 64 does not arise — Petition under Art. 226, Constitution of India, is maintainable — See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64. AIR 1953 Raj 1.

——Art. 226—Other remedy available—Usurpation of Jurisdiction—Grant of relief under Art. 226.

The High Court can in a proper case grant relief under Art. 226 of the Constitution although the applicant has another remedy, (e g.) where the order of a properly constituted authority is in his favour and that order is set aside by unauthorised persons who have purported to act as appellate authorities by usurping jurisdiction. 1952 R L W 199 : ILR (1954) 2 Raj 18 : A I R 1952 Raj 104 (106) (Pt D) (Pr 14) (DB)

——Art. 226 — Prohibition — Writ, when may be issued—Alternative remedy available.

Prohibition lies not only for excess of or absence of jurisdiction, but also for the contravention of some statute or the principles of the common law ; it does not, however, lie to correct the course, practice, or procedure of an inferior tribunal or a wrong decision on the merits of the proceedings. The Court in deciding whether or not to grant a writ of prohibition will not be fettered by the fact that an alternative remedy exists to correct the absence or excess of jurisdiction or an appeal lies against such absence or excess. 1951 R L W 56 : I L R (1951) 1 Raj 96 : (1951) 20 I T R 214 : AIR 1951 Raj 94 (2) (104) (Pt K) (Pr 27a) (DB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1954 S C 158.]

——Art. 226—Alternate remedy by way of appeal.

Where in the case of an industrial dispute the Appellate Tribunal dismissed the appeal without going into merits thereof, the High Court cannot accept the argument that because a right of appeal lay and such right was actually availed of the High Court should not grant the relief such as a writ of certiorari under the Constitution. Even if the Appellate Tribunal had given its finding on the question whether the Agarias are workmen within the definition of the Industrial Disputes Act, its decision would not be final and binding as the quetion was collateral to the assumption of jurisdiction by the Industrial Tribunal. AIR 1955 Sau 33 (35, 36) (Pt D) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Another remedy open — Order under S. 47C of Saurashtra District Police Ordinance (46 of 1948) as amended by Act (23 of 1951).

When an appeal is provided, the High Court will not issue a writ as a general rule but if the High Court is satisfied that the District Magistrate purported to act under S. 47-C of Saurashtra District Police Ordinance without applying his mind to the question whether the conditions which gave him jurisdiction existed or not he contravenes the fundamental rights of a citizen and it becomes the duty of the High Court to interfere. 1953 Cr L J 86 : A I R 1953 Sau 3 (4) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

●——Art. 226—Other remedies—Prohibition.

The existence of an alternative remedy is no bar to the issue of a writ of prohibition in appropriate cases. If the defect of jurisdiction is apparent on the face of the proceedings the order of prohibition must go as of right and is not a matter of discretion. (1853) 1 All E R 862 ; (1921) 3 K B 169 ; (1899) 80 L T 472 ; (1860) 9 L J Q B 267, Ref. A. N. Lekshmana Shenoy v. Income-tax Officer, 1953 Ker L T 725 : ILR (1953) T C 1232 : AIR 1954 Trav-Co 137 (138) (Pt B)(Pr 7) (FB).

7 (n). Disregard of principles of natural justice.

——Art. 226—Uttar Pradesh District Boards Act (10 of 1922), Ss. 71, 90 (3) — Suspension of Secretary—Procedure is same as for dismissal under S. 71—Suspension ordered by ordinary resolution passed by simple majority — Not valid — No appeal lies under S. 71 — Proper remedy is by writ petition. See Uttar Pradesh District Boards Act (10 of 1922), S. 71. 1962 All L J 1111.

——S. 226 — Petitioner charged for abetting offences of smuggling — Flagrant disregard of principles of natural justice in proceedings before Collector—Proceedings would be quashed in writ proceedings although petitioner did not exhaust statutory remedies under the Customs Act. See Customs Act (1962), S. 124. A I R 1965 Andh Pra 415.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari, writ of — Other remedy open—Breach of fundamental principles of justice—Administration of Evacuee Property Act (31 of 1950), Ss. 7, 26.

The notice referred to in S. 7 is a notice to "the persons interested". Now, it cannot be that at the stage of giving notice, the Custodian shall have finally determined who are the persons interested, or could have had any means of determining it; and therefore if these words in the section have to be given a reasonable interpretation, they can only mean persons who either claim to be interested or whom the custodian considers to be interested, both being separate categories of persons, though not necessarily mutually exclusive, who would be entitled to notice. In the case of a person claiming to be interested even if the Custodian considers that he is not interested, the person would still be entitled to notice under S. 7, and the Custodian may, even in a case in which no person comes forward and claims to be interested, give notice to a person whom he considers to be interested. This class of persons necessarily includes persons having the legal title to the property, but it is not restricted to such persons only and embraces all persons who have an interest in the property howsoever limited. Giving of notice is a statutory requirement. It is not procedural only but it is mandatory and goes to the very root of jurisdiction of the Custodian and if no notice is given to persons interested, the declaration made that any property is evacuee property is without jurisdiction and liable to be set aside. Where a suitable manner of notice is prescribed, the Custodian will have to follow it; but if no manner of notice is prescribed, the Custodian will yet have to give notice to all persons interested who are entitled to notice under the section. Form No. 1 provided by the Rules does not cover the case of a transferee from an evacuee who is entitled to notice, nor does it cover the case of a person who claims to be interested in the property which the Custodian has reason to believe belongs to an evacuee and who claims adversely to the evacuee. There is, therefore, no form prescribed of notice to such persons, who are none the less entitled to notice by virtue of the mandatory provisions of S. 7, sub s. (1). That being so, the Custodian is bound to give a proper notice to such persons. Although there may be another remedy the Court will interfere by a writ of certiorari if something has been done which is contrary to the fundamental principles of justice. It is quite obviously contrary to the fundamental principles of justice that property in which a person claims to be interested should be declared to be evacuee property without notice of intention to do so being given to the party concerned. It is also contrary to the fundamental principles of justice that in a proceeding to confirm the relinquishment and transfer of the 1/4th share of an evacuee in a certain tenancy right, the Custodian should proceed to determine that the entire tenancy right belongs to the evacuee. Therefore, notwithstanding the fact that the petitioners have a remedy under S. 26 of the Act, a writ of certiorari lies. 53 Bom L R 923 : I L R (1952) Bom 851 : A I R 1952 Bom 213 (215, 216) (Prs 4, 5, 6, 8, 9).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Remedy by way of appeal—Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act (48 of 1950), S. 7—Bombay Industrial Relations Act (11 of 1947), S 87 (a) (ii).

Unless there is a violation of the fundamental principles of justice, the Court will be loath to issue a writ of certiorari if an appeal lies.

The words "fundamental principle of justice" cannot be interpreted so as to make mere want of jurisdiction or excess of jurisdiction a violation of that principle.

Where the Industrial Court in an appeal under S. 38 of the Industrial Relations Act modified, added to and rescinded certain portions of the standing Orders settled by the Commissioner of Labour and confirmed the rest, there is a decision by the Industrial Court within the meaning of S. 87 (a) (ii) of the Act and it cannot be taken out of the scope of the word 'decision' in S. 7 of the Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act by urging that what the Industrial Court did was to pass an order and not to give a decision. Hence there being an adequate and specific legal remedy by way of appeal against the decision of the Industrial Court open to the party aggrieved a writ of certiorari would not be issued. (1946) 48 Bom L R 565, Foll. 53 Bom L R 917 : 3 F J R 436 : I L R (1952) Bom 839 : A I R 1952 Bom 299 (212, 213) (Pt E) (Prs 6, 7).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Issue of—Powers of High Court — Other remedy open to applicant by way of appeal — It disentitles him to remedy by writ—Principles.

Although the High Court is ordinarily very loath to issue the high prerogative writ of certiorari, if there is another suitable remedy open to the petitioner, e. g., a right of appeal, it may issue a writ even in such a case, if it is satisfied that the officer or authority against whom the writ is sought had acted in a manner contrary to the fundamental principles of justice. That there is an adequate and specific alternative remedy is always a factor to be taken into consideration by the Court in deciding whether a writ of certiorari should issue or not. If the Court finds that a fundamental principle of justice has been violated, that is an important factor which the Court should also take into consideration, and if it finds that a fundamental principle of justice has been violated, it should not and will not refuse to issue a writ merely on the ground that there is an alternative adequate remedy in existence, unless there are special circumstances operating against the applicant in obtaining the relief by way of writ. Under Art. 226 the powers of the High Court are much wider than they were before the Constitution, and the fact that the applicant had a right of appeal should not by itself disentitle him to the issue of a writ of certiorari. (1950) S C R 566; 48 Bom L R 565, Ref. 53 Bom L R 621 : A I R 1951 Bom 440 (445) (Pt C) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Order infringing principles of natural justice—Existence of alternative remedy — No bar to issue of writ to quash the order. A I R 1965 Cal 498 (506) (Pt J) (Pr 57).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Bar to writ—Violation of principles of natural justice—Effect.

Ordinarily, the Court would not interfere where there be an alternative remedy available, though in a proper case, it should do so, and a superior Court would readily issue a certiorari where there is denial of natural justice. But where the order of a quasi-judicial authority is vitiated by having violated the principles of natural justice that would be a fit case for interference. 1958 S C J 242 : 1958 Mad L J (Cri) 197 : A I R 1958 S C 86, Rel. on. 1960 Ker L T 632 : 1960 Ker L J 915 : (1960) 2 Ker L R 189 : A I R 1960 Ker 351 (352) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Issue of writ — Principles of natural justice violated — Effect — Travancore-Cochin Agricultural Income-tax Act (XXII of 1950), Ss. 18, 31 and 32.

It is well settled that the existence of an adequate statutory relief bars the exercise of jurisdiction under Art. 226; but it is equally well settled that a person complaining of rules of natural justice having been violated in proceedings that he seeks to vacate, should not be denied the benefit of the Article, even though he may have other adequate statutory remedy, which he can seek. Where the complaint is of infraction of the principles of natural justice by authorities exercising quasi-judicial powers, the writ petitions under Art. 226 cannot be dismissed on the ground that the party complaining is entitled to the statutory right of appeal : A I R 1960 Ker 351. Rel. on. The jurisdiction under Article 226 is not concurrent, and the petitioners having appealed, must not get the benefit of the Article until the final stages of the relief under the Act are reached. 1960 Ker L J 1019 : (1960) 2 Ker L R 361 : 1960 Ker L T 930 : I L R (1960) Ker 1153.

——Art. 226—No equally efficacious remedy open—Interference under Article is called for.

Where rejection of a nomination paper is flagrantly wrong and arbitrary, and no enquiry or evidence is required, the remedy by way of an election petition cannot be said to be equally efficacious and hence it is an appropriate case where appropriate relief under Art. 226 must be given to the person whose nomination is so rejected. 1965 Jab L J 248 : 1965 M P L J 375.

——Art 226 — Alternative remedy — No bar to issuance of a writ.

It is true that normally the failure to resort to the appropriate remedies may be a bar to the issue of a writ but where the Court did not reject the petition on that ground at the stage of admission, it is not proper to rely on that circumstance when the hearing of the petition discloses a violation of principles of natural justice. It is well accepted that the existence of an adequate alternative remedy is not always a bar to the issue of a writ. (1960) 2 M L J 392, Followed. (1963) 2 Mad L J 309 : 76 Mad L W 845 : 1964 Mad W N 80 : (1964) 14 S T C 420.

——Art. 226—Alternative remedy—Punjab Gram Panchayat Act 1952 (IV of 1953) as amended by Act XXVI of 1962, S. 13-C and S. 13 O—Presiding Officer changing result of election illegally behind the back of petitioner duly declared as elected—As under circumstances of the case election petition under S. 13-C could not be filed, High Court could interfere under Art. 226. 1964 Cur L J 392 (Punj).

——Art. 226—Writ of mandamus—Permanent municipal servants—Bye-law 52 of Simla Municipality and Rules 1 to 4 framed under S. 240 (n), Punjab Municipal Act—Discharge from service for alleged misconduct—Procedure prescribed by rules framed under Act not followed—Writ held should be issued—Punjab Municipal Act (III of 1911), Ss. 31 (1) and 240 (a).

The mere fact that remedy by way of appeal under R. 4 was open to the applicant and was not availed of, could not disentitle him to the writ prayed for, particularly when it was not possible for the applicant to shape his appeal when he did not know the grounds of decision against him. 1882 Q B D 426, Rel. on.

Even in the absence of any rules the principle of natural justice, i. e, the maxim audi alterum partem—no man shall be condemned unheard—would apply in cases of this kind. ILR (1954) Punj 528 : 55 Pun L R 100 : A I R 1953 Punjab 88 (90, 94) (Pt A) (Prs 13, 17, 19, 20, 36 38, 39).

——Art. 226—Writ of certiorari when will be issued even if another remedy is available.

It cannot be laid down as a general rule that the High Court should interfere by a writ of certiorari in every case where there is a breach of a rule or a violation of a fundamental principles of justice, in spite of there being an alternative remedy by a suit or appeal. But where there had been a non-compliance of a statutory rule laying down a fundamental principle of justice, viz., the right of being heard before an order of eviction is made and which order might cause irreparable injury to the party concerned, held that such party could apply to the High Court for a writ even though there was a right of appeal against the order. (Case under Administration of Evacuee Property Rules). AIR 1952 Sau 1 (2, 3) (Pt C) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari, writ of—Proceedings under S. 5-A, Land Acquisition Act—Non-compliance with mandatory provisions of S 5-A—Effect—Writ of certiorari if can be issued—Land Acquisition Act, 1894, S. 5-A—Rewa Land Acquisition Law, 1935. S. 8.

The provisions of S. 5-A, Land Acquisition Act, (corresponding to S. 8 of the Rewa Land Acquisition Law 1935) which require that the objector should be given an opportunity to be heard either in person or by pleader are mandatory and therefore where the land acquisition authority decides under S. 6 (1) of the Act to acquire the land without giving such opportunity to the objector its decision is illegal and a writ of certiorari can be issued against him directing him not to take further proceedings till the objector is given an opportunity of being heard in the manner required by S. 5-A. Though the objector has another remedy open to him by way of declaratory suit in the proper civil Court it would not be equally speedy, convenient and effectual remedy and therefore a writ of certiorari should be issued to meet the ends of justice and convenience. AIR 1951 Vindh Pra 3 (4, 5) (Prs 7, 10, 11, 12).

7 (o). Question of great constitutional or public importance.

——Art. 226—Another remedy open—Issue of writ—Municipality impugning constitution of—(Municipalities—Ajmer Municipalities Regulation (VI of 1925), S. 33 (1)).

A petition regarding the validity of R. 6 of the Ajmer Municipalities Election Rules, 1951, is not covered by S. 33 (1), Ajmer Municipalities Regulation (VI of 1925). Therefore, the absence of an election petition cannot be a bar to writ petition under Art. 226, Constitution of India, wherein the validity of the said rule is impugned. AIR 1956 Ajmer 73 (74) (Pt A) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Writ petition to High Court without resorting to statutory remedies—Single Judge of High Court entertaining petition and referring it to Division Bench as points raised in petition were important and vires of the Act were challenged—High Court can exercise its discretionary jurisdiction and will not be justified in dismissing petition in limine : A I R 1961 S C 609, Apld. (1964) 15 S T C 505 : AIR 1965 All 86 (89) (Pt A) (Prs 11, 12, 13) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Extent of power. Though under Art. 226 the High Court does not generally interfere if other suitable remedies are open to the applicants where a tax or a licence fee is imposed which is challenged as improper, and it affects a large number of people the Court has the right to see if the complaint is justified.

It is not possible, nor is it desirable that the High Court should in such cases examine the figures in any detail to judge whether the licence fee was or was not excessive, but the affidavits must prima facie show that the licence fee was not unreasonable. 1954 All L J 697 : 1954 All W R (HC) 615 : AIR 1955 All 184 (185, 186) (Pt B) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Question of constitutionally of law—Levy of circumstances and Property Tax under U. P. District Boards Act—Assessee's appeal under S. 128 of Act dismissed—Question of constitutionality of Ss. 108 and 114 of Act raised—Objection that assessee had remedy by way of suit—High Court should entertain petition and decide question. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 3522 (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—High Court can issue writ when question is regarding taxation affecting large number of persons. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 172 (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Appeal under S. 186, U. P. District Boards Act—Scope of—Challenging validity of bye-law itself—Maintainability of writ application. See U. P. Dist. Boards Act (X of 1922), S. 186. 1954 All LJ 405 : AIR 1954 All 675.

——Art. 226—Interlocutory Order—Interference.

The High Court will not ordinarily interfere by certiorari or prohibition with an interlocutory order which may be challenged in appeal or revision. But that rule does not apply when the statutory provision under which the interlocutory order is made is itself attacked as being void under the Constitution. A I R 1954 All 161 (161) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

● ——Art. 226—Another remedy open—Question involved one of public importance—Speedy decision desirable—Petition can be entertained even though there is another remedy by way of suit.

There is no inflexible rule that in every case in which a fundamental right is involved, a decision should be given by the Court on merits on an application under Art. 226. There may be cases in which the existence of an alternative remedy may be a ground for the rejection of the application. The circumstances of each case should be considered and then a decision should be taken whether or not the discretion should be exercised. Where a general question of some public importance has been raised, namely whether a certain bye-law of the municipality prohibiting slaughter of cows, bullocks, etc. infringes the fundamenial right of the petitioner to carry on any profession, and it is desirable that it should be speedily decided and the parties should not remain under suspense for a long time and on the determination of the question the decision of the petitioner and others of his class whether to continue in the present avocation or to take to some other will depend, the High Court can entertain the petition under Art. 226, even though the petitioner has another remedy of a suit. Case law reviewed.

Per Dayal J.—The issue of the various writs or directions is in the discretion of the Court. It is not much use to lay it down in the form of any formula that the discretion is to be exercised in such and such a circumstance only. Whatever desirability there may be for expressing any general formula in this respect in connection with ordinary cases, it does not appear to be much when the writ or direction is sought by a person who alleges that his fundamental rights under Chapter III of the Constitution have been infringed. These rights are of a very different character from the rights which are ordinarily agitated before Courts. The importance of these rights is apparent from their incorporation in the Constitution and from its providing a guarantee for the right of a person to move the Supreme Court for their enforcement. It should, therefore, be a very extreme case that such a grievance be brought before the Court and the Court should be in a position to say that another remedy under the ordinary law would provide redress.

When an aggrieved person is given a right to get an adjudication of the dispute about the infringement of his right from the Supreme Court, it would not be right to say that he is not to get a similar adjudication by a High Court if there exists an alternative legal remedy. Budhhu v. Municipal Board, Allahabad, 1952 All L J 505 : 1952 All W R (H C) 558 ILR (1953) 2 All 112 : AIR 1952 All 753 (757, 760, 761) (Pt A) (Prs 9, 10, 32, 36) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open—Issue of writ—Discretion.

The principle of another remedy can have no application where a party comes to Court with an allegation that his right has been or is being threatened to be infringed by a law which is ultra vires the powers of the Legislature which enacted it and as such void and prays for appropriate relief under Art 226. AIR 1955 S C 661, Rel. on. (1957) 8 S T C 417 : ILR (1957) 9 Assam 167 : AIR 1957 Assam 61 (64) (Pt B) (Pr 13) (DB).

● ——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Petitioner's case that his discharge from service was illegal and ultra vires — Another remedy open — High Court is not precluded from entertaining petition under Art. 226.

The proceedings under Art. 226 are of a summary nature. The jurisdiction is extraordinary. It has to be exercised very sparingly and only in cases where the rights of persons have been contravened and they have no other adequate remedy available to them. The remedy cannot be allowed to be utilised as a substitute for ordinary remedies that are available under the general law. But distinction will have to be made between ordinary cases and cases of flagrant injustice where immediate or urgent action of an extraordinary kind is called for. The merits of the case would be the determining factor in most cases. The Courts, therefore have avoided laying down an inflexible rule to the effect that the mere existence of an alternative remedy operates as a bar against the exercise of the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226. The alternative remedy has to be adequate and efficacious and in cases of urgency, it should be capable of affording prompt relief.

Where there is removal of the petitioner from service by Government itself as result of repeated Cabinet decisions based on ground of policy, there would be no right of appeal. The right of appeal is available from decisions under the rules in individual cases and not against policy decision affecting employees in different departments who had to be discharged. It is extremely doubtful if a constitutional head of the State could reverse the decision of the Government under the ordinary rules of service. If therefore the right of appeal existed, it could not, in the circumstances of the case, be regarded as an adequaie remedy. It was merely illusory.

Moreover in this case there was demand for justice which was not granted.

Remedy by way of suit also could not be regarded as appropriate. Forcing the petitioner to the ordinary remedy by suit might well amount to a denial of justice.

Contra.—No relief could be given to the petitioner under Art. 226 of the Constitution inasmuch as he neither filed an appeal to the Governor nor was he prompt in taking necessary measures for redress.

Even if it be contended that the petitioner was given certain contractual rights his remedy was by way of suit and not by an application under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Hiranmoy v. State of Assam, AIR 1954 Assam 224 (240, 246, 247, 253, 255) (Pt K) (Prs 16, 46, 48, 49, 63, 69) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Remedy by way of appeal — Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Act — (Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Act (4 of 1944), S. 34.)

Where the Income tax Officer makes an assessment of the petitioner's income under Bengal Agricultural Income-tax Act and issues a demand notice, an application straight to the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution without filing an appeal under the Act is liable to summary dismissal for failure of the petitioner to avail of an alternative remedy, but if the point agitated is that certain provisions of the said Act are ultra vires, it is better to deal with the point rather than dismiss the application, as in the long run it is bound to come back to the High Court. AIR 1958 Cal 585 (586) (Pt A) (Pr 2).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy.

The question of alternative remedy is a matter resting on the discretion of the Court and it is not an absolute rule of law. The existence of an alternative remedy is not an absolute bar to the jurisdiction of the Court entertaining application for Writs under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Where important questions of interpretation of the provisions of the Sales Tax Act and Rules made thereunder have been raised and were raised before the Commercial Tax Officer it is desirable that such questions should be decided by the High Court instead of their being agitated and decided by the Sales Tax Authorities. 61 Cal W N 953 : AIR 1958 Cal 289 (295) (Pt F) (Pr 18).

——Art. 226 - Other remedy open - (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 57 (7), 64 — Reasons for refusal — Appeal.)

Ordinarily where there is an alternative legal remedy the High Court should not interfere. The power of the High Court to interfere by a writ of certiorari is not limited absolutely to cases where there is no alternative remedy. That remedy must be adequate, and likely to grant relief to the aggrieved person. Further where there is an error on the face of the proceedings, the High Court has ample jurisdiction to interfere. The Motor Vehicles Act is a self-contained Act and imposes reasonable restriction. Every applicant for a permit under the Act is entitled to demand that his application should be specifically considered in accordance with the provisions of law laid down in the Act. The Act lays down in S. 57 (7) that in the event of a refusal, the Authority shall give the applicant in writing its reasons for refusal. If the reasons given are vague an appeal by the petitioner would have been futile. Where the R. T. A. has taken into consideration materials which it is not entitled to do it is necessary to intervene, so that it might become known as to what are the limitations for a statutory body like R. T. A. in the matter of considering applications for permits and in granting or rejecting them. AIR 1953 Mad 59, Rel. on. 60 Cal W N 13 : AIR 1956 Cal 490 (492, 493, 494) (Pt B) (Prs 4, 5).

——Art. 226—Grounds for urgency of remedy.

The fact that the petitioner is an old man, of itself, is not a decisive reason for exercising the jurisdiction under Art. 226 when the petitioner does not allege that an early payment of the pension due to him is so vital to him that without it he cannot live and maintain his family.

Similarly though the question whether the Gwalior Civil Service Rules confer a statutory right in respect of pension is of some importance to public servants who have earned pensions under the Rules and to whom pension has been denied, it does not make a speedy decision on that question a matter of urgency. ILR (1953) M B 393 : A I R 1953 Madh B 165 (171, 172) (Pt D) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open but not availed of —Validity of enactment challenged by writ petition —Maintainability — (Sales Tax — Madras General Sales Tax Act (9 of 1939), S. 12-B).

The existence of effective alternative remedies though normally a relevant factor is by itself no bar to the assumption of jurisdiction under Art. 226.

Where a person complains that the taxing provision in the statute offends a fundamental right of his guaranteed by the Constitution and is, therefore, void and unenforceable against him, the discretion of the Court should be exercised even at an earlier stage, because even at the stages at which an appeal is provided for by the Act, the validity of the impugned provision cannot be adjudicated upon by the statutory tribunals.

The fact that the assessment was completed does not make any real difference to the question, should the High Court exercise its discretion in favour of examining the validity of the impugned provision and pronouncing upon it at a stage, when the assessee has not availed himself of his statutory right of appeal, and his further statutory right of moving the High Court in revision under S. 12-B of the Act, after the right of appeal to the appellate tribunal has been availed of (1956) 2 M L J 179 : (1956) 7 S T C 346 : 69 Mad L W 427 : I L R (1956) Mad 1368 : A I R 1956 Mad 480 (481) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 5) (DB).

——Art. 226—Another remedy open—Madras Estates Land Act (1 of 1908), S. 3 (2) (d).

Where the grant was before the High Court and the only point for determination was whether on its true construction, it was an estate as defined in S. 3 (2) (d) of the Madras Estates Land Act (1 of 1908) and the decision of the Estates Abolition Tribunal was on the face of it erroneous, Held, that it would be a proper exercise of the powers of a High Court to interfere in such cases even if there was another remedy open to the petitioner. (1953) 2 M L J 478 : 66 Mad L W 916 : AIR 1954 Mad 161 (165) (Pt E) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226—It is true that the High Court will not ordinarily interfere with an order where there is another adequate remedy available to the party. This, however, is a rule of discretion for the guidance of the Court and not a limitation on its powers.

Held that as the question involved was one of right procedure to be followed in exercise of the powers conferred under the Railway Services (Safeguarding a National Security) Rules and as the rights of the petitioner had been clearly infringed, this was a fit case in which the writ must issue. AIR 1950 S C 163, Foll. 1928-1 K B 291, Rel. on. 1952 Mad W N 253 : 65 Mad L W 377 : 1952-1 Mad L J 540 : I L R (1953) Mad 229 : AIR 1953 Mad 54 (59) (Pt B) (Prs 16, 18) (DB).

● ——Art. 226 — Other remedy open—Election dispute.

No doubt the High Court would not ordinarily interfere under Art. 226 where another remedy which is equally convenient, is open to the petitioner. But the existence of another remedy is not in every case, a bar to the exercise of the powers of a High Court under Art. 226 and the Court can interfere if the circumstances of the case demand interference.

The point, which had been raised in the petition under Art. 226, was of a fundamental character and affected a large number of election disputes. Those very questions were argued before the High Court at least on two previous occasions on which two different views were taken. Further, though a preliminary objection as to the tenability of the petition on the ground of other remedy open had been raised, the Court heard counsel on the merits of the petition for several days.

Held, that there were substantial grounds for interference, assuming it was open to the petitioners to file an election petition.

The right of a voter who is denied the right to exercise his right of franchise is not limited to claim only damages but the High Court has ample powers to act under Art. 226 even though an election petition is maintainable. Kanglu Baula v. Chief Executive Officer, I L R (1954) Nag 875 : A I R 1955 Nag 49 (58) (Pt B) (Prs 23, 24) (FB).

——Art. 226—Writ petition challenging entire election—Other remedy open — Election to Municipality sought to be set aside on ground of illegality of the rolls used for election—R. 62 of Bihar Municipal Elections and Election Petitions Rules 1953, prescribing remedy of election petition in such contingency—Maintainability of writ — Elections having been challenged on account of violation of the Election Rules, R. 62 held could not bar the petitioners from getting relief in writ petition. AIR 1958 Pat 149, Applied. 1964 B L J R 465 : AIR 1964 Pat 459 (466, 467) (Pt E) (Prs 14, 15) (DB).

——Art. 226 – Other remedy open — (Employees' Provident Funds Act (1952), S. 19-A).

Though S. 19-A of the Employees' Provident Funds Act, 1952 contemplates that in case of difficulty or doubt in connection with the existence of a factory employing fifty or more persons, the Central Government is authorised to decide the matter and that decision is final, and the Central Government has not had opportunity of considering the matter, this does not debar the petitioners from seeking a remedy under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Further if the dispute between the parties is as to the interpretation of the statute governing the entire matter, the ends of justice would not be furthered by postponing the decision in the hope of seeking a direction by the Central Government. Even if the view of the Central Government were against the petitioners' contentions, the petitioners would still be entitled to have that decision examined in the High Court if the decision is to turn on the interpretation of the Act itself. ILR (1958) Punj 1863 ; (1958-59) 14 F J R 441 ; 61 Punj L R 160: (1959) 1 Lab L J 56 : AIR 1959 Punj 89 (90) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 320—Other remedy—Violation of Constitution.

Existence of another remedy canno be a bar to the exercise of the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court in a case where a clear breach of the mandatory provisions of the Constitution, such as under Art. 320, has been committed. 1954 Raj L W 56 : AIR 1954 Raj 12 (15) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

7 (p). Sales-tax, illegal taxation.

● ——Art. 226 — Another remedy — Other remedy when no bar.

The remedy under an Act cannot be said to be adequate and is, indeed, nugatory or useless if the Act which provides for such remedy is itself ultra vires and void and the principle of another remedy can, therefore, have no application where a party comes to Court with an allegation that his right has been or is being threatened to be infringed by a law which is ultra vires the powers of the Legislature which enacted it and as such void and prays for appropriate relief under Art. 226.

The existence of another remedy is a very material circumstance to be taken into account when the Court is called upon to issue a writ of certiorari but wholly different considerations arise when the writ asked for is prohibition. Writ of prohibition is issued whenever a subordinate Court or Tribunal usurps jurisdiction which does not belong to it, and when that has been shown, the issue of the writ, though not of course, is of right and not discretionary. Where the contention of the appellant is that the Bihar Sales Tax Act itself is void in so far as it authorises the imposition of a tax on dealers who are not residents within the State or do not carry on business there, and that, in consequence the proceedings taken under S 13 (5) of the Act should be restrained on the ground of want of jurisdiction it is no answer to this contention that the appellant should seek redress through the channels provided in the Act therefor. Indeed, the contention that the Act is ultra vires is not one which the Tribunals constituted under the Act, whether original, appellate, or revisional, could entertain, their duty being merely to administer the Act. A I R 1953 S C 252 and A I R 1954 S C 403, Foll.; A I R 1953 Pat 87, Reversed. Bengal Immunity Co., Ltd. v. State of Bihar ILR 34 Pat 905 ; (1955) 6 S T C 446 : (1955) 2 S C R 603 : (1955) S C J 672: 1955 S C A 1140; (1955) 2 M L J 168 ; 1955 Andhra W R 422 : A I R 1955 S C 661 (669, 726) (Pt E) (Prs 8, 144).

● ——Art. 226—Mandamus—Another remedy open—Threat of using coercive machinery against applicant under provisions declared to be ultra vires — Mandamus can issue—Another remedy under impugned Act onerous — It is not adequate alternative remedy —Sales tax —C. P. and Berar Sales-tax Act (II of 1947 as amended by Act XV of 1949), S. 2 (g) Expl. (2). (1952) 35 T. C 448, Reversed.

Explanation II to S. 2 (g) of the Act having been declared ultra vires any imposition of sales-tax under it is without the authority of law, and that being so a threat by the State of using the coercive machinery of the Act to realize it from the assessee is a sufficient infringement of his fundamental right under Art. 19 (1) (g) and he is clearly entitled to relief under Art. 226 of the Constitution. AIR 1952 S C 115, Ref.; (1952) 35 T C 448, Reversed.

The contention that because a remedy under the impugned Act is available to the assessee, he is disentitled to relief under Art. 226 stands negatived by the decision in A I R 1953 S C 252 of this Court in the State of Bombay v. The United Motors (India), Ltd. The principle that a Court will not issue a prerogative writ when an adequate alternative remedy was available does not apply where a party has come to the Court with an allegation that his fundamental right had been infringed and sought relief under Art. 226. Moreover, since the remedy provided by the C. P. and Berar Sales-tax Act is of an onerous and burdensome character and before the assessee can avail of it he has to deposit the whole amount of the tax. Such a provision can hardly be described as an adequate alternative remedy. AIR 1953 S C 252, Ref. Himmatlal Harilal Mehta v. State of M. P., 1954 Mad W N 802 : 1954 S C R 1122 : (1954) S C J 445 : (1954) 1 M L J 690 : 67 Mad L W 629 : 1954 S C A 654 : AIR 1954 S C 403 (405, 406) (Pt B) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Writ of — Other remedy open—Assessee under U. P. Sales Tax Act having alternative adequate remedy by way of departmental appeal—Writ not to be granted to shortcircuit departmental remedy : A I R 1961 S C 609, Rel. on. (1964) 15 S T C 245 : AIR 1965 All 166 (170) (Pt C) (Pr 16) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open— Improper orders of Sales Tax Authorities — Sales tax law providing remedy by way of appeal — Normally aggrieved person cannot be permitted to abandon resort to that machinery and invoke jurisdiction under Art. 226— Taxing authority acting beyond powers or threatening to recover tax on erroneous interpretation of statute — High Court can exercise jurisdiction under Art. 226. (1963) 14 S T C 410 (S C), Appld. (1964) 15 S T C 505 : A I R 1965 All 86 (89) (Pt B) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari to quash the notice issued under S. 22 of the U. P. Sales Tax Act — Absence of mistake only an error — Notice for rectification invoking a jurisdiction not vested can be quashed by issue of a Writ — Existence of an alternative remedy no bar for issue of a Writ. A I R 1961 S C 372, Foll. 1964 All L J 671.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Alternative remedy is no bar —U. P. Sales Tax Act (15 of 1948), S. 9 — Assessment made under R. 23 of U. P. Sales Tax Rules — Provision for appeal against assessment — Maintainability of Writ Petition. See Sales Tax — U. P. Sales Tax Act (15 of 1948) S. 9. 1964 All L J 645.

——Art 226—Assessment proceedings —Alternative remedy available—Remedy of writ not permissible.

Where in assessment proceedings there is a controversy on a question of fact namely as to the date on which the dissolution of the firm took place the assessee should have availed of the alternative remedy of appeal provided under the Act. A party cannot be allowed to by-pass a remedy provided under an Act and to avail of the remedy of a writ petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution. AIR 1961 S C 609, Rel. on. AIR 1963 All 446 (447) (Pt C) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Existence of alternative remedy—Granting of relief not barred.

The existence of alternative remedy, is one of the factors which has to be taken into consideration in granting or refusing relief. Where therefore the error committed by the Sales-tax Officer was very obvious and unjustified, it would not be right to refuse relief under Art. 226 of the Constitution. (1962) 13 S T C 591 (All).

——Art. 226 — Writ of prohibition —Sales tax proceedings.

Where the Sales Tax Officers are competent to deal with the assessment proceedings in question they cannot be barred from continuing those proceedings by issue of writ of prohibition. I cannot be said that they have no jurisdiction because the assessees anticipate wrong decisions.

Further, when, even if the Sales Tax Officers do give incorrect decisions the assessees have the right to go up in appeal to Judge Appeals appointed under the Act and from their incorrect decisions to the Judge revisions and if these decisions be incorrect to seek reference to the High Court, there is no reason why the ordinary remedy provided for by law should be by-passed and the High Court should start entertaining writ petitions in case of individual assessees though at a stage when the validity of the provisions of the Sales Tax Act is yet in question and no decision had been given by the High Court, in spite of the ordinary remedy provided by law, exercise of jurisdiction under Art. 226 would be appropriate as the question would be of general importance and one decision by the High Court would be necessary for the purpose of guiding the Sales Tax authorities. AIR 1952 All 764, Rel. on.

The argument that the alternative remedy provided by law is not equally convenient and speedy inasmuch as proceedings under the Sales Tax Act are likely to be prolonged and the assessees' right to come to the High Court will only accrue at a very late stage after having first moved the Judge Appeals and Judge revisions is not tenable because to accept that argument would mean that the regular procedure prescribed under the law should be completely scrapped. Obviously writ jurisdiction was not meant to do away altogether with the alternative procedure which the legislature considered was appropriate for the particular situation.

Nor should the writ jurisdiction be used on the ground that a resort to the procedure provided by law would operate hardship on the assessees because to go in appeal they shall have to deposit the tax. The legislature having required that condition in pursuance of its express policy the writ proceedings should not be used as a means of overriding that policy.

Held, also that the writs could not issue in the case. The reason was that the assessees who alleged that the Sales Tax Officers were seeking to assess on forward contract transactions contrary to the decision of the High Court had not stated in their affidavits that the assessment proceedings were simply in respect of transactions in forward contracts in which no deliveries took place at all and that there was no other business of theirs in respect of which proceedings were being taken. Further even if the proceedings were in respect of forward transactions not liable to tax, the affidavits did not contain anything to show that they were not liable to be assessed on other grounds such as realisation of tax by them which was not due in their capacity as registered dealers and which they were liable to deposit in the treasury under the provisions of Sales Tax Act. These were all questions of fact which could only be determined by proceeding according to the procedure laid down in the Sales Tax Act itself and which could not be properly gone into in writ petitions. 1954 All W R (HC) 289 : 1954 All L J 348 : AIR 1954 All 553 (554, 555) (Prs 4, 5, 6, 7).

——Art. 226 – Other remedy—Taxing matter—Taxing authority acting without jurisdiction accompanied by threat of using coercive method for collecting tax — High Court will entertain writ petition even if other remedy by way of appeal is available—AIR 1958 S C 86 ; AIR 1961 S C 272, Rel. on. (1965) 16 S T C 511: A I R 1966 Andh Pra 128.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Hyderabad General Sales Tax Act (14 of 1950), S. 2 (k) and (e) —Question whether petitioner is a dealer and transaction amounts to sale — If can be agitated in writ petition.

The question whether the transaction relied on is sale and the petitioner a dealer within the meaning of S. 2 (k) and (e) of the Hyderabad General Sales Tax Act, is a matter which can and ought to be determined by the Sales-tax authorities. Any right or liability to sales tax cannot therefore accrue apart from the provisions of the General Sales Tax Act. The aggrieved parties have various remedies open to them under the mechinery set up under the Act. They can go in appeal before the Appellate Authority and have a right of further appeal to the Tribunal and also a remedy by way of revision. When the Act is thus exhaustive and self-contained in all its provisions, the parties must adopt with respect to that class of cases, the forum of remedy given by the Act. These questions of 'sale' and 'dealer' could not be possibly determined without deciding that certain provisions of law in that behalf are unconstitutional and the decision of which matter may not be within the competency of sales-tax authorities. There exists, therefore, no just or sufficient cause to resort to an extraordinary remedy of writ jurisdiction. It was the duty of the petitioner to exhaust all his remedies before he could think of coming to the High Court. Unless the petitioner makes out a case against the respondent that he failed to do something which is his legal duty, so that he may be compelled to discharge that statutory obligation, he cannot possibly invoke the jurisdiction of mandamus. (1960) 2 Andh W R 545, Followed (1961) 2 Andh W R 18.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Remedies under Assam Sales Tax Act (1947).

Where tax has been assessed under Assam Sales Tax Act, and the assessee has not sought or exhausted remedies provided under the Act, he cannot ask for remedies under Art. 226 of the Constitution of India. ILR (1954) 6 Assam 191 : A I R 1955 Assam 195 (198) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — (Sales Tax — Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) Act (VI of 1941), S. 20)

It cannot be said that S. 20 (1) of the Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) Act (1941), deals with an assessment and therefore cannot include a revision of assessment and that S. 20 (3) talks about assessment and not revision of assessment. Revision of assessment must clearly be the same as assessment. In any event, even if there is not an appeal, there is certainly a revision. It is either an assessment or an order and S. 20 (3) should therefore apply. 61 Cal W N 831 : (1957) 8 S T C 641 : A I R 1957 Cal 463 (465) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226—Application for writ for cancelling requisition for sales tax — Efficacious and adequate statutory remedy available—Application is not maintainable — Sales Tax — Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) Act (VI of 1941), S. 15 and R. 71 — Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) (West Bengal Amendment) Ordinance (10 of 1950).

The petitioner got himself registered under the Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) Act as transferee and dealer. A requisition calling upon the petitioner to produce books of accounts and records for the purpose of assessment of sales tax in respect of certain periods was made by the Sales-tax Authority. The petitioner applied for a writ under Art. 226 of the Constitution for quashing the requisition on ground that he had been registered as a dealer and a transferee under a misapprehension as to his correct status ;

Held, that there being a efficacious and adequate legal remedy under the Act which was not availed the application was not maintainable.

Notwithstanding the repeal of S. 18 of the Act by Ordinance of 1950, the matter of registration of dealer, amendment of certificate of registration or cancellation of registration could be delegated to commercial Tax Officer under S. 15 of the Act read with R. 71, and it had been so delegated. Hence the petitioner could not contend that there was no officer to determine the question under the Act. ('51) 87 Cal L J 314 : 1952-3 S T C 444 : A I R 1953 Cal 712 (713, 714) (Pt C) (Frs 9, 11, 12, 13).

——Art. 226—Assessment by Sales Tax Officer acting under Hyderabad Sales Tax Act (14 of 1950) — Writ of certiorari sought to quash assessment — Petitioners not availing themselves of remedy of appeal to Sales Tax Commissioner — Writ held could not be issued at that stage — Sales Tax — Hyderabad Sales Tax Act (14 of 1950), S. 3. ('52) ILR (1952) Hyd 56 (DB).

——Art. 226 - Other remedy open—High Court will still interfere.

The existence of an alternate remedy is not an absolute bar to the issue of a writ of certiorari when there has been violation of the principles of natural justice and when there is an infringement of a fundamental right. A I R 1958 S C 86 and A I R 1953 S C 252 and A I R 1954 S C 403, Rel. on.; (1963) 14 S T C 410 (S C) and A I R 1964 S C 1419, Expl. The remedy available by way of appeal to the Appellate Authority and then by way of second appeal to the Tribunal functioning under Sales Tax Act and then a Revision to the High Court may not be adequate when an assessee assessed to sales tax is compelled in the meantime to pay the tax imposed on him by an arbitrary assessment which has been solely guided by the whim and fancy of the assessing authority. It is very rare, if ever, that the Appellate Authorities grant a stay of the payment of the tax imposed on an assessee by an assessment order whether it be arbitrary or otherwise. Moreover it would take years before an assessee is able to reach the High Court in Revision to have a final adjudication. Under these circumstances, the remedies under the Sales Tax Act would not be even adequate and in the case of arbitrary assessments the High Court must protect the citizen from the whimsicalities of officials, who allow enthusiasm to overrun judicial discretion and a sense of fair play. These authorities have to be kept on the 'leading strings' of fair play. 1965 Ker L T 803 : ILR (1965) 2 Ker 240 : 1965 Ker L J 866 : A I R 1966 Ker 55 (58) (Pt A) (Prs 11, 12)

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Other remedy open—Order made under S. 43 (1) of M. P. General Sales Tax Act (II of 1959), found to be manifestly arbitrary and capricious—Provision of appeal under S. 38 of Act is not a bar to issue of writ of certiorari — Sales Tax — M. P. General Sales Tax Act (II of 1959), Ss. 43 38. 1965 Jab L J 631 : (1965) 16 S T C 756 : 1965 M P L J 553.

——Art. 226—'Another remedy'—Assessee preferring revision instead of appeal—Effect—Assessee cannot be held to have failed to avail himself of remedy — Sales-tax—M. P. General Sales Tax Act (II of 1959), Ss. 38, 39 (1).

A prudent assessee desiring to contest finding of fact reached by the Sales-tax Officer would no doubt resort to the remedy of an appeal under S. 38. But where the assessee is content with the findings of fact reached by the Sales-tax Officer and wishes to challenge the legality of the assessment order otherwise, he can do so by filing a revision petition under S. 39 (1) of the Act. If he does that, he avails himself of the remedy provided by the Act for challenging the assessment. Merely because the petitioner did not file an appeal against the order of assessment passed by the Sales Tax Officer and chose to file a revision petition under S. 39 (1) of the Act, it cannot be held that he failed to avail himself of the remedy provided by the Act for challenging the assessment. (1964) 15 S T C 554 : 1964 Jab L J 320 : 1964 M P L J 390.

——Art. 226 — M. B. Sales of Motor Spirit Taxation Act (20 of 1953), Ss. 2 (k) and 3 — Nature of transaction and its liability to tax — Determination of by Sales Tax Officer — Remedy against decision of Sales Tax Officer provided in Act itself — High Court will not normally entertain petitions under Art. 226 against the decision. 1963 M P L J 485 : 1963 Mah L J 493 : 1963 Jab L J 508 : (1963) 14 S T C 410 : (1964) 1 S C R 488

——Art. 226 — Alternative remedy — Notices issued to the assessee and the re-assessment proceedings taken against him, patently defective and without jurisdiction — Existence of alternative remedy by way of appeal or revision could not be allowed to stand in the way of quashing the notices and the assessment proceedings and orders — Sales Tax — M. P. General Sales Tax Act (II of 1959), S. 19 (1). 1962 M P C 318 : (1963) 14 S T C 67 : ILR (1963) Madh-Pra 840 : 1962 M P L J 889 : 1962 Jab L J 749 : AIR 1962 Madh Pra 315 (317) (Pt D) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Cases under C. P. and Berar Sales Tax Act.

A petitioner, who comes to invoke the aid of the extraordinary and special remedy provided by Art. 226 of the Constitution, should first have exhausted all his remedies under the general law. Article 226 is not to be resorted to as a short-cut to the ordinary procedure provided by the general law.

The C. P. and Berar Sales Tax Act itself has provided elaborate machinery for correcting any error in the assessment of which the assessee may feel aggrieved. So it would be against the scheme of the Sales Tax Act to determine facts by affidavit evidence in writ proceedings before the High Court for the purpose of deciding the cases.

Exception has, however, to be made in cases where the Act or provisions of it under which the tax was being levied are ultra vires or unconstitutional.

But this exception is not available in cases where no provision of the Act could be successfully challenged as ultra vires, the grievance being not against the Act but against its incorrect interpretation or application. 1961 M P L J 804 : 1961 Jab L J 1011 : 1961 M P C 582 : AIR 1962 Madh Pra 225 (237) (Pt A) (Prs 50, 52, 53) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Assessment under C. P. and Berar Sales Tax Act — Assessee not exhausting remedies open to him — Assessment held could not be questioned in an application under Art. 226. (1962) 13 S T C 562 : 1962 M P C 82 : 1962 M P L J 346 : (1962) Jab L J 743 : ILR (1961) Madh-Pra 663.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Assessment under Madhya Bharat Sales Tax Act — Assessee's right to come before High Court under Art. 226, without filing departmental appeal — Writ can be filed, since a burden is cast on the assessee as tax assessed has to be deposited before filing appeal—Madhya Bharat Sales Tax Act, Smt. 2007 (XXX of 1950). 1957 M P C 286 : 1957 Jab L J 431 : (1957) 8 S T C 407 : 1957 M P L J 301 : AIR 1958 Madh-Pra 16 (18) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Tax assessment — Other remedy by way of appeal open and resorted to — Court can still interfere in proper case during pendency of appeal.

When a remedy is available to an assessee under the Statute, he must first resort to it and when actually he has resorted to it and the appeal is pending, the Court acting under Art. 226 would be reluctant to interfere with an order of assessment. But there may be cases where this rule may not outweigh other considerations which may compel interference by the Court.

Where the assessing authority relying on the report of the Sales Tax Intelligence staff accepted the figure given in the report relating to the value of items omitted in stock books although there was a clear totalling mistake committed in arriving at the figure, and placed the figures relating to omissions before the assessee on the day of assessment and asked him to explain them then and there :

Held that the assessment order was clearly vitiated by an apparent error. The assessing authority had failed in his duty to scrutinise the materials for assessment and satisfy himself that the tax was payable on the basis of the materials.

Held further that the assessee ought to have been given, both in law and in fairness, reasonable opportunities to look into all the necessary documents and other books so as to enable him to explain and show cause why the proposed turnover ought not to be taken as the basis for assessment, and the assessment order was liable to be quashed although the assessee's appeal against the order was pending before the appellate authority. (1965) 16 S T C 769 (Mad).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Remedy of appeal open under Madras General Sales Tax Act — Still writ of 'certiorari' will lie.

Madras General Sales Tax Act no doubt provides an appeal against an assessment. It is now well established that notwithstanding the existence of a right conferred by a statute to an aggrieved person to appeal against the orders of tribunals constituted under it, certiorari will lie. But the existence of such a right will be a matter to be taken into account by the superior Court in arriving at a conclusion whether it should issue a writ of certiorari, for that jurisdiction is a discretionary one.

Held, that the question of constitutional validity of Ss. 2 (g) and 2 (n) of the Madras General Sales Tax Act was not capable of being determined completely or satisfactorily by the department or the tribunal. Therefore an appeal to them could at best be only a stage in a matter which had ultimately to come up before the High Court. Secondly, where the alleged turnover represented the expenses incurred and shared by the then members of the Y. M. I. A. who might not be all members of the Association later on it would not be possible for the Association to effectively call upon the former members to share the tax, which had been illegally levied. Then there was also the important circumstance that the question before the High Court did not entirely depend on the validity of the assessment in respect of which it could be said there was an alternative remedy by way of appeal where the Commercial Tax Officer had called upon the Association to register itself as a dealer on threat of penal proceedings. The Association which would in no sense be regarded as a dealer was entitled to come to the High Court under Art. 226 for the protection against the threatened invasion of its rights. The need to grant relief on the ground of the invalidity of the assessment necessarily involved an investigation into the validity of the assessment. The petitioner sought relief with great promptitude and this was not one of those cases where a litigant, after allowing the period of limitation prescribed for an appeal to pass by, resorted to proceedings under Art. 226. In the circumstances of this case, there were sufficient grounds for the exercise of jurisdiction under Art. 226. 1958 S C J 242 : 1958 M L J (Cr) 197 : AIR 1958 S C 86, Rel. on. 76 Mad L W 704 : 1964 Mad W N 56 : (1963) 14 S T C 1030 : AIR 1964 Mad 63 (66) (Pt C) (Prs 7, 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Another remedy open — Appealable order not appealed from — Effect of — Natural justice — Opportunity to show cause — Denial of — Assessment to sales tax.

Where another statutory remedy is available to the petitioner seeking a writ of certiorari, namely an appeal provided by the statute, but he fails to avail himself of that remedy, such failure under normal circumstances, would be sufficient for the High Court to decline to investigate the validity of the order impugned by the petitioner, preliminary to the grant of the discretionary relief of a writ of certiorari under Art. 226 of the Constitution.

A mere refusal by the assessing authority under the Madras Sales Tax Act to grant certified copies of certain documents cannot be held to amount to a denial of a real and effective opportunity to show cause against a proposed revision of an assessment and re-assessment under R. 17 (1) of the Madras General Sales Tax Rules. (1958) 1 M L J 30 : (1958) 9 S T C 1 : 71 Mad L W 12: AIR 1958 Mad 176 (178) (Pt A) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open.

The objection that the petitioners ought to have resorted to the usual remedies by way of appeal, etc., to the Tribunals under the Madras General Sales Tax Act and that the High Court should, in its discretion, decline to entertain the petition under Art. 226 cannot be upheld. This is a matter of discretion and not any absolute rule of law that bars jurisdiction of the High Court.

Where the questions raised were of great importance and complexity and if the point made by the assessee were upheld it would mean that R. 5 of the General Sales Tax Act Rules was invalid.

Held, that this was not certainly a ground which the assessee could put forward before the Tribunal constituted under the Act, and therefore, the petitioners were entitled to approach the High Court for relief. (1956) 2 Mad L J 374 : (1956) 7 S T C 792 : AIR 1957 Mad 33 (39, 40) (Pt C) (Pr 25) (DB).

[Reversed in AIR 1960 S C 1254].

——Arts. 226 and 286 - Petitioner assessed to tax under Madras General Sales Tax Act — Appeal — Notice of demand — Petition under Art. 226 — Maintainability — (Sales Tax — Madras General Sales Tax Act (IX of 1939), S. 12 A).

Where, under the provisions of the Madras General Sales Tax Act, the Deputy Commercial Tax Officer determined the taxable turnover of the petitioner and assessed the tax payable thereon and the petitioner preferred an appeal against the orders of such officer and on receiving notice calling upon him to pay the tax the petitioner took out the writ challenging the validity of the Act and disputing the correctness of the assessment under Art. 286 of the Constitution:

Held, that it was open to the petitioner to raise all questions as to the extent of his liability under the Act and under Art. 286 before the Appellate Officer and therefore the High Court would decline to entertain the petition. (1952) 3 S T C 433: AIR 1953 Mad 131 (132) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other effective remedy open — Jurisdiction under Art. 226 cannot be invoked as against Sales Tax authority — (Sales Tax—Madras General Sales Tax Act (9 of 1939), Ss. 9, 11, 12, 12A, 12B, 12C and 12D).

From the provisions of Ss. 9, 11, 12, 12A, 12B, 12C and 12D of the Madras General Sales Tax Act, 1939 it is clear that the Act is a self-contained one and provides for a hierarchy of tribunals to enable the aggrieved person or authority to get a final and authoritative adjudication on the validity or the correctness of the assessments made by the Sales Tax Authorities. Hence the petitioner cannot seek the aid of the High Court under Art. 226, which, if given would circumvent the entire statutory procedure prescribed. The fact that the remedy provided by the Act may involve delay or expenditure or that the decision of the Sales Tax Authority will affect other persons cannot be a ground for invoking the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226. 1952 Mad W N 599 : 1952-2 Mad L J 285: 1952-3 S T C 317 : AIR 1953 Mad 10 (12) (Prs 4, 5).

——Art. 226 — The Madras General Sales Tax Act with its subsequent amendments has not ousted the jurisdiction of the ordinary civil Courts when a party is alleged to have been aggrieved by the administration of the Act. An application under Art. 226 for issuing a writ of certiorari to quash the orders of the taxing Authorities assessing the petitioner for sales tax cannot be granted as the petitioner has an effective remedy by way of a suit in the civil Court for the relief claimed. ('51) 65 Mad L W 337: 1952-2 Mad L J 27 : 1952-3 S T C 76 : AIR 1952 Mad 830 (831) (Pr 2).

——Art. 226—Other remedy — Existence of—Effect —Madras General Sales Tax Act (IX of 1939), S. 2—Supply of refreshments to members of social club — Liability to sales tax.

The maintainability of writ petitions under Art. 226 of the Constitution is extremely difficult if not impossible to circumscribe, define and restrict. The mere failure of the petitioner (the Cosmopolitan Club) to object to the payment of sales tax (on the supply of refreshments to its members) since 1939 and to explore the long and tidious avenue of appeal and revision provided by the Sales Tax Act is not an impediment in the way of issuing a writ if it be found that the sales tax levy is really illegal.

The writs under Art. 226 (1) are all discretionary writs, which are dependent on the facts of each case and the nature of the illegality and wrong alleged.

The general principle would be that Government should have notice of the alleged illegality or wrong on which the writ petition is founded before it is filed and give a reasonable opportunity of investigating of the grievance remedying it before such a step is taken. There is of course no provision in the Constitution requiring notice to Government before putting it on its defence as under S. 80, Civil P. C. There is no inflexible rule. The petitions in the instant case in the particular circumstances should not be rejected on the ground that the Government was not given previous notice. The legality of the levy of sales tax in the circumstances can only be properly investigated by the High Court on a petition under Art. 226.

Where a social club being an association formed not for profit, supplies refreshments to its members at a fixed rate the supply is not a transfer of property from the club as such to a member. The levy of sales tax on such supplies of refreshments by clubs to members must be held to be illegal. (1952) 3 S T C 77 : 1952 Mad W N 200 : (1952) 1 M L J 401 : AIR 1952 Mad 814 (816, 817) (Pt A) (Prs 6, 10).

——Art. 226—Mandamus — Other remedy open.

Held, that if the adjudication by the Commissioner that the petitioner assessee was not a dealer was binding on the Sales Tax Officer or 'if the counsel of the latter admitted before the High Court that the petitioner's grievance that in view of the decision of the Commissioner the assessee was not liable to assessment and the notice issued by the Sales Tax Officer requiring the assessee to submit returns was contrary to law was accepted by the authorities by ordering withdrawal of the notice and that had induced the High Court to refrain from passing a formal order quashing the proceedings, the petitioner-assessee had certainly a grievance which could not be redressed by the Sales Tax Authorities who had proceeded not only to assess the petitioner assessee but also to prosecute it. The proceedings were likely to result in the assessment of the assessee to tax which it would have to deposit before preferring an appeal against that order. In order to escape from such serious consequences and infringement of its fundamental rights, relief by way of mandamus was the appropriate relief. This relief could not be denied to the petitioner assessee merely on the ground that it had not exhausted the remedies available under the Sales Tax Act, which in the circumstances of this case, could not be described as an adequate alternative remedy. AIR 1954 S C 403, Foll, AIR 1952 Mad 605, Rel. on. ILR (1954) Nag 935 : 1955 Nag L J 332 : AIR 1956 Nag 27 (30) (Pt A) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 226—Application under—Maintainability—Assessment made by Additional Sales Tax Officer — C. P. and Berar Sales Tax Rules, R. 53.

The High Court would be justified in entertaining an application under Art. 226 of the Constitution with respect to an assessment made by an Additional Sales Tax Officer under S. 11, C. P. and Berar Sales Tax Act, if it found that that assessment was made without jurisdiction. Further, under R. 53 of the rules framed under the Act, the State Government provides for appeals against the assessments made by a Sales Tax Officer and an Assistant Sales Tax Officer and not against the assessments of an Additional Sales Tax Officer. Clearly, therefore, the applicant has no right to prefer an appeal to any authority under the Sales Tax Act. That being the position, two courses are open to him—to institute a civil suit or to come to the High Court under Art. 226. 1951 N L J 611.

——Art. 226—Alternative remedy — No question of infringement of fundamental right or ultra vires of Act involved — Alternative remedy has to be exhausted—Alternative remedy available under Orissa Sales Tax Act, 1947, by way of appeal, second appeal and reference—Writ petition is not maintainable before exhausting these remedies—Sales Tax — Central Sales Tax Act (1956), S. 9 (3).

Though undoubtedly the High Court has jurisdiction to interfere under Art. 226 of the Constitution even though an aggrieved party might not have exhausted all the alternative remedies available to him under the laws in force, nevertheless under normal circumstances the internal remedies provided by the statute should be exhausted in the first instance. The question is more one of propriety than lack of jurisdiction. Thus the Orissa Sales Tax Act contains ample provisions to enable a party aggrieved by the orders of assessment under the Central Sales Tax Act passed by the Sales Tax Officer to take up both questions of fact and law before two appellate authorities, namely the Assistant Commissioner of Sales Tax and the Sales Tax Tribunal and also to get points of law finally decided by the High Court on a proper reference made to it under S. 24. In addition, the Second proviso to sub-s. (5) of S. 13 of the Orissa Sales Tax Act empowers the Commissioner of Sales Tax to treat an assessee as not being in default so long as an appeal filed by him under S. 23, is pending. Where neither the provisions of the Central Sales Tax Act nor the provisions of the Orissa Sales Tax Act have been challenged as ultra vires, or as restrictive of any of the fundamental rights; nor is any serious error of procedure alleged to have been committed by the Sales Tax Officer concerned, but the question is a simple one of ascertaining the true nature of the transaction which is alleged to be taxable, this must be left in the first instance to be adjudicated by the taxing authorities. (1963) 14 S T C 411, Rel. on. Where the questions were (1) was the sale completed in Orissa so as to empower the Orissa Sales Tax authorities to levy Sales Tax, or else whether the sale was completed in Bengal and (2) was the transaction a sale "in the course of inter-State trade or commerce" as explained in S. 3, or a sale "in the course of export" as explained in S. 5 of the Central Sales Tax Act, it is the Sales Tax Officer who is the authority to decide this question in the first instance, and the aggrieved party has been given ample opportunity to challenge his decision before three superior authorities, namely, the Appellate Assistant Commissioner, the Sales Tax Tribunal and the High Court. There is no special reason why the assessee should be permitted to approach the High Court direct before exhausting the remedies available to him under the Orissa Sales Tax Act. The fact that on the date of actual hearing of the writ application, the appellate authority under the Act had already dismissed the appeal which was filed before it by the assessee is immaterial, since he has a further right to appeal to the Tribunal and also can ask the Tribunal for a statement of the case. ILR (1964) Cut 464.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Sales Tax — (Bihar Sales Tax Act (19 of 1947), S. 25).

Where the assessee objecting to the inclusion of a certain amount in the turnover does not move the High Court under S. 25(2) within the time prescribed after the refusal of the Board of Revenue to state a case under sub-s. (1) of that section he will not be allowed to obtain a writ of mandamus directing the taxing authorities to refund the amount of tax paid on the amount about the inclusion of which in the turnover he is aggrieved. 1959 B L J R 343 : (1959) 10 S T C 483: A I R 1959 Pat 389 (390) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Sales tax assessment—Issue of writ—(Sales Tax—Bihar Sales Tax Act (19 of 1947), S. 25.) (1959) 10 S T C 601 (Pat).

——Art. 226—Sales Tax—Bihar Sales Tax Act (1947), S. 13 (5) — Jurisdiction of Sales Tax Officer — Other remedy open. See Sales Tax—Bihar Sales Tax Act (19 of 1947), S. 13 (5). A I R 1953 Pat 87.
[Reversed in AIR 1955 S C 661.]

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Alternative remedy — Existence of such remedy not absolute bar to exercise of writ jurisdiction—Registration certificate sought to be cancelled under S. 7 (4) of Punjab General Sales Tax Act (46 of 1948) on grounds not covered by S. 16—High Court can interfere although alternative remedy was available under Act—Sales Tax—Punjab General Sales Tax Act (46 of 1948), Ss. 7 (4) and 16. 1965 Cur L J 317 : (1965) 16 S T C 406 : 68 Pun L R 447.

——Art. 226—Alternate remedy—Remedy by assessee by writ when alternate remedy under Ss. 20 and 21—Punjab General Sales Tax Act, was available—Availability. See Sales Tax—Punjab General Sales Tax Act (1948), S. 10 (7). I L R (1965) 1 Punj 683.

——Art. 226—Other remedy available to assessee to sales tax under Punjab General Sales Tax Act (46 of 1948)—High Court will not generally entertain writ petition—Sales Tax—Punjab General Sales Tax Act (46 of 1948), Ss. 10 (6), 21 (1).

There should be exceptional circumstances to warrant the exercise of the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. It is not the object of this Article to convert the High Court into an original or appellate or revisional Assessing Authority, (in the matter of Sales Tax assessment), whenever an assessee may feel inclined to attack an order or imposition of penalty on account of his default. There must be, as a general rule, something going to the root of the jurisdiction of the Sales Tax Authority when passing the impugned order or something showing that the assessee would be subjected to grave and palpable injustice if obliged to seek relief from the hierarchy as provided by the usual statutory machinery. The Legislature has in its wisdom provided the machinery for aggrieved parties to ventilate their grievances and secure relief. It would be a healthy practice not to encourage the assessees at their mere option to rush to the High Court on the slightest pretext when specific machinery exists elsewhere for relief.

Even though the writ petition is initially admitted to a Division Bench if it is found that the points raised are not such as can or should appropriately be determined on writ side and if since the admission of the writ petition, the petitioner has deliberately and voluntarily preferred a revision in accordance with law, it would not be a sound exercise of discretion to go into the points under Art. 226 of the Constitution. 67 Pun L R 686 : (1965) 16 S T C 590.

——Art. 226—Other remedy — Remedy of appeal to higher authority under Punjab General Sales Tax Act not followed, authorities having expressed their opinion — Revision not competent, when remedy of appeal is not availed of—Writ petition held maintainable — Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115 — Sales tax —Punjab General Sales-tax Act (46 of 1948), Ss. 20 and 21. ('65) 67 Punj L R 155 : (1965) 16 S T C 534.

● ——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Other remedy open — Action without jurisdiction — Sales-tax assessment order passed although it was barred by limitation — Existence of other remedy, no bar to exercise of jurisdiction under Art. 226.

Per Mahajan J.:—Where action taken is without jurisdiction, the existence of an alternative remedy is no bar to the exercise of powers under Art. 226. It cannot be disputed that the bar of limitation is a bar affecting jurisdiction, for no authority has jurisdiction to proceed with the matter if the bar of limitation intervenes. Hence, where the sales-tax authorities pass a final order for assessment in spite of the bar of limitation under the Sales-tax enactment, the existence of alternative remedy is no bar to the issue of certiorari or other appropriate writ under Art. 226. AIR 1962 S C 1621 and AIR 1963 S C 548 and AIR 1949 P C 239 and AIR 1953 S C 23, Rel. on. Rameshwar Lal Sarup Chand v. U. S. Naurath, Excise and Taxation Officer, Amritsar, (1964) 15 S T C 932 ; 65 Punj L R 768 ; 1963 Cur L J 398 : ILR (1963) 2 Punj 370 : AIR 1964 Punj 1 (9) (Pt B) (Pr 21) (FB).

——Art. 226—Sales Tax—East Punjab General Sales Tax Act (46 of 1948), S 16—Petition against assessment — Alternative remedy available to petitioner—Interference by High Court would not be justified—Petition cannot also be entertained merely because statutory remedy might be barred by lapse of time.

Held, that in the case in question the proceedings for assessment were actually initiated prior to the giving of the notice of its dissolution by the assessee-firm, and hence the petitioners could scarcely be entitled to take shelter behind the ratio of the Full Bench decision in 1962 P L R 351. (1963) 14 Sales Tax Cases 976 and C W 413 of 1962, Rel. on. (1964) 15 S T C 648 (Punj).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Best judgment assessment under Punjab General Sales Tax Act, S. 11 (4) — Question whether or not the assessment is best judgment assessment is one of fact — No error apparent — Other remedy by way of appeal — No interference under Art. 226 — Interpretation of taxing statute. (1960) 62 Punj L R 322, Rel on. (1963) 14 S T C 821: AIR 1963 Punj 383 (385, 387) (Prs 8, 17, 18) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Sales Tax — Punjab General Sales Tax Act (46 of 1948), Ss. 20, 21, 22

Normally speaking, parties must be left to have recourse to the procedure prescribed in the Punjab General Sales Tax Act for redress of their grievances and they should not be encouraged to treat proceedings under Art 226 of the Constitution as substitutes for the proceedings which are provided by the taxing statute itself. (1963) 14 S T C 469 (Punj).

——Art. 226 — Alternative remedy — Assessment of sales tax—Relief against order of assessment—Petition under Art 226 — Assessee directed to seek redress under Punjab General Sales Tax Act (46 of 1948), Ss. 11, 20, 21.

A was registered dealer. During 1955-56 A submitted returns in respect of sales of sugar and ghee. A claimed certain exemption under S. 5 (2). A was served with notice in form S. T. XIV on 8-12-56 issued under Ss. 11 and 14. By a memo dated 13-8-60 for assessment years 1955-56, 1956-57 and 1957-58, A was informed that his case would be taken up on 26 8-60 failing which action shall be taken according to law. Similar letter was also issued on 14-5-61. The Assessing Authority after examining A's account books and their probative value discredited them. Assessment was finalised on 24-7-61. In writ against the assessment it was contended that the Assessing Authority could not proceed to make best-judgment assessment in respect of the quarter ending 31-3-1956 after 31-3-1959 and as regards the earlier quarters, three years' period must be considered to have expired long before 31-3-1959. The department pleaded that adequate and efficacious remedies by way of appeal and revision under Ss. 20 and 21 were available to A against the order of the Assessing Authority.

Held, that the facts and circumstances did not justify interference by High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution and that A must be left to seek redress in accordance with the usual mode prescribed by the Legislature under the Sales Tax Act. A's assessment was neither without jurisdiction nor manifestly contrary to law. Case law Consd.

The Act provided a complete machinery for assessment of tax and for obtaining relief in respect of any illegal or improper order, and, the aggrieved party would not, save in exceptional cases, where the imposition is clearly without jurisdiction or patently contrary to law, and further when there is nothing in the conduct of the assessee which would justify refusal of the discretionary relief under Article 226 of the Constitution, be permitted to abandon resort to or by-pass that machinery and invoke High Court's extraordinary jurisdiction. (1963) 65 Pun L R 422.

——Art. 226—Petition under—Scope of Alternative remedy — No bar to jurisdiction of High Court — Nature of powers under — Interference in sphere of taxation—Not desirable.

That there is an alternative remedy prescribed under the Sales Tax Act would certainly be a relevant factor to take into account as also would be the factor that violation of fundamental right is alleged, in determining, whether or not to exercise the discretionary power vested in the High Court under Article 226.

Interference in the sphere of taxation should, generally speaking, be confined to special circumstances in which violation of fundamental right or the illegality of the tax is apparent on the face of the record or of the law on which the taxing authority relies for the imposition.

Under Art. 226, the High Court cannot act as a Court of appeal so as to remand the case for fresh decision. It can only either quash the impugned order as being defective or else dismiss the petition. L P. A No. 46 of 1955 (Punj), Rel. on 62 Punj L R 322 : (1960) 11 S T C 486 : ILR (1960) 1 Punj 763.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Assessee paying tax by mistake — Application for refund under Sales Tax Act dismissed—Failure to avail of remedy under Act—If bar to issue of writ—(Sales Tax—East Punjab General Sales Tax Act (46 of 1948), S. 22).

An assessee who was not liable to pay sales tax for certain period paid it by mistake. He applied for its refund under S. 12, East Punjab General Sales Tax Act (46 of 1948) but the application was refused. His petition for revision under S. 21 of the Act was rejected on the ground that it was not proper to refund the amount on grounds of propriety. The assessee without availing himself of the remedy under S. 22 of the Act applied under Art. 226 of the Constitution.

Held, that the remedy provided under S. 22, East Punjab General Sales Tax Act was not an adequate remedy. Hence the failure of the assessee to avail himself of the remedy under S. 22 did not bar relief under Art. 226. (1956) 7 S T C 336 : AIR 1956 Punj 222 (223, 224) (Pt B) (Pt 3).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — (Sales Tax—Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) Act (1941) (as extended to State of Delhi), Ss 20 and 21).

Any person who wishes to challenge a particular assessment to sales tax on the point that the transactions on which the tax is sought to be levied do not fall within the definition of the word "sale," and does not bring him within the definition of dealer contained in S. 2 (c), is not entitled to take the shortcut of coming to the High Court with a petition under Art. 226 instead of exhausting the remedies provided under Ss. 20 and 21 in the Act. AIR 1955 Punj 184 and AIR 1953 Punj 27. Rel. on. (1956) 7 S T C 819 : AIR 1956 Punj 167 (168) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — (Sales Tax—Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) Act (VI of 1941), S. 21).

In many cases where an Act, like the Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) Act (VI of 1941), provides machinery, the High Court has held that it will not entertain a writ petition filed by a person who has not exhausted his remedies under the Act. It may be that a writ petition provides a more speedy and more efficacious remedy than the machinery provided by the Act in the sense that when any appeal, or perhaps revision, is filed under the Act it is necessary for the dealer in the meantime to pay the tax which is a subject of the dispute, but for the High Court to entertain writ petitions raising questions of law and the interpretation of the Act would make S. 21 of the Act wholly redundant. The machinery furnished by the Act is not in any way ineffective or unfair. AIR 1953 Punj 27, Foll. AIR 1955 Punj 184 (185) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226 — Another remedy open—(Sales Tax—East Punjab Sales Tax Act (XLVI of 1948), Ss. 19, 20, 21, 22).

Jurisdiction to question assessment otherwise than by use of the machinery expressly provided by East Punjab Act, XLVI of 1948, is inconsistent with the statutory obligation to pay under S. 20. If the petitioners do not avail themselves of it, then the High Court would not interfere under Art. 226. Case-law discussed. ILR (1954) Punj 119 : 55 Punj L R 413 : AIR 1953 Punj 245 (246) (Prs 9, 10) (DB).

——Art. 226—Tax levied without legal authority—Remedy under Art. 226 open — Fundamental right infringed — Existence of alternative remedy is no bar — No distinction between mistake of law and mistake of fact — Payment made under mistake—Item exempted without fee included in return—No creation of estoppel against assessee.

Where a tax is levied without legal authority on any trade or business it is open to the citizen aggrieved thereby to approach High Court or even the Supreme Court for a writ since his right to carry on trade and commerce is violated Right to carry on trade and commerce subject to certain limitations is a fundamental right and the matter has to be enquired into. The existence of an alternative remedy is no bar to a party who comes to High Court with an allegation that its fundamental right has been infringed without the authority of law. A I R 1957 S C 790 and 1954 S C J 445 : (1954) 1 M L J 690 : AIR 1954 S C 408, Foll.; AIR 1957 Raj 210 and AIR 1958 Raj 262, Dist.

Section 72 of the Indian Contract Act makes no distinction between a mistake of law and a mistake of fact. The true principle is that if one party under a mistake, whether of fact or law pays to another party money which is not due by contract or otherwise that money must be repaid No question of estoppel can ever arise when both the parties are labouring under the mistake of law and one party is not more to blame than the other. AIR 1959 S C 135, Rel. on.

Where, therefore, the assessee included in his return before Sales Tax Officer the amount relating to the supply of coal to Government under the head 'Turnover of goods exempted without fee' and agitated the question before the Department and the State, the assessee on account of a mere submission of a consolidated statement in his return cannot be regarded as having acquiesced in the levy of the tax the legality of which is challenged. The mere inclusion of an item in the return on which no tax is leviable under the law would not create an estoppel against an assessee. 1961 Raj L W 420 : ILR (1961) 11 Raj 688 : AIR 1963 Raj 51 (53, 54) (Pt A) (Prs 8, 11) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1965 S C 913.]

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Taxing enactment—Certiorari — Powers of High Court — (Sales Tax — Rajasthan Sales Tax Act (XXIX of 1954), Ss. 13, 14 and 15).

Where the vires of any taxing enactment are not challenged and the question is only a question of law, the High Court should not intervene, when alternative remedies under the enactment are open to a party.

Rajasthan Sales-tax Act is a special self-contained Act providing for assessment of sales-tax and for remedies to correct wrong assessment. As the amount in the instant case could not be said to be so onerous as to make the appeal after paying them an inadequate alternative remedy, the High Court would not interfere in their extraordinary jurisdiction. AIR 1957 Raj 210, Foll.; AIR 1957 S C 790, Disting.; AIR 1954 S C 403, observations in, held obiter. (1959) 10 S T C 270 : 1959 Raj L W 605 : ILR (1958) 8 Raj 935 : AIR 1958 Raj 262 (263, 264, 265) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 9, 12, 13, 14) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open—Remedy under Rajasthan Sales Tax Act — (Sales Tax — Rajasthan Sales Tax Act (XXIX of 1954), S. 15).

The applicants who carried on trade in ground-nut oil were asked by the officers of the Sales Tax Department to submit the accounts of their dealing in ground-nut oil in order that sales tax might be assessed on them. Their contention was that ground-nut was exempted from sales tax as it was edible oil. But they were met by a confidential circular of the Sales Tax Commissioner in which the Sales Tax Officers were told that ground nut was a commodity liable to sales tax. The Sales Tax Commissioner who was also the revising authority and appellate authority also knew of the circular.

Held, that in the circumstances it would really be a farce for any assessee to go to the appellate authority or the revising authority and therefore the High Court should intervene at that stage in an application under Art. 226 of the Constitution. 1957 Raj L W 431 : ILR (1957) 7 Raj 723.

——Art. 226 — Enforcement of contractual rights—(Sales Tax—T.C. General Sales Tax Act (XI of 1125), Ss. 13 and 19).

A certain firm which had contracted to supply bonemeal to the government entered into an agreement with a bank for being financed by the bank. The bank forwarded to the government a copy of this agreement and a power of attorney executed by the firm in their favour and the government acknowledged receipt of both. Subsequently a certain amount became payable by the firm to the State towards the sales tax and the government ordered adjusting the amount from what was payable by them to the firm under their contract with the firm. The bank applied under Art. 226 questioning the legality of the adjustment,

Held, (i) that from the terms of the agreement between the firm and the bank and the power of attorney which were forwarded to the government it was clear that the bank had sufficient interest to file the petition questioning the adjustment. (ii) From the fact that the bank could file the petition it did not follow that it was entitled to any relief This was a matter which should be agitated by an ordinary suit and not in proceedings under Art. 226. (iii) The State had the ordinary right of adjustment available to its citizens under similar circumstances and could not be confined to one of the three courses of recovery, namely by proceeding under S. 13 or 19 of the T. C. General Sales Tax Act 1125 or by a regular suit. AIR 1957 Trav Co 121 (121, 122) (Prs 2, 3, 4, 5).

7 (q). Specific remedy provided.

——Art. 226—Powers under—Scope — Industrial dispute—Remedy available under Industrial Disputes Act—Matter cannot be considered under Art. 226.

After the notification was issued under S. 1 (3), Employees' State Insurance Act (1948), appointing 28-8-1960 as the date on which some of the provisions of the Act should come into force in certain areas, the Chief Executive Officer of a company issued notices giving effect to the notification and intimating the workmen of the company, that by reason of the said notification, the medical benefits which were being given to them in the past would be received by them under the relevant provisions of the Act. It was urged by the workmen before the High Court in a petition under Art. 226 that these notices were invalid and should be struck down on the ground that the company was not entitled to curtail the benefits provided to them by the company and that the said benefits were not similar either qualitatively or quantitatively to the benefits under the Scheme which had been brought into force under the Act.

Held: that although the powers conferred on the High Court under Art. 226 are very wide they could not take in within their sweep industrial dispute of the kind which the contention of the workmen sought to raise. The proper remedy which was available to the workmen to ventilate their grievances in respect of the said notices and circulars was to take recourse to S. 10 of the Industrial Disputes Act, or seek relief, if possible, under Ss. 74 and 75 of the Act. ILR 40 Pat 193, Affirmed. (1964) 6 S C R 913 : 1964 (8) Fac L R 334 : 1964 B I J R 447: (1964-65) 26 F J R 133: (1964) 2 Lab L J 105 : (1964) 2 S C J 566 : AIR 1964 S C 1260 (1263) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

● ——Art. 226—Income-tax matters—Resort to High Court under Art. 226 when proper.

The Income-tax Act provides a complete machinery for assessment of tax, and for relief in respect of improper or erroneous orders made by the Revenue Authorities. It is for the Revenue authorities to ascertain the facts applicable to a particular situation, and to grant appropriate relief in the matter of assessment of tax. Resort to the High Court in exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction conferred or recognised by the Constitution in matters relating to assessment, levy and collection of income-tax may be permitted only when questions of infringement of fundamental rights arise, or where on undisputed facts the taxing authorities are shown to have assumed jurisdiction which they do not possess. In attempting to by-pass the provisions of the Income-tax Act by inviting the High Court to decide questions which are primarily within the jurisdiction of the Revenue Authorities, the party approaching the Court has often to ask the Court to make assumptions of facts which remain to be investigated by the Revenue Authorities. AIR 1961 S C 609, Rel. on. Shivram Poddar v. I.-T. Officer, Central Circle II, Calcutta, (1964) 51 I T R 823 : (1964) 1 S C J 434 : (1964) 1 I T J 476 : 1964 Cur L J (S C) 139 : (1964) 1 S C W R 606 : AIR 1964 S C 1095 (1099) (Pt B) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226 — Applicability — Delay in depositing compensation—Proceedings, if liable to be quashed —Proper remedy— Claim for interest under S. 34 of Land Acquisition Act.

Where the proceedings for the acquisition of land for the D. A. V. College under S. 4 of the Land Acquisition Act dragged on for six years before the Collector, and after the award, the amount of compensation was not deposited for years and the applicants approached the authorities concerned a number of times but to no purpose they applied under Art. 226 of the Constitution for a writ of mandamus quashing the proceedings and to award compensation for loss to them.

Held : The question of issue of a writ of mandamus does not arise at all in the case; for the acquisition proceedings were not without jurisdiction. The delay in the disposal of the proceedings or the delay in deposit of compensation awarded is no ground for holding that the proceedings were taken without jurisdiction. The proper remedy for the loss occasioned to the petitioners was by way of filing a supplementary statement before the Collector asking him to take action under S. 34 of the Land Acquisition Act. It could then be decided by the District Judge. AIR 1952 Ajmer 30 (30) (Prs 5, 7).

● ——Art. 226—Existence of alternative remedy—Effect—Order of eviction under U. P. Act III of 1947 —Tenant filing writ petition without applying for revision under S. 7-A (4) or S. 7-F of the Act—Remedy under the sections is adequate alternative remedy—High Court can refuse writ on that ground —Whether it should do so depends on its discretion—U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (III of 1947), Ss. 7-A (4), 7-F. AIR 1954 All 428 and 1959 All L J 897 and 1960 All L J 546 and 1965 All L J 211, Overruled; A I R 1957 S C 882 and AIR 1961 S C 1506 and AIR 1958 S C 86, Rel. on. Gyan Chand Bhatia v. Rent Control and Eviction Officer, Lucknow, 1965 All L J 924 : 1965 All W R (H C) 676 : AIR 1966 All 57 (61, 62) (Pt A) (Prs 17, 21) (FB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Land Acquisition Act (1894)—Award under S. 11 against petitioner—Remedy by way of reference to Court provided under S. 18 not availed of—Writ cannot be issued. AIR 1965 All 356 (363, 364) (Pt F) (Pr 25).

——Art. 226—Mandamus—Writ of — Attached property sold in recovery proceedings under Income tax Act— Petitioner having equally adequate alternate remedy under provisions of Income-tax Act—Writ petition should be dismissed. (1964) 2 I T J 550 (All).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Other remedy—Certiorari will not issue to by-pass departmental remedy — It can only be granted when no other suitable remedy exists — Application for writ to short-circuit procedure provided by Act is not maintainable — Existence of provision for appeal in statute might bar certiorari—Order of Appellate Assistant Commissioner in Wealth tax matter—Appeal to Appellate Tribunal provided by S. 23, Wealth Tax Act not availed of —Assessee however filing revision to commissioner under S. 25 —Writ petition against order in revision—Revision was not adequate remedy, revision being discretionary—High Court refused to interfere by writ on ground that assessee did not avail of adequate alternative remedy, namely appeal — Failure held could not be justified on ground of illness since Tribunal could admit appeal even after expiry of limitation. See Wealth Tax Act (1957), S. 23. AIR 1963 All 488 (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Arbitration Act (1940), Ss. 20, 46, 47—Lucknow University Act (V of 1920), S. 44.

Where the Chancellor of the Lucknow University turned down a request of the petitioner, who was teacher of the University made in his representation to the Chancellor that an arbitration tribunal be appointed under S. 44 of the Lucknow University Act to decide the issues raised under the representation, the petitioner's remedy against the refusal lies by an application under S. 20, Arbitration Act, and a petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution would be dismissed on the ground of another remedy being open. S. 44 of the Lucknow University Act does not charge the Chancellor with the duty of constituting the tribunal. His duty is to appoint an umpire which contingency can arise when the tribunal is otherwise constituted. If therefore, the Chancellor has no duty under the law to constitute the tribunal, no writ or direction can be issued against him requiring him to do so. AIR 1961 All 331 (332, 333, 334) (Prs 2 to 9).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Revision application dismissed by Board of Revenue without hearing petitioner—Petitioner applying for setting aside order —Order vacated without hearing petitioner — Writ petition by petitioner—Petitioner's proper course held was to approach Board itself and not to approach High Court directly with writ petition — (Civil P. C. (1908), O. 47, R. 4). 1959 All L J 611 : ILR (1959) 2 All 173 : 1959 All W R (HC) 432 : AIR 1960 All 93 (96) (Pt E) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Issue of writ.

Where a reference to arbitration is possible not only after the completion of the works but also when the contract has been determined and it is the common case of the parties that the contract has been terminated, the conditions pre-requisite for a valid reference to arbitration exist in the case and if the reference is not premature, the petitioner has got a clear alternative remedy. (1925) 1 K B 745, Disting. AIR 1960 All 72 (77, 78) (Pt B) (Pr 13).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Citizenship Act (1955), S. 9 — Question whether person is Indian national — Forum for determination of question — Petition under Art. 226 of Constitution — Competency. See Citizenship Act (1955), S. 9. AIR 1958 All 165.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Writ of certiorari—If can be issued — (U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (XXVI of 1947), S. 85.)

Merely because a Court entertained an application which was barred by limitation and passed certain orders on it, an application for writ under Art. 226 will not lie. The applicant has further to satisfy that his fundamental right conferred by Part III of the Constitution of India or any other legal right has been infringed and great injustice has been done to him and that he has got no other adequate legal remedy. If the law provides another legal remedy it is doubtful that an application for writ will lie under Art. 226 of the Constitution.

Consequently, the High Court will not grant a writ to quash the order of a Sub-divisional Officer under S. 85, U. P. Panchayat Raj Act, cancelling the jurisdiction of the Panchayati Adalat when the applicant has the alternative remedy under S. 85 (2) of filing a fresh complaint before a competent criminal Court and no injustice had been done to the applicant by such order. 1954 A W R (H C) 143 : 1954 All L J 200 : 1954 Cr L J 847 : A I R 1954 All 391 (393) (Pt D) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Municipalities—U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 160. A I R 1953 All 551 (551) (Pt B) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226—Other remedy available—S. 13 of the U. P. Court of Wards Act, 1912, if provides any remedy to disqualified proprietor.

Section 13 of the U. P. Court of Wards Act held could not be said to provide an adequate remedy for a person aggrieved by an order under S. 8 so as to disentitle him to apply under Art. 226 ILR (1952) 2 All 949 : AIR 1952 All 99 (104) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of certiorari — Single petition filed on behalf of several petitioners on identical question—Maintainability — Alternative remedy by way of Reference to Government — Existence not fatal to a writ petition.

Where the case of the 14 petitioners in the writ petition was almost identical and raised the same questions of fact and law, a single writ petition was maintainable.

The orders of rejection passed by the Revenue Divisional Officer under the Andhra Pradesh Panchayat Samithis and Zilla Parishads Act (35 of 1959) are in the nature of judicial orders liable to removal on certiorari. The existence of an alternative remedy is not per se fatal to the invocation of the prerogative jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. The election petition under the Act can be filed only after the election and such course would be misconceived for correcting an error with reference to an order passed anterior to the election. A reference under S. 72 of the Act is not an effective alternative remedy. (1963) 1 Andh W R 54.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Prosecution without necessary sanction—Issue of writ of prohibition—(Panchayats—Madras Village Panchayats Act (X of 1950), S. 106).

Where after a complaint was filed under Ss. 167 and 468, Penal Code, against the President of a village panchayat, the latter filed an application under Art. 226 for the issue of a writ of prohibition restraining the Magistrate from proceeding with the case on the ground that he could not take cognizance of the offence except with the previous sanction of the Government under S. 106 of the Madras Village Panchayats Act;

Held, that the petitioner could raise the objection more appropriately before the Magistrate in whose Court the complaint was filed. If the objection was overruled and if the case went against him, he could if so advised, take proper proceedings by way of appeal. Where the petitioner has an effective remedy High Court will not ordinarily exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction. 1959 Cr L J 23 : A I R 1959 Andh Pra 28 (29) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Income-tax proceedings — Writ application — Competency — (Income-tax Act (1922), Ss. 44 and 66).

The petitioner who was assessed to tax as a firm did not challenge the notice issued to him but submitted a return; after considering the objections raised by him an assessment order was finally passed. The petitioner filed appeals to the Appellate Assistant Commissioner. While the appeals were pending he filed a petition for a writ of mandamus directing the income-tax authorities to forbear from enforcing the assessment order on the ground of want of jurisdiction.

Held, having regard to the undoubted and adequate remedies which the petitioner had under the Income-tax Act and to the further fact that he had himself taken advantage of the remedy this was not a fit case for the exercise of jurisdiction vested in the High Court under Art. 226. (1959) 36 I T R 239 (Andh Pra).

——Art. 226 — Citizenship Act (57 of 1955), S. 9 (2) and Sch III, Cls. 3, 4, 5 (d) — Right of citizenship—Question as to acquisition and termination of — Determining authority—Evidence and proof—Remedy under R. 30 of Citizenship Rules open—Writ refused. See Citizenship Act (1955), S. 9 (2). AIR 1958 Andh Pra 761.

——Art. 226 - Other remedy open.

The High Court will not exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction under Art. 226 when there is a specific, effective and alternative remedy. (1958) 2 Andh W R 598 : ILR (1958) Andh Pra 701 : AIR 1958 Andh Pra 697 (704) (Pt E) (Pr 19) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Bar to writ—(Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act (XIX of 1951), S 99).

Where the Commissioner confirms the appointment of additional trustees, the aggrieved trustee has an effective alternative remedy under S. 99 and it would disentitle him to seek relief under Art. 226. AIR 1957 Andh Pra 108 (109) (Pt B) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Assam Municipal Act (15 of 1957), Ss. 18 (1) (c), 23 — Election of Commissioner of Municipal Board—Non-compliance with rules — Election can be challenged only under S. 18 (1) (c), not in writ proceedings. A I R 1952 S C 64 and A I R 1958 S C 139, Rel. on. I L R (1963) 15 Assam 29 : A I R 1963 Assam 168 (173, 174, 175) (Pt B) (Prs 18, 19, 23) (DB).

——Art. 226—Powers of High Court — Order under S. 20, Minimum Wages Act — Apart from remedy under Art. 226 order of Authority under S. 20 of the Act is subject to revisional jurisdiction of High Court under S. 115, Civil P. C. — Interference by writ. See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115. A I R 1958 Assam 1 (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy available — Discretion of Court.

Where petitioner s application to the Collector to refer the case under S. 18, Land Acquisition Act for adjudication of the rights or interest which he claimed in the property was rejected on the ground that his name was not on the award and therefore he was not entitled to apply for relief under that section.

Held, it was for the Court to consider whether relief should be given under Art. 226 to the petitioner or whether he should be referred to the civil Court for proper relief. In this case, whether on a reference under S. 18, or by virtue of a suit brought by the petitioner to whom no compensation was given although he claimed an interest in the property, the matter had ultimately to go to the civil Court. Therefore it would make no difference as to the balance of convenience of the respondent if the collector was directed in the proceedings under Art. 226 to make a reference to the civil Court for deciding as to whether the petitioner had any interest in the property as claimed by him, when the reference is otherwise competent. I L R (1958) 10 Assam 113.

——Art 226 — Mandamus — Other remedy open — Petitioners aggrieved by order of Executive Council —Order subject to approval of District Council— (Assam Autonomous Districts (Constitution of District Councils) Rules (1951), R. 29 (2) (a)).

Where the Executive Committee of the District Council cancelled orders of the previous Executive Committee whereby the petitioners were recognised as electors of Mylliem Durbar but as the matter fell under R. 29 (2) (a), it referred the matter to the District Council and the petitioners applied for a writ claiming that they were entitled to function as voters and that the Chief Executive Member of the District Council should be restrained from interfering with the right of theirs

Held that the application should fail as the order passed by the new Executive Committee was not a final order and was still subject to approval by the District Council itself and there was nothing to prevent the petitioners from making a representation to the District Council of their legitimate claim if they had any. A I R 1955 Assam 238 (240) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Offence under Assam Maintenance of Public Order Act (1947), S. 2 (7) is bailable — Bail refused — Proper procedure is to move appropriate Court by application under Criminal P. C. and not by application under Art. 226, Constitution of India. See Public Safety — Assam Maintenance of Public Order Act (5 of 1947), S. 2 (7). 1952 Cri L J 1710 : A I R 1952 Assam 192.

——Art. 226 – Other remedy—Assessment of Income-tax—Finality—(Income-tax Act (1922), Ss. 23, 25).

Held, that the assessee did not prefer an appeal against the original assessment, even though it was competent to him to do so. The order had, therefore, become final. It was open to the assessee to submit an application invoking the jurisdiction of the Income tax Officer under S. 35 to rectify the errors complained of, but no such application having been preferred, the alleged errors could not be set up in answer to a rectification already made by the Income-tax Officer. 59 Bom L R 268 : (1957) 32 I T R 350 : I L R (1957) Bom 428 : A I R 1957 Bom 134 (137) (Pt H) (Fr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Alternative remedy under S. 20 (2) of West Bengal Estates Acquisition Act See Tenancy Laws — West Bengal Estates Acquisition Act (1 of 1954), S. 5 A. A I R 1965 Cal 539.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Provisions of West Bengal Commissioners of Municipality (First General Election) Orders, 1963, providing procedure to challenge correctness of electoral roll — Held, that without availing of remedy provided by that law, the petitioner was not entitled to take collateral proceedings under Art. 226. A I R 1965 Cal 380 (386, 387) (Pt C) (Pr 10).

——Art. 226—Agricultural income on sale of Tendu leaves—Exemption granted in assessment on interpretation of expression 'agricultural income' based on footing of judicial decision — That decision subsequently dissented from by Supreme Court—Re-opening of escaped assessment — Information received as to change of law held was information within meaning of S 34 (1) (b) — Income-tax Officer holding that basic operations on land were not established and therefore the income was not agricultural income—Relief of escapement of assessment held was reasonable—Remedy for assessee was departmental and not by writ petition. See Income-tax Act (1922), S. 2 (1). A I R 1964 Cal 486 (DB).

——Art. 226 – Other remedy open — Remedy under Art. 226 not to be used to subvert ordinary process of law and procedure –Stay of criminal proceedings.

Where the provisions of the Criminal P. C., can easily be invoked by the petitioners for the determination of the point which they seek by an application under Art. 226 of the Constitution, stay of pending criminal cases and prosecution except in very special circumstances, should not as a rule be encouraged under the cover of Art. 226 of the Constitution. Ordinary procedure under the Criminal Procedure Code is in such cases speedier and ampler remedy and the discretion of constitutional remedy under Art 226 should not be used to subvert the ordinary process of law and procedure. 67 Cal W N 159 : 1963 (1) Cri L J 49 : A I R 1963 Cal 61 (62) (Pt A) (Pr 2).

——Art. 226– Other remedy open.

The High Court under Art. 226 can do nothing with regard to the assessment order as the Income-tax Act lays down the procedure to be followed in respect of any objection to assessment and the petitioner has been pursuing that procedure. There cannot be second line of attack under Art. 226. A I R 1957 Cal 430 (430) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226 — Another remedy available — High Court will not interfere — Municipalities — Bengal Municipal Act (15 of 1932), S. 36.

There is nothing which operates as an absolute bar to the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution to interfere at any stage of an election under the Bengal Municipal Act, 1932. But when there is a particular remedy given by the Act or the rules, the aggrieved party will be relegated to it and the High Court will decline to interfere. 61 Cal W N 11 : A I R 1957 Cal 164 (167, 169) (Pt E) (Prs 9, 30, 31).

——Art. 226 — Another remedy open — (Sales-tax—Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) Act (6 of 1941), S. 20 (3)).

Against an order passed by the Commercial Tax Officer under the Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) Act, 1941, amending the certificate of registration granted to the petitioner, the petitioner has an alternative and adequate remedy of preferring an application for revision under S 20 (3) of the Act and therefore an application under Art. 226 against the order will not ordinarily be entertained. I L R (1957) 3 Cal 187 : (1956) 7 S T C 527 : A I R 1956 Cal 299 (301) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226 — Another remedy open — Question of compensation under Land Acquisition Act cannot properly form subject-matter of petition under Art. 226 — Recourse should be had to remedy under Act, e g., under S. 18, Land Acquisition Act — (Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 18). A I R 1955 N U C (Cal) 1789.

——Art. 226 — Petitioner recorded in Jamabandi as tenant-at-will of land was dispossessed by Government — Remedy would be under ordinary law and petitioner cannot invoke provisions of the article. A I R 1956 Cal 437 and A I R 1961 Assam 20, Rel. on; A I R 1958 Punj 325 and A I R 1959 Punj 532, Distinguished. A I R 1965 Him Pra 53 (54, 55) (Pt B) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226—Existence of alternative remedy—Effect—Adequate alternative remedy available — Petition held not competent—J. and K. Co-operative Societies Act (1993), S. 104 (2). A I R 1961 S C 1506, Foll. 1964 Kash L J 306 : A I R 1965 J & K 39 (40, 41) (Pt A) (Prs 9, 15, 17) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Order of Executive First Class Magistrate under S. 144, Criminal P. C. (V of 1898) — Application to quash — Maintainability —Interim relief—Scope of jurisdiction.

Whatever may be the merits of the order or the attack made as against that order, the petitioner has got appropriate remedies available to him under the Criminal Procedure Code to challenge the said order. Therefore the order of the Executive First Class Magistrate cannot be quashed under Art. 226. The High Court in proceedings under Art. 226 cannot give a declaration of the title of the petitioner to the disputed property and also cannot declare his right to possession. Such claims can only be more appropriately investigated in a proper civil suit. The fact that the petitioner cannot get suitable orders or direction in a civil Court, immediately should not be a ground for the High Court giving interim relief under Art. 226, when the High Court is of the view that a party cannot be granted any of the reliefs in the main application itself. (1951) S C J 764, Rel. on. (1961) M L J (Cr) 326 : 1961 Ker L T 20 : A I R 1961 Kerala 259 (260) (Prs 2, 4, 5, 6).

——Art. 226—Habeas Corpus—Other remedy open — Irregularity or mistake of procedure in granting bail — Party affected having remedy under Criminal P. C. —Remedy under Article cannot be availed of. A I R 1955 N U C (M B) 3872.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — (Municipalities — Madhya Bharat Municipalities Act (1 of 1954), S. 10).

The High Court can refuse to grant a writ under Art. 226, if it is satisfied that the aggrieved party can have an adequate relief elsewhere. Case-law ref.

A voter aggrieved by an election under the Madhya Bharat Municipalities Act has a suitable remedy by an election petition under S. 10 of that Act and hence the High Court will refuse to grant a writ under Art. 226 of the Constitution of India. It cannot be contended that in absence of rules framed under S. 10 the District Judge would not be able to decide the election petition. Even if there have been no rules, the petition can be disposed of in accordance with the principles of natural justice. Madh B L J 1955 H C R 1070 : A I R 1955 M B 143 (144) (Prs 3, 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Other remedy open — M. P. Panchayats Act (VII of 1962), Ss. 357, 20 — M. P. Panchayats (Election Petitions Corrupt Practices and Disqualifications for Membership) Rules (1962), R. 22 — M. P. Gram Panchayats Election and Co-option Rules (1963), Rr. 24 (2), 27 (6) — Election under Panchayats Act — Order of Returning Officer rejecting nomination paper cannot be interfered with under Art. 226 — Remedy is by election petition after election is over — Word "notified" — It means that election petition is competent only when election is notified and not before — Word does not curtail wide meaning of the word. A I R 1962 S C 64, Rel. on. 1965 N L J 183, Not foll. 1965 Jab L J 332 : 1965 M P L J 480 : A I R 1965 Madh Pra 258 (260, 262, 263) (Prs 7, 9, 10, 11) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Union registered as a recognised union under Ss. 3 and 4, C. P. and Berar Industrial Disputes Settlement Act—Aggrieved union can apply under S. 7 for cancellation of registration or under S. 7-A for its own recognition in place of registered union — Writ petition not maintainable for quashing order of recognition as registered union. 1961 Jab L J 1117 : 1961 M P L J 1040 : (1961) 3 Fac L R 481 : I L R (1962) Madh Pra 166.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Issue of writ of certiorari—Municipalities—C. P. and Berar Municipalities Act (II of 1922), S. 83.

The existence of an alternative remedy is no bar, or at least not an absolute bar, to the issue of a writ of certiorari when the circumstances call for the issue of the writ, although the fact that such a remedy existed may be taken into consideration by the Court in arriving at a conclusion as to whether it should in exercise of its discretion issue a writ of certiorari to quash the proceedings. The person interested cannot ask for a reference under S. 83 (2) of the C. P. and Berar Municipalities Act as a matter of right and consequently he cannot be said to have a convenient, beneficial and effective remedy. I L R (1959) Madh Pra 734 : 1960 M P L J 221 : 1960 Jab L J 228 : 1960 M P C 180 : A I R (1960) Madh Pra 217 (220) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Municipalities — C. P. and Berar Municipalities Act (II of 1922), S. 83 — Other remedy—Remedy under S. 83, Municipalities Act.

Held on facts that a writ having already been issued by this Court forbearing the opponent from imposing or recovering octroi tax on spare parts at a rate higher than 0-2-0 per maund, there could be no question of the issue of another writ to the same effect. If a dispute arose whether specific goods were or were not spare and component parts of a machinery, remedy was available under S. 83 of the Municipalities Act. 1960 M P L J (Notes) 75

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Issue of writ—Election case. See Panchayats — C. P. and Berar Panchayats Rules (1948), R. 2. A I R 1960 Madh Pra 37 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Demand notice under S. 137 B of Madras City Municipal Act (4 of 1919) issued even before effecting amendment of property tax assessment—Existence of other remedies under Act is no bar to issue of writ of certiorari, notice being illegal. A I R 1965 Mad 515.

——Art. 226 — Mandamus — Other remedy open — Beneficial change in conditions of service effected by consent of some workers — Rest of workers remaining unaffected by change — Remedy is to seek reference under S. 10 (1) (c) of Industrial Disputes Act and not writ petition.

Where a change has been effected by imposition, it may be sufficient that the concerned workmen think it prejudicial whether it be truly so or otherwise. But, where the change has been effected by consent as between certain workmen and the employer, upon an offer by the employer and the acceptance of the terms by the concerned workmen, and the rest of the workmen are unaffected because the status quo prevails, the organisation of labour Court: step in and presume to dictate, by telling the workmen that the choice was erroneous and that they are ignorant of their true welfare. Where the workers are sui juris and the employer has a legal right to make an offer as to terms of service, even though it may, under certain circumstances, be called an unfair labour practice, that will not justify interference under writ jurisdiction. At the highest for the organised labour, this may be a justification for raising an 'Industrial dispute' and for seeking a reference from the Government under S. 10 (1) (c) of the Industrial Disputes Act, (1947). (1965-66) 28 F J R 184 : 77 Mad L W 566 : ILR (1964) 2 Mad 1 : (1964) 2 Lab L J 392 : A I R 1965 Mad 111 (115) (Ft C) (Pr 12) (DB).

—— Art. 226 — Other remedy open — (Cr. P. Code (1898), S. 435).

A writ petition will not be entertained, where the petitioner has an alternative statutory remedy under S. 435, Cr. P. Code of which he avails himself. (1957) M L J (Cr) 330 : 1957 All W R (Sup) 73 : 1957 Cri L J 761 : 70 Mad L W 629 : (1957) 2 M L J 62 : I L R (1958) Mad 72 : A I R 1957 Mad 405 (407) (Pt A) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Other remedy open — Warrant issued to recover stamp duty — Moving Board of Revenue or reference to High Court are not adequate remedies — (Stamp Act (1899), Ss. 48, 56 and 57).

The High Court normally will not issue a writ where there is an alternative remedy. But there is no absolute bar to entertaining writ petitions, and issuing a writ, even when there are alternative remedies, when these alternative remedies are in the opinion of the Court, not effective.

Where the properties of the petitioners could be attached and sold for recovering the stamp duty and penalty as the amount as arrears of land revenue under S. 48 of the Stamp Act, and warrants were issued or were about to issue, and the petitioners moved the High Court under Art. 226 instead of moving the Board of Revenue either to revise the order or to make a reference to the High Court.

Held, that the writ petitions were rightly entertained as the alternative remedies were not speedy, effective and adequate. (1956) 2 Mad L J 126 : 1956 Mad W N 417 : ILR (1956) Mad 1074 : 69 Mad L W 409 : AIR 1956 Mad 454 (457) (Pt A) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Writ to quash order of Regional Transport Authority refusing to renew permit — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 64, 64-A).

As a general rule, the power under Art. 226 will not be exercised by the High Court when another effective and adequate remedy exists.

A person aggrieved by the order of the Regional Transport Authority refusing to renew his permit for plying buses, has a specific and adequate remedy (by way of appeal under S. 64 and revision under S. 64-A) under Motor Vehicles Act. Where he has not availed himself of the remedy under the Act his petition under Art. 226 to quash the order of the Regional Transport Authority should be dismissed 'in limine'. (1955) 1 M L J 231 : 67 Mad L W 1217 : A I R 1955 Mad 205 (206) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Remedy by way of suit open — Application under Art. 226 if maintainable.

An application under Art. 226 of the Constitution is not an alternative remedy to the usual remedy by way of suit. AIR 1951 All 1 (FB); AIR 1951 Mad 249; A I R 1952 Mad 112, Rel. on.

Hence, where the applicant under Art. 226 has his remedy by way of suit in which he can obtain every relief to which he is entitled, including the interim relief of injunction restraining the Government from committing any anticipatory breach of contract with the petitioner, an application under Art. 226 of the Constitution is misconceived. (1954) 1 M L J 429 : 1954 Mad W N 27 : I L R (1954) Mad 754 : (1954) Andhra L J (W) H C 29 : A I R 1954 Mad 549 (553) (Pt C) (Prs 13, 14) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Scope of — Mandamus when can be issued.

Art. 226 of the Constitution should not be construed so as to replace the ordinary remedies by way of a suit and application available to the litigant under the general law of the land. Directions in the nature of a writ of mandamus should not issue under this Article except to a public, a quasi-public body or officer which is under an obligation, statutory or otherwise to do or refrain from doing anything which is likely to interfere with the rights of persons. Where the ordinary remedy of a person is by way of a suit and an application for injunction in the suit, the fact that the Court in which the suit should have been filed is closed for the summer recess would not render Art. 226 applicable. 64 L W 665 : (1951) 2 M L J 171 : AIR 1952 Mad 112 (112) (Pt A) (Pr 1) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Issue of writ — (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 64 and 64-A — Order granting application for renewal of permit — Appeal).

An order passed by the Secretary, Regional Transport Authority granting an application for renewal of permit does not fall within any of the clauses of S. 64 and is not appealable at the instance of person who had objected to the grant of renewal of permit. Specific legal remedy which would bar a writ of certiorari, can only mean that the petitioner must have a right to approach a Court and he must have a right to a remedy if his case was just : A I R 1951 Bom 423, Rel. on.

Section 64-A of the Motor Vehicles Act only deals with the power of the State Transport Authority to interfere with an order of the Regional Transport Authority and not with the rights of a party who is affected by the said order. The power to interfere under S. 64-A, unlike Art. 227 of the Constitution is not given to a Court but to an administrative body. Hence it cannot be said that S. 64-A is a specific legal remedy which would bar a certiorari. 1958 Mad L J (Cr) 979 : 36 Mys L J 558 : I L R (1958) Mys 421 : AIR 1959 Mys 17 (18, 19) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Scope — Person duly elected Councillor and President — Objection on grounds of under age not taken at any stage, provided for in Rules — He cannot be unseated by Government by order under S. 14 (1-A) — Order quashed. See Municipalities — Mysore Town Municipalities Act (XII of 1951), S. 14 (1-A). I L R (1953) Mys 497 : 33 Mys L J 125 : AIR 1954 Mys 18 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Election disputed — Petitioner not initially availing remedy provided by S. 37 of Orissa Municipal Act — Election will not be set aside — See Municipalities — Orissa Municipality Election Rules (1950), R. 22 (1). ILR (1965) Cut 705.

——Art. 226 — S. 30 of Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Act, 1957, read with Rr. 54 and 55 Mineral Concession Rules confer wide powers of revision on Central Government — In exercise of this power Central Government acts quasi judicially — They can go into disputed questions of fact also, which the High Court cannot while exercising jurisdiction under Art. 226 — It will not be proper, in view of this power, for High Court to entertain writ petition — This is specially so when the revisional jurisdiction of superior authority is plenary. See Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Act (XLVII of 1957), S. 30. AIR 1962 Orissa 183 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Election — No writ can issue to Returning Officer to quash his order rejecting or accepting nomination paper — Decision can be questioned only by means of election petition after the election is completed. See Ibid, Art. 329 (b). A I R 1954 Orissa 87 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Patna University Act (III of 1962), Sections 9 (4), 26 (4) — Appointment of two professors of surgery in Medical College — A, B and C lecturers in the College since July 1951, July 1947 and January 1949 — State Public Service 'Commission recommending B and C for appointment — A filing writ petition for restraining University to make appointment —Maintainability of petition.

A, B and C were posted as Lecturers in Medical College in July 1951, July 1947 and January 1949. The control and management were with the State Government. Under S. 51 (1) of Patna University Act of 1951 the College was transferred to the University. By Notification No. 211164/H dated 6-7-1960 Governor laid down terms of transferred teachers. The 1951 Act was repealed by Bihar State University Act of 1960 with certain savings. This 1960 Act was replaced by Patna University Act of 1962. On 1-1-1961 the Government sent to the Registrar a panel of seven doctors for appointment to the two posts of Professor of Surgery under S. 15 (5) of 1960 Act. A, B & C were first, fifth and sixth in the panel. On 8-1-1962, the Registrar sent the panel to State Public Service Commission for consideration. The 1962 Act came into force on 1-3-1962. On 19-12-1962 the Commission recommended the names of B and C for the above posts. On 15-2-1963, A filed injunction suit for restraining the University for making the appointment. Prayer for temporary injunction was refused on 25-2-1963. A filed writ petition for the same relief. Ad interim order was passed in favour of A who withdrew the suit. Meanwhile A also made representations to the Chancellor demanding justice. In the Writ Petition, Held, (1) that before the University had proceeded to act under S. 26 (4) of the 1962 Act, A should have waited until he could properly move the Chancellor under S. 9 (4) for annulling the proceeding of the University, if the appointments made by the University under S. 26 (4) went against him. A must exhaust his remedies under S. 9 (4) of the 1962 Act, if he was aggrieved by the decision of the University, before he could be permitted to move High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. When there was an alternative remedy, which without being unduly onerous, provided an equally efficacious remedy, relief to A must be denied by High Court, (2) that the Chancellor would not be precluded from considering the matter, as a whole, under S. 9 (4) of the 1962 Act, if he was called upon to do so at the proper stage, (3) that until the final decision of High Court was given, the existence, efficacy and nature of any other alternative remedy was open to scrutiny, and only because the case had been admitted A could not insist on a decision on merits, even if it be held that there was a more efficacious remedy under the Statute governing the University. An ex parte admission of a case could not lead to such a serious consequence, controlling cases at the stage of hearing. It is only at the stage of final hearing in the presence of parties that this point could be fully dealt with for a reasoned conclusion. (1963) 2 Mad L J 309, Not foll., (4) that public policy required that a controversy of this nature should first be placed before the Chancellor of the University under S. 9 (4) of the 1962 Act, for solution, if necessary, rather than that High Court should give its mandate at this stage. A ought not to be allowed to choose his forum at this stage according to his own desire AIR 1965 Pat 253 (256, 257, 258, 259) (Prs 4, 6, 7, 9).

——Art. 226— Other remedy open — Election officer accepting application of withdrawal of candidate — Candidate denying to have filed such application and alleging that same was accepted in violation of R. 24 of Bihar Panchayat Election Rules, 1959 — No interference under writ jurisdiction as case involved determination of disputed facts and alternative and better remedy was available under S. 84-B of Bihar Panchayat Raj Act (1947). 1965 B L J R 110 : AIR 1965 Pat 250 (250, 251) (Pt A) (Prs 2, 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 - Breach of S. 33 — Industrial Disputes Act (1947)—Remedy under Art. 226 is not available. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 33. AIR 1954 Pat 1 : 32 Pat 688 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ of mandamus — Application under S. 13 of Police Act — Prayer in application refused—Issue of writ—(Police Act (1861), S. 13).

Section 13 Police Act gives statutory protection to the Police Officers named therein if any of them deputes, subject to the general direction of the Magistrate of the district, any additional police force to keep the peace at any place within the general police district, on the application of any person at his cost. But if the authorities named in the section, in the exercise of their discretion, do not consider it necessary to depute additional police force for the maintenance of peace and order, the person aggrieved or interested cannot claim protection as of right, even if he shows the necessity for the same and undertakes to meet the cost. If the prayer is not granted the petitioner can seek protection of his right under the provisions of Criminal P. C. or seek remedy in a Civil Court; and as another remedy is open to him a writ in the nature of mandamus cannot be granted. 30 Pat 1252 : 1952 Cri L J 1639 : A I R 1952 Pat 386 (387) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Other remedy open — Order dismissing Revision under S. 56 (1), Stamp Act (1899)—Application under S. 57 (1) for stating case to High Court not made—Order could not be set aside by writ of certiorari — But High Court could direct Chief Controlling Revenue Authority to state case under S. 57 (i), though no matter was pending before it—Stamp Act (1899), Ss. 56 (1) and 57 (1).

Where an application for revision under S. 56 (1) of the Stamp Act (1899) was dismissed by the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority and the applicant challenged the order of the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority in a writ petition even without applying for a statement of case to the High Court under the provisions of sub-s. (1) of S. 57 of the Act;

Held, that although in exercise of powers under Art. 226 of the Constitution order could not be quashed by issuing writ of certiorari High Court could by mandamus direct Chief Controlling Revenue Authority to state case under S. 57 (1) of the Stamp Act, although no matter was pending before Chief Controlling Revenue Authority and in spite of the fact that the petitioner before approaching the High Court by writ petition had himself never made any application that the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority should make reference to the High Court under S. 57 (1). AIR 1950 S C 218 and A I R 1955 Mad 304 and AIR 1960 Mad 21, Rel. on. A I R 1958 All 320, Dissent. from; Decision in L. P. A. No. 85-D of 1960, dated 29-10-1963 (Punj), Ref.

A reference under sub-s. (1) of S. 57 of the Stamp Act (1899) is treated as quite an important matter and it is for all practical purposes the settled position that where an approach is provided to the High Court by the statute itself, then it is that approach that has to be made to the High Court and not any other, such as recourse to Art. 226 of the Constitution. This is what happens normally, and unless there is an exceptional circumstance entitling departure from this practice, High Court will not quash the orders by issuing writ of certiorari.

But there is another aspect of the matter and that is the power of High Court by mandamus to direct the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority to make a reference of the case to the High Court. If there was ever any doubt about any such powers in the High Court it has been finally resolved in A I R 1950 S C 218. This power can be exercised even where writ petition had been filed after all matters have been disposed of by the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority.

Whether the case is before the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority in revision under sub-s. (1) or sub-s. (2) of S. 56, it can make a reference under sub-s. (1) of S. 57, and in either event the case is pending before it. There is concensus of judicial opinion that the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority cannot make a reference under sub-s. (1) of S. 57 unless the case is pending before it. Though there is this difficulty, it is overcome as soon as a mandamus is issued to the Chief Controlling Revenue Authority to state a case to the High Court under S. 57 (1) of the Act, since the substantial effect of mandamus is to quash its order and then direct it to make the reference so that immediately as its order is quashed the matter becomes at large and must be deemed to be pending when the authority is called upon to make the reference. It would make hardly any difference whether any such application demanding reference has or has not been made because in the absence of any matter pending before Chief Controlling Revenue Authority, it would be meaningless to make any application to that authority with a prayer which it has no jurisdiction to allow I L R (1965) 1 Punj 140 : A I R 1966 Punj 169 (171 to 173) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 4).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Election dispute — Panchayats — Punjab Panchayat Samitis and Zila Parishads Act (III of 1961), S. 121 — Punjab Panchayat Samitis (Primary Members) Election Rules (1961), R. 17—Punjab Panchayat Samitis and Zila Parishads (Election Petition) Rules (1961), R. 3 — Complaint by defeated candidate of illegal rejection of valid votes by Returning Officer — Election petition was competent under R. 3—Other remedy though not per se bar to exercise of writ jurisdiction, High Court could not interfere as complaint involved determination of disputed questions of fact. 66 Punj L R 1196, Disting. ILR (1965) 2 Punj 246 : AIR 1966 Punj 28 (30) (Pr 7).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Advance tax notice under S. 210 of the Income-tax Act (1961) demanding payment of Advance tax within the prescribed time — Petitioner neither complying with notice nor applying for remedies available under Income-tax Act - Held, High Court will not interfere with impugned notice in writ proceedings — Income-tax Act (1961), Ss. 210 and 211. ('64) 66 Pun L R 972 : (1964) 2 I T J 624.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Impugned order not clearly without jurisdiction or manifestly contrary to law—Petitioner should not be permitted to by-pass the remedy available and invoke the extraordinary writ jurisdiction under Art. 226. ('63) 65 Punj L R 422.

[Overruled on another point in A I R 1964 Punj 1 (FB).]

——Art. 226 — Remedies by Election Petition not availed of — Art. 226 of Constitution not attracted. See Panchayats — Punjab Gram Panchayat Election Rules (1960), R. 3. ILR (1962) 1 Punj 45.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy—Remedies open to party aggrieved—Writ petition does not lie. See Municipalities — Punjab Municipal Act (3 of 1911), S. 121. AIR 1961 Punj 275 (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy — Issue of writ — Panchayats—Order or sentence under Punjab Gram Panchayat Act — High Court's revisional powers under S. 439, Criminal Procedure Code and Arts. 227 and 226 of the Constitution. See Panchayats — Punjab Gram Panchayat Act (4 of 1953), S. 66. ILR (1957) Punj 687 : AIR 1960 Punj 160.

——Art. 226—Another remedy open — [Sea Customs Act (1878), Ss. 167 (8), 188 to 191 — Import Export (Control) Act (1947), S. 3 — C. W. A. No. 99-D of 1953, dated 9th September, 1953 (Punj.), Reversed].

A person aggrieved by an order of confiscation passed under S. 167 (8), Sea Customs Act, read with S. 3 (2), Import Export (Control) Act has to follow the specific and efficacious remedy provided by the Sea Customs Act, viz., the remedy of appeal and revision provided under Ss. 188 to 191 of that Act and the High Court will not interfere by way of a writ of certiorari under Art. 226 of the Constitution if the petitioner has not resorted to those remedies.

An appeal under the Sea Customs Act which has been laid down by the statute itself should not be bypassed merely on the ground that it is an appeal from one administrative tribunal to another, because that is the policy of the law and an application under Art. 226 is no substitute for these appeals and cannot be made a ground for by-passing them. If the law has laid down a particular procedure for redress of grievances, another remedy would not be available. AIR 1953 Punj 55; AIR 1947 P C 78; A I R 1940 Cal 174; A I R 1942 Mad 704, Rel. on. A I R 1952 Punj 268 and AIR 1953 Punj 88, Dist. Case-law Discussed; AIR 1952 Cal 656, Dissented from. ILR (1954) Punj 731 : AIR 1954 Punj 73 (80) (Prs 36, 37) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy.

In order to found an application for mandamus there should be a specific legal right, as well as the want of a specific legal remedy.

Thus where the remedy was in applicant's own hand in that he could file a complaint which the District Magistrate was bound to receive and deal with according to law but instead he filed an application under Art. 226, the High Court refused to enforce the law of the land by the extraordinary remedy of a writ of mandamus. A I R 1928 Bom 390, Distinguished. ILR (1954) Punj 125 : 1953 Cri L J 1637 : A I R 1953 Punj 242 (243) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Notice served on assessee under S. 271 of Income-tax Act, 1961, to show cause why penalty be not imposed for delay in furnishing returns — Order of penalty appealable under S. 246 (o) (iii) and remedy by way of reference available under S. 256 of the Act—Instead, assessee applying under Art. 226 without showing any exceptional circumstances for interference at inception of proceedings — Held, High Court should not interfere under extraordinary powers under Art. 226—Income-tax Act (1961), Ss. 271, 246 (o) (iii), 256. ILR (1965) 15 Raj 23 : 1965 Raj L W 11 : A I R 1965 Raj 104 (105, 106, 107) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 13) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Dispute between member and Chairman of Municipal Board as to whether the former has incurred disqualification — Remedy is under S. 12(5) of Rajasthan Town Municipalities Act to approach Government and not under Art. 226 — (Municipalities—Rajasthan Town Municipalities Act (23 of 1951), Ss. 12 (3) (d) and 12 (5)). AIR 1955 N U C (Raj) 5023 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Remedy under S. 19, Rajasthan Town Municipalities Act, 1951 available—No writ petition held maintainable. A I R 1955 NUC (Raj) 4684 (DB).

——Art 226 — Irregularities in election of village panchayat—Remedy is to apply to Minister in charge —High Court cannot be called upon to interfere— (Marwar Village Panchayats Act (1945), S. 8). A I R 1955 N U C (Raj) 4663 (DB).

——Arts. 226, 228—Another remedy open—Opposite party in suit under Rajasthan Premises (Control of Rent and Eviction) Act, 1950, contending that Act offended against Arts. 14, 15 and 19 (1) (f) — Proper course is to apply to High Court under Art. 228— Opposite party can also take advantage of S. 113, Civil P. C. — High Court will not interfere under Art. 226 — (Civil P. C., (1908), S. 113). A I R 1955 N U C (Raj) 2184 (DB).

——Art. 226—Election petition—Order to proceed ex parte—Sufficient reasons to set aside order—Tribunal is proper authority. See Civil P C. (1908), O. 9, R. 7. 1954 Raj L W 326 : ILR (1953) 3 Raj 768 : A I R 1954 Raj 129 (DB).

——Art. 226 - Other remedy open—(Railways Establishment Code, Rr. 1702, 1717, 1725 and 1727).

The remedy under Art. 226 of the Constitution is an extraordinary remedy and it should not be normally resorted to specially in cases where adequate alternative remedy lies.

Where a railway servant removed from service under R. 1702 (8), Railways Establishment Code, applied under Art 226 without pursuing the remedies given to him under Rr 1717, 1725 and 1727 of that Code, the High Court refused to grant relief under Art. 226 in the absence of any special or extraordinary reasons to do so A I R 1952 Cal 610; A I R 1951 Mad 882 and A I R 1952 Raj 112, Rel. on. ILR (1953) 3 Raj 123 : 1953 Raj L W 390 : A I R 1953 Raj 199 (200) (Prs 8, 13) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

When the remedies for the redress of grievances or the correction of errors are found in a statute which creates new rights and liabilities it is to those remedies and those remedies alone that resort should normally be made. The Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, and the Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act, 1950, form a self-contained code with an elaborate and adequate machinery for the composing of industrial disputes and ordinarily the aggrieved party should seek his redress within the framework of those enactments and not in the High Court under Art 226 of the Constitution. AIR 1952 S C 192, Foll. 1953 Ker L T 856 : ILR (1954) Trav-Co 322 : A I R 1954 Trav-Co 240 (243) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other legal remedy open — Infringement of copyright — Remedy by way of writ under Art. 226 if open to author — Copyright Act (1914), S. 6.

Where copyright in a work has been infringed, the owner of the copyright shall be entitled to all such remedies by way of injunction or interdict damages, accounts, and otherwise, as are or may be conferred by law for the infringement of a right. The proper remedy for the author is to pursue that allowed to him by a civil suit. The owner is not entitled to a writ under Art 226 against the person alleged to have infringed the copyright to prohibit and prevent him for publishing and selling any copies of the infringing work. A I R 1952 Trav-Co 38 (40) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Termination of service of teacher.

In the matter of ordinary rights or other purposes, the remedy under Art. 226, is an extraordinary and discretionary remedy, and the High Court has always the discretion to refuse a writ if it is satisfied that the aggrieved party can have adequate or suitable relief elsewhere. An assistant headmaster of a school whose services are terminated by the managing committee of the school cannot be allowed to agitate the question of his reinstatement by way of a writ petition, unless and until he has exhausted the remedy provided for in the rules contained in the Revised School Code of the Calcutta University which are applicable to him. A I R 1954 S C 207 and A I R 1957 S C 882, Rel. on. A I R 1959 Tripura 27 (31) (Pt D) (Pr 24).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — (Sea Customs Act (1878), Ss. 19, 167 (8)) - (Foreign Exchange Regulation Act (1947), S. 8 (2)—Reserve Bank of India Notifications Nos. F.E.R.A 105 R. B. 51, dated 27th February, 1951 and 108 R. B 51, dated 12th April, 1951).

Under Constitution it is not intended that resort should be made to the extraordinary procedure under Art 226 where an adequate remedy was made available to the petitioner by a legal process. An alternative remedy though not an absolute bar ordinarily should be a bar to the Court exercising jurisdiction under Art. 226.

The petitioner was detected attempting to export currency from India to Pakistan in contravention of S. 19, Sea Customs Act, 1878 and S. 8 (2), Foreign Exchange Regulation Act, 1947 read with Reserve Bank of India Notifications No. F.E.R.A. 105 R.B 51, dated 27th February, 1951 and No. 108 R.B. 51, dated 12th April, 1951. On confiscation of the amount under S. 167 (8), Sea Customs Act, the petitioner, instead of going in appeal provided for, filed an application under Art. 226 for different writs. There had been no breach of a fundamental principle of justice.

Held, that in face of the proper remedy provided writ could not be issued. A I R 1954 Tripura 7 (8) (Prs 7, 8).

——Art. 226 - Other remedy open—Applicant having remedy under R. 52, V P Municipal Election Rules —He cannot without availing of that remedy obtain relief under the Article. A I R 1955 N U C (Vindh Pra) 4368.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

An application under Art. 226 for an order of the nature of prohibition on the D. C. Panna, enjoining him from executing the decision of award given by the Maharaja of Panna in regard to the guzara payable to certain junior branches of his family by the applicant who is the proprietor of an estate said to be governed by the rule of primogeniture is not maintainable, if the remedy in the Revenue Courts has not been exhausted. Cases of this class are within the jurisdiction of the revenue Courts. The Revenue Board is the highest revenue Court and a party who still has the right of moving it cannot apply for a writ simply because he fears an adverse decision. If he has lost the right by limitation then also he cannot seek relief by asking for a writ. Article 226 is not meant to be a refuge for litigants who are either diffident of success in the regular Courts or have got time barred cases. Further, where the Panna Maharaja's decision was given 4 years ago and the applicant has tried to avoid it by just sitting tight, it does not lie on him to say now that continuing his litigation in revenue Courts would involve delay. A I R 1952 Vindh Pra 65 (66) (Pt A) (Prs 2, 3).

——Art. 226 (1)—Another remedy open—Writ if can be issued.

Where an applicant for an issue of a writ has another remedy open to him by way of suit for permanent injunction, the High Court cannot issue the writ simply because the applicant apprehends that he might lose the suit and get compensation only. A I R 1952 Vindh Pra 13 (15) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

7 (r). Statute providing self-contained machinery.

● ——Art. 32—Regional Transport—Authority granting permit acts as quasi-judicial authority—Mistaken decision can be corrected by appropriate remedy available to aggrieved party — Writ petition is not maintainable. See Ibid, Art. 14. AIR 1960 S C 801.

● ——Art. 226 — Scope of — Grant of permits under Motor Vehicles Act.

Such writs as are referred to in Art. 226 are obviously intended to enable the High Court to issue them in grave cases where the subordinate tribunals or bodies or officers act wholly without jurisdiction, or in excess of it, or in violation of the principles of natural justice, or refuse to exercise a jurisdiction vested in them, or there is an error apparent on the face of the record, and such act, omission, error, or excess has resulted in manifest injustice. However extensive the jurisdiction may be, it is not so wide or large as to enable the High Court to convert itself into a Court of appeal and examine for itself the correctness of the decisions impugned and decide what is the proper view to be taken or the order to be made. The Motor Vehicles Act is a statute which creates new rights and liabilities and prescribes an elaborate procedure for their regulation. No one is entitled to a permit as of right even if he satisfies all the prescribed conditions. The grant of a permit is entirely within the discretion of the transport authorities and naturally depends on several circumstances which have to be taken into account. There is a complete and precise scheme for regulating the issue of permits, providing what matters are to be taken into consideration as relevant, and prescribing appeals and revisions from subordinate bodies to higher authorities. The remedies for the redress of grievances or the correction of errors are found in the statute itself and it is to these remedies that resort must generally be had.

Held, that this was not a case for interference with the discretion that was exercised by Transport Authorities paying regard to all the facts and the surrounding circumstances. Veerappa Pillai v. Raman and Raman Ltd., Kumbakonam, 1952 S C R 583 : 90 Cal L J 194 : (1952) S C A 287 : 65 Mad L W 620 : 1952-1 Mad L J 806 : 54 Pun L R 210 : 1952 Mad W N 431 : 1952 S C J 261 : A I R 1952 S C 192 (195, 196) (Pt A) (Prs 20, 21, 22, 23).

——Art. 226—Other remedy — Motor Vehicles Act—Decision to increase number of permits on certain route — Petition by existing permit-holders — Competency. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939) (Prior to Amendment by Act C of 1956), Ss. 48, 47 (1). AIR 1959 All 782 (DB).

——Art. 226—Scope of — Declaring certain property as evacuee property — (Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950)).

Where the tribunals mentioned in a particular Act fail to exercise their jurisdiction, or exceed their jurisdiction or act in any other manner which may be said to be on the face of it illegal or grossly improper, a writ petition may lie under Art. 226 of the Constitution for issue of proper directions to the Tribunal concerned or even to correct their errors.

But where the reliefs claimed are that the High Court should declare that certain items of property belong to the applicant evacuee and restrain the Assistant Custodian of Evacuee Property from taking possession of those items of property and from selling the fruits of certain groves, they are beyond the scope of Art. 226, as the Administration of Evacuee Property Act makes an elaborate provision for enquiry into the question and the decision has to be made under that Act only by Tribunal named therein. 1954 All L J 545 : 1954 All W R (H C) 552 : AIR 1955 All 97 (97, 98) (Prs 1, 2) (DB).

——Art. 226—Alternative remedy open.

There was an application under Art. 226 (1) of the Constitution, for the issue of a writ in the nature of certiorari quashing the assessment orders in respect of forward contracts. Included in the application was a prayer for a writ in the nature of prohibition commanding opposite-party to desist from proceeding further with assessment proceedings relating to forward contracts. Also included in the relief claimed was a writ in the nature of mandamus to opposite party calling upon them to forbear from giving effect to the provisions of the U. P. Sales Tax Act, 1948, in so far as they related to forward contracts.

Per Sapru J.—The Act provides a complete machinery provided a question of law arises in a case, to ascertain a binding opinion of the High Court. It cannot therefore, be said that there was no alternative remedy available to the applicant. It is undesirable from many points of view to encourage litigants to approach the High Court directly in cases where a proper machinery has been provided by statute for ultimate reference to and decision by the High Court. In a case under the U. P. Sales Tax Act there are various items which become the subject-matter of assessment To some the applicant may have no real objections. To others however, the applicant may have an objection of a legal or constitutional nature. It would not be right for the High Court to encourage litigants to rush to it with applications for a writ in every case where they can discover a point of law involving what is called an interpretation of the Constitution. The following circumstances however justified intervention by the High Court in this case by the issue of writs of certiorari and prohibition. The question of constitutionality of the provisions of the U. P. Sales Tax Act which had been raised by him was of such a nature that the appellate authority and the revising authority might feel embarrassed in dealing with it. In order to avoid a multiplicity of proceedings and inconvenience to all the parties it was desirable, particularly as proceedings relating to forward contracts were pending before the Sales Tax Officer, that the High Court should make the position in regard to the assessment of forward contracts in this particular case clear when the Court had all the materials before it and had heard full arguments. The Sales Tax Officer was going ahead with proceedings relating to the year in which the writ application was filed. It was desirable, in order to expedite matters, that the Sales Tax Officer should have the guidance of the High Court in this case in regard to the manner in which he should proceed.

Per Agarwala J.: — In the present case the matter could be agitated in the High Court in a reference made by the Revising authority under the Sales Tax Act. But that would have entailed several proceedings to have been gone into It could not therefore be said that the reference to the High Court would be an adequate, convenient, beneficial or effectual remedy. If it were urged that there was an alternative remedy by means of a suit in which an injunction could have been issued to the Sales Tax Officer prohibiting him from proceeding with the case before him, still that case would have to be filed in a Court subordinate to the High Court and would have to be transferred to the High Court under Art. 228 of the Constitution. Having regard to all these matters it could not be said that in the present case there was another adequate, convenient, beneficial or effectual remedy so far as the writ of prohibition asked for was concerned. A right of appeal against the order of assessment which had already been made was provided for under S. 9 of the Sales Tax Act. This was an alternative remedy which was adequate for the purpose of obtaining the relief by way of the issue of a writ of certiorari. Since, however, questions involved in the two writs were exactly the same, it was better to issue the writ of certiorari when the writ of prohibition had got to be issued. Further the question raised was a question of constitutional importance whether a certain provision of the Sales Tax Act was ultra vires or not. It concerned a large number of litigants and it was in the fitness of things that a constitutional question of such importance should be decided by the High Court at the earliest opportunity so that there may be no multiplicity of proceedings and unnecessary litigation in subordinate Courts and offices may be avoided. Case law discussed. 1952 All L J 332 : AIR 1952 All 764 (766, 768, 769, 770, 771, 772) (Pt B) (Prs 1, 9, 10, 11, 12, 22, 24, 25, 26) (DB).

——Art. 226—Mandamus — Other remedy—Mineral Concession Rules and Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Act, 1957, furnishing complete machinery for working out rights conferred by Act and Rules — Jurisdiction of High Court under Art. 226 held could not be invoked. AIR 1959 Punj 510 Dissented from. (1962) 1 Andh L T 152 : (1962) 1 Andh W R 146 : I L R (1963) Andh Pra 668 : AIR 1963 A P 54 (56, 57) (Pt A) (Prs 12, 13, 15) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Existence of adequate alternative remedy—Mandamus will not be issued.

When an alternative and effective remedy is available to an aggrieved party, a writ of mandamus will not issue. The Mineral Concession Rules and the Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Act, 1957 (67 of 1957) furnish a complete machinery for working out the rights of the parties conferred under that Act and the Rules. Person aggrieved by order of State Government cannot invoke, Art 226. AIR 1961 Andh Pra 170 and AIR 1958 S C 86, Rel. on. I L R (1963) Andh Pra 668 : (1962) 1 Andh L T 152 : (1952) 1 Andh W R 146 : AIR 1963 Andh Pra 54 (57) (Pt B) (Pr 17) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open—Bombay Industrial Relations Act, S. 36 — Order of Industrial Court settling standing orders—Writ of certiorari to quash—Right to issue of - Grounds — Appeal available under Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act, S. 7 — If bar to writ issuing — "Fundamental principles of justice" - Meaning of. See Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act S. 7. AIR 1952 Bom 209.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Electoral Roll prepared in violation of provisions of law — Application for issue of writs — Maintainability — (Municipalities—Bengal Municipal Act (15 of 1932), S. 529-A and R. 8 (framed under S. 44)).

The right of franchise created by an Act is governed by the provisions of that Act, and if the Act creating the franchise provides a remedy, then that remedy must be followed at least in the first instance, before invoking the jurisdiction of the High Court.

Where the objection is to the Electoral Roll as a whole and not to any particular entry therein the allegation being that the so-called final Electoral Roll is not an Electoral Roll at all, such a matter does not come within the scope of either Rule 8 of the Election Rules or Section 529-A of the Act. Since the Registering authority is bound to prepare the Electoral Roll in accordance with the provisions of the Act and the Rules, an application under Art. 226 lies, if there is any violation thereof, to compel the Registering authority to act according to law. 63 Cal W N 541 : AIR 1959 Cal 548 (549, 550) (Pt A) (Pr 2).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Issue of writ.

Franchise is a matter of Statute and where the Statute or the Rules made under it provide for a remedy that must first be followed before coming up to the High Court for a high prerogative Writ. It is not as if the High Court has no jurisdiction but under such circumstances it will not use it in favour of the petitioner if he has neglected to follow the procedure laid down by the very law which has created the franchise. AIR 1958 Cal 287 (289) (Pt C) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226—Other remedy availed—Issue of writ.

A petitioner having exhausted his remedies under a special Act cannot come to the High Court by way of application under Art. 226 to reopen the whole proceedings from the beginning. 60 Cal W N 1042, Foll. AIR 1957 Cal 249 (250) (Pt B) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Petition relating to election under Bengal Village Self-Government Act — (Election — Bengal Village Self-Government Act (5 of 1919), Ss. 17-B and 17-A).

To encourage parties to have recourse to the extraordinary remedy provided in Art. 226 of the Constitution in regard to election disputes, and to give a go-by to S. 17-B, Bengal Village Self-Government Act, will not be a proper exercise of the discretion of the Court. ('57) 61 Cal W N 341.

——Art. 226 — Existence of other remedy—Election by party — Remedies under special Act exhausted — Party cannot proceed again under Art. 226. ('56) 60 Cal W N 1042.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — (Election — Bengal Municipal Act (15 of 1932), S. 44 — Rules under—Municipalities).

Before the petitioner succeeds in having a high prerogative writ issued stopping an impending the election, it must be shown that the provisions of the law relating to the election have not been followed. It is not open to a voter who has some grievance, to omit to take the steps as provided for in the Bengal Municipal Act, and the Rules, and to come straight to the High Court for relief. AIR 1956 Cal 456 (457) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 5).

——Art. 226 — Election matter — Specified remedy under statute not followed—(Bengal Municipal Act (15 of 1932), Ss. 36 to 39-B).

The right to vote at an election, the right to nominate candidates or be nominated as a candidate in a Municipal election, are all rights which have been created by the Bengal Municipal Act and do not exist apart from it. It therefore follows that where a specific remedy is provided for by the Act for the violation of a provision of the Statute, that remedy should be followed.

The procedure to challenge an election is contained in Ss. 36 to 39-B of the Act. Where the party aggrieved by an election fails without any just excuse to pursue the remedy by way of election petition under the Act, the High Court will not exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution.

Absence of diligence in pursuing a legal remedy can never be a justification for issuing a high prerogative writ. AIR 1952 S C 64; AIR 1940 P C 105, Rel. on. AIR 1954 Cal 32 (35) (Pt B) (Prs 12, 13).

——Art. 226—Quo warranto—Other remedy open—High Court may still issue writ.

The existence of another remedy is not in every case a bar to the exercise of the powers under Art. 226. The Court can interfere if the circumstances of the case demand interference. AIR 1955 Nag 49 (FB) and ILR (1960) 2 Punj 192, Rel. on.

Held, in the circumstances of the case the non-filing of a petition challenging the election of a successful candidate in accordance with Rules 54 and 55 of the Municipal Election Rules, 1957 did not operate as a bar to the entertainability of the petition praying for writ of quo warranto. AIR 1962 Him Pra 19 (24) (Pt F) (Pr 31).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Order of R. T. A.—Writ to quash - (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Section 64 (a)).

The issue of a writ of certiorari is discretionary and the existence of another remedy, as for instance under S. 64 (a) of the Motor Vehicles Act may be taken into consideration in the exercise of discretion where a writ of certiorari is sought for quashing the order of the Regional Transport Authority. 1959 Ker L R 299 : 1959 Ker L J 358 : 1959 Ker LT 405 : AIR 1959 Ker 398 (399) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Labour Appellate Tribunal — Award based on compromise — Application to quash.

It is not within the scope of an application under Art. 226 of the Constitution for a writ to quash an award of the Labour Appellate Tribunal to hold an enquiry concerning the question whether the persons who entered into the compromise were authorised to do so or not. If the appellant desired to have the award vacated on that ground he ought to have had recourse to other proceedings and not to invoke Art. 226 in that behalf. 1957 Ker L T 994 : 1957 Ker L J 1016 : ILR (1957) Ker 950 : (1958) 2 Lab L J 72 : AIR 1958 Ker 286 (288) (Pt D) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Domestic tribunal—Disciplinary action — Writ for declaring null and void—If can issue.

Where the case of the petitioner, who was the President of certain Union, a private body incorporated under Travancore Regulation I of 1063, was that the order of disqualification passed against him by the Board to which the Union was subordinate, was null and void and he still continued to be the President.

Held, that the petitioner having an adequate remedy under the ordinary law, should have resort to the ordinary Courts instead of invoking the High Court's special jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution. 1958 Ker L J 538 : 1958 Ker L T 48 : AIR 1958 Ker 164 (165) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Writ to impeach revenue sale under T. C. Revenue Recovery Act, 7 of 1951 — (T. C. Revenue Recovery Act (7 of 1951), Ss. 39, 55 and 56).

Where the petitioner ignores the provisions of the Travancore-Cochin Revenue Recovery Act, 7 of 1951, which prescribe the mode in which a sale held under the provisions of that Act could be impeached, and chooses to invoke the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution, the attitude is an indication of the lack of bona fide on his part and is by itself a sufficient ground for dismissal of the petition. 1958 Ker L T 1133 : 1957 Ker L J 1095.

——Art. 226 - Question of fact—Interference in writ jurisdiction — Act itself providing mode of determining controversy of facts— Party claiming to be aggrieved seeking relief under Art. 226 — High Court will not interfere and undertake enquiry into questions of fact.

Where an Act itself provides a statutory mode of determining a controversy of facts it would be wholly out of place for a party claiming to be aggrieved to seek relief at the hands of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. When S. 28 (1) of Madras Act 35 of 1958 makes explicit provision for determination of any question of alleged disqualification of a member of Panchayat where there is a dispute in the matter and there is a further prescription of a judicial authority who has to be approached for a conclusion on the dispute whose decision shall be final, the High Court has no jurisdiction to interfere and undertake an investigation into a question of fact. W. P. No. 415 of 1964 dated 2nd December 1964 Mad), Affirmed. (1965) 2 Mad L J 375 : 78 Mad L W 196 : AIR 1965 Mad 431 (431) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226—Quo warranto—Writ of—When can issue — Madras District Municipalities Act (5 of 1920), S. 51—Remedy under, not availed of—Writ cannot issue.

The relief of quo warranto is only a discretionary relief which the Court can grant or refuse according to the facts and circumstances of each case. The Court would inquire into the conduct and motives of the applicant, and the Court might in its discretion decline to grant a quo warranto where it would be vexatious to do so, or where it would be futile in its results, or where there is an alternative remedy which is equally appropriate and effective.

Section 51 of the Madras District Municipalities Act provides a machinery for adjudication of disputes arising out of alleged disqualification of any member to hold office under S. 50 and if the applicant has failed to avail himself of the special remedy relief in the nature of quo warranto cannot be granted. 75 Mad L W 136 : (1962) 2 M L J 182 : AIR 1962 Mad 314 (314, 315) (Prs 3, 6, 7).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Jurisdiction of High Court—Orders of Sea Customs Authorities—Interference—(Sea Customs Act (1878), Ss. 188, 191).

(1) Even the ordinary civil Courts would have jurisdiction to entertain suits and afford relief against the acts or orders of the Customs Authorities where the provisions of the Sea Customs Act have not been complied with or the statutory tribunal has not acted in conformity with the fundamental principles of judicial procedure.

(2) If the above were established the aggrieved party is not bound to pursue the statutory remedies provided by Ss. 188 and 191, Sea Customs Act, and the fact that he has not done so is no bar to the jurisdiction of the civil Courts.

(3) It also follows that if the above were established, the right to resort to the civil Court would not be barred even if these statutory remedies were availed of, for the same infirmity would attach to the final orders as would apply to the original one.

(4) The jurisdiction and powers of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution would be wider and would cover not merely the cases set out in para. (1) above but also those where the order of the authority is vitiated by error apparent on the face of the record. Broadly speaking each case must be considered on its merit and in the absence of excess or lack of jurisdiction or the violation of the principles of natural justice or error apparent on the face of the record in the proceedings or orders of these authorities or tribunals, the High Court would not interfere. In other words, the grounds which would attract the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 in the case of orders of the Customs Authorities acting under the Sea Customs Act are precisely the same as those which apply to authorities and tribunals functioning under other enactments. If a party were able to establish a case of the type abovementioned, the fact that he has not availed himself of the remedies by way of appeal or revision provided for by the Sea Customs Act by Ss. 188 and 191 is not a bar to the maintainability of the application or the granting of relief to such applicant. Case-law discussed. 68 Mad L W 36 : ILR (1955) Mad 1248 : (1955) 1 M L J 42 : AIR 1955 Mad 187 (197) (Pt A) (Prs 19, 20) (DB).

——Art. 226—Industrial Disputes Act (1947) — Preamble—Writ of certiorari against Tribunal—Maintainability — Remedy under Industrial Disputes Act available. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), Pre. AIR 1953 Mad 102.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—(Madras Commercial Crops Markets Act (20 of 1933), S 11).

Where, pursuant to the Order of the Collector, Central Excise, relating to the levy of fees, under S. 11, Madras Commercial Crops Markets Act, the merchants deposited the amounts and those amounts were held in suspense account by the Customs Department until the question of the validity of the Rules and Notifications issued under the Commercial Crops Markets Act was decided by competent authority, the merchants have a remedy to get a declaration in a competent Court, that the Rules and Notifications requiring the payment of fees were invalid and thereupon to get an order for refund of the amounts deposited by them The High Court in its jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution would not be justified in making an order for the refund of the amounts so deposited even if the contention that the Rules and Notifications issued under the said Act were invalid is acceptable 36 Mys L J 783 : ILR (1958) Mys 206: AIR 1959 Mys 29 (31, 32) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Another remedy open—Remedy under S. 66, Income-tax Act—No interference under Art. 226 — (Income-tax Act (1922), S. 66). AIR 1955 NUC (Nag) 1238 (DB).

——Art. 226—Another remedy open—(Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 57 (3))

Where the petitioner has not made his representations under S. 57 of the Motor Vehicles Act (1939), for an additional permit he is not entitled to be heard in opposition to the application of the non-applicant to whom the permit is granted. ILR (1953) Nag 675 : 1953 Nag L J 166 : AIR 1953 Nag 150 (151) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Exercise of power — Citizenship of applicant in dispute — Applicant coming on temporary permit and overstaying — Art. 226 is not meant to circumvent normal legal proceedings — Power under Art. 226 should not be exercised — Influx from Pakistan Control Act, S. 5 (1).

Article 226, Constitution of India is not meant to circumvent the normal legal procedure.

The applicant claimed to be a resident of Madhya Pradesh but it was admitted that he had his domicile of origin in a territory now included in Pakistan and he had gone over to Pakistan and entered Bharat on a temporary permit and overstayed. He was prosecuted but in the meantime applied under Article 226, Constitution of India for restraining the State of Madhya Pradesh from taking action against him In the return filed by the State the applicant's citizenship was disputed.

Held, that the applicant may have an excellent defence but he was not without an adequate and even a proper remedy and that the authorities had a prima facie case to place before the Court and that under the circumstances the case was not one for the exercise of powers under Article 226, Constitution of India. ILR 1950 Nag 361, Dist. 1952 Nag L J (Notes) 2 (DB).

——Art. 226 – Other remedy—Petitioner complaining of excess of powers by A. D. M. but not availing himself of sub-sections (4) and (5) of S. 144, Cr. P. C. — Art. 226 cannot be involved. See Criminal Procedure Code (1898), S. 144 1951 Nag L J (Notes) 117.

——Art. 226—Where a hierarchy of tribunals out of the ordinary is created for administering a special law, unless there be a very strong or exceptional reason it will not be appropriate for the High Court to invoke the power it has under Art. 226, in aid of a person before he has availed himself of the remedy provided by the special law. 1951 Nag L J (Notes) 107 (DB).

——Art. 226—Orissa Municipal Act (23 of 1950), S. 25—Alternative remedy—Petitioners challenging election in writ proceedings without taking recourse to S. 25 of Orissa Municipal Act — Duty of High Court.

The powers of the High Court under Article 226 are untrammelled by any law made by the legislature and though any Act may provide that an election as contemplated therein is to be challenged by way of an election petition and thereby may, by necessary implication, oust the jurisdiction of the general Court in regard to that subject matter that can in no way affect, abridge, or curtail the jurisdiction of the High Court which is derived under Art. 226. But when there is already a specific and effective remedy provided in the Orissa Municipal Act under the provisions of S. 25 of that Act the High Court should not, as a rule in the exercise of its discretionary power under Art. 226, issue a high prerogative writ. In law it is true that the mere existence of a special and adequate remedy in a special statute is not a bar to the exercise of jurisdiction under Art. 226; in other words, it is not a rule of law that where there is a remedy equally convenient, beneficial and effectual, a mandamus will not be granted, but a rule regulating the discretion of the Court in granting such a writ. AIR 1954 S C 203 and AIR 1954 S C 320, Rel. on.

But it does not mean that for that reason the remedy by way of writ should be put at par with the specific and adequate remedy provided in the Act. ILR (1965) Cut 765.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Mining leases executed in favour of petitioner by former Ruler continued by State Government after merger — Dispute as to mode of computation of royalties — Remedy of petitioner is revision under S. 30, Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Act (1957) or recourse to arbitration clause contained in leases — High Court will not exercise jurisdiction under Art 226 — 'Political Agents' described as arbitrator in one of leases — Remedy under S. 8, Arbitration Act or by suit on contractual obligation if available — Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Act (1957), S. 30 — General Clauses Act (1897), Ss 3 (43), 17 and 18 — Arbitration Act (1940), S. 8 — Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9.

Held, (i) that the petitioner had two alternative remedies, either by applying to the Central Government in revision under S. 30 of the Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Act, 1957, or by taking recourse to the arbitration clause provided in the leases themselves, and it would not be proper for the High Court to exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction under Art. 226. AIR 1962 Orissa 183, Foll. (ii) that the civil Court might ultimately have to decide who is the present official who exercises the functions of the former Political Agent, for the purpose of the arbitration clause contained in one of the leases. If the civil Court eventually holds that arbitration clause has become ineffective, nevertheless its main jurisdiction to decide the contractual obligations between lessor and lessee for the purpose of payment of royalty still remains. Hence it cannot be said that the petitioner has no alternative remedy, especially when the right of revision, under S. 30 of the Act is there. ILR (1962) Cut 348.

——Art. 226 — Alternative remedy under Ss. 23, 24 of Orissa Act 14 of 1947, not exhaustive — Effect (Quaere).

Quaere :—When the Orissa Sales Tax Act, 1947, itself provides an equally convenient alternative remedy for the aggrieved party to apply for revision to the superior Sales Tax authority and to request that a case may be stated for the decision of the High Court under its Ss. 23 and 24, whether it was appropriate to invoke the powers of the High Court under Art. 226. 19 Cut L T 357 : ILR (1953) Cut 553 : AIR 1953 Orissa 334 (335) (Pt C) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), Ss. 2 (k), 10.

The contention of the petitioners was that the conciliation proceeding was not binding on them as they were not parties to the proceedings. They further contended that the fixation of bonus by virtue of the settlement for future years was illegal and invalid.

Held, that this difference constituted industrial dispute within the meaning of S. 2 (k) for which an effective remedy was provided in the Act itself. The quashing of the settlement or a declaration that the settlement was not binding upon the petitioners will not serve the purpose. The petitioners have to make an application under sub-s. (2) of S. 10 of the Act. AIR 1957 Pat 493 (494, 495) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Scope and object.

That the petitioner was not given sufficient opportunity of placing all the materials before the authorities in order to satisfy them about his own case, is a matter which could well be urged by the petitioner before the superior authorities dealing with the matter under the law and not the matter to be dealt with in an application under Art. 226. AIR 1953 Pat 235 (236) (Pt D) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — (Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), Ss. 24, 25, 26, 27).

The Administration of Evacuee Property Act itself has provided adequate remedies. An interference by way of a writ of certiorari therefore would not be desirable, except under very extraordinary circumstances. 1953 B L J R 185 : 32 Pat 131 : AIR 1953 Pat 112 (114, 115) (Pt D) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction — Application for writ of mandamus or writ for rectification of order of Returning Officer rejecting nomination paper of candidate—Competency of. See Ibid, Art. 329 (b). 31 Pat 145 : AIR 1953 Pat 47 (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Writs of mandamus and prohibition against State and State officials refraining them from realizing cost of punitive police — Allegation that notification posting additional police had not been made by proper authority and was ultra vires — Patiala Police Act (1985), Ss. 14, 16 — Criminal P. C. (1898), Ss. 386 and 387,

The petitioner was a resident of a village where additional police was posted under S. 14, Patiala Police Act, 1985. His allegation was that since the notification posting the additional police was not issued under a proper authority it was ultra vires and void; and the proceedings that the District Magistrate was taking for realisation of the cost of the additional Police from the petitioner and other residents of the village were without jurisdiction. Accordingly he prayed that writs of mandamus and prohibition be issued to the State, the Inspector General of Police and the District Magistrate, directing them to refrain from making the realisations of the cost of the punitive Police by distress and sale of the property of the inhabitants of the villages affected by the notification. Some realisation had already been made.

Held (i) that the petition should be dismissed as there was open to the petitioner another and more effective remedy. Recovery of the money payable by the petitioner and other persons liable for the cost of the additional Police could only be made under Ss. 386 and 387 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, by virtue of S. 16 of the Police Act and if the petitioner's allegation be correct that the notification posting the additional Police was ultra vires and void and the order making the petitioner and others liable for the cost of the additional Police were without jurisdiction, he could raise that objection before the authority who would make the recovery from him.

(ii) The operation of S. 386 (1) (a) was confined only to the recovery of a fine imposed by a Court and it had no applicability to a case where the amount to be recovered was payable under S. 14 of the Police Act. Not only the amount recoverable was not fine, but the District Magistrate who determined the liability of various persons under sub-s. (4) of S. 14 of the Police Act did not act as a Court. Therefore, recovery could only be made under clause (b) of sub-s. (1) of S. 386, i e., through a Civil Court under sub-s. (3) of the Section.

(iii) As the contentions raised by the petitioner affected the validity of the warrant that would be issued to the Collector under S. 386, Criminal P. C. authorising him to realize the amount by execution, the Court to which the warrant was sent for execution could not refuse to adjudicate upon it : 60 Cal 670, Rel. on. ILR (1952) Patiala 165 : AIR 1952 Pepsu 136 (137, 138) (Prs 2, 5, 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Adequate alternative remedy—Election of members of Panchayat Samiti — Validity — Act providing remedy by an election petition — No interference under Art. 226.

In general, there should be no interference under Art. 226 when an election petition lies and the grounds of the writ petition are such that they could be raised in an election petition.

Held on facts that the writ petition in the case was no more than an election petition under the Act, which had been filed long after the prescribed period of limitation of 20 days, and it was liable to be rejected on this ground alone. 1965 Cur L J 810 : 68 Pun L R 93.

——Art. 226—Alternative remedy — Existence of—Not a bar to issue of writ—Discretion of High Court —Punjab Passengers and Goods Taxation Act (16 of 1952)—Order of assessment demanding additional payment of tax —Appeal against, dismissed for not depositing tax — Writ petition challenging order of assessment on merits — High Court refused to interfere.

The existence of an alternative remedy is not per se a bar to the issue of a writ by the High Court which is a matter depending on its discretion to be judicially exercised on the facts and circumstances of each case. AIR 1962 S C 1694 and A I R 1958 S C 86 and A I R 1957 S C 882 and AIR 1961 S C 372 and A I R 1954 S C 207, Rel. on.

The petitioner Company had paid passenger tax by affixing adhesive stamps on the tickets issued to the passenger during the relevant years. A notice in form P. T. T. 10 was issued to the petitioner Company by the assessing authority under the Punjab Passengers and Goods Taxation Act, 1952 and the rules thereunder and an order demanding additional tax was passed. The petitioner appealed against the order praying for stay of the order or payment of tax pending the appeal but the prayer was refused. The petitioner having failed to deposit the tax demanded, the appeal stood dismissed. This order was confirmed in revision. The petitioner filed a writ petition challenging the order on the merits as well as on other grounds.

Held (i) that in the circumstances of the case the High Court would not exercise its extraordinary powers under Art. 226 of the Constitution as the orders passed by the authorities were fully within their competence and were not shown to have resulted in grave injustice; (ii) that the High Court could not be invited to go into the merits of the assessment. This matter should be gone into and adjudicated upon under the statutory machinery prescribed and it was not possible to allow the petitioner to by-pass the appellate and revisional tribunals and the machinery provided by the statute, no special ground having been made out for adopting this course. Such points should properly be agitated before the departmental authorities : AIR 1963 Punj 549, Rel. on; (iii) that in the peculiar circumstances of the case it was not open to the High Court to direct the Appellate Tribunal to hear the appeal without insisting on payment of tax assessed, because orders passed by the appellate and revisional authorities have not been shown to be tainted with any such serious infirmity which would justify interference with them on the writ side. 66 Pun L R 683 : ILR (1964) 2 Punj 181 : AIR 1964 Punj 438 (440, 441, 442) (Pt A) (Prs 9, 10, 14, 15) (DB).

——Art. 226 – Quo warranto — Election dispute — Existence of alternate remedy by way of election petition—Relief by way of writ not barred.

Existence of an alternative, adequate or suitable remedy is not per se an absolute bar to a petition under Article 226. It is only a material circumstance to be taken into account on the facts of each case, it being in the judicial discretion of the Court whether or not to afford the extraordinary relief. High Court has power under Article 226 to determine the validity of the impugned election by means of a petition for a writ of quo warranto or other suitable writ or direction. Even where there is an alternative remedy by way of Election petition it is within the discretion of the High Court to grant relief if the existence of such remedy is not an insuperable bar. 62 Punj L R 679, Foll.; 62 Punj L R 377 and AIR 1961 Punj 429 (FB), Rel. on. 1962 Cur L J 264 : 64 Punj L R 547: I L R (1962) 2 Punj 583 : A I R 1962 Punj 498 (502, 503) (Pt B) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Quo warranto — Another remedy — Remedy by means of an election petition in the circumstances of the present case held even if available can hardly be considered to be equally efficacious, convenient and speedy. Besides the expenses and delay in its trial is another factor which has to be taken into account in considering the efficiency of alternative remedy. ('60) ILR (1960) 2 Punj 192.

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1961 Punj 429 (FB).]

[See however AIR 1965 Punj 361.]

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Election disputes —No bar to writ proceedings before election is held.

Even if it be assumed that the petitioner, who sought election as fellow of the Punjab University from the Constituency of Registered Graduates, can challenge the election after the election is held, by an election petition before the Tribunal, the existence of an alternative remedy is no insuperable bar to the exercise of jurisdiction by the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution to interfere, if a proper case is made out even before the election is held. It is entirely a different matter that while exercising discretion, the High Court must bear in mind the existence of a tribunal to which normally resort should be had before any relief is granted under Art. 226. Where the point raised is of fundamental character and affects the elections as a whole, the High Court can interfere in a suitable case in exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction conferred by Art. 226. A I R 1958 Punj 356 and I L R (1960) 2 Punj 192 and A I R 1957 S C 242 and A I R 1957 Raj 383, Rel. on. AIR 1952 SC 64 and A I R 1957 Madh B 38, Disting. 63 Pun L R 142 : AIR 1961 Punj 194 (196, 197) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226 – Where right claimed is creation of statute and is not related to fundamental rights remedy should generally be pursued under that statute.

Where the writ claimed by the petitioner does not relate to a fundamental right and the right claimed by the petitioner is created by statute, it has to be enforced in accordance with the provisions of the same statute; redress against erroneous decisions of the departmental authorities must, therefore, generally be had by recourse to the higher departmental authorities on appeal or revision as the case may be. A writ cannot be granted to quash the decision. A I R 1960 Punj 58 (61, 62) (Pt E) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226 – Other remedy open — Issue of writ — (Sales Tax—Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) Act (6 of 1941) (as applied to Delhi), S. 21).

Held, that a petition for writ against the order of the Sales-Tax Officer without exhausting all the remedies under the Bengal Finance (Sales-Tax) Act, 1941, was not maintainable. (1959) 10 S T C 45 (Punj).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Election dispute —Quo warranto —(Punjab Municipal Act (3 of 1911), S. 240—Rules under Pepsu Municipal Election Rules (1949), Rr. 8, 9 and 10).

Where the petitioners under Art. 226 challenge the validity of certain municipal elections on the ground of non observance of the directions laid down in R. 8, Pepsu Municipal Election Rules, 1949, for the preparation of the preliminary electoral roll, without availing themselves of the remedy provided under Rr. 9 and 10, it will not be proper for the High Court in the petition proceedings to go into the merits of those objections, particularly when they involve disputed questions of fact. AIR 1958 Punj 128 (130) (Pt C) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226 – Another remedy.

A person should invoke the help of Art. 226 after all the other remedies available to him have been exhausted. ILR (1955) Punj 58 : (1955) 6 S T C (Sup) 1 : AIR 1954 Punj 264 (267) (Pt D) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Income-tax Act (1922), Ss. 34, 26-A, 45 and 46 (as amended by Act 48 of 1948)—Proceeding under S 34 — Jurisdiction of Income-tax Officer to determine questions of law — Decision cannot be challenged under Art. 226, Constitution of India— Machinery provided by Act is only remedy—Constitution of India, Art. 226. See Income-tax Act (1922 as amended by Act 48 of 1948), S. 34. A I R 1953 Punj 55.

——Art. 226 – Remedy provided by Act not availed of.

An application for writ so as to short circuit the procedure provided by the Act is not allowable. Under S. 21, E. P. Sales Tax Act 46 of 1948, it is open to the assessee to go in revision to the Financial Commissioner and if he is not satisfied with the decision of the Financial Commissioner he can have the case stated to the High Court under S. 22 of the same Act. Case-law relied on.

Note: scheme of E. P. Sales Tax Act explained. 55 Punj L R 70 : AIR 1953 Punj 27 (28) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 – Other remedy available – Order of Industrial Tribunal granting interim pay and allowance to dismissed workmen — Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act, S. 7.

An application for a writ of certiorari quashing an order granting interim pay and allowances passed by an Industrial Tribunal to which a dispute in respect of wrongful dismissal of workmen and their re-instatement is referred for adjudication, is not maintainable, as S. 7 of the Industrial Disputes (Appellate Tribunal) Act, gives a specific and adequate legal remedy by way of an appeal to the Appellate Tribunal. (1952-53) F J R 36 : (1952) 1 Lab L J 371 : 54 Pun L R 218 : AIR 1952 Punj 134 (138) (Pt E) (Pr 29) (DB).

——Art. 226—Section 8 (5) of the Taxation on Income (Investigation Commission) Act (1947) provides a specific remedy to the assessee against the orders of the Investigation Commission and the remedy cannot be said to be wholly illusory or inefficacious and hence the High Court will not issue a writ of certiorari or prohibition in regard to such orders. Case law rel. on. 53 Pun L R 57 : 1951-20 ITR 77 : ILR (1951)

Punj 165 : AIR 1951 Punj 74 (78) (Pt B) (Pr 21) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1954 S C 207].

——Art. 226—Other remedy — Discretion — Exercise of — When can be interfered with in writ petition — Adequate alternative remedy available — Writ cannot be issued. See Income tax Act (1922), S. 45. 1961 Raj L W 557.

——Art 226 – Other remedy open—Members having no right to vote taking part in election – Municipalities — Rajasthan Town Municipalities Act (23 of 1951), S. 19.

Where certain members who had no right to vote have voted at an election, the proper procedure for determining the validity of such election is under S. 19 of the Rajasthan Town Municipalities Act and not by a writ of quo warranto. When there is a remedy by way of an election petition, a writ of quo warranto is displaced. ILR (1959) 9 Raj 1084 : A I R 1960 Raj 152 (165) (Pt J) (Pr 44) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Another remedy open—Remedy by way of election petition — Candidate withdrawing from contest after nomination — Whether defeated candidate — Panchayats — (Rajasthan Panchayat Election Rules (1954), R. 19).

A candidate who enters the arena after his valid nomination and who loses the election thereafter does come within the meaning of a defeated candidate If he withdraws from the contest after his nomination on account of weakness then he accepts his defeat and is therefore, a defeated candidate and, as such can file an election petition. If he is wrongly shown as withdrawn by the Returning Officer, then the defeat is wrongly foisted upon him and in that case also he can file an election petition as a defeated candidate. Hence it cannot be said that his remedy is only by way of a writ application. AIR 1957 Raj 163, Disting. 1959 Raj L W 587 : ILR (1959) 9 Raj 461.

——Art. 226 — Another remedy open — Remedy by way of election petition — (Panchayats – Rajasthan Panchayat Election Rules (1954), R. 19).

Where the petitioner has a remedy to question the validity of the election by an election petition, the High Court should never interfere before that remedy is exhausted. AIR 1956 Raj 185, Foll. 1959 Raj L W 587 : ILR (1959) 9 Raj 461.

——Art. 226 — Another remedy open—Remedy by way of election petition – Objection relating to counting of votes – (Elections – Rajasthan Panchayat Election Rules (1954) R. 19).

Where in a writ petition the objections were that the Returning Officer did not count and record the votes of the contesting candidates in his ward and that the counting of votes in a ward was not done correctly.

Held, that the High Court could not interfere in the matter in its extraordinary jurisdiction since the proper course for the petitioners was to file an election petition. 1959 Raj L W 587 : ILR (1959) 9 Raj 461.

—Art. 226—Other remedy—(University of Rajputana Act (1946), Ss. 8-A and 12).

Generally speaking the Visitor of the University should first be approached for redress before a question concerning the alleged failure to observe the statutory provisions relating to the appointment of a person as Vice-Chancellor of the University is agitated before the Courts. (1950) 2 All E R 741, Rel. on. ILR (1958) 8 Raj 893 : 1959 Raj L W 348 : AIR 1959 Raj 260 (261) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Election of individual panch challenged. See Panchayats—Rajasthan Panchayat Election Rules, R. 19. ILR (1958) 8 Raj 177.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open – Non-compliance with R. 14 of Rajasthan Town Municipal Election Rules—Application by one elector under Art. 226—(Elections—Rajasthan Town Municipalities Act (23 of 1951), S. 19).

As it is open to ten electors to challenge the election from a ward after it is held, if the provision of R. 14 of the Rajasthan Town Municipal Election Rules is not complied with, the High Court would not in its extraordinary jurisdiction go into that very matter in the application of one elector even before the election is held. It can only go into a matter of this kind after the Election Tribunal has decided the matter. 1957 Raj L W 609 : I L R (1957) 7 Raj 742 : AIR 1957 Raj 293 (295) (Pt D) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—Panchayat—Rajastban Panchayat Act (21 of 1953), Rules framed under, Rule 20 (as amended on 12 9 1955) — Panchayat—Election of Sarpanch — Irregularity committed by Returning Officer –Remedy now open to candidate – No writ.

The provision in R. 20, as now amended on 12-9-1955, refers to an irregularity committed by the Returning Officer in the conduct of elections, and if the irregularity is of such a nature that it has influenced the result of the election, an election petition will lie. Whether an irregularity has or has not influenced the result of the election is a matter of fact with which the Collector will deal in disposing of the election petition. Hence, an aggrieved petitioner should now pursue that remedy before the Collector and not the remedy by invoking the powers of the High Court under Art. 226 (1956 Raj L W 311, Expl. 1958 Raj L W 51 : ILR (1957) 7 Raj 220.

——Art. 226—Another remedy open—Misconduct in election to Panchayat — Remedy is by election petition—(Panchayats – Rajasthan Panchayat Election Rules (1954), Rr. 19 and 20).

The conduct of a sarpanch in making a false declaration before the Returning Officer about his residence will amount to misconduct. And as the candidate, who desires to question the election of the sirpanch on this ground has a remedy by way of an election petition under Rr. 19 and 20, the High Court will not give him any relief in its extraordinary jurisdiction till he has exhausted that remedy 1956 Raj L W 311 : ILR (1956) 6 Raj 797 : A I R 1956 Raj 188 (190) (Pt E) (Pr 9) (DB).

—Art. 226—Another remedy open—Misconduct in election to Panchayat—Remedy is by election petition —Panchayat — Rajasthan Panchayat Election Rules (1954), Rules 19 and 20—(Election). 1956 Raj L W 311 : AIR 1956 Raj 188 (190) (Pt E) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226 — Another remedy — (Municipality – Rajasthan Town Municipalities Act (23 of 1951), S. 19).

The improper rejection of a nomination paper is, as a rule, a material irregularity which affects the result of the election So far as the rejection of a nomination paper is concerned, S. 19 does not contain anything to preclude an election petition from being filed against such improper rejection. An error made by a Returning Officer in improperly rejecting a nomination paper is one which falls within the four walls of the explanation to S. 19 (5) and can be made a foundation for an election petition. The High Court should never interfere before the remedy by way of an election petition is exhausted. AIR 1955 Madh B 179, Dissented from. 1956 Raj L W 297 : ILR (1956) 6 Raj 910 : AIR 1956 Raj 185 (186, 187, 188) (Pt A) (Prs 7, 14, 16, 19, 20) (DB).

——Art. 226 – Writ of Prohibition — Industrial Tribunal—Writ against — Alternative remedy open—Writ when will be issued.

An Industrial Tribunal is quasi-judicial tribunal and if it is working without jurisdiction, a writ of prohibition strictly so called can issue to such a tribunal. It is well settled that the existence of an alternative remedy is no bar to the issue of a writ of prohibition.

It is a matter for decision in each case whether the High Court should exercise its power of issuing a writ of prohibition, where an alternative remedy exists. Generally speaking, where the statute itself provides an appeal or a revision from the tribunal which is acting in excess of or in absence of jurisdiction, the High Court will not interfere under its extraordinary powers under Art. 226. But where there is no provision in the statute by way of appeal or revision and the alternative remedy is of a different kind, the High Court would interfere if the want of jurisdiction is established, provided the remedy is not equally efficacious, convenient and beneficial. ILR (1955) 5 Raj 214: 1955 Raj L W 224: AIR 1954 Raj 274 (276) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Other remedy open—Person aggrieved by order of Assistant Custodian of Evacuee Property cannot be allowed to invoke the jurisdiction of High Court under Art. 226—Their remedy lies under Ss. 26 and 27 of the Evacuee Property Act. 1954 Raj L W 664.

——Art. 226 — Land Acquisition Act (1 of 1894), Ss. 18, 30 - Order under, refusing to make reference—Nature of - Proper remedy — (Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45) — (Constitution of India, Art. 226) — (Jaipur Land Acquisition Act (28 of 1943), Ss. 18, 30) —(Jaipur Specific Relief Act, S. 45)—See Land Acquisition Act (1894) S. 18. AIR 1953 Raj 111.

7 (s). Suit, remedy of.

● ——Art. 32 — Scope of — Powers of Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court has power under Art. 32 of the Constitution to issue directions, orders or writs, including writs in the nature of habeas corpus, mandamus, prohibition, quo warranto and certiorari whichever may be appropriate for the enforcement of any of the fundamental rights. The relief claimed by the first petitioner in the instant case for assessing the liability of the respondents (the State Government) and Court guardian of minor petitioners 2 and 3 may be obtained in a properly constituted suit and not in a petition under Art. 32 of the Constitution. The property to which the minors are or may be entitled may be ascertained in a proceeding under the Guardians and Wards Act or in a suit in the civil Court and not in a petition under Art. 32 of the Constitution. Sahibzada Saiyed Muhammad Amirabbas Abbasi v. The State of Madhya Bharat, 1960 Mad W N 774: (1960) S C J 713: (1960) 2 M L J (SC) 25: (1960) 2 Andh W R (SC) 25: 1960 M P C 424: 1960 All L J 617: 1960 B L J R 492: 1960 All W R (HC) 478: (1960) 3 S C R 138: AIR 1960 S C 768 (769, 770) (Prs 7, 8).

——Art. 226—Issue of writ under — Other remedies open—Effect.

Orders under Art. 226 of the Constitution of India are after all discretionary, and no application for a writ under that article lies when the aggrieved party has yet another almost equally efficacious remedy open to it by way of a regular suit. AIR 1952 Ajmer 39 (39) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226 — Title can be established by regular suit, rather than by way of writ petition. See Tenancy Laws—U. P. Consolidation of Holdings Act (5 of 1954), S. 27. 1965 All L J 516: 1965 All W R (HC) 416.

——Art. 226 — (Mukerji J.) — Other remedy open — Sale held by Collector under U. P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act (1 of 1951) mala fide — Judgment-debtor has another equally efficacious remedy by way of a regular suit for damages — Remedy by way of a petition for a writ under Article could not lie. 1962 All W R (HC) 515: 1962 All L J 616: ILR (1962) 1 All 922.

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Government servant — Supersession or reduction in rank—Remedy — Question as to how much more amount Government servant was entitled to — Separate suit and not writ petition would be proper remedy. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1961 All 316.

——Art. 226—Termination of private service—Question involving controversial question of fact — Proper remedy is by way of suit — No certiorari. AIR 1961 All 282 (284) (Pt C) (Pr 13).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Bar to writ proceedings.

Under the law a person whose services have been wrongfully terminated, is entitled to institute an action to vindicate his rights, and in such an action, the Court will be competent to award all the reliefs to which he may be entitled including some which would not be admissible in a writ petition. A writ petition by such Government servant might be, therefore, rejected on the preliminary ground that the alternative remedy by way of suit was not pursued by him. AIR 1957 S C 882, Rel. on. AIR 1960 All 647 (648, 649, 650) (Pt A) (Prs 7, 13).

——Art. 226—Other remedy — Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 146 (1-D) and (1-E)— Finding of Civil Court given on a reference under S. 146 (1) — Finding can be challenged only by a regular suit and not by means of writ petition. 1960 Cri L J 1279: A I R 1960 All 599 (600) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 5).

——Art. 226 — Specific Relief Act (1877), Ss. 12 (c) and 21 (a) — Petitioner taking building contract — Compensation in money can be adequate relief — Suit for damages would be alternative remedy for purposes of Art. 226 of the Constitution. See Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 12 (c). AIR 1960 All 72.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Issue of writ—Dismissal of police officer — Non-compliance with para. 486, U. P. Police Regulations — Validity of dismissal — Right of officer to file suit — Bar to writ. See Ibid, Art. 310. 1958 Cri L J 994: AIR 1958 All 584 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy by way of suit open — Petition under Art. 226 may still lie — Requisition of house — Petition under Art. 226 held could be entertained—(Constitution of India, Art. 19 (1) (f).

While it cannot be said that in all cases in which there is an infringement of a fundamental right relief under Art. 226 should be granted necessarily, nevertheless the Courts must see in each case whether in the circumstances it would be more convenient, effectual and beneficial to grant relief by means of a writ than to ask the applicant to seek it by a regular suit. Where from the facts it is plain that the petitioner had been living in Allahabad from 1943 onwards to pass her old age and widowhood in piety and with a view to continue to live here she built a house which had been requisitioned providing her with a alternative accommodation, if she is asked to file a regular suit there is bound to be a great delay, and she being an old lady it is doubtful whether in her lifetime the case will be finally decided. It would be proper in such a case to grant her relief if possible, under Art 226 of the Constitution on the ground that there is an infringement of her fundamental rights under Art. 19 (1) (f). ('52) 1952 R D (HC) 161: 1952 All W R (HC) 241: 1952 All L J 163: I L R (1953) 1 All 216: A I R 1952 All 836 (838) (Pt B) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art 226 — Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act (26 of 1948) Ss. 20, 67—

Interest on the collections — No provision in the Act compels Government to pay—Failure of Government to pay interest must be agitated before ordinary Civil Courts and not in writ proceedings. See Tenancy Laws — Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act (26 of 1948), S. 20. (1965) 2 Andh L T 290 (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Futile writ — Remedy by way of suit open—Discretion of High Court.

The petitioners who were lessee of liquor shops, filed an application under Art. 226 to quash the order of the Commissioner which was confirmed by the Board of Revenue holding that the petitioners had not suffered any loss by shifting of the shops of the petitioners from the abadi site.

Held, that relief claimed being one for damages or compensation for the alleged breach of obligations of the terms of contract was an incident of contract and the petitioners remedy was to institute suits for recovering damages. The quashing of the order of the Commissioner or the Board by the High Court would not give any relief to the petitioners. (1959) 1 Andh W R 234 : I L R (1959) Andh Pra 19 : A I R 1959 Andh Pra 394 (396) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Issue of writ.

Where the petitioner has got the ordinary remedy of a suit for damages for wrongful removal, the High Court will not interfere under Art. 226. (1959) 1 Lab L J 554 (Andh Pra).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Wrong recitals in letters or correspondence — If can be declared null and void or ultra vires.

Wrong recitals in letters or correspondence cannot be declared null and void or ultra vires the powers of the Government nor is it within province of the High Court exercising its jurisdiction under Art. 226 to give declarations as to the incorrectness of recitals in documents or even as to the rights of parties. The determination of the rival claims to some plots of land is more appropriate to the civil Courts. A writ will not issue, be it in the nature of mandamus or other directions, if there is an effective remedy by way of a suit. A I R 1958 Andh Pra 632 (634, 635) (Pt C) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

When there is an adequate remedy by way of suit, the High Court ought not to interfere by means of a writ.

Held, that if the Government had granted fishery rights in all the tanks, and it they violated the terms of the contract by modifying it, the proper course open to the petitioner would be to sue the Government for damages. 1955 Andh W R 873 : 1955 Andh L T 820 : A I R 1956 Andhra 119 (119, 120) (Pt A) (Prs 2, 3).

——Art. 226—Petition under — Claim for compensation—Proper remedy.

The assessment of compensation by itself is a question for which the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 may not be utilised. A suit is far more appropriate remedy in cases where compensation is claimed for wrongful acts on the part of the Government or its officers. A I R 1955 Assam 183 (195) (Pt F) (Pr 49) (DB).

——Art. 226—Applicability—Other remedies available.

Where an adequate and effective relief can be obtained by a suit, a necessary condition for the exercise of this jurisdiction is lacking. Mere defect of jurisdiction in the impugned order assuming that it does exist, does not make it obligatory on the Court to exercise the jurisdiction under Art. 226. AIR 1954 Assam 152 (154, 155) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus, writ of when can be issued.

A writ of mandamus cannot be issued when another remedy such as a suit is available : AIR 1951 Nag 6 and AIR 1951 Pat 231, Rel. on. ILR (1951) 3 Assam 348 : AIR 1951 Assam 163 (165, 166) (Pt D) (Pr 19) (DB).

——Art. 226—Civil P. C. (1908), S. 47; O. 21, Rr. 58, 63 — Dismissal of suit — Execution — Objection — Separate suit — Remedy of aggrieved party under Art. 226 for issue of a writ, direction or order—(Limitation Act (1908), S. 5). See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 47. AIR 1956 Bhopal 62.

——Arts 226, 311—Other remedy open — Petition under Art. 226 by dismissed Civil Servant for quashing order of dismissal and for injunction—Whether maintainable.

Where in a petition under Art. 226, the petitioner asks for a declaration that the order of dismissal should be quashed, and secondly pending the hearing and disposal of the petition an order for an injunction be issued against the respondent.

Held, that in a suit he can ask for the same declaration and injunction and a proper consequential relief, which is not apparent of the face of the reliefs asked in the petition, namely a decree for damages for wrongful dismissal. In the result not only is there an alternative and proper remedy but that is the only remedy where all his claims can be adequately made and consequential relief granted, namely, an order compensating him for wrongful dismissal. In this view, the petition under Art. 226 is not maintainable. A I R 1956 Bom 351 (352) (Prs 3, 4).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open—Issue of writ—Mandamus.

If a suitor can get an adequate and convenient and beneficial remedy by the normal process of a suit, the High Court will not ordinarily exercise its power under the Article. In a case in which the parties are in dispute on several points and it would be difficult to arrive at a satisfactory conclusion on mere affidavits, the remedy by way of a suit would be more convenient and effective. In such circumstances the remedy by way of an application under this Article is not a proper substitute for the remedy. ('58) 62 Cal W N 384.

——Art. 226—Existence of other effective remedy.

Where facts are in dispute and in order to get at the truth it is necessary that the questions should be canvassed in a suit where the parties would have ample opportunity of examining their witnesses and the Court would be better able to judge which version is correct. a writ will not issue. AIR 1953 Cal 581 (583) (Pt C) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Effect—Powers under—Exercise of.

The High Court will not in the exercise of its discretion under Art. 226 of the Constitution grant any relief to a petitioner who has an alternative remedy by way of a suit in a case in which facts are in dispute. Such a case can be more conveniently disposed of in a suit than in an application under Art. 226 of the Constitution. 56 C W N 539 : AIR 1952 Cal 757 (758, 759) (Prs 3, 6, 7, 8).

——Art. 226—Does not supplant ordinary right of action or remedy—Person dismissed from service—Suit is more adequate and complete remedy.

In spite of the wide words of Art. 226 one must remember that the object of Art. 32 or Art. 226 was not to supplant the ordinary right of action or the remedy provided for by the ordinary law of the land. If a suitor can get an adequate and convenient and beneficial remedy by the normal process of a suit or by the remedy provided for by a Statute, the High Court will not, ordinarily exercise its powers under Art. 226.

A person aggrieved by an order of removal from service has a more convenient, effective, complete and adequate remedy by way of a suit for a declaration that the order dismissing him was void and that he still remained a member of the service. Where the parties are in dispute on several questions, namely, the authority by which the petitioner was appointed, the nature of the inquiry, if any, made in the case, the denial of a right of appeal, the alleged imperfect nature of the enquiry and the alleged arbitrary conduct of certain officers of the Administration it is difficult to arrive at a satisfactory conclusion on these matters on mere affidavits. In order to get at the truth it is necessary that the questions referred to above should be canvassed in a suit where the parties would have ample opportunity of examining their witnesses and the Court would be better able to Judge which version is correct. 56 Cal W N 264 : AIR 1952 Cal 610 (613, 614) (Pt D) (Prs 26, 41).

——Art. 226 –Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45 (d) — "Other specific and adequate legal remedy"—Remedy by way of suit. See Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45 (d). AIR 1952 Cal 1.

——Art. 226– Other remedy open.

An application under Art. 226 for a writ of mandamus or quo warranto or for such further or other order as the High Court might think fit and proper by a Commissioner of a Municipality is not maintainable when the petitioner can file a suit for declaration that the opposite party was no longer in his office of chairman of the municipality and was not entitled to function as such and also for injunction restraining him from functioning as such. 55 Cal W N 326 : ILR (1952) 1 Cal 282 : AIR 1951 Cal 420 (421, 422) (Pt C) (Prs 21, 28).

——Art. 226 — Another remedy available — Divergence of facts necessitating evidence to be recorded which can be done only in a suit — Petition held cannot be entertained as the question of compensation cannot be decided in summary proceedings under Art. 226—(Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 17). AIR 1956 Him Pra 55 (57, 58) (Prs 6, 8, 9).

——Art. 226—Order superseding Municipality under S. 238, Punjab Municipal Act — Propriety of — Matter cannot be decided in a summary manner under a writ petition — Suit is the proper remedy where evidence can be recorded. AIR 1955 Him Pra 11, Rel. on. AIR 1956 Him Pra 7 (8) (Pt B) (Prs 8, 9).

——Art. 226—Other remedy.

Order impugned, referring only to the extent of the appointment of a person to the post of village officer, a matter entirely within the jurisdiction of the Revenue Court — Parties having a right to go to a Civil Court and get their rights as regards watan property settled after full investigation — Decision of revenue officer on the question of appointment only tentative and liable to be altered if party succeeds in obtaining a recognition of her title to the watan from a Civil Court – Party has in the case a more satisfactory and adequate remedy under ordinary law and therefore the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court will not be exercised. ILR (1954) Hyd 632 : AIR 1954 Hyd 210 (211) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

● ——Art. 226—Other remedy—Order of premature retirement in 1953 –Right to challenge not barred—Availability of remedy under S. 103, Constitution of Jammu and Kashmir—Issue of writ. See Constitution of Jammu and Kashmir (1956), S. 108. AIR 1958 J & K 11 (FB).

——Arts. 226 and 311– Other remedy open –Dismissal of civil servant—Complaint that enquiry was not properly conducted—Interference –Remedy by way of suit.

Where a civil servant, who has been dismissed by the Government, feels that the enquiry in regard to charges framed against him was not properly conducted his remedy is by way of suit where he can show by, producing evidence that enquiry was not properly conducted against him, and not by way of petition under Art. 226. AIR 1957 J & K 1 (3) (Pt B) (Pr 10).

——Art. 226– Other remedy open.

The petitioner under Art. 226 had been granted a lease for tapping rubber trees from Government plantation. The right granted to the petitioner was subsequently cancelled by the Government whereupon he applied under Art. 226 for quashing the order of cancellation.

Held, that the remedy by way of suit is adequate and the mere fact that the petitioner will have to wait till the expiry of period of notice under S. 80, C P. Code is not a sufficient reason for taking action under Art. 226. 1957 Ker L T 402 : AIR 1957 Ker 113 (113, 114) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 4, 6).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Relief claimed obtainable in regular suit — Court cannot assume existence of right—Writ not competent.

Where the reliefs claimed by the petitioners can be obtained by them in a regular suit provided that they are able to adduce the necessary proof for establishing the right claimed by them, there is no justification for the High Court to invoke its extraordinary jurisdiction under Art. 226 for granting relief to the petitioners. The Court cannot assume the existence of the right as claimed by them and then issue the necessary orders and directions for the protection of such a right. 1957 Ker L J 217 : I L R (1957) Ker 59 : 1957 Ker L T 198 : A I R 1957 Ker 22 (25) (Pt C) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 228 — Another remedy open — (Madhya Bharat Police Act (76 of 2007), S. 12).

Where the petitioner applying under Art. 226 for quashing the District Magistrate's order posting additional police in the village at the cost of the petitioner and other residents, has already paid his share of the cost, the right which he can claim to enforce under Art. 226 is not a right to restrain the opponents from recovering from him any portion of the cost, but it is the right to the refund of the amount already realised from him on the ground that it was an illegal exaction. The challenge to the order and the proclamation is plainly incidental to the establishment of the applicant's right to the refund of the money paid by him and if he thinks that the amount paid by him was illegally recovered from him, he has the remedy of a suit for the refund of the amount already paid by him. This remedy is equally effective, beneficial and convenient. A suit for such a remedy lies in the Civil Court and the fact that in the suit the validity of S. 12, Police Act, would be questioned and the question would be referred in the High Court under Art. 228 cannot be regarded as a valid ground for short-circuiting the proper remedy of a suit and holding that the remedy of suit is not as effective, beneficial and convenient as the one this Court can give under Art. 226 of the Constitution. I L R (1953) Madh B 383 : A I R 1953 Madh B 222 (223, 224) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Mandamus—Writ of—Writ cannot be issued to enforce money-claim.

A writ of mandamus cannot be granted for the execution of a decision. Mandamus does not lie for the enforcement of the general law of the land which may be enforced by action ; and where the applicant has the ordinary legal remedy of execution, a writ of mandamus cannot be issued.

Therefore, a claim for refund of tax arising out of a decision of Supreme Court, cannot be enforced by a petition for mandamus. The remedy for the same is to file a suit A I R 1962 Madh Pra 10, Rel. on. 1965 M P L J 690 : 1965 Jab L J 892.

——Art 226—Other remedy open — Application for writ of certiorari — Competency — Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act (19 of 1951), S. 62—Person 'aggrieved'.

Where there is a right of suit in respect of a matter, that is the proper course for the party to pursue ; a writ can be applied for only in special circumstances.

The existence of a remedy by way of a suit under S. 62 of the Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act, 1951, for the purpose of challenging an order of the Commissioner for Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments, setting aside an order of the Deputy Commissioner declaring certain persons to be hereditary trustees of a temple, is a bar to the maintainability of an application for a writ of certiorari for quashing the order. (1958) 2 Mad L J 139 : 1958 Mad W N 134 : 71 Mad L W 449 : A I R 1958 Mad 501 (501) (Pts A, B) (Prs 2, 3).

——Art. 226 – Remedy of suit — (Land Acquisition Act (1894), S 6).

Prayer for writ of certiorari to quash notification under S. 6, Land Acquisition Act—Suit being proper remedy, writ will not be issued. 66 Mad L W 1034 : (1953) 2 Mad L J 744 : 1953 Mad W N 831 : A I R 1954 Mad 362 (365) (Pt C) (Pr 10).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Petitioner's contentions that grant in their favour being of less than a village, Mad. Act 26 of 1948 did not apply and that the proceeding under colour of Act are not legal —Proper and adequate remedy of the petitioner held was by way of a suit and not by a petition under Art. 226 —(Madras Estates (Abolition and Conversion into Ryotwari) Act (26 of 1948), S. 9). 65 Mad L W 684 : 1952-2 Mad L J 194 : I L R (1952) Mad 680 : A I R 1953 Mad 60 (61) (Pr 1) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Mandamus – Other specific remedy by way of independent suit open – Maintainability of petition. See Specific Relief Act (1877), S. 45. A I R 1953 Mad 556.

——Art. 226 — Madras Estates Land (Reduction of Rent) Act (1947), S. 3 (2) — Rent cannot be reduced under Act in respect of property which is not 'estate' within meaning of S. 3 (2), Madras Estates Land Act, 1908 – Rent reduced in respect of property which is not estate—Remedy of aggrieved owner is by way of suit in civil Court—S. 8 does not prohibit such suit—Remedy under Art. 226 Constitution of India, will not be granted when there is another adequate remedy —(Civil P. C (1908), S. 9). See Madras Estates Land (Reduction of Rent) Act (30 of 1947), S. 3 (2). A I R 1952 Mad 589 (DB).

——Art. 226 – Should not be construed so as to replace the ordinary remedies available to the litigant under the general law of the land. Directions in the nature of a writ of mandamus should not issue under this article except to a public, a quasi public body or officer which is under an obligation, statutory or otherwise to do or refrain from doing anything which is likely to interfere with the rights of persons. Where the remedy of the petitioner would be by way of a suit and an application for injunction in the suit the fact that the Court in which the suit should have been filed is closed for the summer recess would not render Art. 226 applicable. 64 Mad L W 665 : 1951-2 Mad L J 171 : A I R 1952 Mad 112 (112) (Pt A) (Pr 1) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — No ground for issue of writ — Remedy by way of civil suit available —Order which will influence the Civil Court for or against the petitioner cannot be made. A I R 1961 Manipur 28 (31) (Pt D) (Pr 12).

——Art. 226 — Disputed question of facts — Other remedy open.

When the facts are not only in dispute, but the material placed before the High Court is not at all sufficient on which the questions in dispute, can be adjudicated upon the High Court in a proceeding under Art 226 will not enter into such an enquiry, when the remedy of a suit is open to the parties, and when the relief under Art. 226, as regards rights other than fundamental rights is an extraordinary and discretionary remedy. A I R 1959 Manipur 17 (19) (Pt D) (Pr 18).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9 – Eviction—Existence of relationship of landlord and tenant is jurisdictional fact—Finding thereon of Rent Control Authority can be challenged in Civil Court by regular suit — Finding challenged as incorrect—Remedy is by way of suit and not by way of writ petition. See Houses and Rents — Orissa House Rent Control Act (31 of 1958), S. 7. I L R (1965) Cut 574 (Orissa).

——Arts. 226, 227 — Powers of High Court — Writ petition under Scope and nature of — Alternative remedy open—Petition not maintainable.

The scope of writ petitions under Arts. 226 and 227 of the Constitution of India is very limited. It is not a substitute for a proceeding which is available to the parties for seeking remedies which they can take recourse to in a Civil Court. Disputed questions of fact necessarily cannot be gone into a writ petition. It is only fundamental that where there is an alternative remedy open to the parties, a writ petition does not lie and the application is not maintainable.

In course of hearing writ petitions, High Courts have been at times confronted with jumble of facts— One party disputing the correctness of such facts, namely as to the measurement of plots, the correctness of the site plan, the alleged omission of or scoring through of certain plot number in the application for permission. etc. That apart, the facts relevant for the purpose of the applicability of the different building rules are also in dispute. It is not within the scope of writ application to go into all these facts. The question whether on the facts, which are disputed, a particular building rule is applicable or not in this particular case,—is not a matter for High Court to decide in a writ Petition These and other questions, which have been directly or incidentally raised by the parties, can only be decided in an appropriate proceeding in a Civil Court. The scope of the present petition, over which High Court can decide, is whether or not the order of the Revenue Divisional Commisioner is on the face of it correct. There must be some error apparently manifest on the face of the record which can invoke the jurisdiction of the Court under Arts. 226 and 227. (1963) 5 Orissa J D 97.

—— Art. 226 — Bihar and Orissa Excise Act (2 of 1915) S 28 (1) (a) – Excess amount unlawfully collected as countervailing duty on foreign liquor—

Petitioner not admitting or establishing in spite of repeated opportunities given to him that he had not passed on the increased duty to the customers by increasing sale price -Investigation of disputed facts necessary to hold that petitioner an aggrieved party —Court cannot undertake an investigation and give relief by way of a direction to refund excess amount already collected and to refrain from further collection — As petitioner has another remedy by way of civil suit wherein he could establish that he has not passed on the duty to the customers and therefore he is really an aggrieved party the Court would not grant him relief under Art. 226 on the meagre materials before it. 29 Cut L T 76 : ILR (1963) Cut 93 : (1963) 5 Ori J D 168.

—Arts. 226 and 227 — Extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court under -If can be exercised when an alternative remedy by way of a regular suit is available -The order of the Additional Agent under the Agency Tracts Interest and Land Transfer Act if a mere executive order or one of a judicial nature —Effect of the 1948 amendment of the aforesaid Act.

Even if a remedy by way of a regular suit is open to a petitioner under Constitution Arts. 226 and 227, it cannot be said that that alternative remedy is equally convenient, beneficent or effective.

The Additiional Agent or the Special Assistant Agent exercising powers under the Agency-Tracts Interest and Land Transfer Act exercises judicial functions. Section 4 (2) of the Act expressly says that the order of the authority concerned is in the nature of a decree for ejectment of the person found in the unlawful possession of the property. An appeal has also been provided by the recent amendment made in Orissa Act (2 of 1948). The order is of a final nature subject to a right of appeal. The parties were heard, evidence was recorded and then a decision was given. All the trappings of a regular Court are to be found in the case and in view of the finality of the order of the Special Assistant Agent or the Additional Agent as the case may be it is clear that he functions as a tribunal. 1950 S C R 459, Ref. to.

It is true that by virtue of the amendment of 1948 it is not necessary that there should be two parties before a revenue officer when he takes action under the Act. But this is for the purpose of initiating a proceeding under the Act. In subsequent stages he has to take evidence, to pass a decree for ejectment and give reasons for his order in view of the right of appeal conferred on the aggrieved party. The mere fact that proceedings can be started by him on his own motion will not render the proceedings executive proceedings as distinct from judicial proceedings ILR (1952) Cut 615 ; 18 C L J 267 ; AIR 1953 Orissa 238 (239) (Pts A, B) (Prs 5, 6) (DB) —Art. 226 -Other remedy open—(Bihar Religious Trusts Act (1 of 1951).

The High Court will not entertain an application under Art. 226 for quashing the proceedings under the Bihar Religious Trusts Act, where the question at issue between the parties is as to whether the Math in question is public or private trust because such a question is one of fact depending on oral and documentary evidence. A proceeding under Art. 226 is not a proper machinery to investigate such questions of fact. If the petitioner contends that the property is not trust property and the Math is not a public Math he is at liberty to institute a properly framed suit claiming the relief he seeks in a Court of competent jurisdiction. A I R 1954 Pat 233 (234, 235) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

—Art. 226 — Scope of enquiry.

A proceeding under Art 226 is hardly the appropriate machinery for the purpose of deciding the question of benami and the title of the petitioner to certain property. The proper remedy for the petitioner is to institute a title suit where the question of benami may be put in issue and evidence offered on the question. A I R 1953 Pat 127 (128) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

—Art. 226 — The remedy provided by Art. 226 in respect of rights other than fundamental rights is an extraordinary remedy, and is not intended to supersede the ordinary procedure under which a person aggrieved can obtain relief by means of a suit in a civil Court. A I R 1950 Pat 387 and A I R 1952 Pat 23, Foll. 1953 Cri L J 799 ; A I R 1953 Pat 103 (104) (Pr 4) (DB).

—Art. 226 -Auction of bushes and trees on Government land — Auction price is revenue payable to Government and recoverable as arrears of land revenue -Dispute as to area — Remedy open in ordinary Court—Petition under Art. 226 of Constitution held not maintainable as requiring hearing of evidence—See Tenancy Laws — Punjab Land Revenue Act (17 of 1887), S. 42. ('62) 64 Punj L R 602.

—Art. 226 -Enforcement of claim against Government -Alternate remedy -Proceeding for writ.

Where in substance the petitioner's claim is that the Government wrongly cancelled the mining concession previously granted to him or in the alternative the Government wrongly refused to grant him the prospecting licence it amounts to a claim that the license in question which had already been granted to the petitioner must be specifically enforced against the Government or in the alternative the Government must be ordered to grant a license to him. This relief should more appropriately be subject-matter of a regular suit and not that of a proceeding under Art. 226. 61 Punj L R 140 ; AIR 1959 Punj 54 (58) (Pt D) (Pr 12).

—Art. 226 — Rajasthan Tenancy Act (3 of 1955), S 5 (28)—Other remedy open -Pasture land - Question of facts -High Court will not exercise its jurisdiction —Allottee has other remedy by way of suit.

From the definition of the term "pasture land" it will be evident that if the land is recorded in settlement records or is reserved as such in accordance with the rules then no further proof of it being a pasture land is necessary, otherwise for any land to be pasture land it has to be shown that it is a land used for grazing of the cattle of a village or villages. Whether the land allotted by the Tehsildar to the petitioners was or was not used for grazing cattle is but a question of fact. In exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution the High Court is in no position to make any pronouncement one way or the other, whether the Government were justified in treating the land as pasture land. If the petitioners feel that by virtue of the allotment in their favour by the Tehsildar and by their cultivating it and paying rent to the Government they have lawfully acquired tenancy rights in it, then it will be for them to establish their rights in a competent Court. The remedy of a suit is available to the petitioners and consequently the High Court will not be inclined to deal with the matter in exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution. I L R (1965) 15 Raj 880 (DB).

—Art. 226 -Mere error of law or fact not a ground —Two views of law possible on facts - Inferior tribunal taking a particular view — Remedy by way of suit though open not availed of — Order cannot be quashed—Tenancy Laws — Rajasthan (Protection of Tenants) Ordinance (9 of 1949), Ss 7 and 10—Rajasthan Tenancy Act (3 of 1955), S. 183.

Where in proceedings for reinstatement under S. 7, Rajasthan (Protection of Tenants) Ordinance 1949, the order of the Ejectment Officer refusing to grant relief to the applicants was confirmed by the Board of Revenue in revision under S. 10 of the Ordinance on the finding that the petitioners were in possession merely as cosharers and not as tenants, the High Court in the exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction under Art. 226 should not interfere with the above finding after examining the evidence for itself. The order of the Board of Revenue is not final and it is open to the petitioners to institute a suit for declaration of their right or title to the land in question under S. 183 of the Rajasthan Tenancy Act. A I R 1958 Raj. 74, Rel. on. 1961 Raj L W 42 : ILR (1960) 10 Raj 1638.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — (Marwar Land Revenue Act (40 of 1949), S. 79 (3).)

Section 79 (3) of the Marwar Land Revenue Act (40 of 1949) provides that the order of the Settlement Officer passed under sub-ss. (1) and (2) of S. 79 making entries in the revenue record and putting a person in possession would be open to review by a proper civil or revenue Court. Where therefore the order passed by the Settlement Officer making revenue entries during settlement operations give rise to disputes regarding proprietary right to possession, the party which feels aggrieved by such an order can go to the civil Court to have his title determined, and the High Court should not interfere under Art. 226. 1956 Raj L W 453 : I L R (1956) 6 Raj 686 : A I R 1957 Raj 136 (137, 138) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy.

Held, that where the facts were not in dispute, and the remedy by way of a suit could not have been equally beneficial, effective and convenient, the application for a writ of mandamus was maintainable. 1954 Raj L W 524 : I L R (1954) 4 Raj 733 : A I R 1954 Raj 207 (211) (Pt E) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Art. 226—Another remedy open—Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), Ss. 46 and 47.

Where a usufructuarily mortgaged property which is taken back on lease by mortgagor himself is taken possession of by a Custodian as evacuee property the custodian is liable to pay rent of the property and as an adequate remedy by way of suit for recovery of arrears of rent against the custodian is not barred by Ss. 46 and 47 of the Evacuee Property Act, the High Court cannot exercise its extraordinary powers under Art. 226 to grant relief to the mortgagee in respect of the arrears of rent. 1953 Raj L W 113 : I L R (1952) 2 Raj 534 : A I R 1954 Raj 77 (78) (Pt B) (Prs 4, 5) (DB).

——Art. 226—Party not satisfied with entries made by Settlement authorities in connection with settlement operations — Remedy by way of suit open to party under S. 101, Jaipur Tenancy Act, read with Sch. I, Group B, Item 13, Rajasthan Revenue Courts (Procedure and Jurisdiction) Act, 1951 — High Court will not grant relief under Art. 226. I L R (1952) 2 Raj 869 : AIR 1953 Raj 151 (152) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226—Scope of powers under—Another adequate remedy open — Petition for writ of certiorari against requisitioning of house — Title of petitioner to house challenged — Petitioner held should pursue his remedy by suit and establish his title — Power under Art. 226 not exercised.

The powers of the High Courts under Art. 226 to issue directions, orders or writs are not confined to those cases only where fundamental rights are infringed. They can be issued for any other purpose, which means even for a purpose other than the enforcement of the fundamental rights. But extraordinary powers under Art. 226 will be exercised only in clear cases of infringement of fundamental or legal rights. Ordinarily it would not be exercised when another adequate and efficacious remedy by ordinary legal process exists. An application under Art. 226 is and must remain an extraordinary remedy to be used where ordinary legal process cannot give adequate and prompt relief. Though Art. 226 makes no mention as to who shall apply for an appropriate order under the Article, other writs, directions or orders cannot be placed on the same footing as the writ of habeas corpus and only those persons whose interests are directly affected by a Statute or an order can apply for redress under the Article.

(It was held that the petitioner for a writ of certiorari against an order requisitioning a house of which he alleged to be the owner should be left to pursue his ordinary remedy by way of a regular suit and establish his title to the property.) Case law Ref. 1952 Raj L W 456 : I L R (1952) 2 Raj 243 : A I R 1953 Raj 33 (35) (Prs 8, 9, 10, 11) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy available.

Ordinarily a writ of mandamus is not granted where an effective remedy by regular suit is available to a petitioner. AIR 1951 Sau 73 (76) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

The extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 may be invoked in cases where no adequate remedy is available to an aggrieved party and a writ or order under Art. 226 alone affords a convenient and effective mode of redress. Thus, where an adequate and effective relief can be obtained by a suit, a necessary condition for the exercise of this jurisdiction is lacking. Mere defect of jurisdiction in the impugned order, does not make it obligatory on the Court to exercise the jurisdiction under Art. 226. Whether the alternative remedy is equally efficacious or adequate is a question of fact to be decided in each case. AIR 1956 Tripura 9 (13) (Pt C) (Prs 20, 24, 25).

7 (t). Other remedy barred or exhausted or not taken or not available.

● ——Arts. 226 and 136—Other remedy open but not availed of—Does not oust jurisdiction of High Court—Alternative effective remedy—What is—Exercise of discretion by High Court — No interference by Supreme Court unless exceptional circumstances exist.

Per Subba Rao and Bachawat, JJ.—The Supreme Court would not interfere with the discretion of the High Court in exercising the jurisdiction when there are no exceptional circumstances. A remedy by way of an appeal against the order of confiscation and imposition of a large penalty under the Sea Customs Act is not an effective remedy, when no appeal can be filed unless the large penalty imposed upon the petitioner has first been deposited. Abrol, Additional Collector of Customs, Bombay v. Shantilal Chhotelal and Co., (1965) 2 S C W R 1032: AIR 1966 S C 197 (202) (Pt B) (Pr 15).

● ——Art. 226 — Alternative remedy — Petitioner's failure to avail it within prescribed time due to his own fault—Cannot be urged as a ground to exercise discretion in his favour.

If a petitioner has disabled himself from availing himself of the statutory remedy by his own fault in not being so within the prescribed time, he cannot certainly be permitted to urge that as a ground for the Court dealing with his petition under Art. 226 to exercise its discretion in his favour. A. V. Venkateswaram, Collector of Customs, Bombay v. Ramchand Sobhraj Wadhwani, (1962) 1 S C J 170 : (1962) 1 Mad L J (SC) 83: (1963) 1 Andh W R (SC) 83: 64 Bom L R 386 : (1962) 1 S C R 753 : (1961) 2 S C A 622 : A I R 1961 S C 1506 (1510, 1511) (Pt C) (Prs 11, 15).

● ——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Certiorari if and when can issue — Mandamus — Distinction—(Police Act (5 of 1861), S. 7) — (U. P. Police Regulation, Regns. 308 and 512).

There is no rule, with regard to certiorari as there is with mandamus, that it will lie only where there is no other equally effective remedy. Provided the requisite grounds exist, certiorari will lie although a right of appeal has been conferred by statute. Ordinarily the superior Court will decline to interfere until the aggrieved party has exhausted his other statutory remedies, if any. But this rule is a rule of policy, convenience and discretion rather than a rule of law.

If an inferior Court or tribunal of first instance acts wholly without jurisdiction or patently in excess of jurisdiction or manifestly conducts the proceedings before it in a manner which is contrary to the rules of natural justice and all accepted rules of procedure the superior Court may, quite properly exercise its power to issue the prerogative writ of certiorari to correct the error of the Court or tribunal of first instance, even if an appeal to another inferior Court or tribunal was available and recourse was not had to it.

Orders made on departmental 'trial' held by an officer in the department without any legal training and orders passed by his superior officers in the same department on appeal or in revision, can hardly be equated with reasonable propriety with the orders passed by a Special Tribunal and on appeal therefrom by the High Court. A I R 1951 S C 217, Disting. The State of U. P. v. Mohammad Nooh, 1958 S C J 242 : I L R (1957) 2 All 422 : 1958 S C A 73 : 1958 Mad L J (Cr) 197 : 1958 S C R 595 : AIR 1958 S C 86 (92, 93, 94) (Pt B) (Prs 9, 10, 11).

——Art. 226—Exhaustion of other remedies.

Petitioner cannot approach Court for writ unless he exhausts all remedies available departmentally. A I R 1953 Ajmer 26 (27) (Pt B) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226—Alternative adequate remedy open — Tenure-holder's objection under S. 10(2), U. P. Imposition of Ceilling on Land Holdings Act — Authority rejecting his claim—Act providing for appeal against Authority's decision — Yet tenure-holder allowing period of limitation to expire and filing writ petition —Petition also belated — Petition must be dismissed. 1964 All W R (HC) 555 : 1964 All L J 896.

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Grant of relief discretionary — Party having chosen a particular mode of relief cannot be allowed to reagitate against it — Proceedings under U. P. Consolidation of Holdings Act (5 of 1954), Ss 21 (5) and 48.

Relief by way of writ is discretionary and it would not be fair to allow a party to reagitate a matter where such party itself has chosen a particular mode of relief. Where, therefore, a party has given a revision application under S. 48 of the U. P. Consolidation of Holdings Act and has, up to the end, insisted on seeking the remedy by way of revision, it could not be allowed to retrace its steps if the order in revision eventually goes against that party and claim that the proceedings ought to have been disposed of as second appeal. AIR 1954 All 447 and Spl. Civ. Appeal No. 81 of 1961 (All), Foll. AIR 1963 All 421 (422) (Pr 2).

——Art. 226—Writ petition—Maintainability—Alternative remedy not availed — Writ cannot be issued.

In a writ petition a petitioner has to make out a case, not only of an error of law, having been committed by the subordinate authority or officer, however grave the error might be, or of want of jurisdiction, even though there may be total absence of jurisdiction, but he has, in addition, to show that manifest injustice has been done to him, and injustice will be perpetrated if relief is not granted to the petitioner.

The jurisdiction of the High Court under Article 226 cannot be invoked by the petitioner without exhausting the remedies open to him under the Act, such as a revision under S. 33A (2) of the Income Tax Act to the Commissioner of Income Tax. (1963) 47 I T R 453 (All).

——Art. 226— Other remedy open — Petitioner not availing himself of remedy of appeal open to him — High Court will not interfere in the matter in its writ jurisdiction. AIR 1962 All 574 (576, 577) (Pt C) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226 — Assessment under U. P. Large Land Holdings Tax Act — Whether objection regarding exclusion of areas was not considered or decided is question of fact —Relief under Art. 226 not open — Other remedies abandoned — Jurisdiction of High Court cannot be invoked.

Where the assessees raised objections regarding the exclusion of certain areas in the computation of areas of land holdings for the purpose of assessments under U. P. Large Land Holdings Tax Act in writs to challenge the assessment orders of the assessing authority:

Held, that since the allegation that the assessee's objections were not considered or decided had been denied, that raised a question of fact which could not be gone into in petition under Art. 226.

Held further that it was open to the petitioners to have taken all such objections as they were minded to, in appeals provided by the Act against the assessment orders. A party cannot be allowed to abandon recourse to remedies provided under an Act and invoke the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. A I R 1961 S C 809, Rel. on. 1962 All W R (H C) 147.

——Art. 226 - Other remedy —Remedy of appeal not availed of —No writ petition lies.

Where a person aggrieved by an order of the Assistant Custodian of Evacuee properly, does not avail himself of the remedy by way of an appeal provided by the Administration of Evacuee Property Act, for a long time cannot be heard after such a long time in writ jurisdiction. AIR 1961 All 299 (300) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 7-A —Order under — Revision not filed—Petition under Art. 226.

Filing of a revision is not an alternate and efficacious remedy. Revision being not a matter of right in which a person filing the revision can claim relief non-availing of an alternate remedy by way of revision against an order under S. 7-A, U. P. Act (3 of 1947) will not be a bar to filing of writ petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution. 1960 All WR (HC) 406; 1960 All L J 546.

[Overruled in AIR 1966 All 57 (FB)].

——Art. 226—Other remedy.

It is true that the existence of alternative remedy by itself is not an absolute bar to the exercise of its jurisdiction by the High Court under Art. 226. It is however, a matter to be taken in consideration while deciding whether the powers under the Article are to be exercised in a particular case. Where keeping in view the fact that an alternative remedy was open to the appellant but had not been followed by him the Judge declined to interfere with the impugned order, the order of the Judge in writ proceedings cannot be said to be unjustified. I L R (1959) 1 All 354 : 1959 All L J 382 : 1959 All W R (H C) 352 : A I R 1959 All 717 (718) (Pt B) (Pr 6)(DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open —Payment of Wages Act (1936), S. 17 —Remedy of appeal doubtful — Whether bar to writ petition.

The existence of another remedy which the petitioner did not avail himself of, is not an absolute bar to the entertainment of a writ petition. Hence, where on the order as it stood it was not clear whether an appeal lay or not under S. 17, Payment of Wages Act, against the impugned order, the omisssion of the petitioner to file an appeal against that order should not lead to the dismissal of the writ petition. 1958 All W R (HC) 367 : AIR 1957 All 363 (365) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226—Other remedy.

Where the petitioner has already sought an alternative remedy by filing a revision in the High Court challenging the validity of an order, it is not open to the petitioner to come to the High Court in the writ petition and therefore he is not entitled to any relief under Art. 226. 1957 All L J 891 : 1957 All W R (HC) 820.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Remedy of appeal under S. 17, Payment of Wages Act not availed of and becoming time-barred — Petition under Art. 226 is not maintainable — (Payment of Wages Act (1936), S 17).

Under the Payment of Wages Act an appeal lies under S. 17 against a direction under S. 15 (3). Where the petitioner has not availed himself of this remedy and the appeal is time barred he cannot maintain an application under Art. 226, Constitution of India. He cannot say that the petition under Art. 226 should be heard because his appeal under S. 17, Payment of Wages Act, would be barred by time. It is due to his own fault that the appeal has become barred and he cannot take advantage of his own fault. AIR 1955 All 702 (703) (Pt B) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226 - Another remedy open —Remedy under S. 27, Administration of Evacuee Property Act not availed of —Petition under Art. 226 will not lie. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 1412.

——Art. 226 —Alternative remedy — Remedy under S. 7-F, U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act — (Houses and Rents — U. P. (Temporary) Control of Rent and Eviction Act (3 of 1947), S. 7-F).

S. 7-F does not afford any alternative remedy to a landlord. A landlord has not been given any right to approach the State Government to revise the order passed by the Rent Control and Eviction Officer. S. 7F just empowers the State Government to call for the record and make suitable orders. The landlord, therefore, cannot approach the State Government by way of appeal or revision against the order of the Rent Control and Eviction Officer. I L R (1954) 2 All 239 : 1954 All W R (H C) 156 : 1954 All L J 172 : AIR 1954 All 428 (431) (Pt B) (Pr 16) (DB).

[Overruled in A I R 1968 All 57 (FB),].

——Art. 226—Another remedy open.

Suit against order of attotment of accommodation under U. P. Temporary Rent Control and Eviction Act, 1947, asking for injunction restraining allottee from taking and Rent Control authority from giving possession —Application in suit for temporary injunction refused on ground that suit did not lie because notice under S. 80, C. P. Code, was not given —Withdrawal of suit by plaintiff—He cannot be said to have availed of another remedy and failed so as to be prevented from seeking remedy under Art. 226 —Decision on issue of temporary injunction leads to inference that he had no other such remedy open 1953 All L J 151 : 1953 All W R (H C) 125 : AIR 1953 All 458 (459) (Pt D) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226— Other remedy — Existence — Facts showing other suitable remedy not available —Necessity to prove by affidavit.

If there is nothing in the affidavit of the petitioner nor in the application to satisfy the Court that no other remedy is open to him the petition must fail. 1953 All W R (H C) 113 : 1953 All L W 21 : 1952 A L J 733 : AIR 1953 All 109 (110) (Prs 2, 3) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Quo warranto — Writ of —(Municipalities— Hyderabad Municipal Corporations Act (2 of 1956), S 678 (2)).

S. 678 (2) Hyderabad Municipal Corporations Act is clearly designed to enable the Government only to suspend execution of a resolution or prohibit the doing of any act and to give an opportunity to the corporation to get revised, modified or revoked any order by the Government under Cl. (a). The suspension of a resolution electing a person cannot be said to be an alternative remedy and the object in having the election declared illegal cannot be achieved by the suspension of resolution. (1958) 1 Andh W R 22 : ILR (1958) Andh Pra 17.

——Art. 226—Hyderabad Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act, 1950, Ss. 89 and 90 — Only where landlord seeks to take possession of land from tenant or protected tenant that he can proceed in manner provided in the Act — Otherwise the proper forum is civil Court — An enquiry into merits of rival claims of title to property in dispute set up by petitioner and the respondent is a field of investigation by a civil Court in a properly constituted suit rather than for a Court exercising the prerogative of issuing writs — See Tenancy Laws—Hyderabad Tenancy and Agricultural Lands Act (XXI of 1950), S. 98. 1958 Andh L T 824.

——Art. 226—G. O. Ms. 26, D/- 12-1-1954 directing general amnesty to all prisoners to celebrate inauguration of Andhra State — Applicability of order — "Amnesty", meaning of — Effect of pardon on office holder — Right to office not forfeited — Dismissal from office — Alternative remedy available but not availed of —Writ could be issued it being a fit case — See Ibid, Art. 161. (1956) 2 Andh W R 682.

——Art. 226—Other remedy — Availing of — Filing appeal out of time.

Filing appeals out of time is not availing of the remedy provided by the law. It is more a failure to avail of the remedy than anything else (1957) 8 STC 417 : ILR (1957) 9 Assam 167: AIR 1957 Assam 61 (64) (Pt C) (Pr 13) (DB)

——Arts. 226, 227 — (Sales Tax—C. P. and Berar Sales Tax Act (21 of 1947), Ss. 23 (1) and 22-B)— Appeal against revised assessment order dismissed— Application for review dismissed — Express remedy under S. 22 (1) not availed of — Writ petition challenging the order not entertained.

An order of assessment passed against the petitioner was revised by the Commissioner under S. 22 B of the C. P. and Berar Sales Tax Act, by which certain transactions excluded by the Sales Tax Officer were included. An appeal filed before the Sales Tax Tribunal was dismissed. A review application was also dismissed—Petitioner filed a petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution.

Held, that the petitioner having failed to avail of the remedy applying for making a reference under S. 23 (1) he was not entitled to invoke the discretionary jurisdiction under Art. 226 or 227 of the Constitution. 1963 Mah L J (Notes) 23.

——Arts. 226 and 227—Other remedy open — Interference — Grounds.

In a petition for a writ the High Court may, in an appropriate case, take into consideration the fact that there is another remedy available to the petitioner of which he may take advantage but of which he has not taken advantage and the Court may, in certain circumstances, refer a party aggrieved to the specific remedy provided by the statute. To this principle there may possibly be one exception and, that is, if an authority makes an order without jurisdiction it would be open to a party to come up by a writ petition under Art. 226 or 227 of the Constitution. ('58) 60 Bom L R 210.

——Art. 226—Other remedy open—Failure to appeal does not necessarily disentitle petitioner from seeking relief under Art. 226.

Petitioner's failure to appeal from an order by which he is aggrieved will not disentitle him to relief under Art. 226 of the Constitution provided he is otherwise found entitled. His failure to avail of the ordinary remedies under the statute by way of appeal or revision will not disentitle him to relief when he seeks the High Court's assistance for a writ, but that it is a circumstance which may well be taken into consideration in deciding whether by the discretionary relief provided by Certiorari can be given to the petitioner. AIR 1958 S C 86 and AIR 1961 S C 1506, Rel. on. AIR 1963 Cal 26 (35) (Pt D) (Pr 43) (DB).

——Art. 226—Assessment proceedings — Defects in— Remedy of appeal to Tribunal not pursued — Relief under Art. 226 is not open. AIR 1961 S C 609, Rel. on. (1963) 50 ITR 87 (Cal).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Entry in record of rights—Issue of writ—(Tenancy Laws—West Bengal Estates Acquisition Act, 1953 (1 of 1954), S. 44 (2), (3) and (4).)

Under sub-s. (4) of S. 44 of Bengal Act I of 1954, every entry in the record of rights finally published under sub-s. (2) of S. 44 shall, subject to any modifications made by any order on appeal under sub-s. (3), be presumed to be correct until it is proved by evidence to be incorrect. Since the petitioners did not make any objection during the settlement of the records of rights and allowed the final publication to be made without mention of the right claimed by them, it was impossible in the writ application to grant any relief to the petitioners. The entries had become final and conclusive, and the High Court cannot go beyond them. ('59) 63 Cal W N 933.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Issue of writ — Remedy under special Act pursued in all stages without success — Effect on writ application filed thereafter.

Where a party has availed himself of the ordinary remedies provided for by a special Act, he cannot thereafter turn round and begin once again from the bottom by challenging the original order under Art 226 of the Constitution. 60 Cal W N 1042, Foll. 62 Cal W N 278 : ILR (1959) 1 Cal 140 : AIR 1958 Cal 203 (208) (Pt C) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226 — Remedy available at law allowed to be barred by— Applicant misled by provision of law if ground for interference.

When an applicant has an alternative remedy which he has allowed to be barred by lapse of time, it is no argument to say that he should be granted relief under Art. 226, as his legal remedy is barred. 61 Cal W N 11:AIR 1957 Cal 164 (169) (Pt F) (Pr 10).

● ——Art. 226 - Other remedy—Party taking advantages of — (West Bengal Bargadars Act (2 of 1950) —Validity).

Although the existence of an alternative remedy is not an absolute bar to the entertainment or maintenance of an application under Art. 226 of the Constitution, still, if a party had availed himself of the alternative remedy, he could not after having exhausted those remedies or gone a certain way in their pursuit, switch round to Art. 226 of the Constitution and start a fresh line of proceeding under that provision. Abindra Kumar Maity v Majumdar, 60 Cal W N 299 : AIR 1956 Cal 273 (274) (Pt A) (Prs 8, 9) (FB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedies open — Motor Vehicles Act, 1939, S. 64.

Where no order of refusal as required by S. 57 (7) of the Motor Vehicles Act was passed by the Provincial Transport Authority and no copy of any such order was given to the party there is no order against which the party could have gone up in appeal and in such a case it cannot be said that petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution of India did not lie because other remedies were open. AIR 1951 Him Pra 36 (40) (Pt B) (Pr 10).

——Art. 226 -Other remedy open—Issue of writ.

If a remedy is provided under a statute that remedy first should be exhausted before a writ petition could be presented; but that does not preclude the High Court in exercising jurisdiction in a fit case where grave injustice is being caused and if not remedied immediately would cause hardship and harassment to the party. ILR (1956) Hyd 358 : (1956) 7 S T C 762: AIR 1956 Hyd 124 (125, 126) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Such remedy not availed of — Extraordinary remedy by way of writ not available. AIR 1959 J & K 141 (144) (Pt E) (Pr 27) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Jammu and Kashmir Village Panchayat Act (V of 2008), S. 7 (b).

The remedy under an Act cannot be said to be adequate and is indeed nugatory or useless if the Act is itself ultra vires and void and the principle of another remedy can therefore have no application to the case. Thus where a petitioner has invoked the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court on the ground that S. 7 (b) of the Panchayat Act is ultra vires of the powers of the legislature, the remedy of appeal provided by that Act cannot be said to provide an adequate relief and the petitioner has a right to come directly to the High Court for the purpose of securing a writ under Art. 226. A I R 1955 S C 661, Rel. on. A I R 1957 J & K 38 (39) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Dismissal of civil servant — Fundamental rights violated inasmuch as servant denied equal opportunity—Remedy of appeal allowed to become time barred — Writ petition is maintainable. AIR 1957 J & K 11 (12) (Pt C) (Pr 6).

——Art 226—Other remedy—Constitution of Jammu and Kashmir, Art. 32 (2-A) —Issue of writ—General rule—Alternative remedy not availed of — Petition not maintainable.

As a general rule the power under Art. 32 (2-A) of the Constitution of Jammu and Kashmir (which corresponds to Art 226 of the Constitution of India) will not be exercised by the High Court when another effective and adequate remedy exists but if an aggrieved party satisfies the Court if he is not granted an immediate relief he will suffer an irreparable loss and the allernative remedy is onerous and not likely to give him that immediate relief, the Court will be fully justified in exercising its powers under Art. 32 (2-A) of the Constitution.

Held, that the petitioner did not avail of the alternative remedy within the prescribed period and allowed the order of the Registering and Licensing Authority to become final. There was no satisfactory explanation to show as to why the remedy available under the Act was not availed of by him. He, not being diligent himself, could not ask the Court to grant him an extraordinary remedy under Art. 32 (2-A) of the Constitution. AIR 1957 J & K 5 (6) (Pr 7).

● ——Arts. 226 and 32 (2-A) (as applied to Jammu and Kashmir State) —Other remedy open - Cancellation of allotment under J and K. State Evacuees' (Administration of Property) Act (2006)—Remedy under S. 30-A not availed of—Writ petition whether can be entertained —(J. and K. State Evacuees' (Administration of Property) Act (2006), S. 30-A)

The remedy provided in Art. 32 (2-A) of the Constitution of India as applied to the State of Jammu and Kashmir cannot be used as a substitute for ordinary remedies. If a statute provides a remedy for a wrong, resort must be had to that remedy. It is, therefore clear that where there is another remedy open to a party, the High Court should be very reluctant in granting extraordinary remedy by way of a writ but in exceptional circumstances where a party is likely to suffer irreparable loss due to delay which may occur by pursuing the ordinary remedy, the High Court may in extraordinary circumstances grant a speedy remedy by way of a writ. In Jammu and Kashmir State Evacuees' (Administration of Property) Act there is remedy provided under S. 30-A by way of revision to the Custodian General. In face of the remedy provided under the Act, the High Court will not entertain a writ petition against an order cancelling an allotment except in extraordinary circumstances where the petitioner satisfies the Court that the remedy provided will not be effective and that he will suffer irreparable loss if remedy by way of a writ is not granted. AIR 1954 Punj 165, Rel. on. Gain Kour v. Provincial Rehabilitation Officer, AIR 1958 J & K 33 (35) (Pt G) (Pr 12) (FB).

● ——Art. 226—Another remedy open—Such remedy followed by petitioner—High Court will still interfere.

Where the petitioner has preferred a revision against an order of Sales Tax authority and has also filed a writ petition against the same order in the High Court, the revision by itself does not debar the High Court from giving appropriate relief, if otherwise the petitioner is entitled to such relief. Brillant Traders, Ltd. v. Board of Revenue. 1962 Ker L J 1304 : 1961 Ker L T 1098 : (1962) 13 S T C 176 : I L R (1962) 1 Ker 301 : AIR 1962 Ker 132 (133) (Pt B) (Pr 12) (FB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Award of Industrial Tribunal — Special leave to appeal against awards, under Art. 136, refused by Supreme Court—Jurisdiction of High Court to entertain application under Art. 226 to quash award.

A High Court cannot refuse to entertain an application under Art. 226 of the Constitution to quash an award of the Industrial Tribunal on the ground that the aggrieved party could move the Supreme Court under Art. 136 of the Constitution. That the Supreme Court declined to exercise its discretion in favour of the petitioner cannot affect the jurisdiction vested in the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. But the fact that the Supreme Court declined to exercise its discretion in favour of the petitioner is a factor that ought to be taken into account and given due weight. AIR 1958 Mad 338, Foll. 1959 Ker L J 96 : 1959 Ker L R 35 : (1959-60) 16 F J R 45 : (1959) 1 Lab L J 504 : AIR 1959 Ker 291 (292, 293) (Pt A) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

(Per Dixit, J.)—Where an Excise Commissioner has forbidden a licence holder from bidding at an auction sale of excise shops, the licence holder has the remedy of appealing to the Chief Revenue Authority against the decision of the Excise Commissioner. If he omits to avail himself of this remedy, he is not entitled to invoke Art. 226 for a declaration that he was wrongly debarred from bidding at the auction and for a direction for quashing the order. Madh B L J 1955 H C R 1253 : Madh B L R 1956 Civ 688 : AIR 1956 Madh B 21 (23) (Pt E) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Nomination papers of all candidates rejected — No notification of election under S. 20 of M. P. Panchayats Act can be issued — Election petition under S. 357 (1), M. P. Panchayats Act not competent—Remedy under Constitution of India, Art. 226, available. See Panchayats—M. P. Panchayats Act (7 of 1962), S. 357 (1). AIR 1965 Madh Pra 256 (DB)

——Art. 226—Petitioner failing to avail alternative remedy under S. 64-A of Motor Vehicles Act—Existence of alternative remedy is not absolute bar to exercise of writ jurisdiction by High Court.

Held, complex nature of question raised in the petition and entirely discretionary nature of revisional jurisdiction of Authorities under S. 64-A Motor Vihicles Act, would justify the High Court to exercise jurisdiction under Art. 226. 1965 M P L J 265 : 1965 Jab L J 498 : AIR 1965 Madh Pra 132 (136) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—Another remedy open—C. P. and Berar Municipalities Act (2 of 1922), S. 25 (6) — Rules framed under Rule 2—"Drawing Rs. 50 or more" in R. 2 (ii)—Refers to total emoluments and not merely to substantive salary—Departmental punishment—Dismissal of teacher drawing more than Rs. 50 per month—Order reinstating teacher passed in appeal, by Sub Divisional Officer—Remedy by way of second appeal though open not availed of by Municipality—No good grounds shown for interference—No interference by High Court in Writ petition filed by Municipality. AIR 1957 S C 882, Foll. 1961 Jab L J 969 : ILR (1959) Madh Pra 715 : 1961 M P L J 777 : 1961 M P C 536 : AIR 1962 Madh Pra 6 (7) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Another remedy not exhausted — Adequate material to determine facts not placed before the Court—High Court will not interfere in writ proceedings. 1962 M P L J (Notes) 91.

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Irregularities in Municipal elections—Remedy by way of election petition not availed of—Relief under Art. 226 not granted—(Municipalities—C. P. and Berar Municipalities Act (2 of 1922), S. 20-A).

The existence of an alternative remedy is not an absolute bar to give relief under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Such a relief can be given if the alternative remedy is not equally speedy or efficacious or some other exceptional circumstances make it just and convenient to grant it.

Any complaint regarding irregularities at the time of scrutiny or regarding the allotment of symbols would therefore be a matter pertaining to elections and should, under S. 20-A of C. P. and Berar Municipalities Act, 1922, be challenged by an election petition. The High Court therefore did not think it proper to exercise discretion in granting relief in writ proceedings. 1960 M P L J 106 : 1960 Jab L J 185 : 1960 M P C 142 : ILR (1959) Madh Pra 367.

——Art. 226—Other remedy—Issue of certiorari.

The Income-tax Act provides an appeal against an order of assessment and further remedies in case the assessee is aggrieved by the order of the appellate authority.

Where the petitioner applied for a writ of certiorari to quash the order of assessment under S. 47 of the Travancore Income-tax Act, 1121 without resorting to any of the three alternative remedies available to him under that Act long after the period within which the reassessment proceedings could be initiated had expired.

Held, that the Court would decline to issue the writ sought, even if the petitioner was otherwise entitled to it. (1960) 38 I T R 325 : (1960) 1 Mad L J 439 : AIR 1960 Mad 320 (321) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open.

The power vested in President under S. 128, States Reorganisation Act, could by no stretch of language be termed a remedy available to the petitioner applying for a writ of prohibition restraining the chairman of the Legislative Council from specifying under S. 35 (3) of the States Reorganisation Act. The President cannot treat any provision of the Act as unconstitutional and proceed on the basis therefrom of its being non existent in the eye of the law and therefore inoperative. (1956-57) 12 Ele L R 345 (Mad).

——Art. 226 — Limitation not condoned and appeal rejected — No appeal lies under S. 31 of Orissa Sales tax Act—No reference is maintainable — Remedy of assessee is under S. 33-A or Art. 226 of the Constitution. AIR 1955 Orissa 1 (DB).

—— Art. 226 — Certiorari — Other remedy open — Panchayat—Bihar Panchayat Election Rules (1956), R. 72 — Election of Mukhiya — Writ petition by a candidate against rejection of his nomination paper —Application for stay of election rejected—Election taking place—Writ petition, if maintainable.

Where a candidate for election of Mukhiya of a Gram Panchayat filed writ petition against rejection of his nomination paper under S. 79 (1) of Bihar Panchayat Raj Act on allegations of corrupt practices, but his application for stay of election was rejected and the election of Mukhiya took place within three days thereafter, it was the duty of such candidate to have filed an election petition for setting aside the election of returned candidate. Having failed to avail of this alternative remedy under R. 72 of the Bihar Panchayat Rules, it was not competent for the candidate to move the High Court for grant of a writ under Art. 226 of the Constitution. 1963 B L J R 710.

——Arts. 226 and 227—Availability of other remedy —Other remedy not pursued—Effect.

Where the petitioner fails to avail himself of the right of appeal to a Full Bench from an order of the Gram Cutchery convicting the petitioner in spite of the fact that it has no jurisdiction to do so his prayer for issuing a writ under Art. 226 must be rejected on this ground. But that does not mean that the High Court cannot interfere with the order of the Court below by virtue of the powers conferred on the High Court by Art. 227 of the Constitution. 1954 B L J R 594 : 1955 Cr L J 501 : 33 Pat 996 : A I R 1955 Pat 118 (120, 122) (Pt C) (Prs 5, 11) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 227—Alternative remedy availed of.

The petitioner had availed himself of the alternative remedy by way of a suit. The question of issue in the civil suit was essentially the question of jurisdiction of the House Rent Controller and of the Commissioner in appeal. The question raised in this application involved precisely the same matter as to the jurisdiction of the House Rent Controller to order eviction of the petitioner under the provisions of S. 11 of the Bihar Act (3 of 1947).

Held, that the application for a writ under Art. 226 of the Constitution or for interference by the High Court under Art. 227 of the Constitution could not be obviously entertained and the petitioner must prosecute his remedy in Civil Court where he had already instituted a suit for precisely the same relief. AIR 1954 Pat 476 (477) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226—Other remedy open — Cancellation of licence under S 18, Arms Act—Petitioner not appealing to the Commissioner — Whether he can apply under Art. 226.

Where the District Magistrate is influenced by the order of the Chief Secretary in passing the order of cancellation of licence under S. 18, Arms Act, an appeal to the Commissioner is not a proper remedy as the Chief Secretary is in a way in a superior position even to that of the Commissioner. Hence a petition under Art. 226 against the order of cancellation is maintainable and cannot be dismissed on the ground that the petitioner has not availed himself of the remedy provided by the statute in the shape of an appeal. ILR (1956) Patiala 110 : AIR 1956 Pepsu 37 (38) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

——Art 226—No law providing for election petition on date of announcement of impugned election. —Subsequent law providing for such election petition —Remedy by way of election petition is not available —Subsequent law providing for remedies by way of election petition, not retrospective - Does not serve as alternative remedy. See Panchayats—Punjab Panchayat Samities and Zilla Parishads Act (3 of 1961), S. 121 (3). AIR 1964 Punj 62 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Alternative remedy per se no bar to issue of writ.

Ordinarily, in the presence of an alternative remedy, the High Court would feel disinclined in the exercise of its discretion to interfere on its writ side. But this is not a matter of jurisdiction and per se an alternative remedy would not stand in the way of the High Court's power to interfere in a fit case. The writ Court must consider each case on its merits and determine whether or not the alternative remedy is adequate and effective. The nature of the right invaded, the grounds of challenge and the conduct of the petitioner are also relevant factors The fact that the aggrieved applicant has by choosing to come to the High Court allowed the alternative remedy to be barred by time may also by itself not be conclusive, though in certain circumstances it may not be wholly irrelevant.

Where in a writ petition directed against the levy of purchase tax under the Sales Tax legislation, a Single Judge had, in view of the importance of the question raised, considered it fit to refer the case to a larger Bench for authoritative decision and the petitioner had submitted that his arguments would be confined to the abstract question of law arising on admitted facts and it had further been stated that the petitioner was out of time for approaching the higher departmental authorities.

Held, that in view of those circumstances it would be desirable that the instant case be considered on the merits. ILR (1962) 2 Punj 830 : (1963) 14 S T C 252 : 1962 Cur L J 591 : A I R 1963 Punj 28 (30, 31) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Existence of alternative remedy—Discretion of Court to grant relief under Art. 226.

The legal position is well settled that in spite of the existence of adequate alternative remedy a discretion vests in the High Court to entertain a petition for writ etc. and to grant requisite relief. The broad lines of the general principles are no longer in dispute; their application to a given case however depends on the variety of individual facts and peculiar circumstances and no inflexible or rigid rule has ever been laid down or is possible to lay down which would control and govern all cases. AIR 1961 S C 1506 and 1962 P L R 586 Ref.

Where the so-called alternative remedy came into existence only long after the writ petition was admitted and the petitioner did exhaust the only remedy available before the alternative remedy came into existence.

Held, to decline relief under Art. 226 on the existence of an alternative remedy would be defeating the cause of justice. 64 Pun L R 1005 : 1962 Cur L J 436.

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Grounds on which it can be issued.

If a party has availed himself of the ordinary remedy provided by a special Act, he cannot thereafter turn round and begin once again from the bottom by challenging the original order under Art. 226 of the Constitution. AIR 1963 S C 1124; A I R 1958 S C 868 : 60 Cal W N 1042 and A I R 1957 Cal 638, Rel. on. ILR (1965) 15 Raj 1114 : 1966 Raj L W 66.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy — Applicant availing himself of remedy of revision before High Court but allowing it to be dismissed as not pressed—Right to file writ petition. 1958 Raj L W 420.

——Art. 226 — Other remedy open — Order under S. 20, Minimum Wages Act, 1948—Suit by employer barred on the question of payment of wages—Application under Art. 226 — Competent. 1957 Raj L W 93 : I L R (1957) 7 Raj 74 : A I R 1957 Raj 35 (36) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Alternative remedy open but not availed of.

Where the action of the Custodian is without jurisdiction regarding the recovery of the amount from the petitioner as arrears of land revenue, the mere fact that the petitioner has a remedy by way of a regular suit under S. 4 of the Revenue Recovery Act, 1899, is not sufficient to disentitle him to an order or direction in the nature of a writ of prohibition under Art. 226 of the Constitution of India. A I R 1953 Raj 71, Rel. on. I L R (1953) 3 Raj 336 : 1953 Raj L W 581 : AIR 1953 Raj 185 (188) (Pt C) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art 226 (1)—Writ of prohibition—Issue of when alternative remedy is not availed of — (Houses and Rents—Rajasthan Premises (Requisition and Eviction) Ordinance (11 of 1949) S 5).

Where an authority or tribunal is acting without or in excess of its jurisdiction, the Court would issue a writ of prohibition, even though there might have been an alternative remedy which might not have been availed of, for the Court having come to know of want of or excess of jurisdiction would not allow the authority or tribunal to carry on further in the same manner. (1907) 1 K B 145 and (1914) 3 K B 429, Rel. on.

Where, therefore, the Collector has acted without jurisdiction, in that he has not laid the foundation of his jurisdiction by any valid notice under the Ordinance, and the order of requisitioning has not been carried out, even if the landlord has not appealed against the order a writ of prohibition would be issued to the Collector not to proceed further on the notice. 1952 Raj L W 71 : I L R (1951) 1 Raj 853 : AIR 1952 Raj 137 (141) (Pt G) (Pr 16) (DB).

——Art. 226—Another remedy open—Application on ground that Rajasthan Food Grains Control Order 1949 was ultra vires and freezing of grain improper — Remedy by way of suit held barred by S. 16 of Essential Supplies (Temporary Powers) Act (1946) — Hence application could not be dismissed on ground of another remedy being open. ILR (1951) 1 Raj 692 : AIR 1952 Raj 79 (80) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Remedy available but not availed of —Travancore Medical Practitioners' Act (7 of 1119), Ss. 22 (1) (iii), 23, 25, 32.

The petitioner who was a medical practitioner applied under the Act for registration in Part A for Ayurveda and then applied for registration in Part B for Allopathy. The former was allowed while the latter was rejected. No appeal was filed thereupon but after about six years an application was presented to the Medical Council. The same was rejected and also the appeal to the Government. On petition to the High Court under Art. 226.

Held, that while the Medical Council is bound to register an applicant who holds a registered certification it is in the discretion of the Medical Council to register or not to register him under the other provisions of S. 22. Notwithstanding that it was in the discretion, if the petitioner felt aggrieved by the Council's order he had a remedy of appeal. Not having availed of it the Council's order became final and conclusive. The subsequent application presented to the Council several years thereafter was rightly disallowed. The circumstances that the ground given for rejecting application was not the expiry of the period within which the applicant should have been registered was immaterial. A I R 1954 Trav-Co 201 (202) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Art 226—Other remedy available—Issue of writ under Article—(Obiter).

Obiter. — When a party has other adequate legal remedy available to him and has sought such remedy, he is not entitled to invoke the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226. Case law discussed. 1951 Ker L T 701 : AIR 1953 T C 26 (28, 29) (Pt B) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226—Alternate remedy—All remedies must be first exhausted. AIR 1955 N U C (Vin Pra) 684.

8. "Any other purpose".
See also Notes 71 and 81.
(a) Ejusdem generis, rule of.
(b) Non-fundamental rights, enforcement of.
See Notes 71 and 81.

8. "Any other purpose".
See also Notes 71 and 81.

● —Art. 226 -'For any other purpose'—Expression does not confer untrammelled power on High Court.

Though even administrative orders passed by an executive authority might be upset if they are without jurisdiction as being contrary to the express provisions of law or in excess of the power conferred by law on such an authority, the phrase 'for any other purpose' does not give the High Court an untrammelled right to pass any order that it pleases and has to be read in the context of what precedes the same. A I R 1952 S C 12 and A I R 1952 Orissa 344, Rel. on.

Held, that the orders by the District Inspector of Schools and the Deputy Director of Education asking manager of an educational institution to cancel an order of dismissal passed without the prior approval of the Educational authorities and suspending the grant in-aid of the institution if it failed to do so were not without jurisdiction. Sri Durga Gita Vidyalaya v. State of U. P., 1962 All L J 329 : 1962 All W R (HC) 243 : ILR (1962) 1 All 737 : A I R 1962 All 187 (192, 193) (Pt F) (Pr 22) (FB).

——Art. 226 — 'For any other purpose' — Scope of expression—Aid of High Court — Grounds to invoke —Writ to satisfy sentiments cannot be issued.

The expression 'any other purpose' in Art. 226 of the Constitution suggests that the aid of the High Court may be invoked by a person for the protection of his or her ordinary legal rights, interests and privileges or for the prevention of legal wrongs or injuries to him or her. But a writ order or direction cannot be issued to satisfy the sentiments. (1962) (1) Cri L J 241: 1962 All W R (HC) 225 : 1962 All Cr R 144 : A I R 1962 All 151 (152) (Pt B) (Prs 3, 4).

——Art. 226—Petition under—Powers of High Court — Not confined to enforcement of Fundamental rights—Purpose for exercise of power—Tests.

The power conferred on the High Courts by Art. 226 is not confined to the enforcement of the fundamental rights alone conferred by Part III of the Constitution but is sufficiently wide. It can be exercised for 'any other purpose also.' The test for its exercise is the existence of some legal right vested in the individual who is complaining that the same is threatened or otherwise endangered. If the Court is convinced that the party aggrieved is entitled to such a right it will not grudge to invoke its controlling jurisdiction under the Article which in its ambit is not limited by name mentioned in it but it may issue such other further writ or direction as shall secure the ends of justice. 1961 All L J 226 : ILR (1961) 1 All 252.

——Art. 226—Applicability—If confined to enforcement of public rights — Private right — Writ of mandamus or certiorari to enforce

This Article is not confined to the enforcement of public rights and there is no bar under Art. 226 of the Constitution to the High Court enforcing private rights by means of a writ of mandamus or certiorari or any directions suitable to the circumstances of the case. A I R 1957 All 234 (235) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226—Selection of Text Books for use in the Schools—Administrative rules or instructions framed by Government for selection—State Text Books Committee constituted under — Text Books "ordered to be prescribed" subject to execution of agreement in favour of Government — Subsequent cancellation — —Validity – Power of Director of Public Instruction or Government to cancel text books prescribed by Text Book Committee — Imputation of mala fides — Proof — Principles of natural justice — Absence of concluded contract and enforceable legal right — Issue of certiorari and mandamus—Powers of Court.

Under the rules framed by the Government regarding the selection of text books for use in the schools in the State, the final right and duty of prescribing the books rest wholly on the Government; the State Text Book Committee is not the final arbiter in the matter, but only an adviser. This is as it should be because the Government are performing a governmental function in prescribing text books for schools. A governmental function is not ordinarily, and perhaps cannot be, parted with completely in favour of a non-statutory outside body, like the State Text Book Committee. The intention of the Government must appear with unmistakable clearness before a Court is able to say that the Government has given up its power or function in favour of a body like the Text Book Committee. In the instant case, it cannot be said that the Government wholly relinquished its powers and functions regarding the prescription of Hindi text books. The true position appears to be that the Government only intended to have the benefit of the opinion of the committee and did not surrender its right of final decision to the committee. The Government should at least be treated on a par with a private individual. If so the Text Book Committee in the instant case have no higher right or status than an agent of the Government. Before the action of an ordinary private agent creates legal rights in third parties the principal is entitled to revoke the action of the agent Even so, after the Text Book Committee selected the books and before such selection created legal rights in the publishers or others, the Government was entitled to rescind that selection. The prescription of text books of a particular publisher, under the Government Orders, is a matter of contract between that publisher and the Government. The agreement has to be entered into with the Governor of Andhra Pradesh by the chosen publisher. It is not the case of the petitioners that even without executing this agreement they would get a right to have their text books prescribed for the schools in the State. It is only when such contracts emerge that a legal right will reside in the petitioners, and it is only a person who has an existing and specific legal right that can maintain a petition for a writ of certiorari or mandamus or ask for an order or direction under Art. 226.

There are well understood limits set to the exercise of judicial review under Art. 226 These limits recognise the necessity to allow the Government a reasonable amount of discretion to enable it successfully to carry on the administration of the country. Therefore, even marking the area of the Court's powers rather widely, only those administrative acts and orders which disregard or contravene a statute or statutory rules, which are in excess of the authority of the Government, which constitute a fraud on the statute or on the powers of the Government and which fail to observe the rules of natural justice where binding provisions require them to be observed will be amenable to the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226. In the instant case, no question of non-compliance with law or statute arises; nor is there any foundation laid for the animadversion of improper conduct; what is even more important is that, there is no infraction of any vested right of the petitioners. In a case like the present, the question of natural justice as embodied in audi alteram partem cannot arise. This doctrine has application only to quasi judicial determinations and not to purely administrative orders. (1965) 2 Andh W R 383 : A I R 1965 Andh Pra 425 (428, 429, 430, 431) (Pts A to D) (Prs 5, 7, 10, 12, 14).

——Art. 226 — Issue of writ for any other purpose— Interim relief. 1956 Andh W R 1044 : 1956 Andh L T 911 : A I R 1957 Andh Pra 489 (491) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Vested right under S. 31, Assam Act 17 of 1947 not taken away by amendment of 1954 — Refusal to entertain petition under S. 31 in view of amendment—Remedy under Art. 226 of Constitution— Petitioner has no other remedy except to come to the High Court and get a direction for the hearing of his revision application by the Commissioner See Sales Tax — Assam Sales Tax Act (17 of 1947) S. 31 (as amended by Assam Act 12 of 1954). AIR 1956 Assam 114.

——Art. 226 — 'For any other purpose' — Infringement of legal rights—Settlement of fishery—Bidders invited—Fishery not put up for sale—Right of bidder to invoke jurisdiction under Article — (Assam Land and Revenue Regulation (1 of 1886), R. 12 (framed under S. 155).

Redress under Art 226 may be obtained not only for the enforcement of fundamental rights conferred by Part 3 but also for other legal rights. The words 'for any other purpose' would surely include infringements of other rights. Infringement of a right involves an injury of some kind. Where there is an injury and there is no other mode of obtaining redress, relief may be given under Art 226. A I R 1951 S C 41 Foll. Notice issued inviting bidders to sale of fishery—Petitioner going for bidding at sale—Petitioner deprived of opportunity of taking settlement of fishery as it was not put up for sale under R. 12 — Petitioner applying under Art. 226 challenging validity of R. 12 — Relief held could not be refused to petitioner on ground that he had no locus standi to apply for relief under Art 226. A I R 1951 S C 41, Applied. A I R 1952 S C 12; A I R 1953 Assam 145 and A I R 1953 Assam 155, Distinguished. I L R (1955) 7 Assam 510 : A I R 1956 Assam 48 (52, 53, 54) (Pt D) (Prs 14, 15, 17) (DB).

——Art. 226—"Any other purpose."

Article 226 is not confined to the infringement of rights conferred by Part III of the Constitution. Relief may be given by the High Court for 'any other purpose' which means in cases where the petitioner has a legal right or where legal duty is not performed. I L R (1953) 5 Assam 263 : A I R 1953 Assam 145 (147) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—'For any other purpose'—Existence of legal right not essential.

Ordinarily the High Courts will not interfere, unless there is an infringement of some fundamental or legal right or there is an imminent danger of the infringement of such right. But in special cases the High Courts can interfere even though no such right exists but it is just and expedient for the Courts to interfere with the order passed. This will always be at the instance of an interested person who is able to prove that there exists a right not necessarily fundamental or legal entitling the interference by the High Court. But it will not be proper for the High Courts to interfere with an order of a public authority calling upon a licensee, a displaced person, who is allowed to occupy a building in certain area temporarily for purposes of residence and business, to shift his business to a locality which is being earmarked for the displaced persons. A I R 1956 Bhopal 27 (31, 32) (Pt C) (Prs 14, 16a).

——Art 226—Application for writs of certiorari and prohibition — "Any other purpose' in the Article—Interim injunction—Maintainability.

Petition by the President and a member of a Municipal Board under Art. 226 of the Constitution for writs against a notification superseding the Board was filed and an interim injunction petition was also filed. The opposite party in the injunction petition objected on the ground that the notification published was legal and the Collector and the executive officer have taken charge under it and that the main petition itself was not maintainable.

Held : The interim petition has to be decided on the consideration of tenability or otherwise of the main petition.

The basis of the right to the main petition is that a legal right under the Municipal Act has been infringed. A petition under Art. 226 is tenable only to the enforcement of fundamental rights. The expression for "any other purpose" in Art. 226 means a purpose ancillary to the enforcement of such fundamental rights; no petition for the enforcement of merely a legal right is tenable. A I R 1952 Bhopal 16, Foll ; AIR 1952 S C 12, Rel. on.: AIR 1951 Nag 47 (1): AIR 1951 Vin Pra 3; A I R 1951 Orissa 81; AIR 1952 Cal 315; AIR 1952 Punj 58 and 176; AIR 1952 Trav Co 1 and AIR 1952 Him Pra 35, Not foll.)

The petition which makes a grievance not against any fundamental right under Chap. 3 of the Constitution but against a mere legal right under a local statute is not tenable under Art. 226 and as such the interim petition falls through. AIR 1952 Bhopal 35 (36) (Pts A, B) (Prs 6, 13).

——Art. 226 — Applicant not possessing any fundamental right—If entitled to any writ.

Article 226 deals with writs to enforce the fundamental rights under Art. 19 of the Constitution. Where the applicant does not possess any such right, no writ of mandamus can be issued to enforce any other right under Art 226. 1952 Cri L J 57 : AIR 1951 Bhopal 5 (9) (Pt C) (Pr 21).

——Art 226—Power of High Court—Extent of—No infraction of fundamental right—Writ can be issued even to enforce legal right.

Under Art. 226 of the Constitution the High Court has the power to issue writs and directions not only for the enforcement of fundamental rights but also for other purposes. The High Court may issue writs and directions for the enforcement of a legal right or the performance of a legal duty even though there is no infraction of a fundamental right. AIR 1957 S C 733, Distinguished. 65 Cal W N 153 ; ILR (1961) 2 Cal 265 ; A I R 1961 Cal 636 (640) (Pt C) (Pr 17) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Construction — "For any other purpose"—Meaning of—Teacher in Government Aided School—Application for writ to compel recognition of right to improved scales of pay.

Where the petitioner, a confirmed teacher in a Government aided school, was called up for an interview before a Selection Committee appointed by the Public Service Commission, for testing her suitability as a teacher, for selection by the Committee entitling her to improved scales of pay announced by the State Government, she has a legal right to maintain a petition under Art. 226, challenging the legal competency of the Public Service Commission to test her suitability. If the petitioner ignores the direction or order for interview, she does so at her peril The right to improve scales of pay or a right to be prevented from being jeopardised or discriminated against, by one's colleagues under similar conditions of service, is equally a right which the law will respect and recognise. A I R 1952 S C 12 and AIR 1952 S C 16, Rel. on. 62 Cal W N 429 : A I R 1958 Cal 845 (848) (Pt A) (Prs 13, 14).

——Art. 226—Scope of Art. 226.

Article 226, is not confined only to the enforcement of the fundamental rights conferred under Part 3 of the Constitution. No doubt the writs mentioned therein would be available for the enforcement of such rights but they are available for the enforcement of other rights which do not come within the scope of Part 3 of the Constitution. AIR 1950 Bom 363, Ref. AIR 1955 Cal 581 (583) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226 — The words "and for any other purpose" must mean "for any other purpose for which any of the writs mentioned would, according to well-established principles, issue" 87 Cal L J 149 : AIR 1952 Cal 315 (318) (Pt D) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226—"For any other purpose"

The words 'for any other purpose' contemplate only the enforcement of a legal right or performance of a legal duty. (A I R 1950 Pat 387 (FB), Rel. on.) I L R (1953) Hyd 374 ; A I R 1953 Hyd 228 (228) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art 226 and (as applied to Jammu and Kashmir), Art. 32 (2-A) — Writ jurisdiction of High Court — When can be invoked.

For successfully moving the High Court by means of writ petition under Art. 32 (2-A) of the Constitution of India (as applied to Jammu and Kashmir) it is not necessary for an aggrieved petitioner to establish violation of his fundamental right under Part 3 of the Constitution of India. A writ can properly be entertained on other grounds also. Where the Sales Tax Officer has taken steps to levy and collect sales tax, without jurisdiction and in contravention of Art. 285 and the error of law is apparent on the face of the proceedings, a writ petition preferred by the petitioner-assessee is competent. 1962 Kash L J 83 : AIR 1962 J and K 89 (96) (Pt H) (Pr 26) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1966 S C 1350.]

——Art. 226 — Construction — "For any other purpose" — Meaning of — Right sought to be enforced must be a legal right.

Held, on facts that the fact that the authorities chose to act against law in some cases did not mean that High Court should force them to act against law in similar cases. He should have no grievance if the law is enforced in his case. AIR 1957 J & K 47 (1) (Pr 1).

——Art. 226 — Clause (2 A) added in Art. 32 by Constitution (Application to Jammu and Kashmir) Order, 1954—"And for any other purpose" — Difference between the two provisions pointed out. A I R 1955 N U C (J & K) 1550 (DB).

——Art. 226—Scope—(Madhya Bharat Police Regulations, Part 6, Chap. 8, S. 3—Order under).

The words 'for any other purpose' in Art. 226, refer to the enforcement of any legal right. Therefore, unless there is an infringement of a fundamental right conferred by Part 3 of the Constitution of India or any other legal right, no petition can be entertained under Art. 226.

The mere fact of passing a surveillance order under M. B. Police Regulations does not give the petitioner any right under Art. 226, because the surveillance order does not infringe any fundamental rights.

Per Dixit, J. — The manner in which the order of surveillance should be carried out is entirely in the discretion of the police officer whose duty is to carry out the order. A direction under Art. 226 cannot be issued to control this discretion of the police officers. A I R 1950 Pat 387 (FB); A I R 1950 Bom 363 (FB); AIR 1951 Madh B 121 (FB), Ref. ILR (1953) Madh B 162 : AIR 1954 Madh B 63 (63, 64) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—And for any other purpose — Meaning —Does not allow petitions for agitating public questions.

The expression "and for any other purpose" in Art. 226 does not lend support to the contention that even for the purpose of agitating public questions, the applicant can resort to the process of quo warranto, mentioned in the Article. The expression cannot be interpreted to mean a purpose other than protection of the legal rights of a person. Courts are only for the purposes of adjudicating upon legal rights of persons and it is not their province to decide questions of academic importance. The jurisdiction under Art. 226 can be invoked only by or at the instance of a person, who has suffered a legal injury at the hands of the executive Government of the State or some tribunal and the rights under the Article are personal and direct. (1952) 2 Mad L J 779 : AIR 1953 Mad 96 (97) (Pt B) (Pr 9).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1957 Mad 17.]

——Art. 226—Scope and exercise of the powers conferred by—Lawful detention of member of Legislative Assembly under Preventive Detention Act, 1950 —Permission to attend the sitting of the Assembly during detention — Right to correspond with the Speaker of the Assembly.

Article 226 confers on the High Court extremely wide powers of interference and a corresponding extremely heavy burden of responsibility. The framers of the Constitution could never have contemplated High Courts constituting themselves on applications by all sorts of aggrieved persons into inquisitorial tribunals supervising, criticising, modifying or cancelling the actions and orders of different departments of executive authority, institutions, public bodies and last but not least of the Legislatures as regards their internal affairs which are controlled by the Speaker of the House and its committees. It is only in exceptional cases that writs under the wide powers "for any other purpose" can be issued, such as for instance where there has been a clear violation of statutory law, when principles of natural justice have been violated or perhaps where there has been mala fide discrimination against an individual to the detriment of his rights.

If a member of a Legislative Assembly is arrested and lawfully detained, though without actual trial under any Preventive Detention Act and the detention is lawful, bona fide and for proper grounds, he cannot be permitted to attend the sittings of the House. But if a party in power detains a political opponent or continues his detention with the mala fide object of stifling opposition and prejudicing the party to which he belongs in a forthcoming election there would be an undermining of the basis of the Constitution.

During the period of his detention under the Preventive Detention Act a member of the Legislative Assembly has a right to correspond without let or hindrance with the Speaker and Chairman of the Committee of Privileges of the House. This right flows not merely from principles of natural justice which will be violated by such letters being withheld, but as a continuing member of the House, he would be entitled to this privilege under Art. 194 (3) of the Constitution. 64 Mad L W 1031 : (1952) 1 Mad L J 1 : I L R (1953) Mad 93 : 1951 Mad W N 838 : 1951 Mad W N (Cri) 258 : A I R 1952 Mad 117 (118, 119) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Scope — Power to issue writ for purpose other than enforcement of fundamental rights.

Under Art. 226 power is conferred upon the High Court to issue not only writs in the nature of various categories specified in that article but those writs themselves as also 'directions' and 'orders' and they may be issued not only for the enforcement of fundamental rights but for any other purpose. 1951 Raj L W 56 : (1951) 20 I T R 214 : ILR (1951) 1 Raj 96 : AIR 1951 Raj 94 (2) (104) (Pt I) (Pr 27a).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1954 S C 158.]

——Art. 226—Scope—"Any other purpose"

The words 'any other purpose" were embodied in Art. 226 in order to remove any doubt that the High Court's jurisdiction to issue the writs was confined merely to the enforcement of fundamental rights, because the High Court could issue a writ otherwise than for the enforcement of fundamental rights, and that power of the High Court is saved and safeguarded by providing in Art. 226 that the writs can be issued not only for the purposes of enforcement of fundamental rights but also for any other purpose ; A I R 1950 Bom 363, Foll. 1951 Raj L W 280 : ILR (1951) 1 Raj 59 (DB).

8 (a). Ejusdem generis, rule of.

——Art. 226—'For any other purpose'—Existence of right essential for exercise of jurisdiction under Art. 226.

The words "for any other purpose" in the Article have got to be construed in the context of what precedes the same. Those words necessarily imply "for the enforcement of any other right." The foundation for the exercise of powers under Art. 226 of the Constitution is the existence of a right in the petitioner and in the absence of any such right possessed by the petitioner, the High Court cannot grant any relief to the petitioner under Art. 226 of the Constitution. I L R (1956) 1 All 712 : A I R 1956 All 503 (505) (Pt A) (Pr 7) (DB).

[Overruled on another point in A I R 1960 All 477 (FB)].

——Art. 226—"For any other purpose"—Meaning—Jurisdiction of Judicial Commissioner's Court to issue writs.

Applying the principle of ejusdem generis to the expression "for any other purpose", it would appear that the generality of this expression is restricted by the preceding expression "for the enforcement of any of the rights conferred by part 3." The expression limits the jurisdiction of the Judicial Commissioner's Court of Bhopal to issue only the writs as mentioned under Art. 226 only for the enforcement of any of the rights conferred by Part 3 or for any other ancillary purpose. Consequently an application for issue of a writ of certiorari to the Custodian General of Evacuee Property, New Delhi and a writ of prohibition to the Custodian of Evacuee Property of Bhopal, being outside the scope of Art. 226, the Judicial Commissioner's Court of Bhopal has no jurisdiction to entertain and decide it. A I R 1949 Bom 277 and AIR 1950 Bom 363, Disting. AIR 1950 Pat 387, Rel. on. A I R 1942 Cal 343, Ref. to. A I R 1952 Bhopal 16 (18) (Pt A) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226—"Any other purpose"—Meaning of.

The words "any other purpose" in Art. 226 of the Constitution mean no more than any other purpose ancillary to the enforcement of any of the rights conferred by Part 3 of the Constitution. A I R 1950 Pat 387, Not Foll. 1952 Cri L J 660 : AIR 1922 Bhopal 1 (3, 4) (Pt B) (Prs 9, 10, 12, 17).

——Arts. 226, 19 — 'And for any other purpose' — Interpretation of—Legal right is very foundation of application under Article 226—Foreigner though he has no fundamental right under Art. 19 has locus standi to claim legal right under Art. 226 — Held, petitioner having not even any legal right under S. 39. Calcutta Police Act, for renewal of licence petition must be dismissed.

Per P. B. Mukherji J.—Article 226 is expressly clear about the two fold purposes for which writs or orders can be issued thereunder and that is (i) for the enforcement of any of the rights conferred by Part III of the Constitution and (ii) for any other purpose. One way of looking at this Article is that the word 'and' is not disjunctive but conjunctive. But the trend of decisions where the point was incidentally discussed appears to be against this view. The authorities seem to indicate that the expression 'and for any other purpose' in Article 226 of the Constitution should be taken disjunctively and the word 'and' should be read as 'or' and the words 'any other purpose' should be read as distinct and separate not connected with the enforcement of fundamental rights and not even as ejusdem generis. But this much is quite clear that a legal right is the very foundation of an application under Article 226. If there is a legal right then a person can move the High Court under Art 226 for appropriate order or writ: AIR 1952 S C 12, Rel. on; AIR 1956 Bhopal 27 Dissent. from. Therefore, even if a foreigner has no locus standi to claim a fundamental right under Art. 19 he can still have a locus standi to claim a legal right, if he has any, and attempt to enforce it by a writ or order or direction under Art. 226. But since the petitioner in the case has not any legal right he is not entitled to any relief.

Per Laik, J. — Though the main purpose of our Constitution is to protect the freedom of each individual citizen to carry on his trade or business throughout the territory of India in current times the policy of the demotratic State is bound to be flexible. The needs of the country, the invasion of the Indian territory by a Foreign State and subsequent agreements between two Border States, the position of other contiguous Foreign States the need to protect national industries and such and all other relevant considerations have no doubt to be examined by the Government from time to time and provisions have to be made and rules to be suitably adjusted Therefore it is idle, to suggest, that there may be an unfettered and unrestricted freedom of running a business in this country even by a foreigner or that the policy of the Government must be fixed and not changed, according to the requirements of the country. In the never ending race, the law must keep pace with the realities of the social and political evaluation of the country, as reflected in the Constitution. The State is to give effect to these avowed purposes of our Constitution to promote the welfare of the people in preference to the Foreigners, from the point of view of unity of possession, unity of interest, unity of title and unity of time.

The equal protection of law does not mean that every law must have uuiversal application for all persons who are not by nature, attainment or circumstances in the same position but the varying needs of the different classes of persons often require separate treatment, the argument that the theory of equal protection of law should also be extended in the case of foreigners, cannot be accepted: AIR 1951 S C 41, Rel. on.

Pakistan must be regarded as a foreign power though not a foreign State in view of the Declaration Order (Foreign States) of 1950. If a person be a Pakistani national he would be a foreigner. Art. 19 (1) guarantees to Indian Citizens only the right to carry on trad ; it does not apply to foreigners. Citizenship has a reference to the political status of a person but not to his civil rights. Pakistani national may be a Commonwealth citizen but the word 'citizen' in the said context is only an echo of the phrase.

Therefore, the appellant, a Pakistani National, is not entitled to move the application under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Again under S. 39 of Calcutta Police Act there is no inherent right of any citizen of India, far less of a non-citizen to run an eating house. There can be no question of any right being infringed, the cancellation of the licence being under a valid law: AIR 1960 S C 415, Rel. on.

The right of the appellant to get the licence for the eating house renewed is like a mere chance or prospect of having an interest in an undertaking. This right cannot thus be measured by the yardstick of the principles of the legal rights, It might utmost be like a hyphen which joins fundamental right and the legal right or a buckle which joins both; therefore the appellant has got no legal right. even by the process of strained construction: AIR 1955 S C 549, Rel. on.

The expression 'Any other purpose' in Art. 226 does not mean that there would be no existence of right which is the foundation of exercise of jurisdiction under Art. 226. The petitioner in the case having no fundamental right, inherent right or any legal right is not entitled to move the application under Art. 226 of the Constitution. 1965 (1) Cri L J 679: AIR 1965 Cal 312 (322 to 327) (Pt G) (Prs 34, 35, 43, 51, 58, 59, 60, 64, 65, 68 69) (DB).

—Art. 226—The expression 'for any other purpose' has to be read in the light of the context in which it appears. Where the rule is issued for the limited purpose of the issue of writs of mandamus, certiorari or prohibition and the order of supersession under S. 131 of the Bengal Local Self Government Act (1885) does not call for interference by the issue of these prerogative writs with a view to quash the order of supersession, the High Court cannot restrain the opposite parties from giving effect to the order of supersession. AIR 1952 Cal 610, Rel. on. AIR 1952 Cal 901 (904, 905) (Pt C) (Pr 25).

—Art. 226—"For any other purpose"—"Shall have power"—Meaning of.

The words "for any other purpose" necessarily presuppose the infringement of some right or the other, though not any of the rights conferred by Part III, as a condition precedent to the issue of the writs or orders There could be no question of the grant of a relief by a Court without the infringement of a legal right. Further the determination of that right should not depend upon the elaborate procedure which is only possible in a suit but not in the summary proceedings under the Article. The use of the words "shall have power" in the Article emphasises the fact that the issue of the writs, directions and orders in question is entirely a matter for the discretion of the Court. And one of the grounds against the exercise of that discretion would be that the right claimed by the petitioner is not capable of being established in the summary proceedings under the said Article.

—Held, it was not possible for the Judicial Commissioner's Court on the material placed before it, or which could possibly be placed in the summary proceedings, to come to a finding whether the petitioner had the right to claim the reliefs prayed for by them. I L R 62 Cal 598, AIR 1949 Bom 229, Rel on. AIR 1952 Him Pra & B 35 (36, 37, 38) (Prs 12: 13, 15).

—Arts. 226 & 32 (3) — "Any other purpose" — Words, if to be read ejusdem generis with purpose mentioned in Article—Interpretation of statutes.

The words "any other purpose" in Article 226 should not be read as ejusdem generis with the purpose specially mentioned before. The power to issue directions, orders or writs under Art. 226 is discretionary and the rule of ejusdem generis has but little, if any value in construing a provision conferring discretionary powers on the juidiciary. Secondly, the rule being one of mere construction and not an inflexible one, it cannot be applied where its application would defeat the general intent of the instrument to be construed. The object of the article in giving to the High Court the discretionary jurisdiction to issue certain directions or writs is to secure the protection of the rights of the public and to ampliate justice and redress grievances in any matter which the ordinary course of law is too defective to reach. Its purpose is not merely to prevent the infringement only of those rights mentioned in Part III. Consistently, therefore, with the object of the article the words "any other purpose," must be construed to refer to all purposes for which in English Common Law the high prerogative writs are issued, to wit, for the protection of the rights of the individuals, to check excess or abuse of powers. I L R (1952) Madh B 231 : AIR 1950 Madh B 46 (50, 51) (Pt E) (Pr 11) (DB).

● ——Art. 226 (1)—"For any other purpose" — Meaning of -Issue of mandamus in matters of discretion—Mandamus upon State Governments directing it to refer dispute under S. 10 (1), proviso, Industrial Disputes Act—Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 (1) proviso.

Article 226 contemplates the issue of writs and directions for purposes other than the enforcement of the fundamental rights. At the same time the words "for any other purpose" in the article can hardly mean that the High Court can issue writs for any purpose it pleases. The correct interpretation is that the words mean for the enforcement of any legal right and the performance of any legal duty.' To that extent the words must be read ejusdem generis, which is the ordinary principle of construction. Moreover, it could never have been intended that resort could be had to this extraordinary procedure where an adequate remedy is available by ordinary legal process, for example, by suit, otherwise the ordinary legal procedure, including the payment of court-fees, would be abrogated. An application under Art. 226 is and must remain an extraordinary remedy to be used where ordinary legal process cannot give adequate and prompt relief.

It is well settled that mandamus will not issue in a matter of discretion. Under sub-s. (1) to S. 10, Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 and the proviso thereto, it" is a power or discretion that is given rather than a duty or obligation. The word "inexpedient" in the proviso is very wide and despite the use of the word "shall" it gives complete discretion to Government. Where, therefore the State Government refuses to refer the industrial dispute under the proviso writ of mandamus under Art. 226 cannot be issued directing the Government to refer the dispute under the proviso Bagaram Tuloule v. State of Bihar, 1951 Cri L J 1509 : (1950-51) 2 F J R 71 : ILR 29 Pat 491 : A I R 1950 Pat 387 (388 to 391) (Prs 5, 6, 8, 9, 10, 11, 15) (FB).

8 (b). Non-fundamental rights, enforcement of.

See Notes 71 and 81.

9. "Any person" meaning of.

——Art. 226—Against whom writ can issue—No independent order passed by Divisional Superintendent, Northern Railway—No relief can be granted against him. AIR 1955 NUC (All) 5818.

——Art. 226 — The words "any person or authority" include Courts and tribunals whether under the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court or not. 1952 Cri L J 1695 : I L R (1952) 1 All 558 : AIR 1952 All 963 (966) (Pt D) (Pr 21) (DB).

——Art. 226 – Application against corporate body like State Medical – Faculty by its name is legal — State Medical Faculty as such is a person against whom direction and order of writ can issue. I L R (1953) 2 Cal 107 : 56 Cal W N 861 : A I R 1953 Cal 212 (213) (Pt B) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Art. 226—"Any person."

The power of the High Court to issue a writ under Art. 226 to "any person" can only mean the power to issue such a writ to any person to whom, according to well established principles, a writ lay. A writ may issue to the General Manager of Indian Railway. 87 Cal L J 149 : AIR 1952 Cal 315 (318) (Pt C) (Pr 11).

10. Appeal from order in.

● ——Art. 226 — Assessment without jurisdiction validated by U. P. Act (14 of 1956) — Assessee given right to apply for review of orders made under U. P. Act (3 of 1949) — Assessment order set aside under Art. 226—Review of order under Art. 226 under U. P. Act 14 of 1956 is not maintainable — Review application dismissed by single judge — Order is judgment under Cl. 10 of Letters Patent (All) and Chap. 8, R. 5 of Allahabad High Court Rules and appealable. See U. P. Agricultural Income Tax Act, 1948 (3 of 1949), S. 2. AIR 1963 SC 946.

● ——Arts. 226 and 227—Interlocutory orders by High Court in writ proceedings—Interference by Supreme Court.

Although ordinarily the Supreme Court would not entertain an appeal against an interlocutory order passed by the High Court in the writ proceedings pending before it, yet it would interfere with such orders when exceptional and unusual features in the case presented before it warrant such interference. Nagendra Nath Bora v. Commissioner of Hills Division and Appeals, Assam, 36 Mys L J 389 : 1958 S C J 798 : 1958 S C A 572 : 1958 S C R 1240 : AIR 1958 SC 398 (413, 414) (Pt G) (Pr 31).

——Arts. 226, 133 — Order holding that proceedings under Art. 226 were not appropriate — (Civil P. C. (1908), Ss. 109 (b) and 110)—AIR 1956 Pat 175, Doubted—No adjudication upon right of applicant to obtain writ — Article 226 gives power to High Court without giving any one right to invoke that power. See Ibid, Art. 133. AIR 1958 All 800.

——Art. 226—Petition by employer—Union of Employees made respondent — Appeal by Union against decision given in petition—Employer could not question maintainability of appeal on ground that appeal was by the Union and not by employees individually. (1965-66) 29 F J R 170 : AIR 1964 Cal 80 (91) (Pt D) (Pr 36) (DB).

● ——Art. 226 -Order passed in writ proceedings under Art. 226—Nature of—Order disposing of writ petition is final and amounts to judgment — Effect of the order on proceedings before lower tribunal not material. See Ibid, Art. 133. A I R 1964 Mad 194 (FB).

——Arts. 226 and 133 (1) (a)—'Judgment'—Meaning —Order refusing to issue writ under Art. 226 is not judgment or final order. See Ibid, Art. 133 (1) (a). AIR 1955 Nag 257.

● ——Arts. 226 and 227—Powers under — Art. 227 does not give power to hear appeal where it does not lie. See Ibid, Art. 227. AIR 1953 Nag 89 (FB).

——Art. 226—High Court can look into documents referred to in the order sought to be quashed.

In exercise of its jurisdiction in a writ of certiorari, the High Court can look into any of the documents referred to in the order itself or the pleadings which initiated the proceedings. (1965) 1 Lab L J 349 (Orissa).

——Arts. 226, 133 (1) and 227 — Nature of Proceedings – 'Final Order' 'Civil proceeding' — (Income-tax Act (1922), S. 23)– (Civil P. C. (1908), S. 109)– (Words and Phrases — 'Civil Proceeding'). See Ibid, Art. 133 (1). AIR 1956 Pat 175 (DB).

——Art. 226—The word "Judgment" in S. 369 Criminal P. C. means judgment of conviction or acquittal. A decision on a writ petition is neither a case of conviction nor that of acquittal. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 369. ILR (1954) Patiala 31.

● ——Art. 226—Nature of proceedings under Art. 226 —Order of assessment to sales tax—Writ petition challenging order — Petition allowed and assessment quashed—Order of High Court is judgment, decree or order in a 'Civil Proceeding' within Art. 133—High Court competent to grant certificate under Art. 133 (1) (c). See Ibid, Art. 133. A I R 1965 Punj 459 (FB).

Supreme Court

● ——Arts. 226, 133—Taxation proceedings—Appeal to Supreme Court from High Court—Infringement of civil rights by taxing Act—Proceeding for relief initiated by way of suit or prerogative writs—Falls within the scope of 'Civil Proceedings'—Orders of High Court — Appealable to Supreme Court as any other civil proceedings—Income-tax Act (11 of 1922), S. 18-A (6), Fifth Proviso added by Act 25 of 1953) —Penal interest — Advance tax — Estimated tax less than the statutory percentage — Officer obliged by statute as it stood then to charge penal interest — No levy made at the regular assessment — Conferment of power on officer in prescribed circumstances to waive or reduce interest with retrospective effect—Rectification proceedings — Prescribed circumstances existing in the case of the assessee — Penal interest added in rectification proceedings — Failure to take note of law deemed to be in force — Order illegal, liable to be quashed—Interpretation—Taxing statutes — Proviso enacted with retrospective operation in circumstances prescribed — Prescription made subsequently by rules — Retrospective operation of the rules. See Ibid, Art. 133. AIR 1965 S C 1818.

● ——Art. 226—Madras Hindu Religious and Charitable Endowments Act (19 of 1951) (as amended in 1959 and 1961), S. 64 (4) — Notification under — Validity challenged by a writ petition — High Court not issuing writ under the impression that notification would shortly expire — Subsequent legislation extending its life not considered — Rejection of petition by High Court held erroneous and set aside. ILR (1962) Mad 449, Reversed. Sri-la Sri Subramania v. State of Madras, 1965 S C D 918 : (1965) 2 S C J 711 : (1965) 2 Andh W R (S C) 167 : (1965) 2 Mad L J (SC) 167 : AIR 1965 S C 1578 (1582, 1583) (Pt C) (Pr 18).

● ——Art. 226—New point in appeal before Supreme Court against High Court order upon writ petition. See Ibid, Art. 132. AIR 1965 S C 1167.

● ——Art. 226—Jurisdiction—Power of High Court to interfere.

The High Court observed that the petitioner had challenged the authority of the State Government to enact a law whereby tax on the sale of goods outside the State could be levied and the application of the law itself to the circumstances of the case. The petitioner had also averred in his petition that he had a fundamental right of free trade and any such imposition infringed that right of the petitioner. So the High Court did not entertain the plea in bar. In appeal by Special Leave ; Held, that the High Court had given good reasons for interference. State of Rajasthan v Karamchand Thappar, (1965 16 S T C 412 : AIR 1965 S C 913 (916) (Pt B) (Pr 16).

● ——Art. 226 — Supreme Court — Practice — Trial Court refusing to issue a rule nisi on application under Art. 226—Appellate Court reversing the order —Appeal to Supreme Court under Art. 136—Contention that appellate Court should not have interfered with discretion exercised by trial Court—Held, that orders of both Courts are interlocutory — Though powers under Art. 136 are very wide, Supreme Court does not interfere with such orders—Secondly, order of appellate Court merely being that rule nisi should issue, there was no reason to interfere with it. See Ibid, Art. 136. AIR 1964 S C 1636.

● ——Arts. 226, 136—Appeal against order of High Court under Art. 226—Question of jurisdiction can only be argued.

Where the appeal has been brought against the decision of the High Court and the appellant had moved the said High Court under Art. 226, and that too against the order of the Collector of Customs, the only point which could be argued by the appellant would be one of jurisdiction. British India Steam Navigation Co., Ltd. v. Jasjit Singh, Addl. Collector of Customs, Calcutta, (1965) 1 S C A 424 : (1964) 1 S C W R 463 : (1964) 34 Com Cas 689 : (1964) 2 SCJ 543 : AIR 1964 S C 1451 (1453) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

● ——Arts. 226, 136, 32 — Other remedies open — Jurisdiction of Supreme Court to interfere.

The Supreme Court generally does not entertain appeals against the orders passed by a Tribunal unless the alternative remedies provided by the relevant Act by way of appeals or revisions have been pursued by the aggrieved party. Against the order of confiscation and fine passed by the Collector of Customs under the Sea Customs Act an appeal is competent, and against the decision of the appellate authority, a revision also lies. The rule that a party who applies for the issue of a high prerogative writ should, before he approaches the Court, have exhausted other remedies open to him under the law, though not one which bars the jurisdiction of the Court to entertain the petition or to deal with it, is a rule which Courts have laid down to the exercise of their discretion. (Where, however, the writ petitions were presumably admitted because they raised a question of some importance which had already been raised by some appeals properly brought before the Supreme Court under Art. 136, the Supreme Court allowed the counsel to argue these writ petitions on the question of construction alone). AIR 1961 S C 1506, Rel. on. British India Steam Navigation Co, Ltd. v. Jasjit Singh, Addl. Collector of Customs, Calcutta, (1965) 1 S C A 424 : (1964) 1 S C W R 463 : (1964) 34 Com Cas 689 : (1964) 2 S C J 543 : A I R 1964 S C 1451 (1453) (Pt C) (Prs 7, 8).

● ——Art. 226 — Application filed after filing of appeal against order of assessment to Sales Tax Appellate Tribunal — Supreme Court granting Special Leave to appeal against order of High Court refusing to issue writ—Dismissal of Sales Tax Appeal by Sales Tax Appellate Tribunal subsequently—High Court also dismissing application for direction to tribunal to refer a question of law raised in that appeal Held, that order did not bar the appeal against the order in the writ petition. Chandra Bhan Gosain v. State of Orissa, 1963 Ker L T 1063 : 30 Cut L T 145 : (1963) 14 S T C 766 : 1964 S C D 195 : (1964) 1 S C J 575 : (1963) 2 S C W R 151 : (1964) 2 SCR 885.

● ——Art 226—Certificate under Art. 132 (1)—High Court holding that case involves substantial question of law as to interpretation of Art. 226 and not Art. 311 —Effect is to enable appellant to appeal to Supreme Court on ground that question of interpretation of Art 226 has been wrongly decided by High Court and if appellant wishes to appeal on any other ground he can move Supreme Court for necessary leave as required by Art. 132(3). See Ibid, Art. 132(1). AIR 1958 S C 325.

● ——Art. 226—Order of High Court under Art. 226 — Appeal to Supreme Court—Enquiry into merits of rival claims. See Ibid, Art. 136. AIR 1957 S C 529.

● ——Art. 226—Applicability — Decision of Deputy Collector under S. 20, Minimum Wages Act—Application under Art. 226 — Objection to jurisdiction of Deputy Collector on ground that determination involved complicated question of law—Supreme Court refused to entertain objection hence High Court under Art. 226 and also Supreme Court in appeal arrived at the same conclusion as did the Deputy Collector, whatever infirmities might have attached to the Collector's orders. See Ibid, Art. 133 (1)(c). AIR 1957 SC 227.

● —— Art. 226 — Appeal — Orders under Art. 226— Interference. See Ibid, Art. 133 (1) (c). AIR 1957 S C 227.

● ——Arts. 226, 133 (1)—"Judgment or final order" —"Civil proceedings" —Meaning —Order dismissing proceedings under Art. 226 — Whether can be judgment or final order in civil proceeding within Art. 133. See Ibid, Art. 133 (1). AIR 1962 Ker 1 (FB).

● ——Arts. 226, 133(1)—Criminal P.C. (1898), S. 491 —Petition for writ of habeas corpus — Decision on is a judgment or at least final order within Art. 133 (1).

When in a petition for writ of habeas corpus decision is given on merits after hearing arguments, whether the petition is allowed or is refused, it determines the right of the detenu or person in illegal custody to be released from the same or not, and at the same time the right of the party having the custody to maintain the same or not. Such a decision is a judgment, or, in any case a final order. Ram Kumar Pearay Lal v. District Magistrate, Delhi, ILR (1965) 2 Punj 853 : 1966 Cr L J 153 : AIR 1966 Punj 51 (54 to 58) (Pt C) (Pr 8) (FB).

——Arts. 226 and 132 (1) — Substantial question — Question of extent of power under Art. 226 to issue certiorari — Leave should be granted — Writ — Certiorari—Scope.

Where the question involved in the case was whether the High Court can, in exercise of its powers under Art. 226, Constitution of India, call up an order of an inferior tribunal, where no other remedy exists, examine it on its face and see there what the tribunal took into account and what it disregarded and if error be found quash it.

Held, that though the case itself was not of great importance or magnitude an important and substantial question as to the interpretation of Art. 226 is involved and leave should be granted. 1951 Nag L J (Notes) 193 (DB).

Letters Patent.

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Appeal — Order of single Judge dismissing petition — Appealability — (High Court Rules and Orders — Allahabad High Court Rules, Ch. 8, R. 5).

Supervisory power, which expression has been used to indicate the nature of the power exercisable by the Court under Art. 226, partakes of the nature of a power of judicial review and scrutiny; not so the power of superintendence, as stated in R. 5 of Ch 8 of the High Court Rules, which partakes of the nature of administrative or quasi-administrative control. An appeal, therefore, lies from the decision of a single Judge of the High Court dismissing a petition under Arts. 226 and 227. AIR 1955 All 165 and AIR 1957 All 414 (FB), Rel. on. AIR 1957 All 671 (675) (Pt A) (Pr 26) (DB).

——Art. 226—Petition for certiorari dismissed—L. P. Appeal—Interference. (1958) 2 Andh W R 515 : ILR (1958) Andh Pra 829 : AIR 1959 Andh Pra 174 (176) (Pt D) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Art. 226—Letters Patent (Mad), Cl. 15—Order of single Judge in writ proceedings — Appeal — Power of Court to interfere. See Letters Patent (Mad), Cl. 15. AIR 1958 Andh Pra 140.

——Art. 226—Letters Patent (Cal.), Cl. 15 — "Judgment" — Test to determine — Proceeding arising out of income-tax assessment—Application under Art. 226, Constitution of India — Disposal of application whether judgment. See Letters Patent (Cal.), Cl. 15. AIR 1959 Cal 420.

● ——Art. 226—Judgment of single Judge of High Court on application under — Appeal, if lies — Limitation for appeal. See Letters Patent (Calcutta), Cl. 15. AIR 1953 Cal 433 (SB).

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction of High Court — Nature of — Appeal against order under Article — Limitation — (Letters Patent (Cal), Cls. 11, 13, 16, 22, 24 and 27) — (Limitation Act (1908), Art. 151 and S. 5) — High Court Rules —(Calcutta) High Court (Appellate Side) Rules, Chap. II, R. 8 and Chap. VIII, R. 2).

In exercising the power under Art. 226 the High Court does not exercise any of the jurisdictions vested in it under Cls. 11, 13, 16, 22, 24 and 27 of the Letters Patent

In exercising such power the High Court exercises only an original and not an appellate jurisdiction, for the applicant in such proceedings asks in effect for a decision of the dispute between himself and the inferior tribunal or the public official, who is one of the respondents in the application, for the first time, there having been no decision of that dispute previously by any other tribunal.

Therefore Art. 151, Limitation Act, applies to an appeal from an order under Art. 226 of the Constitution.

Rule 8, Chap. II, (Calcutta) High Court (Appellate Side) Rules, which when read with R. 2 of Chap VIII of those Rules has the effect of prescribing a sixty days' period of limitation for such appeals, is ultra vires, invalid and ineffective in law.

(It was, however, held in this case that the appellant, who was misled by the Rules in computing the period of limitation, had sufficient cause within the meaning of S 5, Limitation Act.) AIR 1952 Cal 753 (754, 755) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 5, 8, 9, 10) (DB).

——Art. 226—Letters Patent (Madras), Cl. 13—Jurisdiction of High Court to receive plaint which had to be filed in inferior Court in mofussil — (Civil P. C. (1908), S. 151) — S. R. No. 145247 of 1957 (Mad), Dissent from, See Letters Patent (Madras), Cl. 13. AIR 1958 Mad 284.

——Art. 226—Order of single Judge under Art. 227 and not Art 226 — Letters Patent Appeal is not maintainable. See Letters Patent (Madras), Cl. 15. AIR 1955 Mad 287 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Letters Patent Appeal — Interference in case of discretionary order. See Letters Patent (Madras), Cl. 15. AIR 1954 Mad 1144 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Proceedings under, for writ of certiorari are of the nature of Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction and not revisional jurisdiction — Orders in such proceeding are judgments — Appeal lies from decision of Single Judge to Bench of two Judges — Letters Patent (Mad.), Cl. 15.

An appeal lies from an order passed by a single Judge of the High Court, sitting under R 4 of the Rules framed by the High Court under Art. 225 of the Constitution, and added as Appendix VII to the Appellate Side Rules and published in Fort St. George Gazette dated 28-4-1951, upon a petition for a writ of certiorari, to a Bench of two Judges under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent, the order being a judgment. The bar under Cl. 15, that no appeal will lie from the decision of a Single Judge made in the exercise of revisional jurisdiction has no application to proceedings under Art. 226.

The matter involved in the proceeding for writ of certiorari under Art. 226, is a civil proceeding. It is not a criminal proceeding nor is it in the nature of miscellaneous proceedings such as matrimonial, testamentary, admiralty or other jurisdictions of the High Court. The jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 is in the nature of its Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction.

The revisional jurisdiction contemplated under Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent refers to revisions from Subordinate Courts and not from inferior quasi-judicial tribunals. Neither under S. 115, Civil P. C. nor under S. 107 of the Government of India Act, 1919, did the High Court have any jurisdiction to interfere in revision against any order passed by a quasi judicial tribunal or authority. Such being the case, when Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent speaks of an order made in the exercise of revisional jurisdiction it can only be understood as a jurisdiction exercised by the High Court over a subordinate Court. ILR (1952) Mad 698 : 64 Mad L W 1021 : 1951-2 Mad L J 597 : AIR 1952 Mad 300 (302, 303) (Pt A) (Prs 6, 8, 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Appeal — Decision of single Judge quashing order — Further direction added under Art. 227 — Appeal — If barred. See Letters Patent (Punjab) (1919), Cl. 10. AIR 1961 Punj 24 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Supervisory jurisdiction of High Court over Rent Control Tribunals —Order by Single Judge—Appeal under Cl. 10, Letters Patent (Punjab) — Whether competent — (Letters Patent (Punjab), Cl. 10)—(Houses and Rents — Delhi and Ajmer Merwara Rent Control Act (1947), S. 7-A).

The Rent Controller and the District Judge appointed as an appeal Court under the Delhi Rent Control Act are required to act judicially and, therefore they are subject to supervisory jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution and a writ of certiorari can be issued quashing their orders if the orders have been made in disregard of the principles of natural justice, etc.

Where the landlord applied under Arts. 226 and 227, Constitution of India, seeking to quash the order of the appellate authority (District Judge) under the Delhi Rent Control Act dismissing the landlord's appeal against the order of the Rent Controller fixing standard rent and the single Judge of the High Court treating the petition as one under Art. 227 of the Constitution, dismissed it and the landlord filed a Letters Patent appeal under Cl. 10.

Held, in substance the landlord appellant's application was both under Art 226 and Art. 227 of the Constitution and that the judgment of the single Judge amounted to dismissal of the petition under both the articles.

In this view, an appeal under Cl. 10, Letters Patent against the order of the single Judge of the High Court was competent. 61 Punj L R 315 : ILR (1959) Punj 859 : A I R 1959 Punj 291 (294) (Pt A) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Limitation Act (1908), Art. 151—Application under Art. 226 heard and accepted by Single Judge of High Court — Appeal from order to Division Bench—Limitation — Article 151 applies — Appeal barred if filed beyond 20 days. See Limitation Act (1908), Art. 151. AIR 1958 Punj 365.

● ——Art. 226—Appeal — Order dismissing petition under Art. 226, whether "judgment, decree or final order". See Ibid, Art. 133. AIR 1957 Punj 173 (FB).

Notice.

——Art. 226—Appeal—Procedure in — Rules framed by High Court, R. 43 — Application made under Art. 226 dismissed in limine — Appeal from such order—Appeal need not be heard ex parte.

An appeal from an order under Art. 226 of the Constitution dismissing an application in limine has to be heard upon notice being served and not ex parte. The Rules framed by the High Court in this respect provide that an appeal has to be disposed upon notice to the respondent. The obvious purpose of such notice is to enable the respondent who is the party affected by it to exhibit to the Court the grounds upon which he opposes the appeal. A I R 1963 Cal 152 (156, 160) (Pt B) (Prs 13, 34) (DB).

Procedure.

——Art. 226—Writ appeal—Appeal —Fresh vakalat whether necessary for filing appeal.

Where the original vakalath contains an authorisation for filing the appeal also, if the decision, in the writ application went against the client, no fresh vakalath is necessary for filing the appeal. 1958 Ker L J 484 : 1958 Ker L T 387 : I L R (1958) Ker 870 : AIR 1958 Ker 338 (339) (Pt B) (Pr 1) (DB).

New plea or new point.

● ——Arts. 226 and 133—Appeal from order on writ petition—New objection—Objection not raised before the High Court — Cannot be raised in appeal — Supreme Court — Practice, Sarju Prasad Saha v. State of U. P., (1965) 2 S C W R 1061 : (1965) 2 S C A 794 : (1965) 2 S C J 411 : A I R 1965 S C 1763 (1766) (Pt B) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226—New plea—Writ appeals.

In an appeal from an adverse order made on an application for a writ of mandamus, the appellant is not entitled to a consideration of new point involving an investigation into facts. A I R 1959 Cal 128 (131) (Pt C) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Appeal — New plea — (Civil P. C. (1908), S. 100).

Before the trial judge it was not contended by the employees that on an application for a writ of certiorari he was not entitled to go into and revise the finding of the Appellate Tribunal that the appeal before it was maintainable. Nor was any such ground taken in the memorandum of appeal. In opening the appeal, however, the counsel for the appellants put the ground in the forefront of the points which he wished to argue.

Held, that the appellant should be allowed to take it because it was a pure question of law going to the root of the jurisdiction of the trial judge and because it was clear that the hearing would go over the day so that the Respondents would have sufficient time to consider it. (1956) 2 Lab L J 328 : 60 Cal W N 802 : AIR 1957 Cal 560 (563) (Pt A) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Art. 226—Appeal—New point — (Letters Patent Cl. 15).

Where the existence of a standing order of the Government to supply the respondent with a monthly quota of cement, which was a question of fact was neither alleged in the petition under Art. 226 nor raised in the proceedings on the petition, so that the opposite party had no opportunty to meet it, the respondent was not allowed to raise it in an appeal against the order passed in these proceedings. 57 Cal W N 790 : AIR 1954 Cal 159 (162) (Pt B) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 226—New point.

Entirely new point, particularly not being a pure point of law, not even hinted at in the petition under Art. 226 cannot be urged in appeal. 58 Cal W N 209 : AIR 1954 Cal 151 (154) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 311—Writ appeal — New plea— Departmental enquiry — Allegation of bias against enquiring officer cannot be allowed to be raised for the first time. A I R 1957 S C 425, Rel. on. 1961-3 A E R 621, Ref. ILR (1965) 1 Mad 487.

——Arts. 226, 20 (3), 14 — Practice — Appeal from decision on a writ petition — Validity of a section challenged on ground of contravention of Arts. 14 and 20 3) of the Constitution — Plea under Art. 14 neither taken before lower Court nor mentioned in grounds of appeal—Question allowed to be raised in view of importance of the matter. 1963 (2) Cri L J 636 : ILR (1964) 1 Mad 451 : (1965) 1 Mad L J 465 : AIR 1963 Mad 434 (435) (Pt D) (Pr 1) (DB).

Abatement.

——Art. 226—Petition challenging order of dismissal of election petition—Dismissal—Appeal — Supersession of Municipality — Effect—Appeal, if abates

The appellant filed an election petition in which he challenged the election of the first respondent on the ground that the latter was disqualified under S. 13-D (j) read with S. 43 (1) of the U. P. Municipalities Act, 1916, for being chosen as the President of a Board. The petition was dismissed and the appellant then questioned the correctness of the Tribunal's order by a writ petition which was also dismissed. During the pendency of appeal against the order the Municipality was superseded and the question was whether the appeal had become infructuous.

Held, that the supersession of the Board did not deprive the appellant of his right to appeal against the order dismissing his petition, and as an important question had been raised as to the eligibility of the person who had been elected as President, a final decision by High Court on the question was desirable. AIR 1955 S C 610, Rel. on. 1957 All L J 895 : I L R (1957) 2 All 235.

Limitation.

——Art. 226—Limitation Act (1908), Art. 151—Is applicable to an appeal against the decision given under Art. 226 — (Letters Patent (Cal), Cl. 15). See Limitation Act (1908), Art. 151. AIR 1953 Cal 433.

Court-fees.

● ——Art. 226—Appeal to Supreme Court from order of High Court in a single petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution challenging the validity of various assessment orders – Court-fees and other charges payable — If to be as on a single appeal or several appeals in respect of each assessment order.

Where a person filed a petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution challenging the validity of various assessment orders there is only one proceeding. It could not be said that there were as many proceedings as there were assessment orders, for the petitioner had by a single petition challenged them all together. When an appeal is taken to the Supreme Court from the judgment of the High Court in such a petition, it is impossible to contend that there are more appeals than one. Therefore such an appellant is liable to pay one set of Court-fee and other charges as in a single appeal. Petition for Special Leave No. 673 of 1959 and Civil Appeals Nos. 462 to 465 of 1960, Disting. Chandra Bhan Gosain v. The State of Orissa, (1963) 2 S C J 713 : (1963) 2 S C W R 342 : (1963) 50 I T R 195 : (1963) 2 Ker L R 207 : (1963) 14 S T C 918 : (1963) 2 I T J 467 : 1964 S C D 415 : 30 Cut L T 261 : (1964) 2 S C R 879.

——Art. 226 — Court-fees Act (7 of 1870), Sch. 2, Art. 11 - Travancore-Cochin Court-fees Act (1125), Sch. 2, Art. 6 — Order on application under Art. 226 of Constitution — Appeal — Court fees payable on memorandum of appeal. See Court-fees Act (1870), Sch. 2, Art. 11. AIR 1958 Ker 338.

Remand.

——Art. 226 — Appeal — Procedure in — Power of remand, High Court can remand where necessary matter to trial Court.

The powers of the appellate Court in dealing with a writ appeal are in no way circumscribed by the writ Rules. These rules are purely procedural; they do not have the effect of limiting or enlarging the Court's power to dealing with and disposing of appeals. That power is defined elsewhere; it is to be found in the Civil P. C., which by S. 107 gives the appellate Court the power, inter alia, to determine a case finally or to remand it for further consideration. It is always for the appellate Court to decide what form the interference will take in a given case. There is nothing to prevent the appellate Court from determining finally an appeal from an order of summary rejection of a writ petition if no further investigation is called for. However, if that test is not fulfilled, the High Court can remand the matter to the trial Court with direction to determine it after giving notice to the other party. A I R 1954 Cal 60 and A I R 1958 Cal 559 and A I R 1957 S C 354, Rel. on. A I R 1963 Cal 152 (157, 161) (Pt C) (Prs 16, 17, 40) (DB).

11. Application for.

See also Note 98.

(a) Affidavit in support of.
(i) Who can make.
(b) Affidavit in opposition.
(c) Contents of.
(d) Amendment.
(e) Delay in applying, explanation for. See Note 35.
(f) Suppression of or falsity of facts.
(g) Joint application.

11. Application for.

See also Note 98.

——Art. 226 — Order which is challenged not filed along with writ petition — Petition is not maintainable. AIR 1961 All 299 (300) (Pt C) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226—Award by Industrial Tribunal—Union of workmen — Moving under Art. 226 against such award—Cause title—Form of, indicated. 66 Cal W N 395 : (1962) 4 F L R 89 : (1962) 2 Lab L J 62 : (1962-63) 23 F J R 592 : A I R 1962 Cal 649 (653, 654) (Pt A) (Prs 11, 12, 14).

——Art. 226 - Application by minor — Applicant attaining majority during pendency of his application —Whether application cannot be dismissed— Quaere. 61 Cal W N 717 : A I R 1957 Cal 524 (526, 527) (Pt B) (Pr 8).

● ——Art. 226—Application not mentioning Art. 226 in cause title and asking for writ of mandamus.

The application had been instituted in the matter of writs of mandamus and not for writs in the nature of mandamus:

Held, that the High Court should not be justified in not treating the application as an application under Art. 226 on such technical ground The application was in substance an application under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Merely because in the cause title Art. 226 had not been specifically mentioned and the proper writ or direction had not been prayed for it would not be said that the application was not one under Art. 226. A I R 1951 S C 41, Foll. Nihar Kumari v. Commissioner of Police, AIR 1953 Cal 179 (180, 184) (Pt C) (Prs 10, 25) (FB).

——Art. 226—West Bengal Sales Tax Act (4 of 1954) —Notification under—Notification No. 2348 F. T. D/-1-12-1954 — Held, that Writ petition was defective in so far as it did not annex assessment order made under Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) Act — But since there was no dispute that assessment order was made including sale price of goods mentioned in notification under West Bengal Act, and certain sum was demanded by way of sales tax. Court would not make much of this technical defect. 70 Cal W N 152: (1966) 17 S T C 35.

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction — Application for writ by share holders of company under liquidation—Forum—High Court or company Court having seisin of liquidation proceedings. See Travancore Cochin High Court Act (1123), Ss. 8 and 18 (2). A I R 1952 Trav-Co 14.

11 (a). Affidavit in support of.

(i) Who can make.

11 (a). Affidavit in support of.

——Art. 226—Affidavit in support of writ petition—Allahabad High Court Rules, Chap. 22, R. 1 (2)—Compliance with—Defective affidavit—Petition cannot be dismissed in limine—Reasonable opportunity to file better affidavit should be given

'Deponent's own knowledge' in R. 1 (2) of Chap. 22 of the Rules is wide enough to comprehend the knowledge of the writ petitioner derived from a perusal of the relevant documents.

Held, on facts, that it could not be said that the facts stated in the affidavit were not based on the deponent's personal knowledge. Moreover, if the affidavit was defective in any manner, the High Court, instead of dismissing the petition in limine should have given the petitioner a reasonable opportunity to file a better affidavit which would comply with the provisions of R. 1 of Chap. 22 of the Rules. Dwarka Nath v. Income tax Officer, Special Circle, D. Ward, Kanpur, (1965) 2 S C A 868 : (1965) 2 I T J 218 : (1965) 2 S C J 296 : (1965) 57 I T R 349 : (1965) 2 S C W R 391 : AIR 1966 S C 81 (88) (Pt D) (Pr 9).

—— Art. 226—Allahabad High Court Rules, Chap 22, R. 1 (ii) — Writ petition — Dismissal of, for non-compliance with R. 1 (ii)

A writ petition is liable to be dismissed for non-compliance with R. 1 (ii) of the Allahabad High Court Rules, as the decision in a writ petition necessarily rests on the facts stated upon affidavit, and, if the affidavit filed is not of any value it cannot constitute any foundation for invoking the writ jurisdiction of the High Court. Even where an objection as such is not taken, it is the duty of the petitioner who comes to Court to lay a proper and firm foundation on facts on which the petition is based. Relevant facts have to be stated on affidavit from personal knowledge. The facts cannot ordinarily be sworn by a Pairokar as on information from the petitioner. It is, primarily, for the Court to see whether the writ jurisdiction, in favour of such a petitioner will be exercised. A I R 1951 Cal 456; A I R 1959 All 795; A I R 1982 All 70 and A I R 1952 S C 317, Ref. (1965) 2 I T J 704 (All).

——Art. 226 — Natural justice—Ground taken in petition not supported by the true facts in affidavits—Effect.

Where in writ petition itself, no doubt, a ground was taken specifically that the Election Tribunal had done the counting after scrutiny of the rejected votes without any notice to the successful candidate or his counsel or in their presence and though this ground was taken in the petition, the assertions made in the affidavit did not support it.

Held, that the ground taken was actually not supported by true facts. The procedure adopted by Election Tribunal was not defective or violative of any principles of natural justice. 1963 All L J 634 : ILR (1963) 2 All 828.

——Art. 226—Pleadings — Affidavit — Contents of.

The allegations in an affidavit in proceedings under Art. 226 must be confined to statements based on the personal knowlegde of the person swearing it, and must not contain any expression of opinion or submissions of law. AIR 1960 All 304 (307) (Pt A) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226 — Affidavit — Verification — Clients are guided by counsel in the matter of verification of the affidavit and an allegation should not be made by counsel without ascertaining whether the client was telling the truth or not and should not be permitted to be sworn as true to the personal knowledge of the client. AIR 1960 All 164 (168) (Pt E) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226—Pleadings—Affidavits—Contents of.

Allegations in an affidavit in proceedings under Art. 226 must confine to statements based on the personal knowledge of the person swearing it and must not contain expression of opinion or submission of law. W. P. No. 1263 of 1957 (All), Foll. AIR 1959 All 795 (797) (Pt B) (Pr 11).

——Art. 226—Evidence—News-items appearing in press—Admissibility—(High Court Rules and Orders—Allahabad High Court Rules, Chapter 22, R. 1 (2)) —(Evidence Act (1872), S. 60).

Chapter 22. R. 1 (2) of the Allahabad H. C. Rules clearly requires that the affidavit filed in support of the writ petition should contain only such matter which is in the personal knowledge of the deponent.

If the petitioner wants to raise the question of fact that there was ill-will between him and the railway administration and he was actually removed and for that purpose wanted to rely upon certain piece of evidence his proper remedy is to file a regular suit and not to come to the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution of India. AIR 1959 All 643 (647, 648) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 4).

——Art. 226 — Pleadings — Allegation of mala fide exercise of power—Facts to be given in affidavit.

If in a petition under Art. 226 the exercise of a power by the State Government is challenged on the ground of mala fide the facts are to be given in details in the affidavit. AIR 1958 All 126 (135) (Pt L) (Pr 26).

——Art. 226 — Pleadings — Allegation of fact not based on personal knowledge—Permissibility.

In a writ petition an allegation not based on the personal knowledge of the person making the allegation but based on the information received by him from others cannot be accepted. Any allegation which is not based on personal knowledge cannot be taken to be a part of the pleadings of a writ petition. (1957) All W R (HC) 204 : (1957) All L J 56.

——Art. 226 — Municipalities — U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 87-A—Notice of motion of no-confidence — Grievance about its publication — Affidavit as to—It must contain definite statement whether notice of motion was published or not — Mere statement of knowledge is not enough. AIR 1955 N U C (All) 1713.

——Art. 226—Procedure — Affidavit.

(Per Mootham J.)—Where the application of one of applicants is accompanied by an affidavit of a considerable length but the other applications are accompanied by short affidavits in which the applicants state that they rely upon the facts set forth in the affidavit of the first application, it is an unsatisfactory practice as it is likely to result in one or more of the deponents deposing to matters not within his or their personal knowledge. The better course is for a joint affidavit to be filed. ILR (1952) 1 All 880 : AIR 1953 All 739 (740) (Pt A) (Pr 1) (DB).

——Art. 226—Affidavits — (High Court Rules (All): Ch. 22).

Affidavits filed along with a petition filed under Art. 226 should be prepared in accordance with the the rules to be found in Chap. 22 of the Rules of the High Court and must be restricted to matter of fact. They must not be used as vehicles for the expression of matters of argument or opinion. 1953 All W R (HC) 420 : 1953 All L J 405 : ILR (1954) 1 All 280 : AIR 1953 All 664 (665) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Procedure.

Parties to an application or proceeding should not be allowed to address letters to an officer of the Court, but they should show cause through their counsel and by means of affidavits or petition filed in the proceeding. Where the Deputy Commissioner, and the Chairman of the Local Board who were opposite parties to the petition under Art. 226 and had shown cause had not filed any counter-affidavit controverting the allegations but were content to send their replies through letters addressed to the Deputy Registrar :

Held, this procedure must be deprecated. ILR (1954) 6 Assam 487 : AIR 1955 Assam 97 (99) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Affidavit by petitioner — Verification —(C. P. C (1908), O. 19, R 3).

Verification of an affidavit by petitioner under Art. 226 ought not to be slipshod and should invariably be modelled on the lines of O. 19, R. 3 of the Civil P. C. whether the Code applies in terms or not; and when the matter deposed to is not based on the personal knowledge of the deponent, the source of information should be clearly disclosed. Omission to observe those formalities may be visited with the consequence of rejection of the affidavit. The Court would be justified in throwing out the application on this ground in limine. But where a rule nisi had already been obtained and the defect could be cured by giving an opportunity to the petitioner to swear a fresh affidavit clarifying the position, the Court decided to hear the application on merits. AIR 1952 S C 317. Rel. on. ILR (1954) 6 Assam 161 : AIR 1954 Assam 161 (164) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Art. 226—Affidavits—Vagueness.

In writ matters affidavits are the only pieces of evidence which are before the Court. If such affidavits are vague and uninformative or merely make general allegations devoid of particulars, their value becomes negligible. (1965) 2 Com L J 152 : 70 Cal W N 280 : AIR 1966 Cal 151 (160) (Pt C) (Pr 19).

——Art. 226—Affidavit—Contents.

Those to whom it may fall to speak on behalf of bodies like a University and those to whom it may fall to act for them in litigation should take greater care in affirming facts and greater care to avoid statements and forms of expression which are bound to compromise the great institutions they represent. ILR (1959) 1 Cal 28 : 62 Cal W N 259 : AIR 1958 Cal 131 (135) (Pt B) (Pr 16) (DB).

——Art. 226—Affidavit.

In high prerogative writs, the affidavit supporting the petition should be by the petitioner. After all, high prerogative writs are matters of discretion, and if the petitioner has not the courage to verify his own petition, then, the Court should be extremely reluctant to grant relief. AIR 1952 Cal 16, Rel. on. A I R 1956 Cal 456 (458) (Pt C) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226—Application — Addition by affidavit.

An applicant for a writ cannot add to his case as made in the petition by means of subsequent affidavits. ('56) 60 Cal W N 24.

——Art. 226—In an application under Art. 226 it is not possible to enforce the provisions of O. 19, R. 3(1) C. P. C. by considering proceedings as a full-pledged suit. These proceedings are entirely decided upon affidavits and to a certain extent take on the characteristics —Everything contained in affidavits need not be of personal knowledge of deponent. AIR 1955 N U C (Cal) 4499.

——Art. 226—Proceedings under — Who can verify pleadings and affidavits. See Civil P. C. (1908), O. 6, R. 15. AIR 1954 Cal 159 (DB).

——Art. 226—Affidavit in proceeding under Art. 226 of the Constitution. See Civil P. C. (1908), O. 19, R. 3. AIR 1954 Cal 41.

——Art. 226—Petition disputing validity of taxing order —Allegation of want of jurisdiction— Material not placed before Taxing Authority — If admissible.

Where an assessee challenges by a petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution the validity of certain orders by the Sales-Tax Authority on the ground of want of jurisdiction, it is open to him to place before the High Court the necessary material to show that the orders of assessment are without jurisdiction, even though it was not first placed before the taxing authorities. 1958 Ker L J 1228 : 1959 Ker L T 311 : (1959) 10 S T C 459.

——Arts. 226, 227—Procedure —Affidavit— Reliability.

Where an affidavit in support of a petition for setting aside an election to the municipality on the ground that the elected candidate was disqualified under S. 14 (1) (i) read with S. 94 of the M. B Municipalities Act (I of 1954) as there were tax dues outstanding against his name for more than one year, merely stated that paras. 1 to 20 which contained these allegations, were true to his personal knowledge but did not mention the source of his knowledge or the particular tax to which he wanted to refer.

Held, that such an affidavit can hardly be taken as the basis for upsetting an election which is duly declared and upheld even after an election petition. 1963 Jab L J 795.

——Art. 226 — Rules under —R. 11 (a)—Absence of affidavit.

Where the respondents have not filed any affidavit, their return is not a valid return which need be taken into consideration. I L R (1954) Nag 935 : 1955 Nag L J 332 : AIR 1956 Nag 27 (31) (Pt C) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 226—Writs under — Affidavit to be signed by petitioner himself —Discretion of Court.

In all applications it is essential that the affidavit in support of the petition should be signed by the petitioner himself and in the absence of such affidavit, the application ought to be rejected. This defect should be brought to notice of the High Court, when matter came up to it for admission on previous notice, given by the applicant to the opposite party which had been accepted by him and before the Court posted the case for final disposal. The writs under Art. 226 are comparatively new to the Orissa Court and the practice in respect thereof is not properly understood and has not got sufficiently crystallised. Under these circumstances, while the Court should insist upon the observance of the correct practice and procedure in such matters, and while it may be true that the Court is entitled to dismiss the application on the preliminary objection raised, the Court has the discretion not to do so in a case, having regard to the consideration that all the facts alleged in the affidavit are matters of record which are indisputable and undisputed. AIR 1952 Cal 72, AIR 1951 Cal 396, AIR 1947 Cal 307, (1917) 1 K B 486 Rel. on. A I R 1952 Orissa 251 (254) (Pt C) (Pr 6) (DB).

● ——Art. 226—Absence of material.

All the applications under Art. 226 which relate to land covered by sub-cls. (d) and (f) of S. 2 (ii) of Bihar Act 31 of 1950 should be allowed. It is immaterial to consider whether the petitioners have or have not made out their claims as to adverse possession. The sub-clauses being unconstitutional are void under Art. 13 of the Constitution, and no proceedings can be taken under them. The High Court cannot allow a proceeding to continue and orders to be passed thereupon when it has held that the proceeding was commenced under a piece of legislation which is wholly void in the sense of its being unconstitutional.

(Per Contra) :— An Act can be declared unconstitutional or invalid only on the contention of a person against whom action has been taken under the Act and who feels aggrieved by the action taken. Where in the affidavit of the petitioners there is nothing except a challenge to the Act, there being no statement whatsoever indicating as to how the petitioners are affected by the action taken under the Act the Court will not be justified in allowing the applications on the scanty material which the Court possesses. Brij Bhukan v. S. D. O. Siwan, I L R 33 Pat 690 : 1954 BLJR 513 : A I R 1955 Pat 1 (33, 38, 39, 40) (Pt X) (Prs 23, 42, 43) (SB).

——Art. 226—Affidavit — Document to be produced as evidence not specified in affidavit —Document cannot be admitted at late stage of arguments. See Civil P. C. (1908), O. 19, R. 1. 67 Pun L R 452 : 1965 Cur L J 279.

——Art. 226—Pleadings.

An affidavit in order to have any probative value should set forth matters of fact only and not declare the merits of a particular cause and base conclusions on the private opinions of the maker. It must consist of statement of fact which is being sworn to as the truth. An affidavit which embodies arguments has hardly any evidentiary value. An affidavit is of no assistance if the nature, quality and the source of information are not set forth so as to enable the Court to ascertain whether there is a good foundation for the depositions. An affidavit is a voluntary ex parte statement. 63 Punj L R 465 : 1961 (2) Cri L J 542 (2).

——Art. 226 – Scope —Person appearing as witness— Meaning — Wider interpretation not permissible — Person making affidavit in writ proceedings is not a person appearing as witness— Rajasthan High Court Rules, R. 383 See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 479-A. 1961 (2) Cri L J 796 : AIR 1961 Raj 268 (DB).

11 (a) (i). Who can make.

● ——Art. 226—Parties to petition—Applicant applying for certain person to be made respondent — No relief claimed against such person, only ground mentioned for impleading him being to make it incumbent on him to file affidavit - Order rejecting application not wrong as person was not legally obliged to file affidavit if he was not a party. S. Pratap Singh v. State of Punjab, (1965) 1 S C A 259 : A I R 1964 S C 72 (100, 101) (Pt T) (Pr 73).

——Art. 226—Writ proceedings—Procedure — Affidavits—Filing of.

The affidavit supporting a petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution must be sworn by a person who can relate facts from his personal knowledge. When a person swears an affidavit in a case which does not concern him, it is not enough for him to make the formal verification that he is personally acquainted with the facts deposed to in his affidavit: he must explain how he becomes acquainted with events and happenings which ordinarily did not appear to concern him. (1961) 2 Fac L R 421 : (1961) 1 Lab L J 686 : (1962-63) 22 F J R 468 : A I R 1962 All 70 (71) (Pt C) (Pr 1).

——Art. 226—Writ petition—Affidavit in support of —Anyone personally acquainted with facts can file an affidavit—Need not be by applicant himself.

The Rules of the Court nowhere provide that the party or his Pairokar must file an affidavit in support of the writ application moved by or on behalf of the party. Any one personally acquainted with the facts can file an affidavit. 1962 All W R (HC) 157 : 1962 All L J 226.

——Art. 226—Petition under — Affidavit in support of application by whom to be made — High Court Rules — Calcutta High Court, Appellate Side Rules, Ch. II, Part II, R. 43.

Rule 43, Chap. II, Part II of the Appellate Side Rules lays down that the procedure in applications on the Appellate Side must conform to the procedure which is adopted in Civil Revision cases on the Appellate Side. There are no specific rules on the Appellate Side which require that the petition should be supported by the affidavit of the petitioners themselves.

Where the requisitioned land which was the subject matter of dispute was situate outside the ordinary original jurisdiction of the High Court and the prayer for derequisition and restoration of possession had also to be complied with at a place outside the said jurisdiction, it was held that the petition could not be thrown out on the mere ground that the petition was not supported by the affidavit of the persons swearing the petition. The affidavit of the husband of one of the petitioners was held to be a valid compliance with the law. A I R 1947 Cal 387, Dist. 88 Cal L J 172 : 56 Cal W N 306 : I L R (1953) 1 Cal 155 : A I R 1952 Cal 16 (18, 19) (Pt C) (Pr 14).

——Art. 32 (2-A)—Pleadings and procedure — Petition for issue of writ of habeas corpus — Allegations in affidavit against Prime Minister—Latter whether should deny allegations personally — (Constitution of Jammu and Kashmir, S. 103).

It is not necessary for the Prime Minister personally to deny the allegations made by a petitioner in his affidavit made in support of his petition for the issue of a writ in the nature of habeas corpus. If an under-secretary to the Government, files an affidavit controverting the allegations made by the petitioner, the fact that official sources are mentioned by the deponent from which he has received information shows that he has consulted the concerned persons against whom allegations are made by the petitioner. 1959 Cri L J 709 : A I R 1959 J & K 56 (59) (Pt F) (Pr 28) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Practice and Procedure — Writ proceedings — Return — Government Officer concerned must himself file an affidavit - He cannot ask any one else to do so for him. 1964 Jab L J 652.

——Art. 226 - Coffee Act (1942), S. 48 - Coffee Board Office Manual Vol. II, Item 9, Vol. I, Part II para 57 — Secretary of Board has power to sign and verify writ petition in labour disputes — Constitution of India, Art. 226. See Coffee Act (1942), S. 48. 1962 Mys L J (Sup) 344 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Proceedings under Bihar Town Planning and Improvement Trust Act questioned — State of Bihar made respondent — Counter-affidavit sworn by Bench Clerk of Land Acquisition Officer is not defective— He being the Bench Clerk the facts stated were true to his knowledge. 1963 B L J R 254 : AIR 1963 Pat 201 (205, 206) (Pt D) (Pr 11) (DB).

11 (b). Affidavit in opposition.

——Art. 226 — Allegations in petition and affidavit of applicant with respect to matters concerning certain persons not accepted by respondent—It is not improper or irregular or illegal for respondent to have secured affidavits from such persons and to have filed them in Court. S. Pratap Singh v. State of Punjab, (1965) 1 S C A 259 : A I R 1964 S C 72 (101) (Pt U) (Pr 74).

——Arts. 226 and 32 — Procedure—Chief Minister made party-respondent to petition — Serious allegations made against him—In view of such allegations Chief Minister held, owed a duty to the Supreme Court to file an affidavit stating the correct position regarding the allegations so far as he remembered it and not to leave the refutation of the allegations to Secretaries and other officers who could only speak from the records. R. P. Kapoor v. Sardar Pratap Singh Kairon, (1963) 2 S C J 1 : 1963 Mad L J (Cri) 289 : 1961 (2) Cri L J 161 : (1961) 2 S C R 143 : A I R 1961 S C 1117 (1125) (Pt B) (Pr 19).

——Art. 226 — Reply affidavit by State by assistant having no personal knowledge of facts, deprecated. (1963) 7 Fac L R 30 (All).

——Art. 226 — Pleadings — Facts within knowledge of Government officials—Affidavits by clerks—Propriety.

The tendency among Government officials to send their clerks or pairokars to swear affidavits in regard to facts is contrary to law and improper. A I R 1959 All 795 (798) (Pt A) (Pr 13).

——Art. 226 — Procedure — Allegations of personal nature against Government officer — Filing of affidavit in reply.

In a petition under Art. 226, the High Court expects an officer of the Government, against whom allegations of a personal nature have been made, to come forward and clear his position by an affidavit sworn by himself. 1958 All W R (HC) 752 : 1958 All L J 695.

——Art. 226—No counter-affidavit—Effect.

Where no counter-affidavit has been filed on behalf of any of the opposite parties the facts alleged in the affidavit filed in support of the petition have to be accepted as true. A I R 1956 All 147 (148) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226 — Procedure — Failure to file counter-affidavit — Stay of proceedings before Panchayati Adalat obtained under S. 85, U. P. Panchayat Raj Act from Sub-Divisional Magistrate — Adalat informed and panchas assuring accused persons that case would not be taken—In spite of it Adalat convicting accused persons—On application under Art. 226 controversy raised as to whether Adalat was informed of stay order — Notice of writ petition issued to Adalat but no counter affidavit led by them controverting allegation — In absence of counter-affidavit by Adalat fact that Adalat was informed held was established — Order of conviction therefore held was illegal — (U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947), S. 85). A I R 1955 N U C (All) 5285.

——Art. 226 — Counter-affidavit in writ petition need not state question of law — Respondent can raise question of law for first time during hearing.

It is not necessary to state questions of law in a counter-affidavit filed in a writ petition. It must ordinarily be devoted to statements of fact and not of law. The fact that the respondent did not set up the question of law in the counter affidavit cannot disentitle him from raising it at the hearing. (1964) 1 Andh L T 53 : (1964) 1 Andh W R 29 : A I R 1964 Andh Pra 357 (359, 360) (Pt B) (Pr 10).

——Art. 226—Pleadings and procedure — Writ petition — Allegations of mala fides against officers — Duty of officers to answer.

When in a writ petition allegations of mala fides are made against officers, it is proper that the individuals against whom those allegations are directed must themselves answer them and it should not be left to some other officer to do so. 1958 Andh L T 528 : (1958) 2 Andh W R 358 : (1958) 34 I T R 216.

——Art. 226 — Petitioner asserting that Government had issued certain instructions in the matter of strike by Government servants — No averment in the return filed on behalf of respondents either denying or affirming of such instructions — On normal rules of pleading it must be held that the issuing of such instructions, as alleged by the petitioner, had not been denied and therefore, must be taken to have been accepted. 65 Bom L R 65 : I L R (1962) Bom 664 : 1963 Mah L J 205 : (1963) 1 Lab L J 428 : AIR 1963 Bom 121 (132, 133) (Pt D) (Pr 44) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Affidavit in opposition not properly affirmed — Objection should be taken at beginning when Court can direct re-affirmation — Defect, however, held technical and not of fatal character. See High Court Rules and Orders — Calcutta High Court Writ Rules, R. 14. (1965) 2 Com L J 152 : AIR 1966 Cal 151.

——Art. 226 — Person filing in affidavit in-opposition examined as witness — Petitioner not heard nor given opportunity to cross-examine — Procedure held irregular—Order can be set aside on that ground. A I R 1963 Cal 563 (565) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Pleadings — Counter-affidavit — Authority to swear to.

The counter-affidavit in proceedings under Art. 226 is a solemn document and ought not to be taken lightly. It is only those who personally could vouch for the details that should come forward. 1959 Ker L J 93.

——Art. 226—Affidavit—Privilege—Allegation that a person was recommended to the post of a Judge of High Court but the recommendation was turned down on ground that he had no judicial experience—Allegations not denied in counter affidavit but privilege claimed on ground that it related to affairs of State — Held, that there was no duty on Government to claim privilege in case of this kind — They had duty to speak truth — Affidavits are not excepted from scope of this rule—Evidence Act (1872), S. 123. AIR 1951 Bom 72, Ref. ILR (1961) Mad 553 : A I R 1961 Mad 450 (461) (Pt C) (Pr 50) (DB).

——Art. 226—Procedure—Writ petition for direction to Registrar of Co-operative Societies to register petitioner Society — Counter affidavit by Assistant Registrar is not in order — It has to be filed by Registrar—Assistant Registrar is not a person who knew personally of any of matters referred to in petition. AIR 1965 Manipur 1 (3) (Pt C) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226—No counter-affidavit—Effect.

In writ proceedings the facts alleged in the affidavit filed by one party have to be accepted as true when no counter affidavit is filed on behalf of the opposite party. A I R 1953 Trav Co 146, Foll. AIR 1957 Manipur 1 (2) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Arts. 226 and 14 — Fixation of minimum wages under Minimum Wages Act — Petitioner's affidavit disclosing necessary information to sustain charge of discrimination — Statement in counter affidavit that allegations were vague not sufficient.

Where the petitioner, complaining of hostile discrimination by the Government in the fixing of minimum wages for workmen under his employment, has given detailed information in his affidavit as to the minimum wage fixed for one class of employment as contrasted with the minimum wage fixed in respect of a similar class of workmen in another class of employment it is the clear duty of the State to state in its counter-affidavit what was the reason why the discrimination against which there was a complaint was in fact made and why and how it does not amount to a hostile discrimination between one class of employment and another. It is not enough for the State Government to merely state that the petitioners' allegations were vague and that considerations such as the nature of employment, quantity of work turned out and so forth formed the basis for the distinction made in the determination of the minimum wage. 1963 Mys L J (Supp) 223 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Affidavit imputing oblique motive to opposite party, Government servant — Opposite Party held owed a duty to file counter affidavit stating true facts — Public duty which the members of Regional Transport Authority performed was quasi-judicial in nature. 39 Mys L J 544 : ILR (1961) Mys 560 : AIR 1962 Mys 27 (30) (Pt B) (Pr 17) (DB).

——Art. 226—Procedure—Writ petition admitted — Citizen arrested on ground alleged to be unjust — Return not filed by Government even after long time—Conduct deprecated.

Where the fundamental right of a citizen is infringed, he having been arrested in pursuance of a demand which is alleged to be wholly unjust and contrary to law, the Government should not adopt an attitude of indifference towards his writ petition filed under Art. 226. Governed as the citizens are by the rule of law under the Constitution which guarantees certain fundamental rights to the citizens of his Republic, it is incumbent on the State to take prompt steps to submit returns to the writs issued by the High Court within a reasonable time and not to sleep over the matters for a long time. A I R 1962 Punj 45 (46) (Prs 3, 4).

——Art. 226 — Pleadings — Application arising on Election dispute — Counter-affidavit by Returning Officer—Advisability.

Upon an application under Art. 226 arising on an election dispute while the Government may not be interested in the result of the election, it would be proper for the Returning Officer, who is a party to the case, to give his version of the facts, so that the High Court may be in a position to know how far the facts stated by the petitioner are correct. In the absence of any counter-affidavit the High Court has to proceed on the assumption that the facts stated in affidavit by the petitioner are correct. 1957 Raj L W 285 : ILR (1957) 7 Raj 345 : A I R 1957 Raj 383 (384) (Pt D) (Pr 4) (DB).

11 (c). Contents of.

● ——Art. 226 — Practice — Admitted allegations of fact — Permission to go back on — When may be given.

Normally, there is no doubt that where allegations of fact are admitted, a party would not be allowed to go behind them but where parties do not seem to have paid attention to the details of the facts, but rather concentrated on what they considered to be points of law, it would not be proper to hold the party, to the admission made in his affidavit before the High Court and in view of such peculiar circumstances, the party may be permitted to go back on his admission. Deputy Director of Consolidation, Azamgarh v. Deen Bandhu Rai, (1965) 1 S C J 360 : 1964 All L J 247 : ILR (1964) 1 All 355 : AIR 1965 S C 484 (491) (Pt C) (Pr 18).

● ——Art. 226—Writ petition — Allegations of mala fides or of improper motives on part of persons in authority — Duty of Court — Persons in authority should place on record their version or denial.

It is true that allegations of mala fides and of improper motives on the part of those in power are frequently made and their frequency has increased in recent times. It is also somewhat unfortunate that allegations of this nature which have no foundation in fact, are made in several of the cases which have come up before the Supreme Court and other Courts and it is found that they have been made merely with a view to cause prejudice or in the hope that whether they have basis in fact or not, some of it at least might stick. Consequently it has become the duty of the Court to scrutinise these allegations with care so as to avoid being in any manner influenced by them, in cases where they have no foundation in fact. In this task which is thus cast on the Courts it would conduce to a more satisfactory disposal and consideration of them, if those against whom allegations are made came forward to place before the Court either their denials or their version of the matter, so that the Court may be in a position to judge as to whether the onus that lies upon those who make allegations of mala fides on the part of authorities have discharged their burden of proving it. In the absence of such affidavits or of materials placed before the Court by these authorities, the Court is left to judge of the veracity of the allegations merely on tests of probability with nothing more substantial by way of answer. C. S. Rowjee v. State of Andhra Pradesh, (1964) 6 S C R 330 : (1964) 2 Andh L T 48 : AIR 1964 S C 962 (969, 970) (Pt A) (Pr 20).

● ——Art. 226 — Applicant to make definite and specific statements in his petition — (Per Raghubar Dayal and Mudholkar, JJ.).

It is really for the applicant in the first instance, to make definite allegations in his petition. If he makes indefinite allegations, there is nothing for the other party or the persons concerned to deny. They can take advantage of the vagueness of the applicant's own allegations. Their reticence in that regard cannot give an advantage to the applicant when he himself is in default in not making definite allegations. S. Partap Singh v. State of Punjab, (1965) 1 S C A 259 : AIR 1964 S C 72 (101) (Pt V) (Pr 77).

● ——Art. 226—Duty of Court.

It is always desirable, when relief under Art. 226 is sought on allegations of infringement of fundamential rights, that the Court should satisfy itself that such allegations are well founded before proceeding further with the matter. State of Bombay v. United Motors (India) Ltd., 1953 S C J 373 : (1953) 1 Mad L J 743 : 55 Bom L R 536 : 86 Mad L W 577 : 1953 S C A 408 : 1953 S C R 1069 : AIR 1953 S C 252 (256) (Pt I) (Pr 8).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1955 S C 661.]

——Art. 226—Procedure—Application under, should be concise and to the point.

An application under Art. 226 should be concise and to the point, should clearly indicate the facts on which it is based and the grounds on which the relief is sought and the nature of the relief desired with due realisation of the position that High Court hearing application under Art. 226 is not a Court of revision or appeal. AIR 1955 Raj 19, Rel. on. AIR 1956 Ajmer 41 (42) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226 — Order of Assistant Custodian cancelling lease — Objection on ground of lack of competence — Duty of objector — (Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), Ss. 5 (3) and 12 (1)).

Where the Assistant Custodian passed an order cancelling a tenancy, held that it must be presumed that the Assistant Custodian cancelled the lease in the exercise of his jurisdiction under S. 5 (3) read with S. 12 (1). The objection questioning his competence to cancel the lease should be expressly raised in the writ petition and it must be shown that the order cancelling the lease was in any manner in violation of the principles of natural justice. A I R 1955 Ajmer 41 (43) (Pt C) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226 — Pleadings — Contents of — Duty to state facts fully.

It is the duty of the petitioner to state fully the facts upon which he relies in the affidavit or affidavits accompanying the petition, and the practice of disclosing the facts which the petitioner deems to be relevant only in the rejoinder affidavit is one which the High Court will discourage. 1956 All W R (H C) 262 : 1956 All L J 357 : A I R 1956 All 433 (433, 434) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

—Art. 226—Procedure—Rules of Allahabad High Court — Petition not giving brief statement of facts —Maintainability.

According to the rules framed by Allahabad High Court the application under Art. 226, Constitution of India, must contain brief statement of facts supported by an affidavit and the grounds on which relief is claimed. Where the petition does not give a brief statement of the case but all the necessary facts have been stated in the affidavit filed in support of the petition, it cannot be said that the application is not maintainable on account of the non-compliance with the provisions of the rules. AIR 1955 All 541 (542) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226—Procedure—Alternative cases on question of nature of proceedings initiated — (Civil P. C. (1908), O. 6, R. 2).

The question as to the nature of the proceedings initiated is a question of fact and on such a question no party can be allowed in writ proceedings to put forward alternative cases. I L R (1955) 2 All 600 : (1955) 28 I T R 211 : AIR 1955 All 515 (517) (Pt B) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226—Petition under—Scandalous allegations without justification—Effect of.

A person who comes to invoke the discretionary power under Art. 226 of the Constitution must come with clean hands and must not try to throw mud on others without sufficient grounds and unless he is prepared to substantiate his allegations. If he does so he is not to be heard.

Where though the allegation in support of the petition was not directed against any particular officer, it contains scandalous insinuations against the officers which should not have been made without any justification and that by itself would be a ground of refusing to entertain this writ petition. 1955 All L J 665 : (1957) 1 Lab L J 37 : ILR (1956) 2 All 627 : AIR 1955 All 496 (501) (Pt F) (Pr 10).

——Art. 226—Petition under — Nature and contents of.

A petition under Art. 226 is a pleading in an extraordinary proceeding. Facts must be stated in it with precision. In the absence of any rules on the point, principles of the Civil Procedure Code governing pleadings should be followed as far as possible. The petition should contain only a statement in a concise form of the material facts on which the party relied for his claim—Arguments should not form part of the petition. Comments based on impressions or opinions are compeletely out of place. Any tendency to scandalise should be scrupulously avoided. AIR 1955 Assam 183 (194, 195) (Pt E) (Pr 47) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Petitioner must file all relevant documents—If complaint is that a plea was not enquired into or opportunity was not given, all circumstances must be specifically pleaded. 1964 Mah L J (Notes) 61.

——Art. 226—Petition not signed—Procedure.

With regard to the signing of the petition, whatever be the rules obtaining in the Original Side of the Calcutta High Court, it seems that in the Appellate Side it is not necessary for the petitioner to sign the petition provided that the proper vakalatnama is there on record. A I R 1956 Cal 456 (458) (Pt B) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226 — Statement of grounds in petition for writ.

The grounds on which Rules are obtained in matters of application for prerogative writs under the Constitution must be stated with sufficient particularity in the petition and if that is not done they cannot be allowed to be agitated at the hearing. AIR 1955 NUC (Cal) 401.

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Procedure— Petition, contents of.

In proceedings under Art. 226 of the Constitution challenging certain acts as discriminatory it is necessary to plead that the impugned action or the act was both intentional and purposeful. In other words, it has to be shown and established that the act in question was, not only discriminatory in nature, but also done with a certain bias and prejudice. A I R 1961 Guj 38 Rel. on. (1963) 4 Guj L R 945 : (1964) 2 Lab L J 253 : ILR (1963) Guj 968.

——Arts. 226 and 19 (1) (f)—Frame of and contents in petition under Art. 226.

Where in the petition under Art. 226 not merely certain Articles of the Constitution have been mentioned, but also specific allegations have been made, which, would make out a case of infringement of the fundamental right guaranteed under Art 19 (1) (f), and also the prayers were specific and precise, the mere fact that mandamus, certiorari or prohibition have not been mentioned is immaterial, for it is for the Court to decide what, in view of the facts and circumstances established, is the proper writ, direction or order that should be issued under Art. 226. A I R 1953 Assam 61; A I R 1953 Madh B 54, Disting. A I R 1953 Him Pra 95 (99) (Pt C) (Pr 16).

——Art. 226—Pleadings — Full and true disclosure of all facts necessary.

A petitioner who comes for relief under Art. 226 of the Constitution should make a full and true disclosure of all the circumstances bearing on the case. (1917) 1 K B 486, Foll. 1958 M P L J (Notes) 98.

——Art. 226 — Procedure — All facts to be stated.

The obligation of a person invoking the special writ jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 is to make a full and true disclosure of all relevant facts, leaving it to the Court to decide whether it is a case where the rule nisi that is asked for should issue in the circumstances of those facts. (1917) 1 K B 486; and other cases, Rel. on. 1956 Mad W N 140 : 69 Mad L W 58 : (1956) 1 Mad L J 324.

——Art. 226—Procedure — Allegations of mala fides against the State—Full particulars in clearest possible terms must be given. See Ibid, Art. 311. (1963) 2 Mys L J 248 (DB).

——Art. 226—Procedure — Writ petition containing references as to infringement of fundamental rights—But petitioner not asserting those rights in a very precise form in his writ petition — High Court should not be technical and throw out writ petition on that ground. 1962 Raj L W 317 : I L R (1962) 12 Raj 406 : A I R 1962 Raj 196 (203) (Pt C) (Pr 32) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1963 S C 1638.]

——Art. 226—Petition under—Contents.

Petitioner should mention all the facts in his petition under Art. 226. 1957 Raj L W 146 : I L R (1956) 6 Raj 988.

——Art. 226—Application under—What it should be.

An application under Art. 226 should be concise and to the point, should clearly indicate the facts on which it is based, and the grounds on which the relief is sought and the nature of the relief desired, with due realization of the position that the High Court is not a Court of revision or appeal under that article. I L R (1953) 3 Raj 931 : 1954 Raj L W 649 : A I R 1955 Raj 19 (21) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Petition for writ of certiorari—Duty of counsel to mention all relevant facts.

All relevant facts should be mentioned in a petition for a writ of certiorari, and counsel should not pick and choose, since it may be what he may think to be irrelevant may turn out to be very relevant in the case. Lakshmi Lal v. Bhagwat Singh, I L R (1951) 1 Raj 570 : 1951 Raj L W 484 : A I R 1952 Raj 22 (24) (Pt A) (Pr 13) (FB).

11 (d). Amendment.

——Art. 226—Writ petition—Amendment—Opposite party not opposing amendment — Case of bona fide mistake—Amendment being of technical nature and not changing nature of dispute raised on merits of the petition—Amendment allowed. (1965) 11 F L R 388 (All).

——Art. 226 — Order allowing amendment of particulars in list. See Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 83 (3). A I R 1954 All 245 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Prayers — Power of High Court to amend.

It is true that the prayers in the petition for a writ under Art. 226 should be specific but the High Court has power to amend the relief at the hearing. A I R 1951 S C 53, Rel. on. 87 Cal L J 391 : 1953 Cri L J 1745 : A I R 1953 Cal 753 (754) (Pt B) (Pr 15).

——Art. 226 — Petition under — Amendment of, to include new and different reliefs.

An application for amendment of a petition under Art. 226 should not lightly be allowed. An altogether new and different relief, not thought of at the time the petition was made and arising out of changed circumstances, must be claimed by another petition, and it would be wrong in practice to allow applications under Art. 226 to be freely amended to include such reliefs. 1956 Nag L J 20 : I L R (1955) Nag 932 : A I R 1956 Nag 128 (128) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226—Procedure — Amendment of petition—Provisions of Civil P. C. do apply—Civil P. C. (1908), O. 6, R. 17 and S 151. A I R 1953 Mad 39 and A I R 1938 Mad 722, Rel. on. ('65) 67 Pun L R 576.

——Art. 226 — Petition by office holders on behalf of unregistered social club—Legality — Amendment may cure defect—(Civil P. C. (1908), O. 29, R. 1).

Unregistered social clubs for relaxation and recreation of its members are societies, the members of which are perpetually changing and are merely aggregates of individuals. Where such a club files a petition under Art. 226 through its managing committee of some of its members who are alleged to have been authorised by all the members to file the petition and acting as representatives of all the members if the procedure adopted is defective, then it is merely a case of misdescription and an amendment might be allowed to cure the defect.

Held, that all that was required to be done to regularise the petition was to permit the petitioner to amend the petition and to implead all the existing members as petitioners or as respondents. I L R (1958) Punj 210 : A I R 1959 Punj 220 (221) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

11 (e). Delay in applying, explanation for.

See Note 35.

11 (f). Suppression of or falsity of facts.

——Art. 226—Suppression of material facts.

The petitioner would be disentitled to a consideration of his petition on merits only if the suppression is of a material fact and he attempts to mislead the Court. A I R 1956 Ajmer 25 (28) (Pt D) (Pr 10).

——Art. 226 — Suppression of facts must be of relevant facts, in order to disentitle petitioner to remedy under Art. 226. A I R 1964 All 395 (401, 402) (Pt A) (Prs 14, 17, 18).

——Art. 226 — Duty of petitioner to state facts truly and correctly.

A petitioner who misleads the Court by stating facts incorrectly or suppressing material facts or stating them in the manner of half truths will be disentitled by his own conduct from having his case considered on merits or getting any relief. If the person places all the relevant material to enable the Court to make its own assessment of the evidence, he cannot be said to have misled the Court merely because the Court prefers to believe the version of the respondents. A I R 1951 All 746 (FB), Dist. A I R 1960 All 323 (327) (Pt A) (Pr 18).

——Art. 226—Misleading statements by petitioner—Petitioner not to be heard on merits.

A petitioner who misleads the Court by making false or misleading statements renders himself disentitled to be heard on merits. Where, however, the petition as it stood before its amendment becomes infructuous but the petitioner who becomes entitled to file a fresh petition is allowed to amend the old petition and ask for a new relief the Court will hear the petitioner on merits unless the false or misleading statements are repeated in the affidavit supporting the new relief. (AIR 1951 All 746 (FB), Rel. on.) AIR 1960 All 164 (171) (Pt A) (Pr 23).

——Art. 226—Habeas corpus — Affidavit—Falsity of facts which are not material—Writ petition will not be thrown out. 1960 All Cr R 374 : 1960 All W R (HC) 591 : 1960 All L J 776.

——Art. 226 — Suppression of facts — Petitioner not coming to Court with clean hands—Right to relief—Ex turpi causa non oritur actio—(Maxims).

A petitioner who comes into Court founding his cause of action on an illegality, will not get any assistance from the Court. Ex turpi causa non oritur actio (out of a turpitude, no cause of action arises). No polluted hand shall touch the pure fountains of justice. These principles have been extended to the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Where the petitioner has not been candid with the Court in his presentation of facts in the affidavit supporting the petition, it is a ground for holding that the petitioner has disentitled himself to any relief from the High Court. AIR 1959 All 440 (452) (Pt J) (Prs 35, 36, 38).

——Art. 226—Pleadings — Suppression of material facts—Effect.

A petitioner. who invokes the aid of the Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution must state the facts correctly and fairly. He must not suppress material facts. Moreover his presentation of facts must be candid. He must show the utmost good faith. If he misleads the Court, he will be disentitled to be heard on merits when his fraud or misrepresentation or lack of candidness is revealed at the time of the final hearing 1959 All W R (HC) 163 : AIR 1959 All 433 (434) (Pt B) (Pr 13).

——Art. 226—Duty of applicant — Suppression of material facts by applicant.

A petitioner who does not come out with true facts before Court but suppresses the truth and makes a wrong statement is not entitled to its assistance under Art. 226. The Court will in its discretion refuse to extend help to such a litigant on this ground alone. 1959 All L J 159 : 1959 All W R (HC) 186.

——Art. 226—Duty to disclose all facts.

It is the duty of a petitioner who seeks relief under Art. 226 of the Constitution to be very frank and candid in his relation to facts and to keep back no facts which would throw light on any material point. 1958 All L J 853.

——Art. 226 — Suppression of material facts by applicant — Petitioners entitled to relief in spite of alternative relief — Omission of fact held not material.

The omission to mention a particular fact does not necessarily disentitle the petitioner to get a relief under Art. 226 unless the fact which has been omitted to be mentioned is material to the relief claimed by the applicant. Where the case of the petitioners was that they were entitled to a relief under Art. 226 in spite of the existence of an alternative remedy and in spite of the fact that the alternative remedy had been availed of, and the High Court also held that the existence of an alternative remedy was no bar to the relief being granted,

Held, that the omission to mention the fact that a suit was pending was no omission of a material fact and the writ could not be rejected on that ground. 1955 A L J 755 : AIR 1956 All 324 (325) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226—Suppression of material facts.

It is true that the power given under Art. 226 is a discretionary power and it has not to be exercised in favour of the petitioner who has suppressed the material facts of the case; but where the opposite party has not been able to point out any material fact which the petitioner failed to mention in his petition and which, if pointed out would not have entitled him to get a preliminary order in the case, the application could be granted. 1955 All W R (HC) 610 : 1955 A L J 853 : AIR 1956 All 103 (104) (Pt B) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226 — Suppression of material facts by applicant.

If the petitioner makes certain material suppression of facts in his petition and on the strength of such suppression he obtains an interim order he is disentitled to any relief under Article 226 of the Constitution.

(Held that it could not be said that there was any misrepresentation or suppression of material facts in this case by the applicant). (1956) All L J 655 : 1956 All WR (HC) 604.

——Arts. 226 and 14—Presumption as to existence of state of facts—Evidence Act (1872), S. 114.

If any state of facts can reasonably be conceived to sustain a classification, the existence of that state of facts must be assumed. No grievance can, therefore, be made of the fact that in the counter-affidavit filed on behalf of the State the reasons have not been set out which prompted the State Government to exclude the petitioners from re-appointment. AIR 1951 SC 41, Ref. to. 1954 All L J 618 : AIR 1955 All 33 (36) (Pt B) (Pr 15) (DB).

——Art. 226—Person entitled to apply.

On the authorities cancelling a coal quota licence an application was filed for the issue of a writ of mandamus directing the authorities to withdraw the order of cancellation and to allot hard and soft coke to the petitioner to enable her to continue to carry on the business of a coal depot holder. While the petitioner asserted in the petition that she was the licensee the Court found as a matter of fact that she was not the licensee but an institution represented by her was the licensee. The petition did not disclose facts from which it was possible to say that she was acting on behalf of and for benefit of the institution. On the other hand all facts which were material for Court to know in order to determine the rights of the petitioner and grant her the appropriate relief were suppressed.

Held, (i) that the petition was liable to be thrown out on the ground alone of the suppression of material facts. AIR 1951 All 746 (FB). Rel on.

(ii) that the petitioner was not entitled to the relief on merits also as she was not the holder of the permit or licence and as such had no right to challenge in her own right the order cancelling the licence.

(iii) that it was not possible to treat the application as one on behalf of the institution when the petition failed to disclose facts from which it could be said that the petitioner was acting on behalf of and for the benefit of the institution. 1954 All L J 276 : 1954 All W R (HC) 376 : AIR 1954 All 492 (493) (Prs 8, 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Application for writ—Suppression of material facts—Effect.

Where a party makes an application for a writ under Art. 226 of the Constitution and suppresses material facts he forfeits his rights for a writ. AIR 1952 Cal 72, Rel. on. 1952 All L J 353 : 1953-1 Lab L J 1 : (1952-53) 4 F J R 479 : AIR 1952 All 992 (994) (Pt B) (Pr 8) (DB).

——Art. 226—Ex parte interim order obtained by suppression of facts—Effect.

A person obtaining an ex parte order or a rule nisi by means of petition for exercise of the extraordinary powers under Art. 226 of the Constitution must come with clean hands, must not suppress any relevant facts from the Court, must refrain from making misleading statements and from giving correct information to the Court. Courts for their own protection, should insist that persons invoking these extraordinary powers should not attempt, in any manner, to misuse this valuable right by obtaining ex parte orders by suppression, misrepresentation or misstatement of facts. If the facts are stated in such a way as to mislead and deceive the Court, there is a power inherent in the Court, in order to protect itself and to prevent an abuse of its process to discharge the interim order and to refuse to proceed further with the examination of the merits of the application. (Held in this case, the petitioner disentitled itself to ask for a writ of prohibition by material suppression, misrepresentations and misleading statements.) 1917) 1 K B 486 (1850) 2 Mac. & G. 231, Ref. Asiatic Engineering Co. v. Achhru Ram, 1951 R D (HC) 241 : I L R (1952) 2 All 838 : 1951 All L J 576 : AIR 1951 All 746 (767) (Pt A) (Pr 51) (FB).

——Arts 226 and 227—Person invoking writ jurisdiction must make a full and candid disclosure of all the material facts and refrain from deliberately keeping material circumstances from the Court. (1917) 1 K B 486, (1850) 2 Mac and G 231, (1876) 1 A C 611

(1870) 39 L J Q B 86, Rel. on. (1964) 2 Andh W R 155.

——Art. 226– Suppression of facts.

If a material fact had been suppressed, the petitioner would forfeit his right to invoke a prerogative writ. But the Court would be loath to favour such an argument unless the facts actually justified it. 58 Cal W N 54 : ILR (1954) 6 Assam 528: AIR 1954 Assam 65 (68) (Pt D) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Suppression of relevant facts by petitioner disentitles him to prerogative writ—He cannot take advantage of suppression of facts by opposite party. AIR 1953 Assam 137 (141) (Pt C) (Pr 18) (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari — Parties — Suppression of facts — Held that non-impleading of party or suppression of facts did not disentitle petitioner to relief.

Where the petitioners prayed for issue of wril of certiorari to quash the orders of the District Council taking over the management of a market, on the ground that the market was a private market and that the order of the District Council infringed the petitioners' fundamental rights, the petition will not be thrown out on the ground that the lessee to whom the District Council subsequently leased out the market was not impleaded and the fact of this lease was not mentioned in the petition. ILR (1960) 12 Assam 26.

——Art. 226—Suppression of material facts.

When the petitioners do not come to the Court with clean hands, intentionally suppress material facts, knowingly make misleading statements and do not give correct information to the Court and thereby abuse the process of the Court, it becomes a fit case in which the discretionary powers under Art. 226 of the Constitution should not be exercised in favour of such a party. AIR 1956 Bhopal 43 (45) (Pt C) (Prs 8, 9).

——Arts. 226, 227—Suppression of material facts by applicant—Petitioners under Arts. 226, 227—Duties of.

Petitioners who invoke the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 and/or Art. 227, of the Constitution are required to exercise utmost care, inform themselves fully of every stage of the proceeding that has taken place upto the date the petition is filed, give a full and true account of those proceedings file all the necessary documents in support of their averments and then claim relief on the basis of facts disclosed in the petition. It is not open to a petitioner under Art. 226 or Art. 227 of the Constitution to pick and choose his own facts or to determine in advance what is relevant and material, omit to mention all material facts and proceedings and orders and then claim that he has acted bona fide even though he has made untrue statements, omitted to inform the Court of all the proceedings and the orders passed at different stages in the proceedings upto date and claim indulgence (1964-65) 27 F J R 132 : ILR (1964) Bom 822 : 66 Bom L R 588 : (1964) 2 Lab L J 595 : 1965 Mah L J 50 : AIR 1965 Bom 24 (25, 26) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226 – Suppression of material facts — What amounts to

A party can be said to be guilty of practice of suppressing material facts if it be found that it had kept back from the Court something which was material for the Court to know to appreciate the correct position.

Held that as the High Court was not bound by the determination of a jurisdictional fact by the Industrial Tribunal in another case, and as the petitioners had taken the point as to jurisdiction before the Labour Court there was no suppression of any material fact. (1965t66) 29 F J R 170 : AIR 1964 Cal 80 (89) (Pt B) (Pr 28) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Duty to disclose all material facts and circumstances.

A petitioner is under an obligation to place before the Court all circumstances relative to his case before he can reasonably ask for the Court's assistance in a writ application. All necessary facts have to be disclosed in a straightforward manner and any attempt to keep from the Court any material circumstance is bound to be visited with penalty in the shape of instant dismissal of such application. (1917) 1 K B 486 and AIR 1952 Cal 496, Rel. on. 1963 (2) Cri L J 210 (Cal).

——Art. 226 — Writ petition — Failure to disclose relevant facts — Petition liable to be dismissed in limine. 66 Cal W N 273 : 1962 (1) Cri L J 317.

——Art. 226 — Pleadings — Suppression of facts — Mis-statements by petitioner — Effect. 64 Cal W N 126 : AIR 1960 Cal 416 (417) (Pt B) (Prs 5, 6).

——Art. 226—Duty of applicant.

A person invoking the assistance of a Court by way of one of the high prerogative writs is required to exhibit complete candour and if he withholds from the Court some fact which if disclosed, would have stood in the way of the Judge issuing the Rule nisi, his application becomes liable to be dismissed without any further consideration. AIR 1957 Cal 447 (448) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Suppression of material facts—Effect.

If a person is informed that a particular matter affecting him would be heard and determined by a competent authority on a particular date and, in spite of being so informed, he does not care to appear and then he approaches a higher Court for relief against the order passed against him and, on being notified of the date on which his application would be heard, again fails to appear and the decision goes against him, it can hardly lie in his mouth to say that he had been given no hearing and had been denied natural justice. If to make matters worse, he comes to the High Court and makes a statement on oath in those circumstances that the order had been made against him without giving him any opportunity for making any representation, he does not pursue a course of conduct which entitles him to any consideration at the hands of a Court. (1957) 8 S T C 517 (Cal).

——Art. 226 — Procedure — Affidavit in support of application — Suppression of facts—Applicant is not entitled to any relief—His illiteracy cannot be accepted as explanation. AIR 1955 NUC (Cal) 2875.

——Art. 226—Suppression of material facts.

The prerogative writs are not writs of right and it is of the utmost importance to preserve the rule of the Court that no writ would issue in favour of a person who would not state all the facts and would be found lacking in uberrima fides.

Held, that the applicant's petition was liable to be thrown out at sight, because it had deliberately suppressed material facts which, it disclosed, might have dissuaded Court from issuing a rule nisi at all. (1917) 1 K B 486, Rel. on. 58 Cal W N 209 : AIR 1954 Cal 151 (156, 157) (Pt H) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Art. 226—Petition for ex parte order — Failure to disclose material facts—Effect.

A petitioner applying for an ex parte order or rule must set out with the fullest disclosure the material facts in his petition. Where this is not done the petition must fail on this ground alone. (1917) 1 K B 486, Rel. on. AIR 1952 Cal 496 (498) (Pt B) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226 — Application for writ — Suppressing material facts—Effect.

If an applicant for a writ of mandamus under Art. 226 of the Constitution suppresses material facts in his petition he disentitles himself to get any relief. 56 Cal W N 302: AIR 1952 Cal 72 (72) (Pt A) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226 — Applicant concealing facts — Application will be dismissed. AIR 1953 Him Pra 125 (126) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226—Deliberate misstatement of facts.

Where the petitioner makes a deliberate misstatement of facts, in his writ petition in order to mislead the Court and on the basis of unfounded allegations succeeds in obtaining a rule nisi from the Court prohibiting the opposite party from taking certain action, it would by itself be a sufficient ground for rejecting the writ petition. AIR 1952 Him Pra and B 43, Rel. on. AIR 1953 Him Pra 41 (44) (Pt A) (Prs 16, 17).

——Art. 226 (1)—Deliberate concealment of fact.

Where there is a deliberate concealment of a material fact in the application for issue of a writ with a view to misleading the High Court, it would be an abuse of the process of the Court to allow an application for a writ. AIR 1952 Him Pra & B 43 (45) (Pt B) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226 — Suppression of material facts by Applicant — Proceedings for issue of writ are discretionary — Suppression of vital details disentitles petitioner from getting relief. AIR 1955 NUC (Hyd) 5928.

——Art. 226 — Duty of applicant — Relevant facts not stated correctly and candidly—Effect.

Where the petitioners under Art. 226 have not stated the relevant facts correctly and candidly this is by itself sufficient to entail an outright dismissal of the writ petition without going into its merits. And even if the petitioners have a good case on merits, the Court will be entitled to decline to go into the merits and dismiss their petition. AIR 1960 J & K 19 (21) (Pt B) (Pr 8).

● ——Art. 32 (2-A) (as applied to the State of Jammu and Kashmir) — Suppression of material facts.

A petition under Art. 32 (2-A) as applied to the State of Jammu and Kashmir is maintainable and cannot be thrown out where there is no deliberate suppression of facts made by the petitioner in his petition. Ghulam Rasul v. State of Jammu and Kashmir, AIR 1956 J & K 17 (19, 20) (Pt A) (Pr 15) (FB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1961 S C 1301].

——Art. 226—Suppression of material facts.

If an applicant under Art. 226 suppresses material facts, the Court will refuse the writ prayed for without going into the merits of the case. AIR 1953 Madh B 58, Foll. ILR (1955) Madh B 154 : Madh B L R (1955) Civ 5 : Madh B L J 1955 H C R 284 : AIR 1955 Madh B 33 (34) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Petitioner in affidavit stating facts which are false beyond doubt—Petition deserves to be rejected. Misc. Petn. No. 46 of 1950 (Nag); AIR 1951 Nag 16; AIR 1951 All 746; AIR 1952 Cal 72; (1917) 1 K B 486, Rel. on. ILR (1953) Madh B 175 : AIR 1953 Madh B 58 (59) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Application against order granting stage carriage permits to rival bus owners — Statement of applicant that the applications on which permits were granted were not published and hence he was deprived of opportunity to object found to be false—Held application was liable to be dismissed on that ground alone without going into merits : AIR 1951 Nag 38; 1960 M P L J 633 and Misc. Petn. No. 289 of 1959, D/- 15-11-1960 (Madh Pra), Rel. on. 1964 M P L J 541 : 1965 Jab L J 821 : ILR (1964) Madh Pra 496.

——Art. 226 — Petitioner to approach Court in good faith — Petitioner making false statement to secure admission of petition—Court will decline to consider petition on merits — AIR 1951 Nag 16, Foll. 1964 M P L J (Notes) 7.

——Art. 226—Relief under Art. 226 will be refused if applicant suppressed material facts — Applicant not availing alternative remedy within limitation—High Court will not interfere in writ proceedings.

Where an applicant suppresses material facts in his application under Art. 226, the High Court will refuse to give him any relief under the Article and will also reject the petition without going into the merits of the case. AIR 1951 Nag 16, Foll.

Applicant had also the alternative remedy of a suit against the Corporation. He failed to avail himself of that remedy within the prescribed time. When he has lost that remedy by his own fault, he cannot be allowed to urge that as a ground for the High Court dealing with his petition under Art. 226 to exercise discretion in his favour and it would not be proper for the High Court to grant him any relief when the suit itself is barred by time. AIR 1961 S C 506, Rel. on. 1963 M P L J (Notes) 162.

——Art. 226—Pleadings—Duty of petitioner.

If the Court came to the conclusion that the affidavit in support of the application was not candid but stated the facts in such a way as mislead the Court as to the true facts, the Court ought, for its own protection and to prevent an abuse of its process, to refuse to proceed any further with the examination of the merits. In proceedings under Art. 226 the Court requires uberrima fides on the part of the petitioner. That being absent in the instant case the petition was dismissed with costs : AIR 1951 Mad 16, Foll. 1961 M P L J (Notes) 33.

——Art. 226 — Conduct of petitioner — Misleading statement made — Suppression of material facts — Petitioner not entitled to any relief. 1960 Jab L J 678 : 1960 M P C 325 : 1960 M P L J 633 : ILR (1960) Madh Pra 216.

——Art. 226—Suppression of material facts—Effect.

A person invoking the special jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 is bound to make a full and true disclosure of all relevant facts. (1917) 1 K B 486 and (1956) 1 Mad L J 324, Rel. on. 71 Mad L W 555 : 1958 Mad W N 555 : (1959) 2 Mad L J 208 : AIR 1959 Mad 460 (461) (Pt C) (Pr 10).

——Art. 226 — Pleadings—Suppression of necessary facts—Effect.

In a writ petition suppression of facts which are necessary for the Judicial Commissioner's Court to come to a decision on the points involved in the petition is itself fatal to the petition. AIR 1961 Manipur 37 (39) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226 — Duty of applicant — Party seeking relief must come with clean hands

A party who seeks relief from the Court must come with clean hands and cannot be allowed to play hide and seek. If allowed it would be nothing short of permitting an abuse of the process of the Court, indeed it would be permitting abuse of the jurisdiction and powers under Art. 226. AIR 1959 Manipur 24 (25) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226 — Suppression of material fact—Petitioner alleging wrongful dismissal by M. C. applying to High Court — Fact of application to officer-in-charge for reconsideration, suppressed — Effect. See Municipalities — C. P and Berar Municipality Act, S. 25. 1952 Nag L J (Notes) 1.

——Art. 226 (1) — Application under — Affidavit in support of application — Facts stated in such way as to mislead Court — Rejection of application.

Where an ex parte application has been made to a High Court under Art 226 (1), if the Court comes to the conclusion that the affidavit in support of the application was not candid and did not fairly state the facts but stated them in such a way as to mislead the Court as to the true facts, the Court ought, for its own protection and to prevent an abuse of its process, to refuse to proceed any further with the examination of the merits. This is a power inherent in the Court, but one which should only be used in cases which bring conviction to the mind of the Court that it has been deceived. Before coming to this conclusion a careful examination will be made of the facts as they are and as they have been stated in the applicant's affidavit and everything will be heard that can be urged to influence the view of the Court when it reads the affidavit and knows the true facts. But if the result of this examination and hearing is to leave no doubt that the Court has been deceived, then it will refuse to hear anything further from the applicant in a proceeding which has only been set in motion by means of a misleading affidavit and reject the application. ILR (1951) Nag 64 : A I R 1951 Nag 16 (17, 18, 20, 21) (Prs 7, 22) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 47 (1), 64 A — Grant of permit — Orders of Appeal Board and Transport Minister, rejecting application for permit, proceeding on assumption of facts in favour of petitioner — Petition under Art. 226 — Suppression and false statement of facts — Operator held not disentitled to grant of writ, if otherwise entitled to relief sought — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), Ss. 47 (1), 64-A. 1964 B L J R 459 : ILR 44 Pat 282.

——Art. 226 — Suppression of material facts by applicant — No writ.

The grant of a writ being in the nature of a discretionary relief cannot be given when there is suppression of material facts by the petitioner. 1958 Cri L J 546 : 1958 B L J R 591 : A I R 1958 Pat 181 (181, 182, 183) (Pt B) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Suppression of material facts.

Where the petitioner completely withholds the material facts from the Court in his application under Art 226 he on that ground alone forfeits his right for a writ. A I R 1952 All 992 and (1917) 1 K B 486, Rel. on. ILR 34 Pat 625 : A I R 1955 Pat 305 (316) (Pt F) (Pr 25) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Petitioner suppressing relevant facts.

Proceedings on a petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution by their very nature are of a summary character. A person who applies for a writ of high prerogative and seeks to avail himself of the exceptional remedy, is under an obligation to come to Court with clean hands and to make fully possible disclosure of all relevant and material facts within his knowledge. The Constitution provides a special and speedy remedy for the enforcement of fundamental rights and 'for any other purpose'. The very nature of the remedy enjoins that those who seek it must approach the Court in perfectly good faith, and place before it all the facts which have a direct bearing on the point in dispute and which the Court ought to know to arrive at a correct decision. Otherwise the Court may be misled to pass orders the consequences of which may be far reaching and irreparable. What facts are material in a particular case would necessarily depend upon the nature of the order, direction or writ sought.

Where the question is, whether the order appointing the petitioner as an Assistant Commissioner had the effect of reducing him in rank, what was the substantive appointment of the petitioner is not only relevant but a material factor for the determination of the question. For if the petitioner was only officiating as a Deputy Commissioner and his substantive appointment was the one to which he was reverted, the reversion would not necessarily and under all circumstances amount to a step-back in rank. The case, however, would be just the otherwise if the substantive appointment of the petitioner was in the higher grade. Where petitioner is guilty of deliberately suppressing facts which have been brought to light by the respondent State and which have a direct bearing on the point at issue that by itself may disentitle the petitioner to the relief he claims. Case-law Ref. ILR (1954) Patiala 105 : A I R 1954 Pepsu 98 (102) (Pt A) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226 — Stamp Act (1899), S. 57 — Certificate granted under S. 42 — No reference can be made under S. 57 as no case remains pending before Revenue Authority — Issuing of direction for reference will be unnecessary. See Stamp Act (1899), S. 57. AIR 1961 Punj 12.

——Art. 226 — Suppression of material facts — Effect of.

Where the petition under Art. 226 challenging the legality of the order of the custodian and of the higher authorities holding the property as evacuee property is filed 6 years after the orders were made and the petitioner is guilty of suppression of material facts, no relief can be granted to him. 61 Pun L R 475 : A I R 1959 Punj 487 (488) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226 — Application under — Applicant suppressing material fact — If disentitled to relief.

A suppression of a material fact in the affidavit filed by the applicant under Art. 226 of the Constitution, is alone sufficient for refusal to make the rule absolute. A I R 1951 Punj (Sim.) 1, Rel. on. 54 Pun L R 366 : AIR 1953 Punj 193 (194) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 227 — Practice — Petitioner coming to Court with false allegations — No interference by High Court with order of lower tribunal. 1964 Raj L W 472.

——Art. 226 — Concealment of facts — Effect of.

The petitioner filed an application for a writ of prohibition while declaring that the non-petitioner had ceased to be the chairman of a municipality in consequence of the motion of no confidence passed at a particular meeting held by the members. He did not disclose in his petition that the same motion had been put to vote at another meeting called for and held by the chairman himself and was lost the day previous to the day on which he alleged that the motion had been passed at the meeting mentioned by him in the petition. In consequence of the non-disclosure he was able to obtain a certain interim order which the Court would have refused if the fact had been disclosed by the petitioner.

Held, that on the ground of non disclosure of that fact alone the petition was liable to be dismissed without hearing the petitioner on merits. A I R 1952 Raj 146, Rel. on. 1958 Raj L W 255 : I L R (1958) 8 Raj 364.

——Art. 226 — Pleadings — Incorrect statements in petition — Effect.

It is not proper to penalise a petitioner so much as to dismiss his petition altogether simply because the allegation made by him that arguments were not allowed on certain issues by the tribunal against whose order he has filed the petition, may not be correct specially when the objection on this ground is taken at a late stage. ILR (1957) 7 Raj 34 : A I R 1957 Raj 189 (192) (Pt A) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Art. 226—Issue of writ under — Motor Vehicles Act, S. 57 (3)—Application for permit —Publication not made for six months —Unreasonable—Transport authority, not passing any order — No remedy by way of appeal — Mere wrong interpretation given in the application — Not suppression of facts or mis statement —Right to writ.

S applied for permit for his transport bus in pursuance of a notification of the Regional Transport Authority and after publication of the applications made by others on a subsequent notification wrote to the authority for including his name also and also sent a telegram later for the issue of a permit and the matter not having been attended to, he applied under Art. 226 for the issue of a direction to the authority stating that no orders had been passed on his application, and that he was a holder of a permanent permit valid till January, 1952. It was contended that the application was still pending consideration by the authority, that on the allegations made he had a remedy by way of appeal, and further that the application was not maintainable because of suppression or mis-statement contained in it.

Held, that no time limit is prescribed for publication of applications under S. 57 (3) of the M. V. Act; it means that the same shall be made within reasonable time. Subsequent applications made having been published and the petitioner's application not being published for more than six months, the period is unreasonable and the petitioner has suffered thereby.

The authority has not published the application and it has not passed any order on it; the application cannot be treated as rejected and it cannot be held that the petitioner has the other remedy by way of appeal to the higher authorities disentitling him to apply under Art. 226.

The petitioner's case is that the original permit was valid till January 1952, and the action of the Transport Authority cancelling his permit and not allowing to ply his bus was illegal. A new permit had been issued valid up to Nov. 1951 only, in respect of the replaced bus under the directions of the authority. The petitioner having placed all the facts and the relevant records before the Court he could not be held to have suppressed any facts or done anything to misguide the Court. He was wrong in the interpretation he put on the original permits issued to him. The application under Art. 226 is not to be dismissed on that account. 1952 Raj LW 323 : ILR (1952) 2 Raj 265 : AIR 1953 Raj 1 (4) (Pt E) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Art. 226—Suppression of true facts— Effect.

Parties who come to the High Court and ask it to exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction under Art. 226 should place full and true facts before it and should not word the application or affidavit in such a way as to create a completely misleading picture of the facts leading to the making of the application in order to deceive the court in passing interim orders in their favour. If the applicant deliberately suppresses material and relevant facts from the Court the applicant disentitles himself from getting any writ, order, or direction in his favour and the Court will refuse to look into the merits of the case and dismiss the application 1917 1 KB 486, AIR 1951 Nag 16, AIR 1951 All 746, Rel on. 1952 Raj L W 160 : ILR (1952) 1 Raj 958 : AIR 1952 Raj 146 (148) (Prs 9, 10) (DB).

——Art. 226—Bona fides — Suppression or falsification of facts—Effect

A petition under Art. 226 requires for its foundation a bona fide and consistent course of conduct on the part of the petitioners. Any attempt at suppression or falsification of facts will meet with a summary dismissal of the petition at the hands of the Court. AIR 1957 Trav-Co 307 (309) (Pt B) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226—Suppression of material facts.

Where the suppression of material facts was deliberate and mala fide, the rule nisi obtained as a result of such non-disclosure is liable to be dissolved and the petition dismissed. Held that the petitioner was not guilty in any manner in not having expressly made mention of the material facts. The rule nisi in this case was thus properly obtained and the application to cancel the rule or make it absolute had to be considered on its merits. Case-law discussed. I L R (1953) Trav-Co 118 : AIR 1953 Trav-Co 286 (290, 291, 292) (Pt A) (Prs 9, 10).

——Art. 226— Suppression of material facts —Effect.

The fact that the petitioner suppressed the most important fact of his having received three months' salary in lieu of discharge notice is very material and it goes very much against the petitioner. (1957) 2 Lab L J 533 : AIR 1956 Tripura 33 (35) (Pt D) (Pr 12).

——Art. 226—Application in bad faith.

Article 226 is meant to redress grievances for which either there is no other remedy or the alternative remedy is too slow, costly and uncertain. It is an exceptional equitable relief which can be granted on very good grounds. But if the applicants come in bad faith, the relief has to be refused. AIR 1952 Vin Pra 18 (19) (Pt C) (Pr 8).

11 (g). Joint application.

——Art. 226—Joint petition—Joint petition by tenants of houses sought to be acquired, challenging validity of land acquisition proceedings—Petition is maintainable as petitioners have common cause of action and right is joint and inseparable. AIR 1965 All 356 (360) (Pt B) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226— Joint petition — Two notices under two sections in respect of two separate assessment years —One petition does not lie in respect of both the notices—Income-tax Act (1961), Ss. 147 (a) and 142. (1965) 2 I T J 692 : (1966) 61 ITR 120 (All).

——Art. 226—Writ petition—Joint petition—Maintainability—Petitioners having a common cause of action and seeking a common relief arising out of identical facts—Joint petition seeking issue of single writ so as to serve the object of them all, was maintainable. AIR 1964 All 386 (389) (Pt C) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226—Joint petition—Maintainability — Joint petition by twelve petitioners—Each petitioner having distinct and separate interest — Twelve separate writ petitions held should have been filed — Irregularity however, held could be cured by requiring petitioners to pay up prescribed Court-fee for eleven other writ petitions as it was too late to drive eleven petitioners to file separate petitions. A I R 1963 All 301 (302) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226—Single petition by two — Question of facts exactly same—Orders concerning the petitioners same—Petition not thrown out in discretion of Court. (1963) 7 Fac L R 30 (All).

——Art. 226—Parties to petition —Multifariousness—Two notifications for acquisition of two separate parcels of land — Joint petition by several tenants challenging notifications - All of them not interested in both parcels of land — Petition is defective for multifariousness —Petitioners given option to proceed with petition with respect to one parcel of land. ILR (1962) 2 All 653 : A I R 1962 All 208 (209) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226—Order for payment of wages relating to several workmen challenged by single writ petition by all — Maintainability.

Where 28 applications by 28 workmen for payment of wages were heard as a single case and were disposed of by a single judgment, a single writ petition challenging the order is maintainable especially when the issue raised is identical in all and every one of the applicants has the same interest in the impugned order. AIR 1962 All 77 (80) (Pt B) (Fr 16).

——Art. 226—Pleadings — Joint application by petitioners having separate and distinct interests—Competency.

The right of each deed-writer to practice in a registration office is separate and distinct. When licenses of several such deed writers are cancelled, a joint writ petition, by them is not maintainable. AIR 1960 All 366, Foll. AIR 1961 All 61 (61) (Pt A) (Pr 2).

——Art. 226—Joint petition — Petitioners dismissed from service by single order — Joint writ petition—Competency.

At the time when their joint petition under Art. 226 against a single order of dismissal from service was filed on the 22nd of June, 1956, there was no definite authority one way or the other on question of maintainability of a joint petition. Even afterwards there was no unanimity between the High Courts on the point. The objection to the maintainability of the petition on the ground that it had been made joint by two persons was taken for the first time at the stage of argument in an appeal from the order of the Judge dismissing the writ petition.

Held, that the objection would not be allowed to be raised at this stage. The petition should not be rejected in the circumstances of the present case on the ground that it was a joint petition and that two separate petitions were not filed : A I R 1960 All 366, Ref. 1961 (2) Cri L J 327 (All).

——Art. 226—Single petition against several persons on common ground—Competency.

A person can file a single writ petition against a number of persons on a common ground arising out of one consolidated order and involving the same points of law. AIR 1960 All 366, Disting.

If the consolidated decision is quashed the order will govern all the connected cases. (1961-62) 21 F J R 219 : 1960 All L J 537 : 1960 All W R (HC) 428 : (1960) 2 Lab L J 373 : AIR 1960 All 724 (725) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226—Mandamus—Writ of—Joint petition on behalf of several petitioners — Competency. I L R (1959) 2 All 33 : A I R 1960 All 484 (500) (Pt F) (Pr 88).

——Art. 226 — Joint writ petition — Common right —Joint petition — Maintainability — Order 1, Civil Procedure Code not applicable.

If one wants a redress by way of a writ petition he comes in his individual right and stands on it, not jointly with others A I R 1956 Cal 291, Diss. from. 1959 All L J 864 : 1960 All W R (HC) 664 : I L R (1959) 2 All 201 : A I R 1960 All 366 (366) (Pr 1) (DB).

——Art. 226—Procedure—Affidavit.

Per Mootham, J. — Where application of one of applicants is accompanied by affidavit of considerable length but the other applications are accompanied by short affidavits in which the applicants state that they rely upon the facts as set out in the affidavit of the first applicant, it is an unsatisfactory practice as it is likely to result in one or more of the deponents deposing to matters not within his or their personal knowledge. Better course is to file joint affidavit. AIR 1953 All 739 (Pt A) (Pr 1) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Joint writ application by several persons against whom impugned order was passed — Some of petitioners not entitled to relief as their appeal against impugned order had become time barred — Writ petition is liable to be dismissed in its entirety. AIR 1957 Andh Pra 88 and AIR 1958 Andh Pra 16, Rel. on. (1964) 2 Andh L T 292 : (1964) 2 Andh W R 310.

——Art. 226 — Several applicants — Joint petition—Maintainability — Test - (Civil P. C. (1908), S. 141, O. 1, R. 1; O 2, R. 3).

An application under Art. 226 of the Constitution of India is a proceeding in a Court of civil jurisdiction. Section 141, Civil P. C. is therefore directly attracted and the provisions of Orders 1 and 2 of the Code can be invoked as far as they can be made applicable to the proceeding in a writ application under Art 226. Ordinarily, two or more persons cannot join in a single petition to enforce separate claims. But where the right to relief arises from the same act or transaction and there is a common question of law or fact, or where, though the right to relief claimed does not arise from the same act or transaction, the petitioners are jointly interested in the cause of action one petition is maintainable at their instance. Thus where two supervisors of a Market Committee were discharged from their services by a single order of the Collector and they jointly filed a single petition under Art. 226 for quashing the order, Held that the petitioners were aggrieved by a single act of the Collector and a common question of law and fact arose and therefore a single application was maintainable. (1957) 2 Andh W R 345 : 1957 Andh L T 915 : I L R (1957) Andh Pra 678 : A I R 1958 Andh Pra 16 (19) (Pr 10) (DB).

——Art. 226—Writ applications arising out of revenue matters—Group applications should not be filed. AIR 1955 N U C (Assam) 2810 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Joint petition containing common questions of law and fact is maintainable—(Civil P. C. (1908), O. 1, R. 1).

Several employees who were dismissed for going on illegal strike made separate applications to the Assistant Commissioner of Labour under section 16 of the Industrial Disputes Act. The applications were allowed by a common order. The employer filed separate revision applications which were allowed by a common order by the State Industrial Court. The employees jointly filed Special Application for quashing the common order of the State Industrial Court.

Held, that since common questions of law and fact would arise in the cases of all the petitioners and the right to relief in each of them arose out of the same act, namely, the order of dismissal passed by the Disciplinary Authority, a joint application was maintainable. It was not necessary to make separate applications and to pay separate court-fees. 1961 Nag L J (Note) No. 25, Rel. on. 1963 Mah L J (Notes) 8.

——Art. 226—Joint application—Applicants aggrieved by common order—Application is not bad.

It has been fairly settled that the provisions of Civil P. C. as to joinder apply to applications under Art. 226 unless excluded by the Rules made by the High Courts and that a joint application would lie where the applicants are aggrieved by a common order. A I R 1956 Cal 291; A I R 1959 Mad 137 and A I R 1960 All 366, Rel. on. (1965) 11 Fac L R 163 (Cal).

——Art. 226—Mandamus—Joint application — Common injury resulting from common declaration for land acquisition — Single petition by individual persons although interested in different plots, is maintainable. 65 Cal W N 908 and A I R 1957 Andh Pra 88 Rel. on. 67 Cal W N 460 : A I R 1963 Cal 565 (570) (Pt C) (Pr 17).

——Art. 226— Mandamus—Joint petition by persons having separate causes of action—Maintainability — Some applicants pursuing alternative remedy — Effect - Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 18.

Two or more persons cannot join in a single application for an order of mandamus to enforce separat claims. There must be separate applications for separate orders.

Further, in the case of a joint application if it is found that even one of the applicants is disentitled to relief, the whole application must fail. Thus where twenty persons, being dissatisfied by an award under the Land Acquisition Act, make a joint application under Art. 226 of the Constitution for a writ of mandamus but it is found that four of them have already applied for the alternative remedy provided by S. 18 of the Act and are consequently, not entitled to apply for a high prerogative writ, the entire application must fail in limine. ('61) 65 Cal W N 908.

——Art. 226—Joint writ petition—Single application by two or more persons to enforce separate claims not maintainable—Civil Procedure Code (1908), O. 1, R. 1 not applicable — Bombay High Court (Appellate Side) Rules (1960), Chap. 17, R. 1—Bombay High Court (Original Side) Rules, R 623 — Letters Patent (Bom.), Cl. 37. A I R 1950 Mad 626 and A I R 1957 Andh Pra 88, Rel. on. (1961) 2 Guj L R 635 : A I R 1962 Gui 21 (23, 24) (Pt A) (Prs 10, 11, 12, 14) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Joint petition — Maintainability — Claims of petitioners separate and distinct — Joint petition held not maintainable. AIR 1956 Mad 626; A I R 1957 Andh Pra 88, Rel. on. A I R 1965 Him Pra 47 (47, 48) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Art. 226 — Practice — Three petitions by three different persons against same respondents for same relief — Disposal by one judgment — One appeal against judgment — Not maintainable. 1961 Ker L J 642 : 1961 Ker L T 728 : ILR (1961) 2 Ker 326.

——Art. 226 — Petition for writ — Joint petition by several parties—Maintainability.

Though the provisions directing joinder of causes of action or charges do not apply to writ proceedings, there is no reason why the rule of practice where there be no apprehension of any miscarriage of justice, should not be followed in the writ proceedings for which the High Court is authorised to frame its own rules. It follows that, unless there be compelling grounds to exclude persons jointly invoking the jurisdiction under Art. 226, the general practice of allowing more than one person to invoke jointly the jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution should be adhered to. It further follows that several persons filing one petition should not be forbidden, and the Court may direct separate petitions and order deposit of necessary court fee, if the Court, in the circumstances of the case, feels such order to be proper. A I R 1954 S C 440 and A I R 1954 Raj 185 and A I R 1960 Raj 152 and A I R 1956 Cal 291 and AIR 1958 Andh Pra 16 and 55 Bom L R 246, Rel. on. and A I R 1959 Mad 137 and A I R 1960 All 366 and AIR 1961 All 61, Not foll. 1961 Ker LJ 1107 : 1961 Ker L T 792 : ILR (1962) 1 Ker 585.

——Art. 226 — Interest of petitioners not common — Composite petition cannot be entertained—Existence of alternative remedy — No bar to action under Art. 226.

A composite application not arising out of a common interest, cannot be entertained with regard to Prerogative writs. 1957 M P L J (Note) No. 171, Foll. High Court may, in the exercise of its discretion entertain a petition and grant relief notwithstanding the existence of an alternative remedy. AIR 1961 S C 1506, Rel. on. 1962 M P L J (Notes) 148.

——Art. 226—Composite application.

There is no reason why a composite petition under Art. 226 is not maintainable where grounds of attack for all the years of assessment to tax are the same, common questions arise for consideration and the orders of assessment in question are practically simultaneous. 1957 M P C 214: I L R (1957) Madh Pra 206: 1957 Jab L J 373; (1957) 8 S T C 429: 1957 M P L J 317; A I R 1957 Madh Pra 109 (111) (Pt C) (Pr 15) (DB).

——Art. 226—Composite application—Tenability.

A composite application not arising out of a common interest, cannot be entertained either under the rules or general practice obtaining with regard to the prerogative writs. Halsbury's Laws of England, 3 Edn., Vol. II, p. 83, Pr. 155, Rel. on. 1957 M P L J (Notes) 171.

——Art. 226 — Joinder of parties — Several persons desiring to enforce separate claims — Single petition by — Competency—Joint interest — Similar interest—Distinction.

Several persons who are aggrieved by an order of a tribunal cannot join together as petitioners in a common single Writ Petition to quash that order under Art. 226 of the Constitution even though the grievance of all the persons and the remedy sought for might be similar. Apart from cases where a number of persons have common or joint interest in the subject-matter of the controversy, persons having similar but wholly separate and distinct interests in the subject-matter in controversy should file separate applications. AIR 1958 Andh Pra 16, Differed.

The mere fact that the rights of the parties to the relief sought for arises from the same act or transaction or that there is a common question of law or fact to be decided, does not entitle the parties concerned to join in the same petition, though the Court might hear all such petitions together. 1959 Mad W N 201 : 71 Mad L W 835 : I L R (1959) Mad 74 : (1959) 1 Mad L J 53 : (1959) Mad L J (Cr) 39 : A I R 1959 Mad 137 (140, 141) (Prs 24, 32, 33) (DB).

——Art. 226—Similar disputes between seven establishments and their workers referred by single notitication to Industrial Tribunal — Single petition by establishments for writ of prohibition, maintainability of — (Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 10 (1) (c)—(Civil P. C. (1908), O. 1, R. 8).

Government by a single notification referred disputes between seven establishments and their workmen, to the Industrial Tribunal under S. 10 (1) (c), Industrial Disputes Act. These establishments filed a single application for a writ of prohibition against the Tribunal and the Government.

Held, that a single petition was not maintainable. The right whose violation was alleged was an individual right which inhered in each petitioner and merely because similar rights possessed by the other persons were also violated, it did not follow that their grievances had a unity. There must be as many writ petitions as there were petitioners. 70 Mad L W 485 : (1957) 2 Mad L J 54 : (1957) Mad L J (Cr) 317 : AIR 1957 Mad 616 (616) (Pr 2).

——Art. 226—Single application for relief of composite character, based on distinct causes of action—Maintainability — (Madras Court-fees and Suits Valuation Act (1955), S. 6(4)) — (Civil P. C. (1908), O. 2, R. 3)—Court-Fees Act (1870), S. 17).

Where estates owned by several devasthanams had been notified and taken over by the Government on different dates under separate notifications and the petitioner, who was the hereditary trustee of those devasthanams, filed a single petition under Art. 226 for appropriate writs.

Held, that a single petition was not maintainable. The petitioner must file as many petitions as there were institutions whose rights he sought to assert. The identity of the points to be decided could not impart unity to the right, the alleged violation of which gave rise to the writ petition. 70 Mad L W 483 :

(1957) 2 Mad L J 145 : A I R 1957 Mad 570 (571) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226 – Petitions for issue of writs to question the validity or legality of similar orders against different persons — If can be by a single petition — Civil P. C. (5 of 1908), O. 1, R. 8 — If applicable to writ petitions.

Where a petitioner desires to question the validity or legality of an order, he is entitled to apply for an appropriate writ, but this right of his flows from the order affecting him. The fact that similar orders are passed in the case of other individuals also, be it by the same officer or authority—does not mean that the injury caused is a common or class injury so as to justify a single petition with all the individuals similarly affected joining in it as petitioners. Neither the rule nor principle in O. 1, R. 8, Civil P. C., can be extended to writ petitions. Again the fact that the relief prayed for by the several petitioners, each of whose individual right is alleged to have been invaded improperly by the impugned order is grounded on a common objection the validity of the legislation, or the rule or some order interpreting or enforcing the statute or the rule does not also afford any basis for a joint writ petition by several petitioners aggrieved by similar orders. Each of them has to file independent petitions, paying separate Court-fee on each, with separate vakalat etc (1956) 2 Mad L J 23: 69 Mad L W 372: AIR 1956 Mad 626 (627) (Pr 1).

——Art. 226 — Joint writ petition — Persons having joint interest in subject-matter but possessing separate and distinct rights – Joint petition not maintainable—Civil P. C. (1908), O. 1, R. 1 — Not applicable —High Court of Mysore Rules (1959), Chap. 8 — Writ petitions

Where a number of persons have a common or joint interest in the subject-matter of the controversy they may join together and file a single writ petition but persons having similar but wholly separate and distinct interests in the subject-matter in controversy, should file separate petitions though common questions of law and fact may be involved. A I R 1958 Andh Pra 16 and AIR 1960 Raj 152, Dissent from. The jurisdiction vested in the High Court under Art. 226, of the Constitution is a special original jurisdiction. In the absence of special rules made by the High Court in exercise of its power under Art. 225 of the Constitution, in the very nature of proceedings under Art. 226 of the Constitution, the provisions of O. 1, R. 1 of the Civil P. C., are not applicable to writ petitions. (1964) 1 Mys L J 513: AIR 1965 Mys 143 (148) (Pt A) (Prs 12, 13) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Orders in various appeals arising out of one matter — One petition against — Maintainability – (Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 64).

Where the orders impugned by a single petition under Art. 226 are passed in various appeals which arise out of one and the same matter namely an application by the petitioner for grant of permit under the Motor Vehicles Act and are interconnected the petitioner is entitled to challenge them by one petition. 1957 M P C 344 : 1957 M P L J 488 : AIR 1957 Nag 102 (103, 104) (Pt A) (Pr 6).

Art. 226 — Single application to quash separate orders—Maintainability.

Separate applications must be made for issue of separate writs to quash separate orders ; otherwise, on one application, if it succeeds, several separate writs will have to be issued and that will lead to an absurd position. 1958 B L J R 212 : I L R 37 Pat 462 : AIR 1958 Pat 653 (654) (Pt A) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Single application to quash several orders.

A joint application for quashing several orders is not maintainable. 1958 B L J R 239 : (1958) 2 Lab L J 444 : (1958-59) 15 F J R 183 : AIR 1958 Pat 314 (319) (Pt G) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Art. 226 – One application for different writs – (Civil P. C. (1908), O. 1, R. 3).

There must be separate applications for separate writs. Where in an application under Art. 226 fourteen different occupancy tenants, who have nothing to do with each other, will become party respondents to the application, and if successful, the application will result in interference with fourteen separate and independent mutation orders, one application to question the legality of orders of the revenue officers in fourteen separate cases and seeking writ to quash those orders is not proper and competent. The applicant should have filed fourteen separate applications questioning the legality of each separate mutation order and making the particular occupancy tenant concerned a party respondent in a particular application or at least disclosing his particulars in his affidavit to enable the Court to serve rule nisi upon him. Even if the Civil P. C, applies to such applications, still it cannot be taken to override a general rule applicable to such applications that there should be separate applications for separate writs. AIR 1954 Raj 185, Rel. on , A I R 1952 Raj 74 and 55 Bom L R 246, Dist. I L R (1955) Patiala 622 : A I R 1955 Pepsu 159 (160, 161, 162) (Pt B) (Prs 5, 15, 17, 18) (DB).

——Art. 226 – Notification for acquisition of land — Validity of notification challenged — Person or persons affected can jointly file writ petition — Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 6.

Where a notification is issued for the acquisition of land in a particular village, all or any of the persons affected by the notification can jointly file a petition challenging the validity of the notification, since even if the petition could only be entertained as being on behalf of any one of the petitioners the effect in the event of its success would be the quashing of the whole acquisition proceedings once the notification was held to be invalid. A I R 1962 Punj 55, Disting. ILR (1964) 2 Punj 38.

——Art. 226 — Joint petition assailing assessment of more than one year under East Punjab General Sales Tax Act — Grounds of challenge exactly similar. Held, writ petition having been admitted, it would not be proper and just to throw it out on that ground. (1964) 15 S T C 648 (Punj).

——Art. 226—Individual grievance—Each aggrieved person must file independent petition for relief—Joint petition by several aggrieved persons for relief, although based on a common objection does not lie—Levy of profession tax by different District Boards in the State — Application by Revenue Patwaris Union challenging authority and jurisdiction of the District Boards, on the Patwaris is not maintainable. A I R 1956 Mad 626 and A I R 1957 Mad 616, Rel. on. 63 Punj L R 530 : A I R 1962 Punj 55 (55, 56) (Pr 1) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Joint application by several persons involving common questions held maintainable, ILR (1959) 9 Raj 1284 : A I R 1960 Raj 152 (159) (Pt D) (Pr 24) (DB).

——Art. 226 — One application in respect of several cases.

There were 23 separate applications pending before the Anti Ejectment Officer, in which there were different applicants. Twenty three separate applications for revision were filed by the opposite party in 23 cases although they were disposed of by the Board of Revenue by a single judgment.

Held, that it was not proper for the petitioners to file a single petition under Art. 226 in respect of all the 23 cases. In case the same questions of law and fact were involved, it may be that the High Court might consider it proper to decide all the petitions under Art. 226 by a single judgment. Still the orders directions or writs, which might be issued, would have to be issued separately in respect of each case. It would, therefore, be very inconvenient even if not altogether illegal, that writs, directions or orders, as might be felt necessary, might be issued on a single omnibus petition in respect of all the 23 cases. 1955 Raj L W 170 : ILR (1954) 4 Raj 577 : AIR 1954 Raj 185 (188) (Pt B) (Pr 12) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Application under — Two persons against whom two different orders under Cl. 25 Rajasthan Food Grains Control Order were passed joining in one petition — Application is maintainable when their case is exactly the same — Affidavit filed by one of applicants in support of application held was sufficient. 1951 Raj L W 467 : ILR (1951) 1 Raj 674 : 1952 Cri L J 732 : AIR 1952 Raj 74 (78, 79) (Pt G) (Prs 18, 19) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Civil P. C. (1908), O. 1, R. 8; O. 2, R. 3 — Joint petition by two or more — Maintainability.

In cases where writ applications are filed under Art. 226 to enforce a civil right the applications will amount to civil proceedings. To such civil proceedings, S. 141, Civil P. C. directs that the procedure in regard to suits should be followed as far as it can be made applicable. Thus it cannot be said that O. 1 and O 2, Civil P. C. will not apply at all to such proceedings.

Joint application by three petitioners for declaration that the common order of District Magistrate authorising seizure of petitioners' India-Pakistan Passports granted to them on three different dates, is illegal and ultra vires — Three distinct prayers — Joint application held was not maintainable. For applicability of O. 2, R 3, petitioners must show that they were jointly interested against same defendant. AIR 1962 Tripura 7 (9, 10, 11) (Pt A) (Prs 9, 11, 12, 13, 22).

12. Article 32, scope of.

(a) Question of fact.
See also Note 79.
(b) Jammu and Kashmir.
(c) No infringement of fundamental rights.
(d) Article 32 (3).
(e) Article 32 (4).

12. Article 32, scope of.

● ——Art. 32—Petition under—Scope of—Confined only to provisions affecting petitioner's fundamental rights.

In dealing with petitions under Art. 32, the Court would naturally confine the petitioners to the provisions of the imgugned Act by which their fundamental rights are either affected or threatened and it is not necessary for the Court to decide the question about the validity of other provisions in the Act. Khyerbari Tea Co., Ltd. v. State of Assam, (1964) 5 S C R 975 : (1964) 2 S C A 319 : AIR 1964 S C 925 (941) (Pt F) (Pr 43).

● —Art. 32 — Order illegally passed by State Government under S. 42 of East Punjab Holdings (Consolidation and Prevention of Fragmentation) Act (50 of 1948) — Adverse order affects right to property of petitioner — He can file writ petition under Art. 32. Roop Chand v. State of Punjab, (1963) Supp (1) S C R 539 : 65 Punj L R 576 : AIR 1963 S C 1503 (1508) (Pt C) (Pr 22).

● ——Art. 32—"All local or other authorities under the control of Government of India" in Art. 12 — Meaning—Quasi-judicial authority functioning outside territory of India but administered by Government of India — Order refusing permit by Appellate Authority in Pondicherry under Motor Vehicles Act, at a time when Pondicherry was under administration of Government of India but outside Indian territory —Authority not under control of Government of India, within Art. 12, being quasi-judicial authority — Writ under Art. 32 against such authority after Pondicherry has become part of India—Not available—Order held not open to attack under Art 15. See Ibid, Art. 12. AIR 1963 S C 1464.

● ——Arts. 32, 142 and 145—Supreme Court Rules (1950), O. 35, R. 12—Fundamental right to move Supreme Court under Art. 32—Infringement of—R. 12, O. 35 in so far as it relates to giving of security in proceedings under Art 32 infringes fundamental right under Art. 32 to move the Supreme Court and is invalid—Order for security cannot be sustained even under wide powers conferred by Art. 142 (1).

Per Majority : Rule 12 of O. 35 of the Supreme Court Rules and Orders in so far as it relates to the giving of security for costs in a petition under Art. 32 of the Constitution retards the assertion or vindication of the fundamental right to move the Supreme Court under Art. 32 of the Constitution and constitutes its infringement. The Rule is invalid and cannot be sustained. Such a rule cannot be justified either under Arts. 142 (1) or 145 (1) (f) of the Constitution.

An order calling upon the petitioner to furnish security would retard the assertion or vindication of his fundamental right under Art. 32 since it would impose a financial obligation on the petitioner. The order would amount to a hindrance in the further progress of the petition and cannot be said to aid a fair hearing of the petition like the order prescribing the manner in which the paper books have to be prepared or other steps in connection with the petition have to be taken. It may be that the order is intended to protect the interest of the respondent and in that sense, may be treated as fair; but the fairness of the order or of the object intended to be achieved by it will not disguise the fact that its effect is not to aid the petition but to retard it to some extent and in considering the constitutionality of the order or of the rule which permits the order to be made, the fact that the object intended to be achieved is good, just or unexceptionable would be immaterial. AIR 1954 S C 561 and AIR 1946 P C 66, Rel. on.

Such order cannot be justified on the ground that the powers conferred upon the Supreme Court under Art. 142 (1) of the Constitution are wide and cannot be controlled by Art. 32. An order which the Court can make under Art. 142 in order to do complete justice between the parties must not only be consistent with the fundamental rights guaranteed by the Constitution, but it cannot even be inconsistent with the substantive provisions of the relevant statutory laws. Consequently it would not be possible to hold that Art. 142 (1) confers upon the Supreme Court powers which can contravene the provisions of Art. 32.

The rule providing for making of an order for furnishing security in cases of petitions under Art. 32 cannot also be made under Art. 145 (1) (f).

Per Shah, J. (dissenting) : Right to move the Supreme Court under Art. 32 is not wholly unfettered or unrestricted. Art. 32 (1) guarantees a right to move the Court by appropriate proceedings. There is, therefore, in the Article itself limitation upon the exercise of the right. Appropriate proceedings would include the proceedings relating to form, conditions of lodgment of petitions, and compliance with all reasonable directions imposed which would conduce to the smooth conduct of proceedings in the Supreme Court. Power to make rules for practice and procedure of the Supreme Court read with the guarantee under Art. 32 (1) to move by appropriate proceedings implies the power to impose procedural restrictions conducive to the orderly progress of the petition for relief for breach of a fundamental right.

There is no warrant for assuming that the exercise of the jurisdiction has to be subordinated to the exercise of the right to move the Court. Article 32 (1) is included in Chap. III and the right to move the Court is itself made a fundamental right, whereas Art. 142 falls in Part V dealing with Union Judiciary. But these being parts of a constitutional document no special sancity attaches to the provisions contained in Chap. III so as to prevail over the other provisions. Even assuming that an order made in a given case may be erroneous the jurisdiction of the Court conferred by the Constitution under Art. 142 to make such orders as may be necessary for doing complete justice is not on that account affected. Therefore, even in a proceeding under Art. 32 (1) the Supreme Court is competent to make all such orders as it deems proper including an order for security for costs of the respondent. Prem Chand Garg v. Excise Commissioner, U. P. (1963) Supp (1) S C R 885 : (1963) 2 S C A 125 : A I R 1963 S C 996 (1001 to 1007) (Prs 8, 12, 14, 15, 16, 21, 23, 24, 27, 28, 29).

● ——Art. 32—Maintainability of petition.

Where the tax has been levied by the Deputy Commercial Tax Officer not by misconstruing certain provisions of a valid Act, but is levied by him, even though he has no jurisdiction to assess the tax on account of the invalidity of the rule under which the tax is assessed, a petition challenging the rule will lie under Art. 32. AIR 1962 S C 1621, Disting. A. T. B. Mehtab Majid & Co. v. State of Madras. (1963) 1 S C W R 284: (1964) 1 Mad L J (S C) 115 : 1964 (1) S.C J 355 : (1964) 1 Andh W R (SC) 115 : (1963) Supp 2 S C R 435 : (1963) 2 S C A 68 : (1963) 14 S T C 355 : AIR 1963 SC 928 (932, 933) (Pt F) (Pr 21).

● ——Art. 32 — Pondicherry, if territory of India—Appeal under Art. 136 (1) from orders of Chief Commissisner of Pondicherry, acting as appellate authority under S. 64, Motor Vehicles Act, if maintainable —Writ petition against orders — Enforcement of orders on writ petition—Powers under Art. 32 not circumscribed by territorial limitations — Question whether Pondicherry is Indian territory, referred to Union Government under S. 4, Foreign Jurisdiction Act. See Ibid, Art. 136 (1). AIR 1963 S C 533.

● ——Art. 32—'Territories as may be acquired' — Question as to whether Pondicherry is territory of India—Question forwarded to Union Government by Supreme Court—Answer received is binding on Court —Pondicherry is not territory 'acquired' within meaning of Art. 1 (3) (c) — No appeal lies to Supreme Court—Per Majority (Sarkar and Das Gupta JJ., Contra)—No writ petition can be entertained. See Ibid, Art. 1 (3) (c). AIR 1962 S C 797.

● ——Arts. 32, 14, 19 and 31 — Interference with fundamental rights to property by executive action without any authority of specific rule of law — Issue of writ—Person building on State land with permission of Government—Suit under S. 92, C. P. Code may be brought against person in possession of — Trust property—Respondents violated the fundamental right of petitioner — Orders of respondent must be quashed. AIR 1954 S C 415 and AIR 1953 SC 215 and AIR 1927 P C 135, Rel. on. Bishan Das v. State of Punjab, 1961 S C D 824 : (1962) 2 S C R 69 : (1963) 1 S C J 445 : 1961 Andh L T 939 : AIR 1961 S C 1570 (1574, 1575) (Prs 11, 14).

● ——Art. 32—'Appropriete proceedings'—Meaning of.

Article 32 guarantees a fundamental right to a citizen to move the Supreme Court by an original petition whenever his grievance is that his fundamental rights have been illegally contravened. On a fair construction of Art. 32 (1) the expression 'appropriate proceedings' has reference to proceedings which may be appropriate having regard to the nature of the order, direction or writ which the petitioner seeks to obtain from this Court. Daryao v. State of U. P. 1961 S C D 836 : (1961) 2 S C A 591 : (1962) 1 S C J 702 : (1962) 2 Andh W R (S C) 16 : (1962) 2 Mad L J (S C) 16 : (1962) 1 SCR 574 : A I R 1961 S C 1457 (1461) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

● ——Art. 32—State collectiug tax under Central Sales Tax Act on behalf of Central Government—Threat to recover again sales tax on same turnover again on behalf of Central Government by another State—Effect—Violation of fundamental right.

Where a company has paid to the Sales Tax Officer, Bihar, tax due under the Central Sales Tax Act on its turnover including sales on which the tax is sought to be levied by the Commercial Tax Officer. West Bengal and under the Central Sales Tax Act, there is a single liability to pay tax on inter State Sales, the threat of the State of West Bengal to recover again sales-tax on behalf of the Central Government in respect of the same sales, i. e., sales, which are included in the assessment proceedings before the Bihar Sales tax authorities prima facie infringes the fundamental right of the company to hold its property and the company is entitled to approach the Supreme Court under Art. 32 of the Constitution A I R 1957 S C 790, Relied on. Tata Iron & Steel Co. Ltd., Bombay v. S. R. Sarkar, (1960) 11 S T C 655 : (1961) 1 S C A 364 : (1961) 1 S C R 379 : AIR 1961 S C 65 (68, 69, 76, 77) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 37).

● ——Art. 32—Applicability—Infringement of fundamental right to carry on business—Application for writ dismissed by High Court but judgment in favour of petitioner—Application for special leave pending —Supreme Court has power to grant relief under Art. 32 Shrinivasa Reddy v. State of Mysore, 38 Mys L J 71 : 1960 Mad W N 98 : (1960) 2 S C R 130 : 1960 S C J 1092 : AIR 1960 S C 350 (353) (Pt C) (Pr 7).

● ——Art. 32—Applicability — Petition challenging constitutionality of Madras Act 32 of 1955 on ground of infringement of fundamental rights under Art. 19 (1) (f) and Art. 31 (1)—Maintainability.

The petitioner who was a sthanam holder, filed a petition under Art. 32 praying that a writ of mandamus or any other proper writ, order or directions be ordered to issue for the purpose of enforcing his fundamental rights, directing the respondents to forbear from enforcing any of the provisions of the Madras Act (32 of 1955) against the petitioner, his Kavalappara sthanam and Kavalappara estate, declaring the said Act to be unconstitutional and invalid. The first respondent was the State of Madras and respondents 2 to 17 were the members of the Sthanee petitioner's tarwad.

Held, that the petitioner's grievance was certainly against the action of the State which, by virtue of the definition of that term given in Art. 12 of the Constitution, includes the Madras Legislature and it could not certainly be said that the subject-matter of the present petition comprises disputes between two sets of private individuals unconnected with any State action. Therefore the petition under Art. 32 was not governed by the decision in AIR 1952 S C 59 and the petitioner could not be debarred from availing himself of his constitutional right to invoke the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court for obtaining redress against infringement of his fundamental right. Kochunhi Nayar v. State of Madras, 1959 Ker L J 464 : (1959) 2 S C A 248 : 1959 S C J 858 : (1959) 2 Andh W R (S C) 70 : (1959) 2 Mad L J (S C) 70 : (1959) Supp (2) S C R 316 : AIR 1959 S C 725 (730) (Pt B) (Pr 9).

● —Art. 32—Applicability—Law taking away or abridging fundamental right—Absence of overt act by State — Right of person aggrieved to apply—(Madras Marumakkathayam (Removal of Doubts) Act (32 of 1955), S. 2).

An enactment may immediately on its coming into force take away or abridge the fundamental rights of a person by its very terms and without any further overt act being done. In such a case the infringement of the fundamental right is complete eo instanti the passing of the enactment and, therefore, there can be no reason why the person so prejudicially affected by the law should not be entitled immediately to avail himself of the constitutional remedy under Art. 32.

Held, that in view of the language employed in S. 2 of Madras Marumakkathayam (Removal of Doubts) Act, 1955 and its effect the petitioners can legitimately complain that their fundamental right to hold and dispose of the sthanam properties has been injured by the action of the Legislature which is "State" as defined in Art. 12 of the Constitution and the petitioners are prima facie entitled to seek their fundamental remedy under Art. 32. Kochunni Nayar v. State of Madras, 1959 Ker L J 464: (1959) 2 S C A 248 : 1959 S C J 858 : (1959) 2 Andh W R (S C) 70 : (1959) 2 Mad L J (S C) 70: (1959) Supp (2) S C R 316 :AIR 1959 S C 725 (731, 732) (Pt C) (Pr 10).

● —Art. 32—Applicability — Jagirdar giving contracts to cut forests in jagir — Unauthorised extension of period of contracts by forest officers —Confiscation of forest goods by Government—Petitions under Art. 32, on ground that right to hold and dispose of property was infringed—Maintainability. See Ibid, Art. 19 (1) (f). AIR 1959 S C 498 : (1959) S C J 621.

● —Arts. 32, 19 (1) (g)—Scope of — Imposition of tax without due authority.

If a tax is levied without due legal authority on any trade or business, then it is open to the citizen aggrieved to approach the Supreme Court for a writ under Art. 32, since his right to carry on a trade is violated, or infringed by the imposition and such being the case, Art. 19 (1) (g) comes into play. Kailash Nath v. State of U. P., (1957) 8 S T C 358 : AIR 1957 S C 790 (792, 793) (Pt C) (Pr 9).

[Overruled in AIR 1962 S C 1621]

● —Art. 32 — Applicability — Orissa Hindu Religious Endowments Act (2 of 1952) as amended in 1954), S. 79-A—Validity—(Orissa Hindu Religious Endowments Act (2 of 1952 as amended in 1954), S. 79-A).

The result of S. 79-A is to treat the schemes framed within the specified period as schemes framed immediately after the commencement of the present Act and to impute thereto, by a fiction, compliance with the various procedural and other steps which are requisite under S. 42. Such a provision is within the competence of the Legislature. The right of any person to seek remedy under Art. 32 of the Constitution in respect of any violation of his fundamental rights is in no way curtailed or affected by the fact that an actual decision of the Supreme Court on an application under Art. 32 is, in effect, nullified by appropriate and competent legislative measures. Section 79-A, therefore, is not open to any objection on the ground of legislative incompetence. Sadashiv Prakash Bramchari Trustee of Mahiparakash Math v. State of Orissa, 1956 S C J 397 : 1956 S C C 478 : 22 Cut L T 235 : 1956 S C A 794 : 1956 S C R 43 : AIR 1956 S C 432 (439, 440) (Pt C) (Pr 8).

● —Art. 32 — Petition under, is not maintainable unless there has been a violation of some fundamental right. M/s. Bhagwandas Gangasahai v. The Union of India, AIR 1956 S C 175 (175, 176) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 5).

● —Art. 32—Mill producing Cotton yarn closed—Thereafter orders handing over management of mill to authorised controller passed—Orders held were invalid — There was deprivation of property within Art. 31 of the Constitution—Petitioner was within his rights in applying under Art. 32. See Ibid, Art. 13 (1). AIR 1955 S C 624.

● —Art. 32—Scope—An illegal impost must at all times be an unreasonable restriction and will necessarily infringe right of the citizen to carry on his occupation, trade or business under Art. 19 (1) (g) and such infringement can properly be made the subject-matter of a challenge under Art. 32. Mohammad Yasin v. Town Area Committee, Jalalabad, 1952 S C J 162 : 1952 S C R 572 : 1952 S C A 237 : AIR 1952 S C 115 (117) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

● —Art. 32—Scope and object—Question of legislative competency—When can be raised.

Article 32 is not directly concerned with the determination of constitutional validity of particular legislative enactments. What it aims at is the enforcing of fundamental rights guaranteed by the Constitution no matter whether the necessity for such enforcement arises out of an action of the executive or of the legislature. To make out a case under this Article, it is incumbent upon the petitioner to establish not merely that the law complained of is beyond the competence of the particular Legislature as not being covered by any of the items in the Legislative lists, but that it affects or invades his fundamental rights guaranteed by the Constitution, of which he could seek enforcement by an appropriate writ or order. The rights that could be enforced under Art. 32 must ordinarily be the rights of the petitioner himself who complains of infraction of such rights and approaches the Court for relief.

A proceeding under this article cannot really have any affinity to what is known as a declaratory suit. A prayer for relief in the shape of a declaration is inappropriate to an application under Article 32. Charanjit Lal Chowdhury v. Union of India, 1951 S C J 29 : 1951 Mad W N 111: (1951) 21 Comp Cas 33 : 1950 S C R 869 : 53 Bom L R 499 : I L R (1951) Hyd 461 : 64 M L W 47 : AIR 1951 S C 41 (52, 53, 60) (Pt E) (Prs 44, 45, 73).

● —Art. 32—Scope and extent of—Jurisdiction of Supreme Court under Art. 32 whether concurrent with that of High Court under Art. 226 — Constitution of India, Art. 226.

Article 32 does not merely confer power on the Supreme Court, as Art. 226 does on the High Courts, to issue certain writs for the enforcement of the rights conferred by Part III or for any other purpose as part of its general jurisdiction. Article 32 provides a "guaranteed" remedy for the enforcement of those rights, and this remedial right is itself made a fundamental right by being included in Part III. The Supreme Court is thus constituted the protector and guarantor of fundamental rights and it cannot, consistently with the responsibility so laid upon it, refuse to entertain applications seeking protection against, infringements of such rights. The jurisdiction thus conferred on the Supreme Court by Art. 32 is not concurrent with the one given to High Courts by Art. 226. Romesh Thappar v. The State of Madras, 1950 Mad W N (Cri) 115 : 1950 Raj L W 387 : 1950 All L J 485 : 1950 S C J 418: (1950) 2 Mad L J 390 : 63 Mad L W 929 : 51 Cri L J 1514 : 1950 S C R 594 : AIR 1950 S C 124 (126) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

● —Art. 32—Petition to Supreme Court.

The wording of Art. 32 shows that the Supreme Court can be moved to grant a suitable relief mentioned in Art. 32 (2) only in respect of the Fundamental Rights mentioned in Part III of the Constitution. A. K. Gopalan v. State of Madras, 1950 Mad W N 495 : 1950 Mad W N (Cri) 127 : (1950) 2 Mad L J 42 : 63 Mad L W 638 : 1950 S C J 174 : 51 Cri L J 1383 : 1950 S C R 88 : AIR 1950 S C 27 (33) (Pt Zm) (Pr 4).

—Art. 32 -Scope — Revisional powers of the High Court under S. 439 are certainly wider in scope than the writ jurisdiction under Art. 32 of the Constitution. See Cr. P Code (1898), S. 439. 1961 (1) Cr L J 676 : AIR 1961 Manipur 12.

12 (a). Question of fact.

See also Note 79.

● —Art. 32 –Powers of Supreme Court–Disputed questions of facts–If can be gone into.

Clause (2) of Art. 32 confers power on the Supreme Court to issue directions or orders or writs of various kinds referred to therein. But the proposition that, on an application under Art. 32, the Supreme Court may decline to entertain the same on the simple ground that it involves the determination of disputed questions of fact or on any other ground cannot be countenanced. Questions of fact can and very often are dealt with on affidavits. The Court may, in some appropriate cases, be inclined to give an opportunity to the parties to establish their respective cases by filing further affidavits or by issuing a commission or even by setting the application down for trial on evidence, as has often been done on the original sides of the High Courts of Bombay and Calcutta, or by adopting some other appropriate procedure. Kochunni Nayar v. State of Madras, 1959 Ker L J 464 : 1959 S C J 858 : (1959) 2 Andh W R (S C) 70: (1959) 2 M L J (S C) 70 : (1959) 2 S C A 248 : (1959) Supp (2) S C R 316 : AIR 1959 S C 725 (733, 734, 735) (Pt E) (Pr 12).

● —Art. 32–Powers of Supreme Court.

It is only on facts admitted or taken as proved that the question of the violation of a fundamental right can be decided by the Supreme Court under Art. 32, because when facts are in dispute, the matter has to be enquired into and decided by proper legal proceedings. Kailash Nath v. The State of U. P., (1957) 8 S T C 358 : AIR 1957 S C 790 (792) (Pt B) (Pr 8).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1962 S C 1621.]

● —Arts. 32 and 226–Finding of fact — Interference–(Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 167).

If a party's grievance was that the view taken by the appropriate authorities was erroneous, that was not a matter which could be legitimately agitated before the Supreme Court in a petition under Art. 32. If the goods had been seized in accordance with law and they had been seized as a result of the findings recorded by the relevant authorities competent to hold enquiry under the law (the Sea Customs Act) it was not open to the petitioner to contend that the Supreme Court should ask the authorities to exercise discretion in favour of the petitioner and allow his licences a further lease of life. Bhatnagars and Co. v. Union of India, 1957 S C J 546 : 1957 S C A 810 : 1957 S C R 700 : AIR 1957 S C 478 (483, 484) (Pt B) (Pr 8).

—Art. 32 — Scope — Disputed questions of fact — High Court's powers under Art. 226 — Distinction. AIR 1960 Madh Pra 282 (285) (Pt A) (Pr 10).

12 (b). Jammu and Kashmir.

● —Art. 32 (2-A) (as applied to Jammu and Kashmir)—Applicability — Claim on basis of violation of Art. 14—Breach of law—Effect.

The High Court of Jammu and Kashmir can act under Art. 32 (2-A) only to enforce a fundamental right. Where the only fundamental right on the violation of which the applicant relies is the right to the equal protection of the laws under Art. 14 of the Constitution on the ground that the procedure prescribed by the Kashmir Civil Service Rules was not followed before the order demoting him from certain post was made all that can be said to have happened is that the State has acted in breach of the law. But that does not amount to a violation of the right to the equal protection of the laws. The High Court has, therefore, no power to act under Art. 32 (2-A) in such a case. AIR 1956 J & K 17, Reversed State of J. & K. v. Ghulam Rasool, 1961 S C D 289 : (1962) 1 S C J 552 : (1961) 3 S C R 969 : AIR 1961 S C 1301 (1302) (Pr 6).

● —Art. 32 (2-A) as applied to the State of Jammu and Kashmir)–Disputed question of fact.

A petition under Art. 32 (2-A) as applied to the State of Jammu and Kashmir is maintainable where the questions of fact are not so seriously disputed as cannot satisfactorily be determined in the proceedings under Art. 32 (2-A). Gulam Rasul v. State of Jammu and Kashmir, AIR 1956 J & K 17 (20) (Pt B) (Pr 17) (FB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1961 S C 1301.]

12 (c). No infringement of fundamental rights.

● —Arts. 32 and 19 (1) (f) and (g) – Confiscation of imported goods and penalties imposed by order made under S 167 (8), Sea Customs Act, 1878 — Order passed by authority with jurisdiction under valid Act — Order cannot be challenged as being repugnant to Art. 19 (1) (f) and (g) on sole ground that it is based on misconstruction of provision of law –Petition questioning validity of order does not lie under Art 32.

Per Majority (Das Gupta, J. dissenting.)—Where an order imposing confiscation and penalties under S. 167 (8) of the Sea Customs Act 1878, is made by a quasi judicial authority acting with jurisdiction under the said taxing Act which is intra vires, the order is not open to challenge as repugnant to Art. 19 (1) (f) and (g) on the sole ground that it is based on a misconstruction of a provision of the Act inserted therein by a valid Order (in this case by para. 6 of the French Establishments (Application of Laws) Order, 1954). And the validity of such an order cannot be questioned in a petition under Art 32 of the Constitution. A I R 1962 S C 1621, Applied; A I R 1957 S C 790, held not valid law. Pioneer Traders v. Chief Controller of Imports and Exports, Pondicherry, (1963) 2 S C A 243 : 1964) 1 S C J 595 : (1963) Supp (1) S C R 349 : A I R 1963 S C 734 (741, 743) (Pt A) (Prs 15, 21).

● —Art. 32 — Scope — Publication of scheme and cancellation of permits of existing operators - Effect —Right of operators to ply buses is extinguished— There is no infringement of fundamental right even if State plies its buses without obtaining permits under S. 42. See Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 68 F (1). (1963) 2 S C J 188 : AIR 1963 S C 640.

● —Art. 32 — Procedure laid down in the Act for settlement of disputes between Patiala State Bank and its customers — No infringement of Art. 19 (1) (f) (g). See Constitution of India Art. 19 (1) (f). AIR 1963 S C 222.

● —Arts. 32, 136, 13 and 19, 226—Assessment order under taxing statute — Statute intra vires— Order based upon misconstruction of provisions of statute and notification thereunder — Validity of such order cannot be questioned under Art. 32— Proper remedy is by way of appeal or under Art. 226

—Sales Tax — U. P. Sales Tax Act (15 of 1948), S. 4 (1) (b).

Per Majority (Subba Rao and N. Rajagopala Ayyangar JJ. Contra):—An order of assessment made by an authority under a taxing statute which is intra vires and in the undoubted exercise of its jurisdiction cannot be challenged on the sole ground that it is passed on a misconstruction of a provision of the Act or of a notification issued thereunder. Nor can the validity of such an order be questioned in a petition under Art. 32 of the Constitution. The proper remedy for correcting an error in such an order is to proceed by way of appeal, or if the error is an error apparent on the face of the record, then by an application under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Article 32 of the Constitution does not give the Supreme Court an appellate jurisdiction such as is given by Arts. 132 to 136 AIR 1957 S C 790, Overruled.

Held, Per Majority (Subba Rao and N. Rajagopala Ayyangar JJ., Contra) : that there was no violation of any fundamental right and no writ petition under Art. 32 was maintainable.

Per S. K. Das, J., (Subba Rao, J. Contra) : that there was no misconstruction of the notification, dated December 14, 1957, and the resultant action of the assessing authority could not be challenged.

N. Rajagopala Ayyangar, J. - It was possible reasonably, to uphold the construction adopted by an inferior tribunal and therefore it would be a case of mere error of law and not a patent error, or an error apparent on the face of the record which should justify the issue of a writ of certiorari. Ujjam Bai v. State of Uttar Pradesh, (1963) 1 S C R 778 : (1963) 1 S C A 1 : AIR 1962 S C 1621 (1626, 1627, 1632, 1636, 1637, 1659, 1660, 1669, 1679, 1680, 1685, 1686) (Pt A) (Prs 8, 21, 38, 95, 100, 128, 154, 156, 181, 182, 184)

● —Arts. 32, 133, 136 — Right of person to maintain appeal and petition under Art. 32—No fundamental right infringed—Right of appellant to ply buses extinguished—Effect.

If the right of the appellant to ply his buses is lawfully extinguished, under the provisions of the Motor Vehicles Act he is not entitled to maintain an appeal challenging the right of the State Transport Undertaking to ply their buses with or without permits. Nor is any fundamental right of the appellant infringed by the State Transport Undertaking plying its buses without permits, and a petition under Art. 32 of the Constitution cannot be maintained. Kalyan Singh v. State of U. P., (1963) 1 S C J 50 : 1962 Supp (2) S C R 76 : ILR (1962) 1 All 906 : 1962 All L J 523 : AIR 1962 S C 1183 (1189) (Pt G) (Pr 17).

● —Art. 32 — S. 16, Durgah Khawaja Saheb Act (1955)—Validity — Provision does not offend against Art. 14 read with Art. 32. AIR 1959 Raj 177, Reversed. See Ibid, Art. 14. AIR 1961 S C 1402.

● —Art. 32 - S. 18, Durgah Khawaja Saheb Act (1955) —Validity—Provision does not contravene Art. 14 or Art. 32 — AIR 1959 Raj 177, Reversed. See Ibid, Art. 14. AIR 1961 S C 1402.

● —Art. 32 — Regional Transport Authority granting permit to State Government and not to a Co-operative Society — Decision does not offend Art. 14 of the Constitution—Regional Transport Authority acts as quasi-judicial authority — Decision in mistake if any, can be corrected by appropriate remedies available to the society. See Ibid, Art. 14. AIR 1960 S C 801.

● —Art. 32 — Applicability—Person holding contracts for supply of milk to Government Hospital—Tender for certain year accepted but later on cancelled—Application under Article — Maintainability. See Ibid, Art. 14. AIR 1959 S C 490.

● —Arts. 32, 19 (f) and (g) —Applicability—'Fundamental right' — Unregistered document granting right to cut trees in forest — Subsequent vesting of forest in State — Grantee prevented from cutting trees—Fundamental right, if infringed — (Registration Act (1908), Ss. 17 (1) (d), 49)—(Transfer of Property Act (1882), Ss. 3 and 105) — (Easements Act (1882), S. 52).

A zamindar executed an unregistered document in favour of his wife, the petitioner, granting her a right to cut and appropriate all kinds of wood from his zamindari forest. The document purported to be a lease for a period of twelve years. The proprietary rights in the zamindari estate vested in the State by virtue of a notification issued under S. 3, M. P. Abolition of Proprietary Rights (Estates, Mahals, Alienated Lands) Act, 1950. The petitioner filed an application under Art. 32 of the Constitution that her fundamental rights under Art. 19 (1) (f) and (g) of the Constitution have been infringed.

Held (Per S. R. Das, C. J., T. L. Venkatarama Aiyar, S K. Das and A. K. Sarkar, JJ.) that the petitioner could not complain of the infringement by the State of any fundamental right for the enforcement of which alone a petition under Art. 32 is maintainable. AIR 1953 S C 103, Dissented from.

Per Bose, J : — The document was not a lease but amounted to a licence to enter on the land coupled with a grant to cut certain trees on it. Being unregistered, it passed no title or interest and therefore, the petitioner had no fundamental right which she could enforce. Shantabai v. State of Bombay, 1958 S C A 727 : (1958) S C J 1078 : 1959 S C R 265 : AIR 1958 S C 532 (533, 534, 537) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6, 28, 36).

● —Art. 32 — Applicability—Fundamental rights not involved — Maintainability of application under Art. 32.

The petition purported to invoke jurisdiction of the Supreme Court under Art. 32 of the Constitution and it was a valid and competent petition in so far as it challenged the vires of S. 17 of the Working Journalists (Conditions of Service and Miscellaneous Provisions) Act itself.

Held, that once S. 17 was held to be valid and in order, the competence of the petition under Art. 32 was naturally open to serious jeopardy. No question about the fundamental rights of the petitioner was involved. Kasturi & Sons (Private), Ltd. v. Salivateswaran, (1958) 1 Lah L J 527 : (1958-59) 14 F J R 174 : 1958 S C J (SC) 844 : (1958) 2 Andh W R (SC) 130 : (1958) 2 M L J (SC) 130 : 1958 Mad L J (Cr) 635 : (1959) S C R 1 : AIR 1958 S C 507 (512) (Pt D) (Pr 14).

● —Art. 32 — Scope — Orders under certain Acts challenged as erroneous on merits—Provisions of law not challenged — Applications under Art. 32 not maintainable — (Indian Tariff Act (1934), Sch. I, Item 45 (4)—(Sea Customs Act (1878), S. 188).

If the provisions of law under which the impugned orders have been passed are good and the orders passed are with jurisdiction, whether they be right or wrong on facts there is really no question of the infraction of a fundamental right. If a particular decision is erroneous on facts or merits, the proper remedy is by way of an appeal.

Thus where certain persons were aggrieved by the orders of the Customs Collector imposing a duty under Item 45 (4) instead of Item 45 (a) of the Customs Tariff, and on being unsuccessful, they moved the Supreme Court under Art. 32 of the Constitution.

Held, that unless the provisions relating to the imposition of duty were challenged as unconstitutional, or the orders in question were challenged as being in excess of the power given to the Customs authorities and therefore without jurisdiction, no question of any fundamental right under Art. 19 (1), Cls. (f) and (g) of the Constitution could at all arise. Gulabdas and Co. v. Assistant Collector of Customs, 1958 S C A 164 : 1957 S C J 709 : AIR 1957 S C 733 (736, 737) (Prs 6, 9, 11).

● —Arts. 32, 226, 132 and 136 – Finding based on no evidence—Proof.

The contention that a finding made by a competent authority is based on no legal evidence is easy to make but very difficult to establish. Such a contention can succeed only when it is shown that there is really no legal evidence in support of the view taken by the appropriate authorities. If all the appropriate authorities on considering the circumstances, concurrently found against the petitioner, that obviously is not a matter which can be legitimately agitated in the petition under Art. 32. Bhatnagars and Co v. Union of India, 1957 S C J 546 : 1957 S C A 810 : 1957 S C R 700 : AIR 1957 S C 478 (486) (Pt E) (Pr 12).

● —Art. 32 — Order under S. 57, Bombay Police Act—Sufficiency of evidence—(Bombay Police Act (22 of 1951), S. 57).

That the order under S. 57, Bombay Police Act is based on previous orders of discharge or acquittal, and that those orders were passed because there was not sufficient evidence to bring the charge home to the accused, are all matters which cannot be examined by the Supreme Court in an objective way.

It cannot be laid down as a general proposition of law that a previous order of discharge or acquittal cannot be taken into account by those authorities when dealing with persons under S. 57; it is not for Supreme Court to examine afresh the materials and to be satisfied that the order impugned is correct. Hari Khemu Gawab v. Dy. Commr. of Police, Bombay, 1956 Pat L R (SC) 203 : 1956 Cr L J 1104 : 1956 S C J 599 : 1956 S C A 1046 : 58 Bom L R 995 : 1956 S C R 506 : AIR 1956 S C 559 (568) (Pt G) (Pr 11).

● —Art. 32 — Applicability — Freedom of inter-State and intra-State trade cannot be enforced under Art. 32.

The freedom of inter-State and intra-State trade or business embodied in Art. 301 is not a fundamental right conferred by Part III of the Constitution and therefore cannot be enforced by a petition under Art. 32. Ramchandra v. State of Orissa, 1956 S C A 346 : 22 Cut L T 171 : 1956 S C C 184 : 1956 S C R 28 : 1956 S C J 293 : A I R 1956 S C 298 (305) (Pt D) (Pr 18).

● —Art. 32—Applicability — Petition under—Not maintainable unless there is violation of fundamental right.

The Government as the owner of the land with its minerals is prima facie entitled to lease it out to any body and no person can claim that he has a right to have the lands leased out to him. A petition under Art. 32, cannot be maintained. M/s. Bhagwandas Gangasahai v. The Union of India, AIR 1956 S C 175 (175, 176) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 5).

● —Art. 32 – Scope.

Violation of the right of personal liberty by a private individual is not within the purview of Art. 21—Therefore a person whose right to personal liberty is infringed by a private individual must seek his remedy under the ordinary law and not under Art. 32. Smt. Vidya Verma, through next friend R. V. S. Mani v. Dr. Shiv Narain Verma, 1956 Cri L J 283 : 1956 S C J 121 : 1956 All W R 168 : 1956 Nag L J 200 : 1956 All L J 156 : 1956 S C A 357 : AIR 1956 S C 108 (109) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

● —Art. 32—Applicability — Application under — Maintainability — (East Punjab Evacuees (Administration of Property) Act (14 of 1947, as amended by Act (26 of 1948), S. 5-A).

Where the application of the petitioner under S. 5-A of the East Punjab Act 14 of 1947 for confirmation of the sale transaction relating to evacuee property, was rejected by the Custodian acting on the Custodian-General's circular under which a policy of not confirming transactions relating to agricultural property was enunciated, and in an application under Art. 32 the petitioner contended that the action of the Custodian in basing his decision on the circular was illegal and that it was not relevant material under S. 5-A:

Held, that even if this contention be correct this did not raise any question of violation of fundamental right and an application under Art. 32 on this ground was misconceived. Sadhu Ram v. Custodian-General of Evacuee Property, 1956 S C J 99 : 1956 S C A 70 : 1955 (2) S C R 1113 : AIR 1956 S C 43 (43, 44) (Pt B) (Prs 1, 4).

● —Art. 32—Executive Government taking upon themselves selection, printing and publishing of school text-books — Previously, Government inviting publishers to submit their books for approval and after selection leaving printing and publishing of same to such publishers — Petition under Art. 32 by private publishers alleging infringement of their fundamental right under Art. 19 (1) (g) — Private publishers if had a fundamental right in the publication of text books under Art. 19 (1) (g) – Action of executive Government how far infringes such right. See Ibid, Art. 19 (1) (g). (1955) 2 M L J (SC) 59 : 1955 S C J 504 : AIR 1955 S C 549.

● —Art. 32—Exemption under S. 20 of Act (6 of 1952) — (Rajasthan Land Reforms and Resumption of Jagirs Act (6 of 1952), S. 20).

The contention that an estate was dedicated for worship of the Devi and was therefore within the exemption enacted in S 20 of Act 6 of 1952 is not a question which can be determined in a petition under Art. 32. It will be open to the petitioner to establish in appropriate proceedings that the village or any portion thereof is within the exemption of S 20 of the Act. Amarsinghji v. State of Rajasthan, (1955) 2 S C R 303 : 1955 S C A 766 : 1955 S C J 523 : AIR 1955 S C 504 (539) (Pts ZF) (Pr 98).

● —Art. 32—Deprivation of property for recovery of tax — Art. 31 (1) does not apply — No remedy under Art. 32 See Ibid, Art. 31 (1). 1955 S C J 590 : (1955) 2 M L J (S C) 94 : 1955 Andh W R (S C) 348: AIR 1955 S C 3.

● —Art. 32—Article has no application to voluntary actions—Voluntary settlement under S 8-A of the Taxation on Income (Investigation Commission) Act, 1947 – Petitioner cannot assail the settlement on ground that certain provisions of the Act were void. Gopal Das Mohta v. Union of India, ('54) 26 I T R 722: 1955 S C J 60: (1955 1 Mad L J (S C) 19: (1955) Andh W R (S C) 19 : (1955) S C A 624 : 1955 S C R 773 : AIR 1955 S C 1 (2, 3) (Pr 5).

● —Art. 32—Scope and remedy under.

The scope of the remedy under Art. 32, is restricted solely to enforcement of fundamental rights conferred by Part III of the Constitution. Any right, which the petitioners may have as ratepayers in the municipality to insist that the Municipal Board should be legally constituted and that respondents, who are not properly elected or nominated members, should not be permitted to take part in the proceedings of the Board, is outside the purview of Art. 32 as such right, even if it exists, is not a fundamental right conferred by Part III. Nain Sukh Das v. State of U. P., (1953) S C J 546 : (1953) 2 M LJ 257 :

1953 S C A 594 : 1953 S C R 1184 : AIR 1953 S C 384 (395) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

● ——Art. 32—Scope.

The protection against imposition and collection of taxes save by authority of law directly comes from Art. 265 and is not secured by Art. 31 (1). Article 265 not being in Chap. 3 its protection is not a fundamental right which can be enforced by an application to the Supreme Court under Art. 32. Ramjilal v. The Income tax Officer, Mohindar Garh, (1951) 19 I T R 174 : 1951 S C J 203 : (1951) 1 M L J 384 : 1951 All L J (S C) 16 : 64 M L W 402 : 1951 S C R 127 : (1952) S C A 107 : AIR 1951 S C 97 (100) (Pt B) (Pr 12).

● ——Art. 32—Held (per Majority, Fazl Ali, J. Contra) that imposition of pre-Censorship on a journal under S. 7 (1) (a) of the East Punjab Public Safety Act was void under Art. 19 of the Constitution and the order imposing the pre-censorship was liable to be quashed. See Public Safety — E. P. Public Safety Act (1949), S. 7 (1) (c). AIR 1950 S C 129.

12 (d). Article 32 (3).

——Art. 32 (3)—"Any other Court" — Meaning of—If includes a High Court.

The expression "any other Court" in Art. 32 (3) of the Constitution only means any Court other than a High Court since the High Courts have already been invested with powers under Art. 226, the above expression could not manifestly refer to a High Court. 1952 Cri L J 660 : AIR 1952 Bhopal 1 (3) (Pt B) (Pr 10).

12 (e). Article 32 (4).

● ——Art. 32—President ordering suspension of right to move Court for enforcing rights under Arts. 21 and 22 — Effect — Person detained under R. 30 of Defence of India Rules — Petition to Supreme Court under Art. 32 for issue if writ of habeas corpus — Petitioner held had no locus standi to enforce the right. See Ibid, Art. 359 (1). AIR 1964 S C 173.

● ——Art. 32 — Person detained under R. 30 of Defence of India Rules — Petition under Art. 32 for issue of writ of habeas corpus — Validity of Defence of India Ordinance. 1962 challenged — Effect of President's Order under Art. 359 (1) suspending right to move Court — Petition held not maintainable. See Ibid, Art. 359. AIR 1964 S C 173.

13. Articles 32 and 226 compared.

● ——Arts. 32 and 226—Distinction.

There is a distinction between Art. 32 of the Constitution which gives power to the Supreme Court to intervene where there is an allegation that fundamental rights have been violated and Art. 226 where the Court can give relief not only in such cases but also in those where, for any other reason, it may be just and expedient for the Court to interfere. Maqbunnissa v. Union of India, 1953 All L J 148 : (1953) All W R (HC) 212 : I L R (1953) 2 All 289 : AIR 1953 All 477 (478, 479) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (FB).

[Overruled on another point in AIR 1981 S C 532.]

——Arts. 32 and 226—Scope of powers under.

A comparison of Art. 32 and Art. 226 indicates that the ambit of the powers of the High Court is at present wider than the powers of the Supreme Court as regards the purposes for which the direction, order and writ can be issued but is more restricted as regards the territories wherein and the persons on whom the direction, order or writ can be issued. 56 Cal W N 264 : AIR 1952 Cal 610 (612) (Pt A) (Pr 17).

——Arts. 226 and 32 (3) — High Court's power to issue directions, orders or writs "for any other purpose" in praesenti.

Reading Art. 226 with Cl. (3) of Art. 32, the High Court has the power under Art. 226 to issue directions, orders or writs not only for the enforcement of any of the rights conferred by Part III but also "for any other purpose" and the words "shall have power' only emphasise the fact that the issue of these directions, orders or writs is entirely a matter for the discretion of the Court. The fact that Cls. (2) and (3) of Art. 32 make no reference to the power to issue directions, orders of writs for any purpose other than the enforcement of any of the rights conferred by Part III, does not in any way indicate that the words "shall have power" in Art. 226 (1) though meaning immediate conferment: of power in relation to the enforcement of any of the rights conferred by Part III, imply futurity as regards the power to issue directions, order or writs "for any other purpose." I L R (1952) Madh Bha 231 : A I R 1950 Madh Bha 46 (49, 50) (Pt B) (Prs 10, 11) (DB).

[This case was overruled in A I R 1950 Madh Bha 60 which was itself overruled in A I R 1951 Madh Bha 121 (FB).]

● ——Arts. 226 and 32—Scope of Art. 226 and Art. 32 and the nature of writs of certiorari and mandamus indicated. Bhailal Jagadish v. Additional Deputy Commissioner, Akola, I L R (1953) Nag 839 : 1952 Nag L J 613 : A I R 1953 Nag 89 (97, 98, 99, 100) (Pt E) (Prs 44, 45, 49, 56, 60) (FB).

● ——Arts. 226 and 32 (3) — Power of High Court under Art. 226—Effect of Art. 32 (3).

Per Hidayatullah J. :—The exercise of powers by High Court under Art. 226 need not await legislation by Parliament in that behalf under Art. 32 (3). In fact, the very opening words of Art. 226 read with Cl. (2) of Art. 32 show that the High Court's powers under Art. 226 are not postponed and that the High Courts are excepted from operation of Art. 32 (3).

Per Mangalmurti and Mudholkar JJ. :—No doubt, the words of Cl. (3) of Art. 32 are wide enough to include a High Court, but it is equally pertinent to note that the powers conferred by Art. 226 are "notwithstanding anything in Art. 32" from which it would follow that the High Courts do not come within Cl. (3) of that Article. What the Constituent Assembly had apparently, in view while enacting that clause was Art. 247 which empowers Parliament to provide for the establishment of additional Courts for the better administration of laws made by Parliament or of any existing law with respect to a matter enumerated in the Union list.

Furthermore, the words in Cl. (3) of Art. 32 which are sufficient for enabling Parliament to confer jurisdiction on the High Court are "may by law empower". But this is precisely what the Constitution itself has done by using the words "shall have power" in the Art. 226. Sheoshankar v. State Government of Madhya Pradesh, 52 Cri L J 1140: I L R (1951) Nag 646: AIR 1951 Nag 58 (65, 78) (Pt A) (Prs 34, 137, 139) (FB).

——Art. 226—Exercise of power—Discretion of High Court.

Article 226 of the Constitution confers only powers on the High Court which it is left to its discretion when to exercise and when not to exercise while the remedy conferred by Art. 32(2) imposes a duty on the Supreme Court. AIR 1950 S C 124, Rel. on. 1951 Nag L J 79.

——Arts. 32 and 226—Relative scope and distinction—Powers of High Court to give protection against invasion of proprietary right of citizen — Powers of Supreme Court—Distinction.

It cannot be held that if a person holding a public office, or a corporation, interferes with the proprietary right of a citizen, it is the duty of the High Court under Art. 226 to give adequate relief by issuing a writ of mandamus to the wrongdoer. It is clear from a comparison of Arts. 32 and 226, that while the right to move the Supreme Court under Art. 32 for the enforcement of the fundamental rights is guaranteed to the citizen, such a right is not guaranteed under Art. 226 although the High Court has a wider field assigned to it, in that it can issue writs for the enforcement of any of the fundamental rights conferred by Part III as well as for "any other purpose". No provision corresponding to Art. 32 (1) finds a place in Art. 226. Therefore, even if there is an invasion of any fundamental right of a citizen his right to move the High Court is not guaranteed. Article 32 provides a guaranteed remedy for the enforcement of the fundamental rights, and this remedial right is itself made a fundamental right by being included in Part III. A I R 1950 S C 124, Ref I L R 30 Pat 287 : AIR 1952 Pat 23 (26) (Pts C, D) (Prs 14, 15) (DB).

——Arts. 32 and 226—Distinction.

Per Lekshmikanta Jha, C. J.:—A comparison of the provisions of Art. 32 with those of Art. 226 of the Constitution clearly shows that though the right to move the Supreme Court under Art. 32 for the enforcement of the fundamental rights is guaranteed to a citizen, such a right is not guaranteed under the provision of Art. 226, although the High Court has a wider field assigned to it in that it can issue writ for the enforcement of any of the fundamental rights conferred by Part III as well as for "any other purpose". No provision corresponding to the provision of Art. 32, Cl. (1), finds place in Art. 226. Therefore even if there is an invasion of any fundamental rights of a citizen, his right to move the High Court is not guaranteed. 30 Pat 287 : AIR 1952 Pat 23 (26) (Pt C) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Arts. 32 and 226—Distinction.

The powers of High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution are wider than those of the Supreme Court under Art. 32. Under Art. 32 the Supreme Court can issue a writ only in enforcement of fundamental rights. But under Art. 226 the High Courts have got the power of issuing writs not only for the enforcement of rights which are recognised as fundamental rights by the Constitution but also "for any other purpose". I L R (1951) Trav. Co 808 : 1951 Ker L T 714 : A I R 1952 Trav Co 1 (4) (Pt B) (Pr 12) (DB).

14. Articles 226 and 227.

——Arts. 226, 227—Remedy by way of certiorari open for quashing conviction — Petition under Art. 227, is not maintainable.

When a remedy by way of an application for certiorari under Art. 226 for the purpose of quashing a conviction on the ground of lack of jurisdiction in the Court is open to an applicant, he is not justified in invoking the High Court's supervisory power and a petition under Art. 227, is not maintainable in such a case. 1963 All L J 488 : 1963 All W R (HC) 380 : 1963 All Cr R 208 : 1963 (2) Cri L J 595 : I L R (1964) 1 All 178 : AIR 1963 All 585 (587) (Pt B) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Scope.

Articles 226 and 227 of the Constitution are very wide in their scope but the very plenitude of the power conferred by them requires a cautious exercise of it. I L R (1957) 1 All 109 : (1957) 1 Lab L J 603 : AIR 1956 All 644 (649) (Pt C) (Pr 23) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Applicability — Motor Vehicles Act (1939), S. 47 — Words 'public interest'—Meaning—Power of Transport Authority to grant or refuse permit — Order rejecting petition on ground beyond S. 47—Quashing of order and issue of proper direction.

The discretion of the Regional Transport Authority in granting or refusing permit is to be exercised in accordance with the provisions of S. 47, Motor Vehicles Act. Any exercise of discretion which goes beyond the provisions of S. 47 will be ultra vires and liable to be set aside by the High Court in the exercise of its powers under Art. 226 of the Constitution. The words "public interest" in S. 47 mean interest of the public which uses the stage carriage and not the public in general. When the number of applicants is not more than the vacancies the fact that the applicant is a new-comer and he is not a displaced person is no ground for rejecting the application. The order of the Regional Transport Authority rejecting the application on this ground is without jurisdiction and is liable to be quashed. A I R 1951 All 257 (FB), Foll. In suitable cases, the High Court can issue a direction to the Regional Transport Authority to grant a permit. Apart from Art. 226 after having quashed the order of the Regional Transport Authority under Art. 226 it is open to the High Court to issue a direction under Art. 227 directing the Regional Transport Authority to grant a permit. A I R 1955 S C 233 and A I R 1956 All 564, Rel. on. 1956 All L J 375 : 1956 All W R 505 : A I R 1956 All 594 (595, 596, 597) (Pt A) (Prs 1, 3).

——Art. 226 — Municipalities — U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 23, Proviso (e) — Bar of revisional jurisdiction of High Court under S. 115, Civil P. C.—Jurisdiction under Arts. 226 or 227 cannot be invoked —(Civil P. C. (1908), S. 115). See Municipalities—U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 23. A I R 1955 N U C (All) 2681.

●——Arts. 226, 227 — Scope of articles — Powers under Art. 227—When exercised.

Articles 226 and 227 are supplementary to each other. The emphasis under Art. 227 is on administrative control and the limited judicial powers contemplated by it are intended for and merely ancillary to such administrative control. Articles 226 and 227 are not intended for identical situations. Though Art. 227 can be said to be not merely administrative superintendence, the power of superintendence conferred by Art. 227 must be exercised most sparingly and only in appropriate cases in order to keep the Subordinate Courts within the bounds of their authority and not for correcting mere errors. A I R 1954 S C 215 and A I R 1952 All 963, Rel. on.

The existence of a remedy through an appropriate writ bars an aggrieved party's invoking powers of superintendence of the High Court under Art. 227; this necessarily follows from the propositions which are beyond controversy now, that the superintending jurisdiction exists to correct only such errors as can be corrected through a writ of certiorari, etc., and that the superintending jurisdiction is exercised through the issue of one of such writs.

If a party is aggrieved by an order of a subordinate Court or tribunal, against which he has no statutory remedy, he must apply for an appropriate writ or he would have no remedy from a High Court. If, under the superintending jurisdiction a High Court can issue an order or direction, it can only be in co-operation with or ancillary to a writ of certiorari, mandamus or prohibition. Only to this extent can a High Court in exercise of its superintending jurisdiction issue an order or direction which is not of the nature of a writ of certiorari, etc. Bhagirathi v. State, I L R (1954) 2 All 591 : 1955 Cri L J 296 : 1955 All L J 6 : 1955 All W R (H C) 70 : A I R 1955 All 113 (116, 122) (Pt C) (Prs 11, 26) (FB).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Interference with illegal conviction by Panchayati Adalat (U. P. Panchayati Raj Act (28 of 1947), S. 52 (1) (a)).

Panchayati Adalat has no jurisdiction to entertain a complaint and try a case where the allegation in the complaint clearly make out an offence under Penal Code which is not mentioned in S. 52 (1) (a) of the U. P. Panchayati Raj Act. Where in such a case it entertains the complaint and convicts the accused for a different offence under the Penal Code which is mentioned under S. 52 (1) (a) of the Act, the conviction is illegal and requires to be set aside when an application is made by the accused under Art. 227 of the Constitution. 1953 All L J 559 : 1953 All W R (H C) 483 : 1953 Cri L J 1852 : A I R 1954 All 8 (8, 9) (Pr 3).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Scope — (Abducted Persons (Recovery and Restoration) Act (1949), S. 8).

Section 8 of the Abducted Persons (Recovery and Restoration) Act does not affect the High Court's power to issue writs or orders or directions to the tribunal under Art. 226 or 227 of the Constitution. 1953 All W R (H C) 257 : 1953 All L J 273 : I L R (1953) 2 All 735 : 1953 Cri L J 1384 : A I R 1953 All 613 (614) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Distinction.

According to the interpretation given by Allahabad High Court to the word 'superintendence' the scope of Article 227 would seem to be of a more limited character than that of Art. 226. Articles 226 and 227 are supplementary to each other. The emphasis under Art. 227 is on administrative control and the limited judicial powers contemplated by it are intended for and merely ancillary to such administrative control. Thus Arts. 226 and 227 are not intended for identical situations. Their purpose, though complementary, is somewhat different and it is by remembering this that overlapping can be avoided. The power of superintendence cannot merely be described as an administrative power for, in addition to the administrative powers specifically enumerated a power partaking of a limited judicial character has been added. That power essentially is meant only to see whether a Court or tribunal has acted within its bounds or not and is ancillary to the administrative powers conferred by the article. Case law discussed. 1952 Cri L J 1695 : I L R (1952) 1 All 558 : A I R 1952 All 963 (972) (Pt F) (Prs 61, 62, 63) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Nature and scope of jurisdiction under—Jurisdiction under Art. 227 can be exercised by Single Judge.

Article 227 lays down that every High Court shall have superintendence over all Courts and tribunals throughout the territories in relation to which it exercises jurisdiction ; and that without prejudice to the generality of foregoing provisions the High Court may act in the manner specified in the article. In exercise of the power of superintendence under Art. 227, the High Court cannot exercise the powers exercisable under Art. 226. The Court can exercise, only in a limited manner, "the power to interfere with judicial orders of subordinate Court" "to check the assumption, or excess, of jurisdiction or to compel the exercise of jurisdiction wrongfully declined, and not to substitute its own judgment, whether on a question of fact or on a question of law, in place of the subordinate Court's. The power conferred on the High Court under Art. 227 is not in any way controlled by the power exercisable by the Court under Art. 226. Under the rules of the Allahabad High Court, applications under Art. 226 and those under Art. 227 of the Constitution are treated and dealt with differently. There are special rules for the institution and disposal of applications under Art. 226, while there are no such rules for applications under Art. 227. An application filed in the High Court for the exercise of power under Art. 226 is, no doubt, cognizable by a Bench of this Court but an application for the exercise of power of superintendence under Art. 227 is cognizable by a Single Judge. 1951 All L J 305, Rel. on. ('52) 1952 All W R (H C) 165 : 1952 R D (H C) 101 : 1952 All L J 161 : 1952 All Cri R 55 : 1952 Cri L J 1520 : A I R 1952 All 843 (844) (Pt A) (Pr 4).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Scope of the power given under — Trial of suit by one Court rather than by another—Interference.

The power given under Arts. 226 and 227 of the Constitution should be restricted to interference in cases of grave dereliction of duty for which no other remedy is available and which would have serious consequences if not remedied.

It cannot be said that any such grave consequence would follow if a suit is tried by one Court rather than another and in any case, if any such serious consequence does follow, then under S. 21 of the Civil P. C., the Court of appeal will have the right to correct any such error. A I R 1951 All 514 (515) (Pr 2) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Scope — Dismissal of writ petition if bar to maintainability of application under Art. 227.

The scope of Art. 227 is entirely distinct and different from Art. 226. Article 227 confers upon the High Court a power of supervision over all judicial matters decided by any Court or Tribunal within the State. Hence the dismissal of a writ petition under Art 226 cannot operate as a bar to the maintainability of an application under Art. 227. A I R 1953 Mad 362 and A I R 1954 S C 215, Foll. (1955) All W R 22 : (1955) 1 Mad L J (AP) 22 : 1954 Andh L T (Civ) 179 : A I R 1955 Andhra 40 (44) (Pt B) (Pr 9).

——Artr. 226 and 227 — Exercise of jurisdiction under Articles.

Whether the High Court quashes the order or dismisses the petition under Art. 226 it exercises a limited jurisdiction and that jurisdiction under no circumstance can be comparable to the jurisdiction exercised by the High Court on the Appellate side or even in its revisional powers under C. P. C. — When the High Court exercises its jurisdiction under Art. 227 of the Constitution it is exercising a supervisory jurisdiction and although it may be loath to interfere lightly with the decisions of Courts and Tribunals which are made final by law, it has undoubtedly the power not only to quash the orders made by these Courts and Tribunals but to pass substantive order in place of the orders it has quashed or set aside. 57 Bom L R 1148 : (1956) 1 Lab L J 246 : ILR (1956) Bom 37 : AIR 1957 Bom 46 (48) (Pt B) (Prs 2, 3) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Discretion —Tribunal allowing party to add to his case — Interference by High Court.

Whether the High Court is acting under Art. 226 or Art. 227, it is an impossible contention to put forward that the Court can interfere with the discretion exercised by a tribunal in permitting a party to add to his case or amend his case or alter it in certain particulars. The only ground on which the Court can interfere is that a reasonable opportunity was not given to the other party to meet the new case. 57 Bom L R 1148 : (1956) 1 Lab L J 246 : I L R (1956) Bom 37 : AIR 1957 Bom 46 (49) (Pt C) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Powers under.

Powers of High Court under Art. 227 of supervision are much wider than powers to issue writ under Art. 226 I L R (1954) Bom 438 : 55 Bom L R 911 : AIR 1954 Bom 171 (174) (Pt D) (Pr 6) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in A I R 1957 S C 73].

——Arts. 226 and 227— Right to apply — (Madhya Pradesh Public Trusts Act (30 of 1951), Ss. 4, 5 and 8—Scheme of — Order declaring certain institutions not to be public trusts passed by Registrar of Public Trusts — State Government if can challenge order under Arts. 226 and 227).

Per Hidayatullah, C. J.: The State Government has no locus standi to apply under Arts. 226 and 227, challenging an order of the Registrar of Public Trusts declaring certain institutions not to be public trusts for purposes of M. P. Public Trusts Act, 1951. Where the working trustee does not apply for registration, and no person interested in the public trust moves the Registrar, and the Registrar, has, after such inquiry as he thought necessary, convinced himself that no public trust exists, the State Government cannot be described as an aggrieved party. In these circumstances, the extra-ordinary powers of High Court under Arts. 226 and 227 of the Constitution cannot be invoked by the State Government to impugn an order made by the Registrar, who is given full powers and discretion to determine whether a public trust exists or not, subject only to a suit to be filed either by the working trustee or by person interested in the public trust. 1958 M P L J 611 : 1958 M P C 586 : 1958 Jab L J 713 : I L R (1957) Madh Pra 599:: AIR 1958 Madh Pra 362 (365, 366) (Pt A) (Prs 16, 22, 23) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 227— Scope —In exercise of writ jurisdiction illegal order coming to notice of High Court —High Court can set it aside under Art. 227. A I R 1962 Manipur 14 (17) (Pt B) (Pr 15).

——Arts. 226, 227—Jurisdiction of High Court under —Nature of.

The High Court, while exercising its jurisdiction under Articles 226 and 227 of the Constitution, acts in a supervisory capacity. It is not for the High Court to review or reweigh the materials on which the conclusions of the inferior Tribunal are based. A I R 1958 M. P. 397, Rel. on. (1963) 5 Orissa J D 97.

——Arts. 226, 227—Scope of—Order of ad hoc tribunals.

The limitations imposed on the High Court in exercising its powers of issuing a writ of certiorari under Art. 226 may not apply with full force when the Court exercises its powers under Art. 227. Art. 227 seems to be wide enough to enable the High Court not only to set aside the order of the inferior tribunal in appropriate cases but also to give adequate relief where the circumstances of the case justify the exercise of this extraordinary power. The fact that the Tribunal is an ad hoc Tribunal and ceases to exist after giving its decision does not make any difference as regards the exercise of this power. ILR (1953) Cut 682: AIR 1954 Orissa 67 (71) (Pt F) (Prs 16, 17) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Finding by Civil Court under S. 146 (1-D) can be interfered with by High Court under S. 439 after finding is adopted by Magistrate and final order is passed by him under S. 146 (1-B) — S. 146 (1.D) has not the effect of taking away powers of High Court under Art. 227 of the Constitution— The scope of power of interference by High Court is co-extensive with the exercise of its power under its writ jurisdiction under Art. 226. See Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 145. 1963 (2) Cri L J 25 : 1963 B L J R 496 : AIR 1963 Pat 243 (FB).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — New point — Objection to jurisdiction not taken before Tribunal.

The question of want of jurisdiction of a tribunal must first be raised before that tribunal if it is to be permitted to be taken in a petition asking for a writ under Art. 226, unless the party shows that at the time of the proceedings impugned he was not aware of the facts which indicated the want of jurisdiction in the tribunal. There is however difference in the nature of powers under Arts. 226 and 227. The jurisdiction under Art. 227 is more in the nature of revisional jurisdiction and where it is a patent case of want of initial jurisdiction it would be a proper case for interference under Art. 227. In such a case the High Court has power to grant relief in spite of the question of want of jurisdiction not having been raised before the tribunal whose order is under question. (Relief was given under Art. 227). ILR (1954) Patiala 310 : A I R 1954 Pepsu 190 (192) (Pt A) (Prs 8, 9).

——Art. 226—Power of superintendence—Comparison with powers under Art. 226 — No interference under Art. 227 merely on technical ground. See Ibid, Art. 227. (1964) Cur L J 324 (Punj).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Nature of proceedings under—Distinction—Tribunal against order of which proceedings are taken under Art. 227 not a necessary party to the same. See Ibid, Art. 227. AIR 1962 Punj 467.

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Jurisdiction — Nature and scope—Petition under Art. 227 — Grant of relief in the nature of writ of certiorari — Permissibility — Omission to implead authority whose order sought to be assailed —Not fatal.

Although Art. 227 of the Constitution is wider than S. 107 of the Government of India Act, 1915, inasmuch as it brings within its fold all the tribunals within the territorial jurisdiction of the High Court and is not confined merely to Courts subordinate to it, this by itself, is not sufficient to attract all the incidents which attach to applications for prerogative writs etc., under Art. 226 such as, the imperative necessity of impleading the authorities whose orders are assailed in the High Court under Art. 227. Every petition under Art. 227 may not be liable necessarily to be thrown out on the sole ground of non-impleading of the authority concerned. In the absence of a clear and well-recognised practice applicable to petitions under Art. 227 of the Constitution, the High Court should not refuse to grant relief to a citizen merely on the ground of omission to implead the authorities concerned. Moreover, since suo motu interference under Art. 227 is also legally permissible without any formal application, in a fit case the High Court should not hesitate to allow impleading of parties if notice to them is considered necessary. AIR 1952 All 843, Rel. on; AIR 1960 S C 137 and AIR 1933 Lah 259 and AIR 1933 Lah 327 and A I R 1933 Lah 605 and A I R 1934 Lah 156 and A I R 1930 Lah 889 and A I R 1959 Punj 291 and A I R 1961 Punj 374 and A I R 1959 Punj 189, Dist.; A I R 1960 Punj 432, Not foll. A I R 1962 Punj 117 (119, 120) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Jurisdiction — Distinction—Power under Art. 227 limited to restrain excessive jurisdiction by inferior tribunals — Errors apparent on face of record — Cannot be corrected under Art. 227,

The powers of judicial interference under Art. 227 with orders of judicial or quasi-judicial nature are not greater than those under Art. 226. Under the latter Article the power of interference may extend to quashing an impugned order on the ground of a mistake apparent on the face of the record, but under Art. 227 the power of interference is limited to seeing that the tribunal functions within the limits of its authority. Moreover, power under Art. 227 is always to be exercised most sparingly and only in appropriate cases, and is clearly not meant for correcting mere errors of fact or even of law. Where it has not been shown that the Officers concerned have in any way travelled beyond the scope of their jurisdiction or have erroneously refused to perform their duty imposed upon them by law then orders are erroneous, that would not by itself warrant correction of the error under Art. 227 of the Constitution. AIR 1958 S C 398, Rel. on. AIR 1962 Punj 117 (121) (Pt B) (Pr 12).

——Art. 226 — Revision filed before Financial Commissioner — No period of limitation prescribed by law — Revision dismissed as filed beyond 90 days of the communication of the Order— Order not actually communicated— Revisional order is vitiated — Order set aside — Case remanded under Art. 227 of the Constitution. See Sales Tax — East Punjab General Sales Tax Act (46 of 1948), S. 21 (3). ('61) 63 Pun L R 495.

——Art. 226—Panchayats — Punjab Gram Panchayat Act (1953), S. 66 — Order or sentence under Act — High Court cannot exercise revisional powers under S. 439, Criminal P. C. but under Arts. 227 and 226 of the Constitution — (Criminal P. C. (1898), S. 439). See Panchayats — Punjab Gram Panchayat Act (4 of 1953), S. 66. AIR 1960 Punj 160.

——Arts. 226 and 227 — C. P. Code (1908), S. 92 — Advocate-General acting under S. 92 - Nature of his function — AIR 1944 Trav Co 331, Dissented from.

The function of the Advocate-General under S. 92, Civil P. C. cannot be called a judicial or quasi-judicial function. Hence, there is no question of revising it under Art. 227, or issuing a writ under Art. 226 compelling him to do anything. AIR 1954 Trav Co 331, Diss. from. 1956 Raj L W 50 : ILR (1955) 5 Raj 324 : AIR 1955 Raj 166 (167) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Applicability.

When a statutory tribunal (like the Transport Appellate Tribunal) confirms part of the order of an executive authority like the P. T. A., and the confirmed part of the order is attacked, the High Court is competent to direct either or both. But it is obviously convenient to treat the application as one against the later order, and to give the proper direction to the Tribunal, which it should, in its turn, embody in its revised order to the authority.

A proceeding to challenge the order of the Transport Appellate Tribunal passed in the exercise of its jurisdiction as a judicial body would attract Art. 227 rather than Art 226 of the Constitution. Misc. No. 62 of 1952 dated 19-1-53, Rel. on. AIR 1953 Vind Pra 49 (50) (Pt A) (Prs 3, 4).

——Art. 226—Applicability— Conflict of jurisdiction between Civil and Revenue Courts — Power of Judicial Commissioner's Court of V. P. to resolve conflict —Art. 226 is not applicable — The matter has to be dealt with under the general supervisory powers under Art. 227, (Civil P. C. (1908), S. 90 — (Tenancy Laws — Rewa Land Revenue and Tenancy Code, S. 239 (g)). See Ibid, Art. 227. AIR 1952 Vind Pra 74.

15. Assessment, illegal, writ against.

See Note 59.

16. Authority not duly constituted, writ against.

See Note 5.

17. Bar to.

(a) Jurisdiction subject to other provisions of Constitution.
(b) Legislative provisions.
(c) Other provisions of Constitution.
(d) Statutory bar.
(e) Other remedy available.

See Note 7.

17. Bar to.:

——Art. 226—Jurisdiction of High Court — Arbitration clause in contract — If bar to application for writ.

It is well established that limitations cannot be placed upon the powers granted to the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution except those which are provided by the Constitution itself, e. g., Art. 329. That being so, it is not possible to hold that the jurisdiction of the High Court is barred under Art. 226 of the Constitution because of the existence of an arbitration clause. AIR 1954 All 393, Foll. AIR 1960 All 72 (79) (Pt G) (Prs 18, 19).

——Art. 226—Object of.

The object of the inclusion in the Constitution itself of a specific Art. 226 with regard to the powers of the High Courts is to secure that these powers of the High Courts shall not be in any way affected by any law, made by the Parliament or by the legislatures of States. ILR (1952) Madh Bha 231 : AIR 1950 Madh B 46 (50) (Pt D) (Pr 10) (DB).

17 (a). Jurisdiction subject to other provisions of Constitution.

■ ——Art. 226—Constitution (17th Amendment), Act (1964)—Effect of amendments made in Art. 31-A and Sch. 9, on High Court's powers under Art. 226, is only incidental and insignificant. See Ibid, Art. 368. AIR 1965 S C 845.

■ ——Art. 226—Kerala Education Bill (1957), Cl. 3 (5) — Constitutional validity — Right of minorities to establish and maintain educational institutions — Right to State aid and recognition — Restrictions on —Validity — Held clause 33 of the Bill was subject to Art. 226 of the Constitution and did not offend Art. 226. See Kerala Education Bill (1957), Cl. 3 (5). AIR 1958 S C 956.

■ ——Art. 226—Scope.

Even when the Legislature states that the orders of the Tribunal under an Act are conclusive and final, High Court and the Supreme Court may interfere under Arts. 226 and 136 respectively. See Ibid, Art. 136. AIR 1954 S C 202.

■ ——Art. 226—Provision in State Act making decision of inferior tribunal final — Effect on power to issue writs— (Madras Shops and Establishments Act (56 of 1947), S. 51).

Whether or not certiorari is or can be taken away by the provision like S. 51 of the Madras Act, 56 of 1947, which makes the decision of the inferior tribunal final and incapable of being challenged in any court of law, it is clear that in spite of such statutory provisions the superior court is not absolutely deprived of the power to issue a writ, although it can do so only on the ground of either a manifest defect of jurisdiction in the tribunal that made the order or of a manifest fraud in the party procuring it. (1875) 5 P C Appeals 417, Rel. on. Parry & Co, Ltd., Dare House, Madras v. Commercial Employees Association, Madras, 1952 Mad W N 429 : 1952 S C R 519 : 65 Mad L W 491 : 1952 Mad W N 429 : 1952 S C J 275 : 1952-1 Mad L J 813 : AIR 1952 S C 179 (180, 181) (Pt B) (Pr 11).

——Arts. 226 and 225 — Scope of — Powers under Art. 226 not to be exercised in derogation of Art. 225 — Final order passed by High Court in exercise of revisional or appellate jurisdiction — Finality cannot be upset in exercise of powers under Art. 226.

Article 226 only confers on the High Court the right to issue prerogative writs and other directions in order to do justice. It does not deal with the circumstances in which those writs or directions can be issued. The provisions of Art. 226 cannot be read in a manner which would be completely destructive of the provisions of Art. 225. The two have got to be harmoniously interpreted. The effect of Art. 226 is not to abrogate the other provisions of the Constitution or the existing laws. It is a power to supplement the powers already existing. Consequently, when because of the provisions of the Letters Patent (All.), the Constitution Acts (Government of India Acts of 1915 and 1935) and the U. P. High Courts (Amalgamation) Order, it is not possible for the High Court to upset the finality of an order already passed by it in the exercise of its revisional or appellate jurisdiction it cannot be said that by virtue of Art. 226 it is possible to do so.

Hence, where the High Court in exercise of its revisional jurisdiction under S. 115, Civil P. C., finally holds that the decree passed by the lower Court does not require any interference it cannot in exercise of its jurisdiction under Art. 226 pass another order saying that the decree is void and should be set aside. AIR 1963 All 532 (533, 534) (Pr 6).

——Arts. 226, 31 (6)—Writ of certiorari — Issue of, to declare Act invalid.

When Art. 31 (6) declares that an Act shall not be called in question on the particular ground mentioned, it is not open to the Court to issue a writ of certiorari or other appropriate writ practically achieving the same result. (1874) L R 5 P C 417, Ref. to. See Ibid, Art. 31 (6). A I R 1952 Mad 835 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Writ petition against municipallty—Failure to give notice under S. 326 of Assam Act (15 of 1957) — Does not affect jurisdiction of High Court to act under Art. 226.

Though a writ petition brought under Art. 226 of the Constitution is a legal proceeding, the powers of the High Court under Art. 226 to issue prerogative writs is an unqualified power which is not even subject to any other provisions of the Constitution. It cannot be made subject to the provisions of any Act of Parliament or of any State legislature. Hence a person who applies for such a writ cannot be nonsuited by a provision like S. 326 of the Assam Municipal Act. A I R 1952 Cal 103 and A I R 1954 Cal 131, Rel. on. A I R 1962 Manipur 28 (30, 31) (Pt A) (Prs 8, 10).

——Arts. 226 and 300 — Article 226 is not subject to provisions of Art. 300. ILR (1953) Punj 472 : A I R 1953 Punj 137 (144, 145) (Pt H) (Pr 30) (DB).

17 (b). Legislative provisions.

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction of High Courts under Art. 226 with that of Supreme Court above them remains to its fullest extent despite S. 105. Representation of the People Act. See Ibid, Art. 136. A I R 1955 S C 425.

——Arts. 226 and 32 — Jurisdiction of High Court — Extent of—Determination by State Government on certain questions referred to in Ss. 5 and 6, Bombay Land Requisition Act, 1948 — Conclusive evidence — Jurisdiction of High Court under Art. 226 or of Supreme Court under Art. 32 is not impaired. Smt. Lilawati Bai v. State of Bombay, 1957 S C J 557 : 1957 S C R 721 : 1957 S C A 465 : 59 Bom L R 934 : AIR 1957 S C 521 (527, 528) (Pt D) (Pr 10).

——Art. 226—Scope.

Even when the legislature says that the orders of a Tribunal under an Act like the Representation of the People Act shall be conclusive and final the High Court and the Supreme Court may interfere under Art. 226 and Art. 136 respectively. See Ibid, Art. 136. AIR 1954 S C 202.

——Art. 226 — Allahabad Rules of Court (1952), Chap. XXII, R. 6 — Validity — Rule is ultra vires as it takes away power under Art. 226 in certain circumstances. See High Court Rules and Orders — (Allahabad) Rules of Court (1952), Chap. XXII, R. 6. AIR 1966 All 57 (FB).

——Arts. 226, 227 — Erroneous finding of Civil Court under S. 146 (1 B) Cr. P. Code—Finding may be challenged under Art. 226 or Art. 227 of the Constitution of India — S. 146 (1-D) does not affect such jurisdiction of High Court.

Obiter : The provision contained in S. 146 (1-D), Cr. P. Code, viz , that the finding of the Civil Court is not subject to appeal, review or revision, does not take away the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 or Art. 227 of the Constitution, and in suitable cases, the High Court may consider exercising that jurisdiction. 1963 All L J 1101 : 1963 All W R (HC) 772 : 1963 All Cr R 473 : 1965 (1) Cri L J 271 : AIR 1965 All 127 (128) (Pt B) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226 — High Court Rules and Orders — Allahabad Rules of the Court (1952), Ch. XXII, R. 6 — Validity — Rule curtailing discretion of Court in writ petition — Held ultra vires—See High Court Rules and Orders — Allahabad Rules of the Court, Ch. 22, R. 6. AIR 1964 All 534 (FB).

——Art. 226 — Municipalities — U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 135 (3) — Notification under — Effect—Tax not imposed in fact — Notification is no proof — Such legal provisions as to notification does not take away the jurisdiction of High Courts vested under the Constitution. See U. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1916), S. 135 (3). 1962 All L J 226.

——Art. 226 — Bar to writs — Matters relating to acquisition of citizenship of foreign country — Jurisdiction of High Court—S. 9 (2), Citizenship Act —If bar.

Even if it be conceded that S. 9 (2), Citizenship Act, must be deemed by implication to preclude the ordinary Courts from considering them, it cannot operate to debar the High Court from dealing with such questions in the exercise of its special jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution. The powers conferred by Art. 226 for the enforcement of the fundamental rights incorporated in Part III to the Constitution are as sacrosanct as the fundamental rights themselves. Civ. Misc. Appln. (O. J.) No. 6 of 1957, D/- 27-3-1958 (All), Dissent. from. 1960 All L J 461 : 1960 All W R (HC) 346 : AIR 1960 All 637 (640, 641) (Pt D) (Pr 8).

[Overruled on another point in A I R 1962 S C 1052.]

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Powers not taken away by S. 85 (5) of U. P. Panchayat Raj Act (26 of 1947).

The Constitution is the fundamental law of the land. No law which is contrary to the provisions of the Constitution can be valid except in so far as the Constitution itself provides for the appropriate authority to make such law. Hence S. 85 (5) of the U. P. Panchayat Raj Act cannot take away the jurisdiction of the High Court under Arts 226 and 227 of the Constitution. 1952 Cri L J 1695 : ILR (1952) 1 All 558 : A I R 1952 All 963 (964) (Pt A) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226 and 227 — Powers under—Extent of — Powers cannot be curtailed, modified or affected by any enactment.

The powers of issuing writs, directions or orders or of superintendence over inferior courts or tribunals cannot be curtailed, modified or affected by any enactment of the Indian Parliament or of the State Legislature. This is a power which has been given to the High Court by the Constitution making authorities and it can only be altered in the manner provided for in the Constitution itself. No doubt, the power of issuing a writ, direction or order, is discretionary; but in exercising that discretion the High Court must be guided by judicial considerations. The High Court in determining whether a particular writ, direction or order will or will not issue will take into consideration the historic background of the writ, direction or order. Indeed, in cases where the citizen has been left by an Act without any remedy in the shape of an ordinary suit, it may be desirable, in the interest of safe-guarding the liberties for which these writs, directions or orders are intended to help the citizen by the issue of a proper writ, direction or order. 1952 All W R (HC) 174 : 1952 R D (HC) 122 : 1952 R D (HC) 245 : 1952 All L J 380 : ILR (1953) 2 All 184 : A I R 1952 All 822 (825) (Pt B) (Pr 12) (DB).

● —Art. 226—Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), Ss. 28, 46—Effect.

The High Court has the power to issue writs, directions or orders under Art. 226 of the Constitution notwithstanding anything contained in Ss. 28 and 46, Administration of Evacuee Property Act. No Act of the legislature can override, cancel or affect any power given to the High Court or any other authority by the Constitution itself. The Constitution is the paramount law of the land. Any provision in any enactment or law which is inconsistent with it is void and must be disregarded. Asiatic Engineering Co. v. Achhru Ram, 1951 R D (HC) 241 : ILR (1952) 2 All 838 : 1951 All L J 576 : AIR 1951 All 746 (768) (Pt F) (Pr 52) (FB).

—Art. 226 — Assam Rural Panchayats Act (1948), S. 135 —Powers of final adjudication given to Provincial Government—Effect on Art. 226—Section cannot affect powers of High Court to deal with any such question in an appropriate application under Art. 226. See Panchayats—Assam Rural Panchayats Act (27 of 1948), S. 135. A I R 1958 Assam 20 (DB).

● —Art. 226 — Jurisdiction of High Court is not affected by M. P. Act 1 of 1955—(Election—Madhya Pradesh Janpada Election Matters Validating Act (1955), S. 3.)

There is no provision in M. P. Act 1 of 1955 which prevents anyone from approaching the High Court under Art. 226 or the High Court passing any order under Art. 226. Thus the jurisdiction of the High Court is not taken away by the Act. See Ibid, Art. 245. A I R 1957 Bom 266 (FB).

—Art. 226—Powers of High Court—Effect of coming into force of S. 33, Industrial Disputes (Amendment and Miscellaneous Provisions) Act, on 1st September, 1956 — Jurisdiction conferred upon the High Court by Arts. 226 and 227 is not restricted. See Industrial Disputes (Amendment and Miscellaneous Provisions) Act (1956), S. 33. A I R 1957 Bom 142 (DB).

● —Arts. 226, 227—Bar to writs—Power cannot be affected by legislative provisions — (Bombay Land Requisition Act (33 of 1948), S. 6 (4)).

If the Legislature attempts to make the decision of any Tribunal final, it cannot by doing so prevent the High Court from issuing the proper writ either under Art. 226 or under Art. 227.

Hence, although the declaration made by the State Government under S. 6 (4), Bombay Land Requisition Act, may be final and conclusive, it will not prevent the High Court from interfering under Art. 226 if in the opinion of the Court a writ of mandamus would properly lie, because as the order is an administrative order, the only way the Court can interfere with such an order would be by a writ of mandamus.

The power of the Court under Art. 226 remains un-impaired notwithstanding the fact that a declaration as to vacancy has been made conclusive by S. 6 (4), Land Requisition Act. A I R 1954 S C 202; A I R 1951 Bom 303, Rel. on. Kalkhusroo Phirozshah Doctor v. State of Bombay, ILR (1955) Bom 69 : 57 Bom L R 24 : A I R 1955 Bom 220 (222) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (FB).

—Art. 226 — Administration of Evacuee Property Ordinance (1949), Ss. 28, 43 —Effect.

Article 226 in declaring the powers of the High Court and making those powers a part of the Constitution, has placed those powers beyond the challenge of the Legislature to the extent that any legislation seeks to take away the power of the High Court to issue any writ, direction or order contemplated by Art. 226, that legislation would be ultra vires of Art. 226, and therefore even if S. 28 and S. 43 are construed to bar the jurisdiction of the civil Court to challenge any order or action of the Custodian, however illegal or without jurisdiction, to the extent that these sections seek to oust the jurisdiction of the High Court to issue the appropriate writs under Art. 226, the sections must be considered to be ultra vires of the Constitution. Therefore to the extent that the petitioner seeks to correct the orders of the Custodian by a writ of certiorari the power of the High Court which now arises under Art. 226 must be exercised if the petitioner is entitled to the writ notwithstanding any provision in the Ordinance or in the subsequent Act which seeks to oust the jurisdiction of the civil Courts. ILR (1952) Bom 378 : 53 Bom L R 621 : AIR 1951 Bom 440 (445) (Pt C) (Pr 4) (DB).

—Art. 226 — Question for decision whether petitioner had migrated to Pakistan in 1949 and had never become citizen of India under the Constitution —Bar of S. 9 (2), Citizenship Act does not apply and hence Court of law and not the Central Government has to decide the question. ('62) 66 Cal W N 108.

—Art. 226 —Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 170—Bar of jurisdiction of civil Courts—Extent of. See Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 170. AIR 1953 Cal 98.

—Arts. 226, 227 — Bar to writs — Jurisdiction of High Court under Arts. 226 and 227, cannot be affected by legislative provision — Himachal Pradesh Panchayat Raj Act (6 of 1953), S. 94 — Finality attached to order of Nyaya Panchayat by S. 94—Powers of Himachal Pradesh Judicial Commissioner's Court to entertain petition under Art. 226 and Art. 227 of the Constitution against that order, not affected. 1965 (1) Cri L J 550 : A I R 1965 Him Pra 25 (27) (Pt A) (Prs 8, 9, 10).

—Art. 226—Decision of Vice-Chancellor to be final — Interference with. See East Punjab University Regulations, Reg. 23. A I R 1955 N U C (Him Pra) 4517.

—Art. 226 — S. 26 (10), Hyderabad City Police Act does not oust High Court's jurisdiction under Art. 226. See Hyderabad City Police Act (9 of 1348-F), S. 26 (10). A I R 1954 Hyd 221 (DB).

—Art. 226—Scope — Hyderabad Atiyat Enquiries Act (10 of 1952), S. 13, Cl. (2).

To the extent that any legislation seeks to take away the powers of the High Court to issue any writ, direction or order contemplated by Art. 226 of the Constitution, that legislation would be ultra vires and, therefore, even if Cl. (2) of S. 13 of the Atiyat Enquiries Act No. 10 of 1952 is construed to bar the jurisdiction of the Civil Court to challenge any order or any action however illegal or without jurisdiction, to the extent that this clause seeks to oust the jurisdiction of the High Court to issue appropriate writs under Art. 226 of the Constitution, that clause must be considered to be ultra vires. ILR (1952) Hyd 791 : A I R 1953 Hyd 79 (89) (Pt L) (Pr 62) (DB).

—Art. 226 — Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 9 (1) — Cannot in any way affect the powers of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. See Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 9 (1). A I R 1956 Madh B 183.

——Art. 226 — Assessment to tax challenged unsuccessfully under S. 66, Income-tax Act — Writ proceeding challenging vires of S 3 of Income-tax Act started later on under Art. 226 — Writ proceedings are not barred.

An unsuccessful challenge of the validity of the assessments in the earlier reference under S. 66 of the Income-tax Act, 1922, before the High Court does not operate as a bar to the writ proceedings, under Art 226 of the Constitution challenging the validity of S. 3, I. T. Act, 1922 under Art. 14 of the Constitution. It is not the province of the Income-tax Department or even the statutory Income-tax Tribunal, which is really the creation of the statute, to entertain any objection to a piece of legislation as being ultra vires or unconstitutional, and it would be beyond the jurisdiction of the High Court, functioning under S. 66 of the Act, which is narrow in its scope and reach, to consider and determine a question not properly within its sphere. The High Court, in a reference under the Indian Income-tax Act, does not sit as an ordinary Court of appeal in the matter of assessment. 1963 ITJ (Sup) 111 : ILR (1964) 1 Mad 954 : (1964) 54 ITR 151 : AIR 1965 Mad 68 (71, 73)(Pt B) (Prs 5, 12) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Powers of High Court — (Madras Cinema (Regulation) Rules (1957), R. 4) — If binds High Court.

Rule 4 of the Madras Cinemas (Regulation) Rules, 1957, which makes the decision of the Government as to the interpretation of these Rules final, cannot bind High Court, when it exercises its powers under Art. 226 of the Constitution. 71 Mad LW 344: (1958) 1 Mad L J 410 : 1958 Mad L J (Cr) 460 : 1958 Mad W N 382.

——Art. 226 — Scope — Enactment affecting power of High Court — (Municipalities — Madras District Municipalities Act (5 of 1920), S. 351-B).

Provisions of S. 351-B, Madras District Municipalities Act, cannot in any way affect the power of the High Court under Art. 226 to issue writs in suitable cases. 66 Mad L W 53 : (1953) 1 Mad L J 88 : AIR 1953 Mad 392 (394) (Pt C) (Pr 6).

——Art. 226—Service Rules—Circular of the Government of Bombay (No. 7573/33) dated 31-10-1950 — Interpretation — Government servant on deputation —Reversion to parent department — Position of — Servant to occupy position and draw salary as that occupied and drawn by his immediate junior colleague in parent department on date of reversion — Order placing him on lower position held amounting to infraction of right created by circular — R. 3, Bombay Civil Service Rules not a bar to exercise of jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution. See Government Servants. AIR 1962 Mys 146 (DB).

■ ——Art. 226 — Powers under, cannot be affected by legislative provision—Election dispute—C. P. and Berar Local Government Act (33 of 1948), S. 221.

The powers of the High Court under Art. 226 are untrammelled by a law made by the Legislature and even though S. 22 of the C. P. and Berar Local Government Act says that elections can be challenged only by way of an election petition before a Tribunal created by the Act, the jurisdiction of the High Court which is derived from the Constitution can in no way be affected. AIR 1954 S C 202, Ref. Kanglu Baula v. Chief Executive Officer, ILR (1954) Nag 875 : AIR 1955 Nag 49 (58) (Pt A) (Pr 22) (FB).

——Art. 226—Bar to writs—Power cannot be affected by legislative provision. AIR 1955 NUC (Nag) 148 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction under — Curtailment of by giving finality to orders by Act of Legislature —(Sales Tax — Orissa Sales Tax Act (14 of 1947), S. 22).

The powers of the High Court under Art. 226 which are derived from the Constitution, cannot be in any way circumscribed by an Act of Legislature in India, and consequently merely because some sort of finality is given to an order under any statute, e. g. (S. 22, Orissa Sales Tax Act) the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226, cannot be curtailed. 23 Cut L T 221 : I L R (1957) Cut 189 : (1957) 8 S T C 749 : AIR 1957 Orissa 240 (241) (Pt E) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Nature and extent of jurisdiction — Finality referred to in Rr. 24 and 25, Orissa Gram Panchayats Rules does not affect the jurisdiction of High Court under the Article — (Orissa Panchayats Act (15 of 1948), S. 114 (2) (ii) — Gram Panchayats Rules (1949), Rr. 24, 25). AIR 1955 NUC (Orissa) 4566.

——Art. 226 — Powers of High Court—Orissa Court of Wards Act (26 of 1947), S. 52 (1).

The High Court is not controlled by the limitations imposed by S. 52 (1) of the Orissa Court of Wards Act in the exercise of its powers under Art. 226 of the Constitution. AIR 1952 Cal 656, Rel. on. ILR (1952) Cut 529 : AIR 1953 Orissa 121 (128) (Pt C) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Exercise of statutory powers—(Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9).

Where the terms of the statute are permissive and where it is left to the discretion of persons empowered to determine whether the general powers committed to them shall be put into execution or not, a fair inference is that the Legislature intended that the discretion should be exercised within the strict limits of the law. ILR (1952) Cut 529 : AIR 1953 Orissa 121 (128, 129) (Pt I) (Prs 12, 13) (DB).

——Art. 226—University elections—University Act providing remedy by way of application to Chancellor — Jurisdiction of High Court is not taken away.

The jurisdiction of the High Court cannot be said to have been taken away except to the extent that a competent legislative authority takes it away or limits it by a statute. The relevant statutes of the Utkal University can have no such effect, and do not in terms, exclude the power of the High Court in a case where the election to the fellowship of the University is concerned. Merely because, it has been prescribed that the Chancellor is to decide finally all such disputes it cannot be maintained that the power of the High Court is impliedly excluded. It must, however, be remembered that whether or not, the Court has the power, in an appropriate case, to issue a writ regarding an election dispute of the University, there can be no doubt that the Court will not ordinarily assume to itself the function which has been adequately provided for by the statutes of the University, except for grave and compelling reasons. (It was, however, held, that the matter did not fall within the scope of the Chancellor's decision.) AIR 1952 Orissa 359 (375) (Pt J) (Pr 35) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 227—Override provisions of State Law giving finality to any decision of Court or Tribunal.

The provisions of Arts. 226 and 227 of the Constitution of India, override the provision of any law made by a State giving finality to the decision of any Court or Tribunal. ILR (1951) Cut 603 : AIR 1952 Orissa 244 (246, 247, 248, 250, 251) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 5, 6, 8, 9, 10, 12, 15, 17).

——Arts. 226 and 227 — Bar to writs — Prohibition in section does not affect High Court's jurisdiction under Arts. 226 and 227 of the Constitution. See Defence of India Act (1962), S. 18 (2). 1965 (1) Cri L J 205 : AIR 1965 Punj 86.

——Arts. 226 and 368 — Jurisdiction of High Court to consider validity of appointment of Industrial Tribunal—Industrial Disputes Act (1947), S. 9.

In England the Parliament is supreme and it can take away the right of the superior Court to issue writs of certiorari and so on by express words. In India, however, the Constitution is supreme, and neither the Parliament nor the State Legislature can take away the right conferred on the High Courts under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Such rights can only be abridged by an amendment of the Constitution, as provided in Art. 368. Section 9 of the Industrial Disputes Act, even though it may be very widely worded, cannot take away the jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution, and it is open to the High Court, therefore, to consider the validity of the appointment of a particular person as the Industrial Tribunal. 1951 Raj L W 389 : ILR (1951) 1 Raj 361 : AIR 1951 Raj 161 (163) (Pt D) (Pr 7) (DB).

17 (c). Other provisions of Constitution.

● ——Arts. 32 and 363 — Petitions challenging validity of Bombay Act 39 of 1954 on ground that State Legislature had no power to enact it in view of Cl. 5 of Letters of Guarantee —Maintainability—Bombay Merged Territories and Areas (Jagirs Abolition) Act (39 of 1954).

The petitioners who were Jagirdars and relations of the Rulers of the erstwhile States which had merged in Bombay, filed petitions under Art. 32 challenging the vires of the Bombay Merged Territories and Areas (Jagirs Abolition) Act, 1953. The petitioners relied upon Clause 5 of the Letters of Guarantee which had been obtained by the Rulers of the erstwhile State from the Dominion Government and complained that the State Legislature had enacted the impugned Act which it had no power to enact having regard to Clause 5 of the said letters of guarantee and were wrongfully depriving the petitioners of the Jagirs, the ownership of which had been guaranteed thereunder.

Held, that the whole of the petitions were nothing else except the claim to enforce the petitioners' rights under the Letters of Guarantee, and the disputes therefore were clearly in respect of the agreements of merger and the Letters of Guarantee and were covered by Article 363 (1) of the Constitution. Hence if the petitioners were deemed to be parties to the agreements of merger and letters of guarantee they would be faced with the bar to the maintainability of the petitions under Article 363 of the Constitution. If on the other hand they were deemed not to have been parties to the same they would not be the contracting parties and would certainly not be able to enforce those obligations. AIR 1951 S C 253, Ref. to. Umeg Singh v. State of Bombay, (1955) 2 S C R 164 : 57 Bom L R 709 : 1955 S C J 472 : 1955 S C A 749 : AIR 1955 S C 540 (546) (Pt A) (Prs 10, 11).

● ——Arts. 226 and 329 (b) — Jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226—If excluded by Art. 329 (b) in regard to order of Returning Officer rejecting nomination paper for election to the State Assembly.

The High Court has no jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution to entertain petitions regarding improper rejection by the Returning Officer of nomination papers of candidates for election either to the House of Parliament or to the State Assembly. The jurisdiction of the High Court under Art. 226 has been excluded in regard to matters provided for in Art. 329 which covers all 'electoral matter.'

The scheme of Part XV of the Constitution and the Representation of the People Act, 1951, seems to be that any matter which has the effect of vitiating an election should be brought up only at the appropriate stage in an appropriate manner before a special tribunal and should not be brought up at an intermediate stage before any Court. Under the election law, the only significance which the rejection of a nomination paper has consists in the fact that it can be used as a ground to call the election in question. Art. 329 (b) was apparently enacted to prescribe the manner in which and the stage at which this ground and other grounds which may be raised under the law to call the election in question, could be urged. It follows by necessary implication from the language of this provision that those grounds cannot be urged in any other manner, at any other stage and before any other Court. Ponnuswami v. Returning Officer, Namakkal, 1952 Mad W N 209 : 90 Cal L J 160 : (1952) S C R 218 : 65 Mad L W 760 : (1952) 1 Mad L J 775 : 1952 S C J 100 : 1952 S C A 332 : AIR 1952 S C 64 (67, 68) (Pt A) (Prs 7, 8).

17 (d). Statutory bar.

● ——Art. 226 — Remedy under — Not affected by S. 84 (3) of C. P. Municipalities Act. See Municipalities—C. P. Municipalities Act (2 of 1922), Ss. 48, 83, 84 and 85. (1965) 2 S C J 741 : (1965) 2 I T J 657 : AIR 1966 S C 249.

——Art. 226—Bar to writs—Citizenship—Matters relating to acquisition of citizenship of foreign country —Jurisdiction of High Court to decide such question under Art. 226 — S. 9 (2), Citizenship Act no bar. 1950 A L J 461 : 1960 All W R (HC) 346 : AIR 1960 All 637 (640, 641) (Pt D) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226 —U. P. Court of Wards Act (1912), S. 11 —Section does not take away High Court's jurisdiction to issue writ of certiorari—See U. P. Court of Wards Act (4 of 1912), S. 11. AIR 1952 All 99 (DB).

——Art. 226 - Certiorari — Grant of—Jurisdiction of High Court — Special Act excluding jurisdiction of Civil Courts—Effect — Assam Agricultural Income-tax Act (9 of 1939), S. 44.

The jurisdiction to High Court in a proper case to grant the relief of certiorari under Art. 226 of the Constitution is not affected by the provisions of S. 44 of the Assam Agricultural Income-tax Act. (1963) 48 ITR 797 : I L R (1962) 14 Assam 359 : A I R 1962 Assam 98 (102, 103) (Pt B) (Pr 15).

——Art. 226 - Application for issue of writ of certiorari on Custodian General, Evacuee Property—Bar of jurisdiction—(Obiter)—Administration of Evacuee Property Act (1950), Ss. 4, 28 and 46.

The jurisdiction of the High Court to entertain an application for the issue of writ of certiorari to the Custodian General and a writ of prohibition to the Custodian of Evacuee Property is not barred by Ss. 4, 28 and 46 of the Administration of Evacuee Property Act. Case law discussed. AIR 1952 Bhopal 16 (20) (Pt C) (Pr 17).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Bombay City Police Act (1902), S. 27 (7)—Validity—Sub-section is repugnant to the provisions of Art. 226 and is consequently void under Art. 13 of the Constitution. See Bombay City Police Act S. 27 (7). AIR 1951 Bom 432 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari—Issue of writ—Sea Customs Act, S. 198, if bar.

Section 198 of the Sea Customs Act is not a bar to proceedings under Art. 226 of the Constitution. The right to apply to the High Court for a prerogative writ given by Art. 226 cannot be taken away by any statute because if it was, the Courts would be bound to hold such a statute to be ultra vires the Article. However the High Court may consider whether or not it should issue a writ if no notice of the intended proceedings referred to in S. 198 of the Sea Customs Act had been given. That, however, would be a matter of discretion dependent upon the facts of the case. 56 Cal W N 452 : A I R 1952 Cal 656 (659, 660, 661, 662, 666) (Pt A) (Prs 30, 34, 35, 53, 92, (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari, writ of—Power of Court to issue—When taken away.

In order that power of a Court to issue writ of certiorari can be taken away by any statute there must be express negative words to take away the power.

But even in cases where certiorari is expressly taken away a writ may be issued if the inferior Court or tribunal has acted without or in excess of jurisdiction. (1898) 3 Q B D 509 and AIR 1931 Mad 122, Rel. on. 55 Cal W N 528 : 87 Cal L J 201 : AIR 1952 Cal 103 (108) (Pt C) (Prs 38, 39).

——Art. 226—Electricity Act does not exclude jurisdiction of High Court under Art. 226 or of the Supreme Court under Art. 32 to interfere in proper cases. See Ibid, Art. 19 (1) (f), (g). A I R 1965 Ker 253 (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Issue of, against orders of person exercising consensual jurisdiction.

Orders passed on the basis of consensual jurisdiction are not amenable to review or correction by the High Court under Art. 226. No writ of certiorari can therefore issue against a person or body exercising consensual jurisdiction. 1957 Ker L T 739 : (1957) Ker L J 712.

——Art. 226—M. B. Zamindari Abolition Act (13 of 1951), S. 15—Validity—Section does not trench upon jurisdiction conferred on High Court under Arts. 226 and 227—Section in so far as it excludes the jurisdiction of the High Court exercisable under these two Articles is ultra vires the powers of State legislature. (Per Kaul C. J.). See Tenancy Laws—Madhya Bharat Zamindary Abolition Act (13 of 1951), S. 15. AIR 1952 Madh B 57 (FB).

——Art. 226—Bihar Buildings (Lease, Rent and Eviction) Act (3 of 1947), Ss. 11 (1) (a) and 18 (3)—Jurisdiction of Controller to decide question of non-payment of rent—Interference by Civil Court. See Houses and Rents—Bihar Buildings (Lease, Rent and Eviction) Act (3 of 1947), S. 11 (1) (a). AIR 1954 Pat 24 (DB).

——Art. 226—Habeas corpus — Jurisdiction of High Court—Exclusion under S. 6, Abducted Persons (Recovery and Restoration) Act — Initial custody and detention under Act must be legal to oust jurisdiction of High Court. 1955 Cri L J 702 : AIR 1955 Pepsu 48 (51) (Pr 9).

——Art. 226—Bar of remedy — Taxation on Income (Investigation Commission) Act (1947), S. 9 — Civil P. C. (1908), S. 9.

Full effect has to be given to S. 9 of the Taxation on Income (Investigation Commission) Act (1947) and as that section bars the jurisdiction of any Court to scrutinize, except in the manner provided in S. 8 (5), the acts or proceedings of the Commission or of any authorized official thereof the High Court should not issue a writ of certiorari. AIR 1919 P C 31, Rel. on. 2 Ex. 352, Ref. 53 Pun L R 57 : 1951-20 ITR 77 : ILR (1951) Punj 165 : AIR 1951 Punj 74 (79) (Pt C) (Pr 25) (DB).

[Reversed on another point in AIR 1954 S C 207.]

17 (e). Other remedy available.

See Note 7.

18. Board of Revenue.

See Note 5.

19. Burden of proof.

——Art. 226—Burden of proof.

Where relief under Art. 226 is sought on allegations of infringement of rights it is always desirable that before proceeding further with the matter the Court should satisfy itself that such rights do exist. AIR 1953 S C 252, Rel. on.

Held, that the petitioner had no right which could conceivably be affected by the impugned order. AIR 1960 All 438 (440, 441) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226—Burden of proof — Land acquisition proceedings — Attack on ground of mala fides — Proof of mala fides — Land Acquisition Act (1894), S. 6 (1).

When the land acquisition proceedings are attacked by a petition under Art. 226 on the ground of mala fides the Court is concerned only with conduct of the Government which is the acquiring authority. The existence of mala fides on the part of Government cannot be a matter of inference but must be established affirmatively. Where no want of bona fides is attributed to the Government, the motives of the persons who urge the Government to start proceedings under the Land Acquisition Act are not quite relevant. AIR 1960 Andh Pra 343 (344) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226—Burden of proof.

It is for the petitioner to establish a valid right for the protection of which he can invoke the extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Court for the issue of any writ under Art. 226. ILR (1953) 5 Assam 354: AIR 1953 Assam 155 (156, 157) (Pt B) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Application under Art. 226, Constitution of India—Burden of proof. See Municipalities—Bengal Municipal Act (15 of 1932), S. 6. AIR 1952 Cal 753 (DB).

——Art. 226—Burden of proof — Person invoking jurisdiction under Art. 226 must show that impugned order has occasioned injustice to parties.

The writ of certiorari is not a writ of course. It is a discretionary remedy. Hence, before a person can be entitled to invoke the prerogative power of the Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution, it must be shown that the order to be set aside must have occasioned injustice to the parties.

Where the order of the R. T. A. granting renewal of permits was manifestly without jurisdiction and the order of the Appellate Authority setting aside that order was also erroneous and illegal but did not work injustice to any party the extraordinary jurisdiction under Art. 226 could not be invoked to annul it. ILR 39 Pat 392 : 1960 B L J R 282 : AIR 1960 Pat 333 (338, 339) (Pt B) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—Employees' Provident Funds Act (19 of 1952), S. 1 (3) — Employment of fifty or more persons — Prayer for issue of writ. Burden of proof is on employers to bring on record materials on which they wanted to base their prayer for issue of writ and if they fail, it must be assumed that there must have been fifty or more employees engaged in the company; (Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 101-104). See Employees' Provident Funds Act (1952), S. 1 (3). AIR 1958 Pat 314a.

——Art. 226—Municipalities—Punjab Municipal Act (1911), S. 16 — Removal of member — Mala fides—Question of fact — Onus is on petitioner — (Evidence Act (1872), Ss. 101 to 103). See Municipalities—Punjab Municipal Act (3 of 1911), S. 16. AIR 1955 N U C (Punj) 4990.

20. Certiorari.

See under Part B, (Notes 126 to 185).

21. Circumvention of orders under Art. 226.

——Art. 226—Attempt to circumvent proceedings in Court.

If a party, knowing that his opponent has either approached the Court or is taking steps to approach it for a certain specific relief, does anything to make the grant of the relief, by way of prevention, ineffective, the Court has always jurisdiction to pass orders even in ordinary cases, in a mandatory form and to direct restoration of the status quo ante in the manner and to the extent possible. It will be a fortiori case when the relief claimed is for a grant of any of the writs or directions contemplated by Art. 226 of the Constitution of India. 1950 Ker L T 645 : AIR 1951 Trav Co 226 (2) (228) (Pr 13) (DB).

22. Civil Procedure Code, applicability of.

——Art. 226—Civil P. C. (1908), O. 2, R. 2—Applicability — Bar of O. 2, R. 2 may not apply to petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution. See Civil P. C. (1908), O. 2, R. 2. AIR 1962 S C 1334.

——Art. 226—Provisions of Civil P. C. do not govern proceeding under Art. 226—One petition for certiorari for quashing four distinct orders made by taxing authority under U. P. Sales Tax Act and Central Sales Tax Act—Petition is not maintainable — Civil P. C. (1908), S. 141—AIR 1960 All 366, AIR 1956 Mad 626, AIR 1962 Punj 55 and AIR 1954 Raj 185, Rel. on. AIR 1961 S C 372, Disting. ILR (1965) 1 All 647: 1965 All L J 308 : AIR 1965 All 517 (518, 519) (Prs 3, 4, 6, 8, 9) (DB).

——Art. 226—Order passed by Industrial Tribunal in a dispute between a canteen committee and its workers having no trade union — Application by some of the workers, on behalf of all, to quash the order —No leave of Court obtained by the petitioners to apply in representative capacity under O. 1, R. 8, Civil P. C. read with R. 11 of the High Court — Canteen committee which was not a juristic personality and not the members of the committee impleaded as respondent — Held, that the application was not properly filed—Civil P. C. (1908), O. 1, R. 8. (1964) 1 Lab L J 134 : (1963) 7 Fac L R 121 (Cal).

——Art. 226—Civil P.C. (1908), O. 23, R. 3—Provisions do not prima facie apply to writ petitions— Constitution of India, Art. 226, See Civil P. C. (1908), O. 23, R. 3. (1963) 2 Mys L J 164 (FB).

——Art. 226 — Procedure — Averments in petition not traversed—(Civil P. C. (1908), O. 8, Rr. 3 and 5).

An express denial of an allegation in a statement of claim is called a traverse. When the matter is within the knowledge of the defendant, he generally denies any statement which he disputes. When it is not within his own knowledge, he usually "does not admit" it. The proceedings under Art. 226 are civil proceedings, and, subject to the rules made by the High Court to regulate proceedings under that Article are regulated by the Civil P. C. Hence averments in petition under Art. 226 which are not traversed by the respondents must be held to be admitted. I L R (1954) Nag 935 : 1955 Nag L J 332 : AIR 1956 Nag 27 (31) (Pt B) (Pr 13) (DB).

——Art. 226—Civil P. C. (1908), O. 30, R. 1— Applicability to petition under Art. 226. See Civil P. C. (1908), O. 30, R. 1. AIR 1953 Pepsu 88.

——Art. 226—Amendment of writ petition—Application for not quoting verbatim words of amendments sought as required by O. 6, R. 17, Civil P. C. as amended by Punjab— Amended copy of writ petition filed along with application for amendment and advance copy of same served on opposite party— Application though not in strict compliance with O. 6, R. 17, allowed. Civil P. C. (1908), O. 6, R. 17 (Punj). 1965 Pun L R (Sup) 703.

——Art. 226—Writ of certiorari or mandamus—Petitioner showing slackness in prosecution of election petition —Respondent supporting the petition can be allowed to lead evidence in support of the petition— There is no provision express or implied which creates a bar to such procedure—Matter governed by O. 18, R. 2, Civil P. C. — There is no error in order of Tribunal allowing such evidence to be adduced justifying interference by issuance of writ. See Representation of the People Act (1951), S. 90 (1). AIR 1964 Punj 105.

——Art. 226 — Rule of implied admission by non-traverse—Object — Not strictly applied to pleadings in India — Facts can be proved by other evidence——Applicability to writ proceedings. See Civil P. C. (1908), O. 8, R. 5. AIR 1964 Punj 15.

——Art. 226 —Proceedings under — Ex parte order— Setting aside of — Inherent jurisdiction, See Civil P. C. (1908), S. 151. AIR 1953 Raj 201 (DB).

——Art. 226—Right to file affidavits — (Civil P. C. (1908), O. 19).

In proceedings under Art. 226 the provisions contained in O. 19, Civil P. C. except as regards cross-examination of deponents can and should be followed. To confine parties to one affidavit would be improper as there is no reason to do and as it, if done, would stand in the way of the Court getting elucidation of necessary facts. Hence an affidavit in reply and rejoinder, as the case may be as also an application for leave to amend are permissible. A I R 1951 S C 97, Ref. to. ILR (1952) Trav Co 960 : AIR 1953 Trav Co 146 (150) (Pt A) (Pr 10) (DB).

23. Civil servant, dismissal of.

See also Notes under Ibid, Arts. 310 and 311.

(a) Civil servant.
(b) Authority to dismiss or terminate.
(c) Retirement.
(d) Contract basis, person employed on.
(e) Disciplinary proceedings.
(f) Finding of enquiry.
(g) Contravention of principles of natural justice.
See also Note 78.
(h) High Court, powers of.
(i) Service Rules, enforceability of.
(j) Non-compliance with procedure.
(k) Suspension.
(l) Justiciability of punishment,
See Note 23 (h).

23. Civil servant, dismissal of.

See also Notes under Ibid, Arts. 310 and 311.

——Arts. 226, 311 — Final order of dismissal not passed — Writ cannot be issued at the stage of enquiry.

It is only the final order of dismissal which can be challenged in a writ petition. So far as the stage of enquiry is concerned, no objection can be taken because the inquiring authority need not be the punishing authority. AIR 1962 All 166 (174) (Pt G) (Pr 32).

——Art. 226 -Applicability —Wrongful dismissal in contravention of Art. 311 (2) — Remedy — Certiorari or mandamus. See Ibid, Art. 311 (2). AIR 1961 All 122.

——Art. 226—Powers of High Court.

The High Court cannot interfere with the decision of the executive authorities on any consideration of alleged injustice. An order removing an official of the State can be quashed by the High Court only if it was passed without jurisdiction, in excess of jurisdiction or without complying with the conditions laid down in Art. 311. If however the order was within jurisdiction and not otherwise illegal, it cannot be set aside by the High Court on the ground, that in its opinion, it is harsh or unjust or oppressive. AIR 1960 All 304 (309) (Pt C) (Pr 17).

——Art. 226—Interference—Conditions—Government servant refusing to carry out order of transfer—Removed from service by Governor — Order not challenged on grounds contained in Art. 310 or 311—No interference under Art. 226. See Ibid, Art. 310. 1958 All L J 218 : (1958) 2 Lab L J 673.

——Art. 226—Petitioner admitted to Service Commission Examination on the basis of particulars of marks detailed in true copies of certificates—Appointment made after passing examination — Subsequent discharge on the basis of same particulars detailed in original certificate—Principles of estoppel—Order of discharge improper.

Held there does not appear to be any rule which authorises the Secretary, Public Service Commission to accord provisional permission to appear for competitive examinations. The provisional inclusion is nothing more than requiring him to produce the original documents of which true copies had already been furnished by him to the Public Service Commission at the time of his applying for permission to appear for the competitive examination. The provisional nature, therefore, related only to the correctness of the true copies furnished by the petitioner. It is not gainsaid that the copy furnished by the petitioner to the Public Service Commission at the time of his applying to appear for the examination was a true copy of the original S. S. L. C. register. Thus, the petitioner had acquitted himself properly in this regard. When the impugned order was passed he was 27 years old, two years older than the maximum age prescribed for entering Government service. He would be barred from seeking fresh Government ministerial service, if he is now discharged. Here lies the injustice and hardship to the petitioner. The petitioner cannot legitimately be penalised for any act of commission or omission of the respondents. This is a case where the petitioner had placed all the available material truthfully before the Public Service Commission, and by their conduct, the Commission caused the petitioner to act on the faith of the existence of a state of affairs which, to his great detriment he was told, more than two years later, did not exist. In the name of the alleged correction of a mistake, the respondents cannot seek to do this amount of harm to the petitioner. (1965) 2 Andh W R 437 : AIR 1966 Andh Pra 59 (60, 61, 62) (Prs 3, 4, 5, 6).

——Art. 226 — Rules for Grant of Recognition and Aid to Elementary Schools, R. 13 (2) (ii) Proviso — Termination of service for gross insubordination — Previous approval of Deputy Inspector of Schools — Necessity — Re-instatement—Interference with. See Madras Elementary Education Act (8 of 1920), S. 53. (1959) 1 Andh WR 386.

——Arts. 226 and 311—Administrative order—Order suspending and dismissing public servant is quasi judicial order—Application under Art. 226, is maintainable.

Mere calling an order an administrative order by an executive authority does not absolve it from the jurisdiction of the High Court. If the order is required to be passed on objective consideration and standards, i. e., where the authority passing the order has to consider the case of the party, the evidence and arguments for or against him and such other matters before passing the order, it is quasi-judicial order and the High Court has power to examine and interfere with it. AIR 1952 Cal 901; AIR 1953 Mys 156 (FB), Rel. on.

The fate of a public servant cannot be decided arbitrarily by superiors merely on subjective consideration but as laid down under Art. 311 (2) of the Constitution, certain procedure is to be followed. He has to be heard after notice and then alone considering the case, the evidence and the arguments, the superior authority can pass an order on the objective consideration of the matters before him. The order suspending a public servant and dismissing him is therefore a quasi-judicial order and the Judicial Commissioner's Court can entertain the petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution. AIR 1953 All 739, Ref. AIR 1954 Bhopal 25 (27) (Pt B) (Prs 10, 11).

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction — Government servants under former Madhya Pradesh State serving in districts now forming part of Bombay State—Dismissal prior to 1-11-56 by Madhya Pradesh State—Petitions under Arts. 226 and 227 challenging order of dismissal against Bombay State filed in Bombay High Court—Maintainability. See States Reorganisation Act (1956), S. 88 (b). AIR 1959 Bom 363 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Certiorari — Dismissal from service under Life Insurance Corporation Staff Regulation, 39 — Negligence in securing business for Life Insurance—On consideration of explanation, dismissal held proper. (1965) 11 Fac L R 196 (Cal).

——Art. 226 — Dismisal of government servant — Failure to consult Public Service Commission—Does not affect the validity of the order. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1962 Guj 197 (DB).

——Art. 226—Constitution of Jammu and Kashmir, S. 126—Order of removal from service—Whether by way of punishment — Question of intention—Order discharging person on probation—Held, was by way of punishment—Section 128 applied. See Constitution of Jammu and Kashmir, S. 126. AIR 1961 J & K 7.

——Art. 226—Person employed in an officiating capacity—Employee has no right to hold the post—He can be reverted to the post which he holds permanently—Person confirmed on a post—Post abolished as not required in public interest — Confirmed employee cannot insist that the post be retained whether required or not. AIR 1962 S C 794, Rel. on; AIR 1957 Pat 555, Foll. 1965 M P L J (Notes) 179.

——Arts. 226 and 311 — Dismissal of Government servant not for "substantial misdemeanours" but for minor irregularities—Court will interfere. AIR 1965 Mad 502.

——Arts. 226 and 309—Order of dismissal against Government servant with retrospective effect—Legality. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1963 Manipur 28.

——Art. 226 — Grounds for issue of writ—Government servant—Government employees appointed to substantive posts — Retrenchment — Government is obliged to provide for alternative employment of equally remunerative character—If employees are not holding substantive post, there is no such obligation—Selection of Forest Gate-keepers remunerated on commission basis to the post of Forest Gate-keepers remunerated on salaried basis — Petition under Arts. 226 and 311 by those not selected on ground of unsuitability — There is no termination of their services by way of punishment—No interference under Art. 226 justified. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1957 Orissa 27 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 311 (2) — Disciplinary action against servant—Punishment of.

Where in proceedings drawn up against the petitioner a clerk in the service of a District Board, items 1 to 3 were mentioned to show that the warnings given previously in respect of those three matters had proved abortive and he did not reform himself, and instead of improving he had committed negligence of duty as disclosed by the real and new charge No. 4 and on the admission of the petitioner himself he was guilty of negligence of duty.

Held, that in the circumstances, the grievance of the petitioner that either he had been doubly punished or that the earlier proceedings formed charge of the second proceeding was not correct. 1957 B L J R 897 : AIR 1957 Pat 333 (339) (Pt D) (Prs 40, 41) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Tripura Merger Agreement (1949), Art. 8 (1)—Former employee of Tripura State—Rights of, on merger into Union — Employee asked to get himself medically examined before being absorbed—Refusal and consequent retrenchment — Order does not amount to dismissal or removal from service — Art. 311 of Constitution not applicable. See Tripura Merger Agreement (1949), Art. 8 (1). AIR 1961 Tri 29.

——Art. 226—Dismissal of public servant—Duty of Government — Right of public servant—Infringement—Protection under Art. 226. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1956 Tripura 33.

——Art. 226—Dismissal for want of necessary qualification—No Interference. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1956 Tripura 33.

23 (a). Civil servant.

——Art. 226 — Applicability — Teacher in District Board School — Post is not civil — The post of a teacher in a school under the management of a District Board cannot be said to be a civil post within the meaning of Art. 311 of the Constitution. Therefore, the order of the Local Board removing such a teacher from service cannot be quashed under Art. 226. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1960 Andh Pra 342.

——Art. 226 — Persons to whom Art. 311 applies—Administrator and teacher in Government aided school are not Government servants — They are not entitled to any remedy by way of writ petition. See Ibid, Art. 311. (1963) 6 Fac L R 42 (Cal).

——Arts. 226, 12, 311, Sch. 7, List 2, Entry 5 — "Other authorities" in Art. 12—Meaning of—Company incorporated under Companies Act — Chemicals and Allied Products Export Promotion Council — Not "other authority" within Art. 12—Employee of Council not "civil servant" governed by Art. 311—Council dismissing employee—Order cannot be made subject-matter of high prerogative writ. See Ibid, Art. 12. AIR 1962 Cal 10.

——Arts. 226 and 311—Civil post under State — District Judge dispensing with services of copyist—Quashing of order — (High Court Rules and Orders—Patna High Court's General Rules and Circular Orders, Civil, Vol. I, Part 4, Chap. 2, R. 4).

Per Rai and Sinha, JJ.—A copyist appointed under the provisions of R. 4 cannot be said to hold a civil post under the State of Bihar within the meaning of Art. 311 nor can the order dispensing with the services of sub-copyist amount to his dismissal, removal or reduction in rank within the meaning of Art. 311 (2). These expressions are technical terms not construable in the popular sense. The order dispensing with the services cannot therefore be quashed on the ground of its having violated the provisions of Art. 311. AIR 1953 Pat 92, Foll. 1956 Pat L R 261 : I L R 35 Pat 312 : AIR 1956 Pat 257 (258) (Pt F) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—"Person holding a civil post"—Temporary employee of Government — Cannot be dismissed without giving him opportunity of showing cause against the action proposed. See Ibid, Art. 311 (2). AIR 1952 Sau 40 (DB).

23 (b). Authority to dismiss or terminate.

——Arts. 226, 311—Scope—Petitioner unqualified to hold post — Termination of services by person not authorised—No interference in writ jurisdiction.

It is not every technicality in which the High Court will interfere in its writ jurisdiction. The petitioner must have some fundamental right in him on which he can press his petition. If the petitioner is not qualified to hold the post even if the termination of his services is made by a person not authorised to terminate, the High Court will not interfere on that mere technical ground. AIR 1961 All 292 (293) (Pt A) (Pr 2).

——Arts. 226, 225, 227 and 311—Applicability—Petitioner serving in sarf-e-khas army in former Hyderabad State—Order of dismissal passed by H. E. Nizam in his private capacity after accession of State to Indian Union—Writ petition—Maintainability—Article 311 not applicable. See Ibid, Art. 225. ILR (1962) Andh Pra 278.

——Arts. 226, 311 (1)—Appointing authority whether had made appointment—Question of fact - Dismissed person when can obtain relief under Article. See Ibid, Art. 311 (1). AIR 1959 Cal 103.

——Arts. 226 and 311 — Petitioner removed from service by authority subordinate to authority which appointed him—Order is in clear violation of Art. 311 and must be quashed. 1959 Ker L R 1117.

——Arts. 226 and 311—Powers of High Court—Head Constable appointed by Inspector-General of Police, Gwalior—Dismissal by Deputy Inspector-General of Police, M. B. — Presumption as to rank of dismissing authority —:High Court if can be asked to call upon State to make disclosure regarding rank of authority.

Where a head constable appointed by the Inspector-General of Police, Gwalior, was dismissed by the Deputy Inspector-General of Police, Madhya Bharat, and he in his petition under Art. 226 made no averments as to whether the Deputy Inspector-General of Police, Madhya Bharat, could on any consideration be said to be an authority subordinate to the appointing authority, viz., Inspector General of Police, Gwalior, nor was it stated that on integration he was re-appointed by the Inspector General of Police, Madhya Bharat or any such authority.

Held, that under the circumstances it was difficult to make any presumption as regards the rank of an authority in the former merged State in comparison with that of any existing authority in the absence of definite materials with respect to the same and that the High Court could not be asked to call upon the State at that stage to disclose whether the petitioner was re-appointed in the integrated set-up and if so what was the authority which appointed him. 1956 Madh B L J 561 : Madh B L R 1955 Civ 258 : AIR 1956 Madh B 257 (258) (Pt A) (Prs 5, 6).

23 (c). Retirement.

——Art. 226 — Government servant compulsorily retired—He has no legal remedy. See Ibid, Art. 311. 1954 All L J 40 : AIR 1954 All 343 (DB).

——Arts. 226, 311 (2)—Order for compulsory retirement—Mention in order that conduct of Government servant not upto standard—Art. 311 (2) is not attracted—Order is not converted into order of dismissal or removal — There is no element of charge or imputation in case of compulsory retirement — Specification of ground was redundant and did not control legal effect of the order — (Civil Services Regulations, R. 465A). See Ibid, Art. 311 (2). AIR 1958 Bom 90.

——Arts. 226, 310 and 311 — Powers of High Court —Order for compulsory retirement of Government servant — Jurisdiction of High Court—(Kerala Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules (1957), R. 9).

The office of a Tahsildar in the service of the State of Kerala is held during the pleasure of the Governor and an order for his compulsory retirement amounts to a removal from service within the meaning of Art. 311.

The use of the words "for good and sufficient reason" in R. 9 of the Kerala Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules, 1957 would not empower the Court to enquire into the sufficiency of the reason or the goodness of it because the rules framed under Art. 309 cannot possibly alter the character of the post held by the petitioner from one held at pleasure to one from which removal is possible only for "cause". 1958 Ker L J 1035 : 1959 Ker L T 137 : (1959) 1 Lab L J 144 : I L R (1959) Ker 273 : AIR 1959 Ker 201 (202) (Prs 5, 6, 10) (DB).

——Art. 226—Petitioner absent from duty — Departmental enquiry for absence held but later leave for whole period of absence granted — Grant of leave retrospectively authorised absence from duty — No action could be taken for absence—Having authorised petitioner's absence from duty, removal on ground of such absence is illegal and perverse — Order of removal quashed by certiorari. AIR 1964 SC 364, Rel. on. 1964 M P L J (Notes) 202: (1964) 9 Fac L R 93.

——Arts. 226 and 311— Interference — Compulsory retirement of Government servant — Order not infringing any legal right under the Service Rules — Application under Art. 226 misconceived— "Earned leave."

The petitioner was an officer of the Indian Police Service. The Government enquired into certain complaints against him and came to the conclusion that his compulsory retirement was necessary in the public interest. But they served a notice on him under R. 17 (2), All India Services (Death cum Retirement Benefits) Rules, 1958, informing him that he would be compulsorily retired on the expiry of three months from the date thereof (the result of which would be to deprive him of the earned leave due to him.) He challenged the order under Art. 226.

Held, (1) The petitioner had no legal right in view of the provisions of Rr. 3 and 9 of the All India Services (Leave) Rules, 1955, to any leave. (2) R. 17 (2) of the All India Services (Death cum Retirement Benefits) Rules, 1958, applied to him and therefore his retirement under the Rules was proper. (3) Rule 17 (2) was not void or inoperative inasmuch as the supposed right to earned leave was not a legal right. (4) The omission to give opportunity to show cause did not render the order unlawful, because no punishment was involved. AIR 1954 S C 369 and AIR 1957 S C 892, Rel. on. (1961) 1 Lab L J 272 : (1960) 1 Fac L R 364: ILR (1960) Madh Pra 59 : 1960 M P C 174 : 1960 M P L J 392 : 1960 Jab L J 428 : AIR 1960 Madh Pra 252 (253) (Prs 4, 5, 6, 7, 8) (DB).

——Art. 226—Rule 465-A of the Civil Service Regulations is not applicable to a Circle Inspector of Police. It is applicable to Police Officers of I. P. S. only as mentioned in R. 349-A — Note 1 under R. 465A, reserves to competent authority an absolute right to retire, without giving any reason, any officer serving under it, who has completed qualifying service of 25 years— Such a provision is not violative of Art. 311. 1958 M P L J (Notes) 115.

[Reversed in 1960 M P L J (Note) 195.]

——Art. 226 — Fundamental Rules (3rd Edn.) Ch. IX, Rr. 69 and 86 — Leave granted to Government servant preparatory to retirement—Such leave continuing after date of retirement — Right of Government servant to withdraw request for permission to retire.

Where a Government servant has been granted leave preparatory to retirement and such leave is to continue after the date of retirement within Fundamental R. 88 he can under the proviso to R. 69 withdraw his request for permission to retire before he has actually retired and not after the date of retirement. ILR (1952) Punj 562: AIR 1952 Punj 412 (414) (Pt B) (Pr 19) (DB).

——Art. 226 — R. 11 of Ajmer Merwar Municipalities Regulation does not confer upon Municipal employee right to continue in service after retirement age of 55 years — Writ petition claiming right to continue in service after that is not maintainable. See Municipalities — Ajmer-Merwar Municipalities Regulation (6 of 1925), S. 247. ILR (1963) 13 Raj 1096.

23 (d). Contract basis, person employed on.

——Art. 32 (1) — Termination of contractual service by notice — Remedy of writ held to be misconceived. See Ibid, Art. 311. (1953) S C J 323 : AIR 1953 S C 250.

——Art. 226—Termination of service according to terms of contract — Proper remedy for employee aggrieved by the termination is not a writ under Art. 226. See Ibid, Art. 311. 94 Cal L J 148: AIR 1954 Cal 561.

——Arts. 226 and 311 — Temporary employee of Government—Contract to terminate temporary service on one month's notice — Contract and condition are valid and binding. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1955 All 496.

——Arts. 226, 311, 309, 310—Applicability—Civilian employed in defence service— Termination of service in terms of contract — Art. 311 does not apply— (Civilians in Defence Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules (1952), Rr. 3, 13, 15). See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1956 Cal 532.

——Arts. 226, 310 and 311— Interference—Grounds —Railway servant — Appointment made subject to character and antecedents being verified by civil authorities — Service terminated on receipt of unsatisfactory report — Interference.

Where the terms of the contract of service which the applicant had with the Railway provided, inter alia, that his appointment was subject to his character and antecedents being satisfactorily verified by the civil authorities, in accordance with the rule in force from time to time, the High Court will not interfere with the order terminating his services. 62 Cal W N 852: (1959) 1 Lab L J 141: AIR 1958 Cal 654 (656) (Pt C) (Pr 12).

——Arts 226, 311 (2) and 16—Termination of service of Government servant — Appointment made on provisional basis terminable by month's notice on either side—Service terminated without such notice—Order of termination not for misconduct — Order also not indicating any other reason — Petitioner challenging order as capricious, arbitrary and mala fide on the ground that his juniors were retained in service and a new recruit was appointed in his own place — Government stating in its counter affidavit that the termination was due to the petitioner having been found unsuitable on the ground of character and antecedents — Record regarding verification of character and antecedents not placed before Court— Held, that the order should be quashed for the reasons that it violated the terms of appointment and it was arbitrary and mala fide — The Court has to accept the allegation of the petitioner regarding the mala fide of the Government in the absence of proper disclosure by the Government. AIR 1960 S C 610, Rel. on. 1963 Ker L J 1168; 1963 Ker L T 1167: ILR (1964) 1 Ker 153 ; 1964 (8) Fac L R 72.

——Art. 226 — Termination of service — Petition for writ against employer — Maintainability — Proper remedy—(Master and Servant — Resignation of servant—Acceptance of, if necessary for termination of service).

The petitioner was confirmed in his appointment as an Electrical Supervisor in the Indian Institute of Science. Bangalore, with effect from 2nd May, 1950 and was to hold the appointments till the age of 60. Under the terms of employment the services could be terminated on either side with six months' notice. The petitioner wrote a letter dated 11th May, 1953 in which he tendered his resignation on account of certain charges made against him. On 17th June, 1953 he however wrote another letter by which he purported to withdraw his offer to resign. The Institute authorities however refused to allow him to withdraw his resignation and treated his employment as terminated at the end of six months from the date of letter of resignation. The petitioner thereupon filed a petition under Art. 226 for a writ to the Institute authorities declaring that he was still in service and requiring them to admit him to the post and let him work without let or hindrance:

Held, (i) that the contention of the petitioner that his letter of resignation dated 11th May, 1953 conveying notice of six months did not amount to unconditional resignation or that it required acceptance before the offer to withdraw was made, could not be accepted. From the terms of the letter of 11th May, 1953 it was clear that no acceptance of its terms was ever contemplated or required and that it was in the nature of a notice by which the petitioner said he had resigned or renounced his job and would cease to work from a date six months later. Nothing more was therefore necessary to be done either by him or by the employers in pursuance of the notice which has put an end to the contract of service in a manner stipulated between the parties themselves.

(ii) that it was not a proper case in which a writ ought to be issued. The terms and conditions of service between the Institute and the petitioner were not governed by any statute or rules having the force of law the obedience to which could be enforced through a writ. Nor did the case raise any question of any judicial enquiry or quasi-judicial enquiry by any authority which could be corrected by a writ of certiorari. AIR 1953 Cal 581, Ref. to.

(iii) that the remedy, if any, of an employee in such a case where it was alleged that a breach of contract of service had taken place would obviously be by a suit and not through an application for a writ. A I R 1952 Cal 610, Rel. on. 34 Mys L J 181 : (1957) 1 Lab L J 285; I L R (1954) Mys 259; A I R 1954 Mys 158 (160) (Prs 4, 5, 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Action for arrears of salary for suspended period—Limitation—Claim barred by limitation — Relief cannot be granted in writ petition — High Court will not in writ jurisdiction enforce civil liability arising out of breach of contract or tort—Limitation Act (1908), Art. 102.

The petitioner who was the District Health Officer on 1st June, 1950 when he was suspended on charges of misconduct was dismissed after departmental enquiry on 12th March, 1954. The High Court quashed the order of dismissal on 13th April, 1959 and directed the State to refer the case of the petitioner to Administrative Tribunal under the Disciplinary Proceeding (Amininistrative Tribunal) Rules, 1951.

Held, (i) that when the High Court quashed the order of dismissal, the right to full salary from 1st June, 1950 to 12th March, 1954, accrued due to the petitioner with effect from 13th April, 1959 and he was entitled to the said arrears. A I R 1954 S C 245 and AIR 1962 S C 1334, Rel. on. (ii) that the claim, however, was barred by limitation and the High Court in its discretion under Art. 226, could not grant the relief. A I R 1947 F C 23 and A I R 1961 S C 1506 and A I R 1960 Orissa 79, Rel. on. (iii) (Obiter) that even if the claim had not been barred by limitation, the High Court would not ordinarily exercise its jurisdiction to grant the relief for enforcing a civil liability arising out of a breach of contract or a tort. A I R 1962 S C 1320 Rel. on. (1965) 1 Lab L J 173 ; (1965) 7 O J D 147; AIR 1964 Orissa 241 (243) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Art. 226—Service on contract basis — Discharge from—Legality. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1957 Pat 325 (D B).

——Art. 226 — Termination of service in terms of contract of service — Notice not necessary. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1957 Pat 10.

——Art. 226—Employment on contract—Discharge—Legality. See Ibid, Art. 311. 1957 B L J R 155.

——Art. 226 — Contract of service — Irregularity in termination of service—Proper remedy.

Where there is some irregularity in the matter of the notice given to an employee in accordance with the terms of his service agreement, the irregularity may give him a cause of action for claiming damages and the employee may, if he is so advised, make a claim for such compensation as he thinks he is entitled to, in a properly constituted suit. But no writ can be issued under Art. 226 directing that the employee be reinstated in his post. (1958) 1 Lab L J 324 : 1956 B L J R 49 : AIR 1956 Pat 23 (27, 28) (Pt C) (Pr 13) (DB).

23 (e). Disciplinary proceedings.

——Art. 226 — Public servant — Departmental enquiry into misconduct — Power of High Court under Art 226 to interfere with findings — Power to review evidence — Rule to prove offence in criminal trial beyond reasonable doubt — Not applied in proving misconduct — Findings of departmental authorities whether vitiated — Statement of facts accompanying charge sheet — Ground of misconduct stated in statement but not in charge-sheet — Enquiry whether vitiated. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1963 S C 1723.

——Art. 226 — Disciplinary proceedings against an officer of the composite State — Non-compliance with rules. See Ibid, Art. 311 (2). (1959) 2 Lab L J 569 (Andh Pra).

——Art. 226—Disciplinary proceedings against Government servant — Proceedings started with view to take action for certain questionable acts done by said servant while serving in Bellary—Proceedings started in Madras State transferred on formation of Andhra State to that State at request of Government servant—Jurisdiction of Andhra State questioned in High Court in writ proceeding filed against order of removal of said servant by Government of Andhra State—Held, apart from inconsistent attitude of petitioner no injustice had ensued to Government servant. 1959 Lab L J 569 (Andh Pra).

——Art. 226—Master and Servant—Municipal servant—Suspension with retrospective effect not legal—No injustice caused to him. AIR 1960 Bom 274.

——Arts. 226, 311 (2)—Damodar Valley Corporation Act (1948), Ss. 7, 60 (2) (b) — Dismissal of servant of Corporation—Issue of writ of certiorari.

In order that a writ of certiorari may issue for quashing the departmental proceedings and the order of dismissal which follows as a result of such proceedings, it must be shown that an obligation or duty has been imposed by Statute upon the employer to act judicially or quasi-judicially in relation to such inquiry.

There is nothing in the Damodar Valley Corporation Act which makes it incumbent upon the Corporation to make regulations imposing a duty on the Corporation to hold a judicial or quasi-judicial enquiry into the charges of misconduct of its officers. There is therefore no duty either express or implied in the Corporation to act judicially or quasi-judicially in matters of dismissal of its employees and hence a writ of certiorari cannot issue.

Further, the different provisions of the Damodar Valley Corporation Act, 1948, indicate that the Corporation has a separate and independent existence and is a different entity from the Union or State Governments. Its servant cannot, therefore, be treated as an officer holding a civil post under the Union and/or the State Government and as such there is no duty upon the Corporation to act judicially imposed by Art. 311 (2) of the Constitution. A I R 1953 Cal 581 (582, 583) (Pt A) (Prs 4, 8).

——Arts. 226 and 311 (2) — Disciplinary proceedings —Finding of enquiring authority — High Court has jurisdiction to question whether there is no evidence in support of finding. A I R 1966 Him Pra 13 (16) (Pt B) (Pr 16).

——Arts. 226 and 311 — Disciplinary proceeding against Government servant — Acquittal by Criminal Court of charges on identical facts — Effect. A I R 1965 Mad 502.

——Arts. 226 (1) and 363 (1) — Dispute arising out of Covenant—Jurisdiction to entertain petition under Art. 226

Where in a petition for a writ quashing the State's order prematurely retiring the petitioner from service, the petitioner does not pray for enforcement of anything contained in the Covenant entered into by the Princes to form Pepsu, nor does the dispute arise out of any of its provisions, the mere fact that the State, in addition to the rules of services, also relies upon one of the articles of the Covenant to justify its action does not amount to saying that the dispute arises out of the Covenant, and does not oust the jurisdiction of the High Court to entertain the petition or to grant any relief thereon. I L R (1955) Patiala 327 : A I R 1955 Pepsu 65 (72) (Pt F) (Pr 21) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Departmental enquiries — Final disposal of enquiry—Re-opening of. ILR (1953) Patiala 639 : AIR 1954 Pepsu 129.

——Art. 226 — Assets and liabilities of State undertaking taken over by Corporation constituted under Statute—Corporation has the right to proceed with pending disciplinary proceedings against the employee transferred to its services and continuing in such services and to punish him — Whatever other remedy the aggrieved employee, who does not hold any civil post, may have, he cannot seek redress under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Misc. Petn. No. 225 of 1957, dated 19-11-1958 (M. P.), Rel. on. 1964 M P L J 432.

——Art. 226 — Past service record used only to see whether lesser punishment could be awarded to delinquent employee and not against him—Fact that record was not made available to the employee does not vitiate punishment awarded. 1964 M P L J 432.

——Art. 226 — Mysore Civil (Services Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules (1957), R. 10 (1) and (6) — Order of suspension under R. 10 (1)—Does not come to end after expiry of six months — Continues until vacated by Government or by other process known to law—Delay in commencement of disciplinary proceedings—Does not entitle employee to writ for quashing the order under Art. 226 of Constitution. See Mysore Civil (Services Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules (1957), R. 10 (1). (1963) 1 Mys L J 434 (DB).

——Art. 226—Rajasthan Civil Services (Classification Control and Appeal) Rules (1950), R. 16 — Departmental enquiry resulting in exoneration — Second departmental enquiry on same facts — Maintainability—(Justice, Equity and Good Conscience). See Rajasthan Civil Services (Classification Control and Appeal) Rules (1950), R. 16. AIR 1958 Raj 38.

23 (f). Finding of enquiry.

——Art. 226—Order of dismissal—Some of the findings of enquiry officer but not all being unassailable —High Court cannot ask authority to reconsider the order. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1963 S C 779.

——Art. 226—West Bengal Government Servants Conduct Rules (1959), R. 4 — Disciplinary action against public servant on charge of unbecoming conduct — Finding challenged by writ petition — Duty of High Court—Misconduct — What amounts to. See West Bengal Government Servants Conduct Rules (1959), R. 4. AIR 1964 Cal 503.

——Art. 226—Disciplinary action against public servant — Finding of guilty when can be based on circumstantial evidence — Evidence not justifying such finding - Error can be corrected under Art. 226. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1964 Cal 503.

——Arts. 226, 311—Procedure – Dismissal of civil servant after departmental enquiry—Writ proceedings —Findings of tribunal on some charges vitiated —Order—If can be upheld on other findings.

Where an order of dismissal is made by an executive authority based on the findings of an enquiry Officer and some of the findings turn out to be not sustainable, it is not desirable or proper to allow the order of dismissal to stand inasmuch as it is not possible to ascertain to what extent the bad findings operated on the mind of the dismissing authority or whether the dismissal order would have been made at all if only the remaining findings had been before them. AIR 1943 F C 1 and A I R 1954 S C 179, Rel. on. Nripendra Nath Bagchi v. Chief Secretary, Govt. of West-Bengal. 65 Cal W N 361 ; (1961) 2 Lab L J 312 : A I R 1961 Cal 1 (15, 16, 19, 21) (Pt J) (Prs 66, 89, 103) (SB).

——Arts. 226, 311 (2) — Failure to supply report of enquiry to delinquent—Difficulty in defending case not complained of while contesting show cause notice or filing appeal and memorial — Plea raised for first time in writ application held not maintainable — Rules of natural justice not violated. See Ibid, Art. 311 (2). (1961) 3 Fac L R 442 (Cal).

——Arts. 226 and 311 (2) — Whether disciplinary authority is correct or not in appreciating evidence is not open to question in writ proceedings. I L R (1965) 2 Mad 508 : 79 Mad L J 428.

——Arts. 226 and 311—Writ petition against dismissal of civil servant — Departmental inquiry — Findings — High Court would not interfere on questions of appreciation of evidence.

It is not the function of the Court in exercising jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution to go into questions of appreciation of evidence. The Court has to see whether Art. 311 of the Constitution has been contravened and whether the petitioner had reasonable opportunity of being heard in respect of the charges framed against him. Unless it is a case of total lack of evidence, the Court will not be justified in interfering in departmental enquiries, on question of appreciation or discussion of evidence. Orders passed in departmental inquiry are not judgments delivered by Court of law. Hence the mere fact that there is no discussion of defence evidence or that no reasons were given for rejecting it would not be ground for interference. (1965) 1 Mys L J 422 : (1965) 2 Lab L J 583 : A I R 1965 Mys 283 (284) (Pt A) (Pr 5) (DB).

——Art. 226 and Art. 311 (2)—Order of dismissal — Some of the findings of enquiry Officer but not all being unassailable — High Court cannot ask authority to reconsider order.

When a Court of fact acts on material partly relevant and partly irrelevant, it is impossible to say to what extent the mind of the Court was affected by the irrelevant materials used by it in arriving at its finding. Such a finding is vitiated, because of use of inadmissible materials. In such case, the superintending Authority, like the High Court, cannot decide whether some of the grounds wrongly rejected or wrongly accepted are good or bad. Nor can they attempt to assess in what manner and to what extent each of these grounds operated on the mind of the appropriate authority and contributed to created satisfaction on the basis of which a particular punishment is imposed. The departmental proceedings under Art. 311, of the Constitution are one continuous proceeding though there are two stages in it. The second stage is reached only if a conclusion is reached on the findings that the charges lodged against the Government servant are established. The second stage deals with the action taken against the Government servant concerned and both the stages are equally judicial. The very object with which notice is required to be given on the question of punishment is to ensure that it will be such as would be justified upon the charges established and upon the other attendant circumstances of the case. But the Court in a case in which an order of dismissal of a public servant is impugned is not concerned to decide whether the sentence imposed, provided it is justified by the rules, is appropriate having regard to the gravity of the misdemeanour established. The reasons which induce the punishing authority, if there has been an enquiry consistent with the prescribed rules, are not justiciable; nor is the penalty open to review by the Court. Therefore if the order may be supported on any finding as to substantial misdemeanour for which the punishment can lawfully be imposed, it is not for the Court to consider whether that ground alone would have weighed with the authority in dismissing the public servant. The Court has no jurisdiction if the findings of the enquiry officer or the Tribunal prima facie make out a case of misdemeanour, to direct the authority to reconsider that order because in respect of some of the findings but not all it appears that there had been violation of the rules of natural justice. A I R 1963 S C 779, Foll. (1964) 6 O J D 107.

——Art. 226 — Order of dismissal — Order based on charges, findings on some of which are vitiated — Order of dismissal is to be set aside and cannot be justified on the basis of remaining charges. See Ibid, Art. 311. A I R 1962 Orissa 78 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 311 — Dismissal of Government servant — Petition under Art. 226 — Power of High Court to go into findings.

In exercise of the extraordinary jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution, the High Court cannot go into the merits of the findings and discuss whether the charge against the Government servant who is dismissed were fully established or whether the punishment was too severe considering the nature of the charges. These are matters regarding which the appointing authority's decision should be taken as final. ILR (1957) Cut 241 : A I R 1957 Orissa 74 (74, 75) (Pt A) (Pr 3) (DB).

——Art. 226—Enquiry against Government servant — Order of removal from service — Finding based on matters outside scope of charge sheet — Held, no reasonable opportunity was afforded and hence order was liable to be quashed. See Ibid, Art. 311. (1965) Cur L J 289 : 67 Pun L R 513.

——Arts. 226, 311 — Interference in disputed matters of fact by High Court — Permissibility—Dismissal of railway servant for misconduct regardless of contrary finding by Board of Inquiry — Total lack of judicial approach shown by dismissing authority — High Court can set aside order of dismissal. A I R 1962 Punj 482, Approved. 65 Pun L R 571 : (1964) 1 Lab L J 321 : ILR (1963) 1 Punj 862 : (1963) 7 Fac L R 58 : A I R 1963 Punj 336 (337) (Pt A) (Prs 10, 11) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 311 — Finding in Departmental enquiry against Government servant—High Court has no jurisdiction to examine grounds upon which such findings were reached. 1962 Cur L J 120 : A I R 1962 Punj 289 (291) (Pt B) (Pr 10).

——Arts. 226, 311—Reduction in rank of Government employees — Writ application filed against Government — High Court will not go into question of fact. 1957 Raj L W 5 : ILR (1957) 7 Raj 5 : AIR 1957 Raj 81 (82) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

[Overruled on another point in A I R 1958 S C 36.]

23 (g). Contravention of principles of natural justice.

See also Note 78.

——Art. 226 — Natural justice — Disciplinary action against Government servant—Charge of participating in strike—Evidence of strike not mentioned in charge-sheet—Effect. See Ibid, Art. 311. A I R 1959 All 614.

——Art. 226—Natural justice—Disciplinary inquiry—Reasonable opportunity to defend — Absence of — Statement of witnesses not recorded in the presence of Civil Servant — Merely allowing exhaustive cross-examination — Effect. See Ibid, Art. 311. A I R 1958 All 532.

——Arts. 226 and 311—Departmental enquiry against P—Superior officer issuing instructions to Enquiry Officer to proceed in particular way—Held, fact that there were instructions to enquiry officer indicated that enquiry was not fair and officer was not unbiased: AIR 1958 S C 86, Foll. ILR (1963) Andh Pra 308.

——Art. 226 — Jurisdiction of High Court — Illegal order of dismissal of schoolmaster — Quashing of — Applicant getting employment elsewhere — If bar to issue of writ. See Madras Elementary Education Act (1920), Rules under R. 13 (2) (ii) (a) and (b). (1960) 2 Andh W R 305.

——Art. 226—Powers of High Court — Departmental enquiry held against public servant — Adverse orders — Suit by such public servant — Power to examine record to see if rules of natural justice have been followed. See Constitution of India, Art. 311 (2). (1957) 1 Andh W R 370 : A I R 1957 Andh Pra 794.

——Art. 226 — Natural Justice — Violation of—Administrative Tribunal — Quasi-judicial proceedings—Police Official — Disciplinary proceedings—Punishment confirmed in appeal—Denial of opportunity by appellate authority to appellant to be heard in person—Appellate order being quasi-judicial cannot be upheld—Constitution of India, Arts. 311 and 226.

Although the act of punishing a public servant by competent authority is in the nature of an administrative act, nevertheless it involves exercise of judgment. The proceedings would assume the character of quasi judicial proceedings.

Similarly, the power of the appellate authority would involve the exercise of a judgment as to the correctness or otherwise of the action taken, which is made the subject-matter of appeal. The functions of the appellate authority would partake of the character of quasi-judicial functions.

Petitioner, a police official, was punished in departmental proceedings, by the order of a Superintendent of Police. The order was confirmed in appeal without allowing the petitioner to be heard. The order was challenged by a petition under Art. 226 of the Constitution.

Held, that there being nothing in R. 66 of the Assam Police Manual, Vol. III, requiring the appellant to demand personal hearing as an additional feature in his appeal, his normal right to be heard in support of his appeal, before it was rejected, prevailed. ILR (1963) 15 Assam 373 : AIR 1963 Assam 183 (184) (Prs 2, 3) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 311 — Dismissal of public servant —Interference by High Court.

Where an order of dismissal of a public servant is found to be wholly unjustified, the High Court can interfere under Art. 226. It "is imperative on the State to frame specific charges with full particularity, intimate those charges to the Government servant concerned, give him an adequate opportunity to answer those charges and after considering his answers to take its decision". AIR 1953 Nag 138, Relied on. 1954 Cri L Jour 31 : ILR (1954) 6 Assam 107 : A I R 1954 Assam 18 (22) (Pt G) (Pr 11) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Order of suspension not followed by charge sheet within reasonable time—Order liable to be quashed. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1965 Cal 13.

——Arts. 226, 311—Disciplinary proceedings against Government servant—Proper and reasonable opportunity to defend — Inspection of documentary evidence—Proper stage for — Non-production of material witness—Whether non-observance of natural justice rule—Natural justice—Principles of — When violated and when not—Civil P. C. (1908), O. 11, R. 15—Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules, R. 55.

In disciplinary proceedings under R. 55 of the Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules, refusal to give copies of relevant documents to the delinquent officer, at initial stage before he puts in his defence is not violative of the principles of natural justice, because ordinarily a defendant is not given an opportunity of inspecting documentary evidence in the possession of the plaintiff before the defendant puts in his written statement. But the delinquent officer is certainly entitled to inspect the evidence collected against him before commencement of the examination of witnesses against him. The failure to produce documents before cross-examination of the witnesses is, therefore, a violation of the rules of natural justice.

Similarly, non-production of a witness who is not a material witness cannot be the non-observance of the rules of natural justice. But where adjournment is asked for inspection of the depositions of the witnesses examined at the local inspection, it should be granted. If time is not granted it can be held that the delinquent was not allowed proper and reasonable opportunity of defending himself in the disciplinary proceedings taken against him. AIR 1957 S C 882; A I R 1961 S C 1623, Relied on. 68 Cal W N 203 : AIR 1964 Cal 184 (187, 188, 189) (Pt A) (Prs 15, 16, 17, 18 to 21) (DB).

——Art. 226 — Railway servant — Disciplinary proceedings—Natural justice—Chairman of inquiry committee replaced in the middle of inquiry by another who had not heard witnesses so far examined — Enquiry is vitiated. ('64) 68 Cal W N 1112.

——Art. 226 — Railway servant — Disciplinary proceedings—Natural justice—Fact finding committee finding prima facie case against servant — Member of fact finding committee appointed chairman of enquiry committee—Held that from this it could not be held that the chairman had a closed mind—The charge of bias must not be too readily assumed but must be proved by the person alleging the same. ('64) 68 Cal W N 1112.

——Art. 226—Writ petition — Dismissal of Government servant—Enquiry before dismissal—Necessary and relevant documents not supplied — Necessary witness not made available for examination — Statement of witness recorded without calling him as witness—Inquiry Officer using personal knowledge in arriving at finding—Effect.

A Government servant was dismissed from service for misconduct During the enquiry against him, he was not supplied with copies of certain documents which were necessary for him to make out his defence and to enable him to cross-examine witnesses. One of the witnesses whom he wanted to examine was not made available, though the Inquiry Officer did not consider that witness to be irrelevant. The statement of a witness who was not examined was placed on record of the enquiry proceedings. The Inquiring Officer made local inspection and made use of the personal knowledge in arriving at a finding without giving opportunity to him to wipe out that impression. In a writ petition filed by him.

Held, that the principles of natural justice were not observed at the enquiry and the dismissed servant was not given proper opportuuity to defend himself and hence the order of dismissal was liable to be quashed. (1963) 1 Lab L J 708 : (1963) 6 Fac L R 26 (Cal).

——Arts. 226 and 311 (2) — Departmental proceedings—Evidence Act — Applicability — Proceedings not in accordance with law—Quashing of—(Evidence Act (1872), S. 1).

Departmental proceedings are not in the same category as criminal prosecutions or even a civil proceeding in Court and the provisions of the Evidence Act do not apply. Nevertheless, the ordinary principles of proof and also the rules of natural justice must be applied. The charges must be proved by the prosecution, and it is not the duty of the delinquent to prove any part of it. The delinquent must be given every opportunity of testing the evidence adduced. Where, in such proceedings, no witnesses are called and nothing is proved and the matter is decided on all kinds of speculation the proceedings are not in accordance with law and are liable to be quashed by a writ of certiorari along with the order of removal. ('59) 63 Cal W N 702.

——Art. 226—Natural justice—Requirements — Dismissal of civil servant—Departmental proceedings—Trial of charge—Evidence recorded by person other than enquiring authority—Reasonable opportunity of defence not given—Effect. See Ibid, Art. 311. A I R 1958 Cal 470.

——Art. 226—Natural justice — Dismissal of civil servant—Trial of charge—Decision based on evidence recorded by person other than enquiring authority—Interference. See Ibid, Art. 311. A I R 1958 Cal 470.

——Arts. 226 and 311 — Railway employee—Railway Administration taking disciplinary action for serious misconduct of employee—Order of removal from service—Copies of proceedings before enquiry Committee not furnished—Validity of order—Order if can be supported under R. 148 (3), Railway Establishment Code,—Indian Railway Establishment Code, R. 148 (3)—Words and Phrases—'Removal from service').

Held, on facts that (i) it was not open to the counsel for the railway administration to make a different case on the facts at the time of hearing nor was it open to the Court to adopt a different basis for its order simply because something like a debating point was made before it; (ii) that the orders of removal actually passed could not be treated as termination of their services in accordance with R. 138 (3), Railway Establishment Code. R. 148 (3) does not contemplate or speak of removal from service which has a technical meaning; (iii) that the Railway Administration had proceeded by way of exercising their disciplinary jurisdiction and had passed the order of removal by way of imposing a penalty on the appellants. They had done so without giving a real and reasonable opportunity to the appellants to show cause against the proposed penalty, although, formally, an opportunity was offered. AIR 1956 Pat 23, Disting. (1957) 1 Lab L J 272 : 61 Cal W N 1 : AIR 1957 Cal 4 (8) (Pt B) (Prs 16, 17, 18, 19) (DB).

——Art. 226——Departmental enquiry — Enquiring officer relying on his own evidence. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1956 Cal 278.

——Art. 226 — Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules, R. 55—Departmental enquiry—Denial of opportunity to delinquent of calling evidence—Right of enquiring tribunal to pick and choose witnesses on behalf of delinquent — Witnesses called employees of authorities—Duty of authorities to assist delinquent—Entire proceedings bad — Proper order to be passed. See Ibid, Art. 311 (2). (1956) 60 Cal W N 692.

——Art. 226—Dismissal of servant — Absence of any statutory rules — Rules of natural justice to be followed. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1955 Cal 56.

——Art. 226 — Departmetnal enquiry — Reasonable opportunity — Violation of principal of natural justice. See Ibid, Art. 311 (2). A I R 1955 N U C (Cal) 3317.

——Art. 226 — Dismissal of civil servant — Departmental enquiry — Procedure — Principles of natural justice. See Ibid, Art. 311. A I R 1955 N U C (Cal) 2881.

——Arts. 226, 311 (2) — Before dismissal order is passed, civil servant must be given two opportunities of being heard- Failure is fatal — Remedy under Art. 226. See Ibid, Art. 311 (2). AIR 1955 Hyd 48.

——Arts. 226, 311 — Petitioner appointed honorary Magistrate under S. 14 (1), Cr P. Code for two years — Magisterial powers withdrawn before time on grounds of petitioner's political activity — Petitioner is entitled to 'reasonable opportunity' to show cause — Opportunity not given —Writ petition—Since withdrawal of magisterial powers caused slur or imputation on petitioner's character, the order of withdrawal was quashed, though the period of two years' tenure had expired during pendency of writ petition. A I R 1955 Cal 556, Rel. on. (1960) 1 Ker L R 486 : 1960 Ker L J 436 : I L R (1960) Ker 675 : 1960 Ker L T 708 : 1961 (1) Cri L J 657 : (1960) 2 Lab L J 407.

——Arts. 226 and 311 — Natural justice — Inquiry officer examining witnesses without notice to civil servant against whom the inquiry is held —Receipt of notice only after enquiry—Order of reversion should be quashed. AIR 1960 Ker 294.

——Arts. 226 and 311 — Removal of Government servant on ground of termination of a vacancy — Rule of relieving junior most first, ignored— Art. 311 — Issue of writ. See Ibid, Art. 311. A I R 1959 Ker 59 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Natural justice—Requirements—Government servant — Removal from service — Framing charges or opportunity to show cause — Necessity. See Municipalities — J. and K. State Municipal Act (1970), President. AIR 1958 J and K 6 (DB).

——Arts 226, 311—Applicability – Scope of inquiry —Removal from service — Writ petition — Question regarding severity of punishment awarded cannot be considered in writ jurisdiction. 1962 Jab L J 97 : (1961) 3 Fac L R 54 : I L R (1961) Madh Pra 202 : 1961 M P L J 558 : 1961 M P C 613 : A I R 1961 Madh Pra 261 (263, 269) (Pt C) (Prs 6, 27).

——Arts. 226 and 311 — Natural justice — Dismissal of servant on charge of criminal nature — No opportunity given to explain or rebut charges — Order not maintainable. 1958 M P L J (Notes) 99.

——Art. 226—Departmental enquiry by Authority in the position — If against natural justice. See Ibid, Art. 311. (1957) M P L J 469 (Nag).

——Art. 226 — Disciplinary proceedings are not governed by rules of evidence — They should, however, conform to basic principles of natural justice — Natural justice requires that accused officer should have opportunity to cross-examine witness who had given earlier statement in absence of accused, so as to test truth or otherwise of version contained in such statement — Witness stating in his chief examination that his earlier statement during investigation was taken under duress and making it unnecessary for accused to cross examine him — Even then rule of natural justice can be said to have complied with. See Evidence Act (1872), S. 1. I L R (1965) 2 Mad 508.

——Art. 226—Departmental enquiry—Enquiry officer not a person experienced or trained in law who could be expected to meet legal points if raised — Accused not represented by counsel at the enquiry — Held, that Court would permit any legal point, which even if it went to the root of the jurisdiction of the tribunal to hold enquiry and was not taken before the tribunal to be urged for the first time before it in the writ proceedings. A I R 1958 Punj 14 and AIR 1961 Cal 195 and A I R 1961 Andh Pra 528, Distinguished. A I R 1964 Manipur 46 (58, 59) (Pt D) (Pr 38).

——Art. 226 — Disciplinary action against Government servant — Departmental proceedings — Punishment indicated even in charge framed—Not sufficient to indicate any bias in the disciplinary authority. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1963 Manipur 28.

——Arts. 226, 311—Fresh departmental proceedings against Government servant in respect of same matter—Dismissal order set aside by Court not on merits, but on ground that principles of natural justice were not observed—Fresh enquiry in respect of same allegations not illegal — Central Civil Service Rules (1957), R. 12 (4) — Second enquiry is covered by R. 12 (4) — No question of double jeopardy — Retrospective suspension — Validity — Constitution of India, Art. 20 (2).

Where the dismissal order passed against the petitioner (Government servant) was set aside by the Court not on the merits of the case, but only on the ground that the principles of natural justice were not observed and the petitioner was not given a chance in the enquiry to meet the charges against him, in such a case the disciplinary authority is entitled to rectify the mistake and hold a fresh enquiry in respect of the same allegation. AIR 1958 Raj 38, Disting. Again R. 12 (4) of the Central Civil Service Rules, 1957, contemplates that a second enquiry can be held in such cases. The second departmental enquiry held against the petitioner will not amount to punishing him more than once for the same offence and hence, no question of double jeopardy at all arises. An order of retrospective suspension in such a case is in accordance with R. 12 (4) and it cannot be questioned in writ proceedings where the question involved is the order of dismissal following the fresh enquiry in which the order of suspension has merged, unless the Rule itself is questioned as ultra vires the Constitution. AIR 1963 Manipur 28 (31, 32) (Pt C) (Prs 7, 8, 9, 10).

——Arts. 226, 311 — Departmental enquiry—Offence involving moral turpitude — Meaning of — Offence under S 4 (1) (a) of Mysore Prohibition Act (37 of 1948) held involved moral turpitude—Omission to specify in notice by disciplinary authority that offence committed by delinquent involved moral turpitude — Conviction established understanding Orders—Punishment held was competent. 1962 Mys L J (Sup) 498 (DB).

——Art. 226—Fundamental Rules—Appendix XXV, Part E—Suspension of Government servant pending criminal proceedings—Notice to him—If necessary.

There is no provision requiring a notice to be given to a Government servant before his suspension pending criminal proceedings against him. I L R (1952) Nag 52 : 1952 Cri L J 845 : 1952 Nag L J 221 : AIR 1952 Nag 170 (172) (Pt D) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 309 — Orissa Disciplinary Proceedings (Administrative Tribunal) Rules (1951), R. 7 (2)—Rules of equity and natural justice.

It is well settled by authority that rules of equity and natural justice require that the evidence against a person should as far as practicable be recorded in his presence and he shall be given an opportunity to cross-examine the witnesses and also to adduce evidence on his behalf. I L R (1957) Cut 177 : AIR 1957 Orissa 70 (72) (Pt C) (Pr 7) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 311 — (Orissa) Rules and Orders Relating to Conduct, Discipline and other Conditions of Service applicable to Government Servants, R. 55A —Dismissal of Government servant without giving personal hearing—Whether legal—(Special Tribunal) —(Natural justice), See Ibid, Art. 311. A I R 1956 Orissa 103 (DB).

——Art. 226—Bias—Railway Servants—Misconduct—Departmental enquiry—Committee—Constitution of—Charges relating to conduct of railway employees in connection with strike of loco-shed staff—Fact finding enquiry committee appointed first — Member of fact finding committee not disqualified from sitting on departmental enquiry. See Ibid, Art. 310. A I R 1963 Pat 38 (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari—Natural justice—Violation of — Government servant on probation — Order of discharge — Legality — (Maxims — "Audi alteram partem").

Where a Government servant on probation, is served with a notice to show cause against discharge and he is ultimately discharged without showing him the confidential reports on which the notice of discharge is based and without giving him an opportunity of meeting the allegations, there is violation of natural justice and the order of discharge is therefore illegal and can be quashed by a writ of certiorari. (1911) A C 179; (1935) 1 K B 249; (1949) 2 All E R 131 and A I R 1955 S C 65, Rel. on. 1955 B L J R 154 : 34 Pat 179 : A I R 1955 Pat 372 (373, 374) (Pt A) (Pr 4) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 311 (2)— Departmental enquiries—Procedure — Principle of natural justice — Evidence must be given in presence of servant — Procedure to allow him to call any witness who had deposed against him in his absence, and examine him in his defence, is indeed a novel one. See Ibid, Art. 311 (2). I L R (1955) Patiala 314 : A I R 1955 Pepsu 172.

——Arts. 226 and 311 (2) — Departmental enquiry—Officer who is himself the complainant or important witness should not himself be the judge and final authority to decide fate of Civil servant. See Ibid, Art. 311 (2). A I R 1955 Pepsu 172.

——Arts. 226, 227 and 311 (2)—Departmental enquiry—Petitioner requiring copies of certain documents before replying to charges—Petitioner informed about offices where documents were available for his inspection and that he should apply for inspection or for copies in accordance with rules — Petitioner failing to avail of them — No grievance made by him at any stage before filing of writ petition—No prejudice held was caused to him. 67 Punj L R 404 : I L R (1965) 1 Punj 651 : A I R 1966 Punj 175 (178) (Pt D) (Pr 7).

——Arts. 226 and 311 (2) — Government servant — Departmental enquiry against — Representation through pleader not allowed — No violation of principle of natural justice.

A person against whom a departmental enquiry is held has no inherent right to be represented by a professional lawyer. There is no rule of natural justice conferring such a right. If the statutory rule governing such enquiries gives such a right then the effect of its non-compliance would be governed by the language of the rule itself. But apart from such a provision, merely because an employee has not been afforded the facility of being represented by a professional lawyer the enquiry against him cannot be struck down as violative of the rule of natural justice. A I R 1955 Punj 118 and C. W. No. 887 of 1959 (Punj), Foll.; A I R 1957 Andh Pra 414 and A I R 1958 All 532, Disting. 1962 Cur L J 541 : A I R 1963 Punj 90 (91) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226 — Departmental enquiry — Reasonable opportunity to defend against charges — Principle of natural justice — Violation of—Examination-in-chief conducted in absence of person charged — Witnesses however allowed to be cross-examined — Natural justice violated — Order liable to be set aside under Art. 226. See Ibid, Art. 311 (2). A I R 1962 Punj 496.

——Art. 226—Departmental enquiry—Enquiry officer refusing to summon witnesses for defence—Failure of justice. See Ibid, Art. 311 (2). A I R 1962 Punj 355.

——Arts. 226 and 311 (2) — Departmental enquiries—Who can hold—Natural justice—Observance of.

The question as to whether the rules of natural justice have or have not been observed in a given case depends on its peculiar circumstances. In departmental enquiries in service matters, it is the employer who has to hold the enquiry and to that extent it is inherent in the very nature of things that the Enquiry Officer cannot be so detached as Courts of law are in adjudicating upon disputes between litigants.

In the departmental enquiry against a clerk in the Bank the appointment of the nominees of and subordinate to the Managing Director of the Bank as the enquiry officer could not be said to be violative of the rules of natural justice. A I R 1958 S C 86 and A I R 1959 Punj 402 and A I R 1957 Andh Pra 414 and A I R 1961 All 45 and A I R 1958 Punj 327, Disting. 64 Punj L R 431 : (1962) 4 Fac L R 213 : (1962) 1 Lab L J 570 : A I R 1962 Punj 355 (358) (Pt A) (Pr 9).

——Arts. 226, 311 — Reversion from officiating post to substantive post inspired by test of seniority-cum-merit — No interference under Art. 226. See Ibid, Art. 311. A I R 1960 Punj 65.

——Art. 226—Natural justice — Delinquent asked to defend himself before person who is already biassed against him — Order of dismissal—Quashing of. See Ibid, Art. 311 (2). A I R 1958 Punj 327 (DB).

——Art. 226—Natural justice—Proceedings of departmental enquiry. See Ibid, Art. 311 (2). A I R 1958 Punj 327 (DB).

——Arts. 226, 311 — Dismissal of public servant—Petition under Art. 226—Scope of enquiry — (Public Servants (Inquiries) Act (1850), S. 23)—Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules, R. 55).

When a person seeks the intervention of the High Court under the provisions of Art. 226 on the ground that the rights guaranteed to him by Art 311 have been violated all that the Court is required to see is whether he was afforded a reasonable opportunity of showing cause against the action that was proposed to be taken in regard to him. No inquiry need be held either under the provisions of R. 55 of the Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules or under the provisions of the Public Servants (Inquiries) Act, 1850. A I R 1954 S C 375, Rel. on. I L R (1956) Punj 236 : A I R 1956 Punj 58 (62) (Pt C) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 311 (2) — Charges against Public servant—Enquiry by Commissioner—Powers of and procedure before Commissioner—Reasonable opportunity — What is — Jurisdiction of High Court—Extent of.

In an enquiry in respect of charges against a public servant, the responsibility for excluding evidence which is irrelevant or inadmissible or which is sought to be produced at a late stage of the proceedings devolved on the Commissioner and it is for him to decide, in the exercise of his discretion whether it should or should not be called.

It is not within the competence of the High Court exercising powers under Art. 226 of the Constitution, to control matters of procedure before a Commissioner or to review the orders passed by him. They can interfere with the procedure adopted by him if they are satisfied that it is not consistent with the essentials of a fair trial and can review the orders passed by him if they are satisfied that the person charged was prejudiced to the point of having been deprived of a reasonable opportunity of being heard. In any case, the constitutional guarantee of reasonable opportunity does not require that every request made by a party, whether reasonable or otherwise, must be acceded to. I L R (1956) Punj 236 : A I R 1956 Punj 58 (63, 68) (Pt F) (Prs 10, 27) (DB).

——Art. 226—Natural justice—Departmental inquiry—Witnesses examined in absence of person charged—Opportunity only to cross-examine offered—Violation held was not only of the rule but also of principles of natural justice. See Rajasthan Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules (1950), R. 16. A I R 1958 Raj 1 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 311 — Departmental enquiry — Confession not strictly in accordance with S. 164, Criminal P. C.—Use of—Rules of natural justice.

Assuming that a confession is not strictly in accordance with S. 164, Criminal P. C., and that it cannot be let in as a piece of evidence in a Criminal Court, it does not mean that it cannot be used in a departmental proceeding. Rules of natural justice which alone are applied in those proceedings will not prohibit even an extra-judicial confession being let in as evidence in such proceedings. A I R 1959 Tripura 51 (55) (Pt E) (Pr 14).

——Arts. 226 and 311 (2) — Departmental enquiry — Principles of natural justice—Servant making allegations against officer—Order of dismissal—Legality—Bias.

Held, that the question of fact which arose for decision was whether or not the Superintendent of Police had obtained a false statement from the constable under coercion which necessitated the latter to send a telegram to the I. G. of Police. Under the circumstances the Superintendent of Police himself was disqualified from acting as a judge in his own cause and the order of dismissal passed by him being vitiated by bias must be set aside. A I R 1955 Pat 131 and AIR 1955 Pepsu 172, Followed. AIR 1956 Vin Pra 14 (15) (Prs 2, 3, 5).

23 (h). High Court, powers of.

●——Art. 226 — Relief can be given on alternative basis that the impugned order of termination of service was invalid. Life Insurance Corporation Act (1956), Ss. 11, 49—Order under S. 11(2)—L. I. C. Field Officers (Alteration of Remuneration and other Terms and Conditions of Service) Order 1957, (also known as Blue Order) Cls. 10, 11, 5 — Regulations under S. 49, as envisaged by Cl. 11 of the Blue Order—Services of Field Officer, coming under Blue Order can be terminated only in accordance with Cl. 10 of the Blue Order—Para 4 (h) of circular under Cl. 4 (3) of Regulation does not give power, independent of Cl. 10 of the Order — Regulation regarding fixation of remuneration of development officers under Cl. 5 of Order — Scope of — Corporation cannot, however, demote officer under the circular — Officer claiming relief under Art. 311 (2) challenging validity of the Blue Order and Regulation — Relief can be given on alternative basis that the impugned order terminating service was invalid. See Life Insurance Corporation Act (1956), S. 11. AIR 1964 S C 847.

——Arts. 226, 311 — Question of fact—Petition for writ against order of dismissal of petitioner—Respondent alleging petitioner to be a temporary servant—Petitioner contending that he was permanent servant—It is a question of fact and cannot be entered into in writ application. A I R 1957 S C 882, Rel. on. (1961) 2 Lab L J 191 : (1961) 2 Fac L R 558 : A I R 1961 All 284 (285) (Pt A) (Pr 5).

——Art. 226—Powers of High Court — Order of suspension by Financial Adviser and Chief Accounts Officer—Question whether order was justified—Power of High Court to go into question. See Railway Establishment Code, Vol. I, R. 1711. A I R 1957 All 671 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Discretion of Governor in dismissing servant — U. P. Disciplinary Rules—Conditions inducing Governor to dismiss servant is not justiciable. See U. P. Disciplinary Proceedings (Administrative Tribunal) Rules, R. 10 (a). AIR 1954 All 629 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 311—Disciplinary Tribunal finding civil servant guilty of charges of corruption—Government accepting findings — Compulsory retirement suggested by Tribunal as punishment—Recommendation also accepted—It is not for High Court in petition under Art. 226 to enquire into question as to reasonableness, adequacy or propriety of punishment. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1961 Andh Pra 289.

——Art. 226—Scope of inquiry—Charges under Rule 12 of the Cantonment Fund Servants Rules (1937) against petitioner, a sanitary inspector—Application under Art. 226 praying that Cantonment Board as represented by its President be restrained from enquiring into the petitioner's case on ground of prejudice—It is not necessary for High Court to go into particulars of either the charges or denials of them, as such enquiry would not be germane to the scope of the application. AIR 1961 Andh Pra 37 (38) (Pt A) (Pr 3).

——Art. 226 — Power of High Court—Action under Art. 311 (2), Proviso (c) — Power of Court to enquire into question of satisfaction. See Ibid, Art. 311 (2), Proviso (c). AIR 1958 Andh Pra 619 (DB).

——Art. 226 — Powers of High Court—Disciplinary proceeding against Government Officer—Grounds for interference. See Ibid, Art. 311 (2). AIR 1958 Andh Pra 240 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 311 — Government servant—Appointment by Government — Temporary order of dismissal by Collector on the strength of a Government Order — Validity — Procedure under O. 33 of the Bombay C. S. Rules observed — Ex parte order — Justified — No opportunity to show cause against dismissal—Art. 311 (2) contravened — Issue of writ—Refused under the circumstances of the case.

The petitioner applied for a writ of certiorari or in the alternative a writ of mandamus directing the opponents to reinstate him and praying the issue of any other directions which the Court may deem fit and proper.

His contentions are that the Collector could not by his order terminate the services of the petitioner appointed by the Government, that before passing the order the provisions of R. 55 of the Bombay Civil Service Rules have not been complied with and no inquiry was made as prescribed thereunder, that no opportunity to show cause against the order of dismissal was given and so Art. 311 (2) of the Constitution has been contravened.

The contentions of the opponents are that the petitioner was entertained on a temporary basis, terminable on one month's notice either way, that he was served with a charge sheet in accordance with the provisions of R. 33 of the Bombay C. S. (etc.) Rules, that he filed a statement denying the charges and making the impossible demand for copies of statements of witnesses on which the charges were formulated to question the authority of the Deputy Collector to hold the inquiry and did not require an oral inquiry which he might have insisted on, that the ex parte decision arrived at by the Government was proper that the petitioner was not entitled to claim the privileges under Art. 311.

Held : The petitioner by his conduct in not demanding an open inquiry, and failing to state in his reply to the charge-sheet served on him under R. 33 that he desired to be heard in person and making impossible demands has made the Government decide ex parte and the charge that he was not given an inquiry as prescribed in R. 55 of the Bombay C. S. (etc.) Rules has to be dismissed as entirely unfounded and unjust.

The order of the District Collector, dated 27th April, 1950 terminating the service of the petitioner specially mentions the Government's orders R. O. No. 152621—4—1950 on the strength of which the order purports to have been passed. The decision to terminate the service was that of the Government and in making the order neither Government nor the Collector contravened the provisions of Art. 311 (1).

The petitioner, though a temporary employee of the Government and though the post he held is temporary, he is a person holding a civil post in the State of Saurashtra his being entertained on a contract basis makes no difference in the status. Art. 311 is applicable to the case of such employees also. Government's case is not that the petitioner was given an opportunity to show cause against the proposed order of dismissal as provided under Art. 311 (2). Therefore the order is in contravention of Art. 311 (2) though it does not offend the provisions of R. 55 as aforesaid. (AIR 1950 Lah 59, Rel. on.)

On the question of the issue of writs, the fact that the petitioner had obtained service in the state of Rajasthan and in consequence his inability to rejoin the service in Saurashtra and the possibility of his services after reinstatement being terminated as per contract on one month's notice or on payment of one month's salary without assigning any reasons therefor, having been brought to the notice of the advocate for the petitioner the prayer for a writ of mandamus for reinstatement was given up. The prayer for declaration that the petitioner's services were wrongfully terminated was unnecessary in view of the finding that the order was in contravention of Art. 311 (2) and invalid and therefore refused. AIR 1952 Sau 40 (42, 43) (Pts A, D, E) (Prs 2, 7).

——Art 226—Disciplinary inquiry against civil servant — Inquiry conducted ignoring statutory rules — Whether High Court has power to direct Government to make inquiry according to rules ? (Quaere). 1956 Andh W R 978 : 1956 Andh L T 979 : A I R 1957 Andh Pra 197 (202) (Pt G) (Pr 14) (DB).

——Art. 226—Rules under Art. 309—Assam Government Servants Conduct Rules, 1937, R. 11 (d) — Dismissal of Government servant—Possession of property disproportionate to known sources of income — Presumption by Government—Nature of—Power of High Court — It is not for the High Court to examine evidence and come to its own conclusion whether the opinion of the Government is correct. See Ibid, Art. 309. AIR 1962 Assam 17 (DB).

——Arts. 226 and 311—Letter of resignation of public servant accepted and public servant debarred from continuing service — Public servant denying that he submitted resignation—Letter of resignation not produced—Evidence of resignation not tendered —Order accepting resignation quashed.

The applicant's case was that he was removed from service without compliance with Art. 311, that all of a sudden he was informed that his resignation was accepted, that he had never tendered any resignation, that he was never informed as to why he was being dismissed, that the grounds of dismissal were never communicated to him and that he was not given any opportunity of being heard. The non-applicants did not produce the alleged letter of resignation, nor did they tender any evidence, oral or otherwise, to show that the resignation was tendered or to whom it was tendered or the date on which it was tendered. The affidavits filed on behalf of the non-applicants were vague and appeared to suppress facts

Held, that under the circumstances, the order accepting the alleged resignation should be quashed. The order was quashed and it was ordered that the applicant should be deemed to be in service since the date of the order and onwards subject however, to the result of the departmental enquiry which was then pending against him. AIR 1954 Bhopal 25 (30) (Pt F) (Pr 22).

——Art. 226—Central Civil Service (Safeguarding of National Security) Rules (1953), Rr. 3, 4—Power of High Court to interfere — Action proposed under R. 3 founded on mere suspicion — Although High Court cannot interfere with final action by President under R. 3, question whether Government servant was reasonably suspected to be engaged in subversive activities or not is capable of judicial review.

The action that is permitted to be taken under R. 3 as a result of notice under R. 4, infringes on the normal right of the public servant to continue in service till the end of his tenure and only safeguard that is available to the Government servant is an insistence that the activities of which he may be charged, namely, that he was engaged or was reasonably suspected to be engaged must be subversive activities and the rule does not commit to the exclusive satisfaction of the President the decision as to what a subversive activity is. The action is admittedly taken in the interests of national security, and to that extent is immune from challenge on merits. But what is immune is the decision of the President that it is necessary in the interests of national security to terminate the services of the public servant concerned, but it has still to be established that the subversive activities of which the delinquent servant is charged are, in fact, subversive and to that extent the opinion of the President must be grounded on material which has a rational probative value : 1957 Nag L J 75 and AIR 1956 Mad 220, Rel. on. In fact, the use of the words 'reasonably suspected' itself postulates that the term is capable of an objective assessment as to whether an activity could be called a subversive activity. 1963 Mah L J 15 : 65 Bom L R 48 : (1963) 1 Lab L J 459 : ILR (1963) Bom 425 : A I R 1965 Bom 59 (63, 64) (Pt C) (Prs 17, 18) (DB).

——Art. 226 – Scope of inquiry — Retirement under Civil Services Regulations, Art. 465-A — Whether it was in public interest to retain him cannot be challenged before Court. See Civil Services Regulations, Art. 465-A, Note 1. AIR 1958 Bom 90 (DB).

——Art. 226 – Order of suspension cannot be made to operate retrospectively – Court, while declaring retrospective part invalid, may allow prospective part of the same order to stand—But Court will not do so if that amounts to passing of 'new' order. See Ibid, Art. 311. AIR 1965 Cal 13.

——Arts. 226, 311—Temporary employee complaining of wrongful dismissal must approach under Art 226 without delay.

Temporary employees while complaining of wrongful dismissal should really not delay proceedings under Art. 226 for the very simple reason that at best it is a challenge for a wrongful dismissal and posts and work attendant thereon cannot be left vacant for an indefinite period without detriment to administration, and a constitutional remedy should be sought with reasonable promptitude. If not then it is unwise to use the discretion in their favour in granting such rules. (1963) 6 Fac L R 378 : (1963) 2 Lab L J 569 : AIR 1963 Cal 421 (423) (Pt B) (Pr 7).

——Art. 226 — Grounds for interference — West Bengal Services Rules, Rr. 151, 145.

Leave cannot be claimed as a matter of right. No writ under Art 226 should issue from the High Court to grant such leave. No question of leave, however, arises after the voluntary resignation of the Government servant concerned. A writ under Art 226 for a claim for damages at the rate of his salary on the basis of wrongful rejection of his application for leave is inappropriate : A I R 1958 Cal 654, Foll. 64 Cal W N 857 : (1960) 2 Lab L J 502 : AIR 1961 Cal 164 (165) (Pt B) (Pr 6).

——Arts. 226, 311 — Railway Establishment Code, R. 2046 (2) (a) — Scope — Discretion of High Court. See Railway Establishment Code, R. 2046 (2) (a). AIR 1958 Cal 657.

——Arts. 226, 310 and 311—Applicability—Wrongful dismissal of public servant — Writ to earn damages.

The use of Art. 226 of the Constitution to earn damages for wrongful dismissal of a Government servant is inappropriate. 62 Cal W N 352 : (1959) 1 Lab L J 141 : A I R 1958 Cal 654 (655) (Pt B) (Pr 8).

——Art. 226 – Interference — Grounds — Order of lower tribunal correct – Interference with order.

A Court of Equity ought not to interfere with the orders of inferior tribunals or bodies, if on the facts, it is itself of the opinion that the order made is correct and is in accordance with the justice of the case.

Held, applying this principle, that the petitioner, a Station Master, who was removed from service was not entitled to any relief under Art 226, because the order of removal made by his superior officer was correct inasmuch as the charge, which was proved against him, was that he had on more than one occasion, in spite of warning, indulged in impertinence and unnecessarily rude and disrespectful language in official correspondence. (1959) 1 Lab L J 374 : 62 Cal W N 169 : A I R 1958 Cal 633 (633, 634) (Pt A) (Pr 2).

——Arts. 226, 311 — Dismissal of railway servant — Railway authority applying its mind to facts — Bona fide conclusion — High Court will not consider question on merits — Sufficiency of conviction is entirely for Railway authorities to decide. A I R 1955 N U C (Cal) 1795 (DB).

——Arts. 226 (1) and 311 — Civil servant — Action against—Reasonable opportunity given to show cause —Relief under Art. 226 — (Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules, (framed under S. 96B (2), Government of India Act 1915), R. 55).

Where a reasonable opportunity is in fact given to a civil servant to show cause against the action proposed to be taken in regard to him, as required by Article 311 of the Constitution or R. 55 of the Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules the High Court would have no jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution to grant any relief to the petitioner. AIR 1952 Him Pra & B 43 (45) (Pt A) (Pr 7).

——Arts. 226 and 311 — Dismissal of civil servant, grounds of — In application under Art. 226, High Court will not re-assess merits of grounds.

Where the State Government dismisses its employee, on the ground that he submitted a false birth date in his application to the Public Service Commission, the High Court will not, in an application under Art. 226, reassess the merits of the grounds of dismissal. The High Court in exercise of its powers under Art. 226 does not sit as an appellate authority over such decisions. Whatever be its conclusions on the facts of the case, it cannot be substituted for those which the State Government under the Constitution are authorised to take. The Constitution, however, empowers the High Court to enforce constitutional guarantees by issuing appropriate writs or orders and such guarantees are not confined to Part III of the Constitution. I L R (1955) Hyd 152 : AIR 1955 Hyd 48 (51) (Pt A) (Pr 6) (DB).

——Art. 226—Scope of inquiry — Dismissal of Civil servant—Writ petition—Plea that petitioner's appointment was itself invalid because of misrepresentation —Maintainability. See Constitution of J. & K., S. 103. AIR 1959 J & K 13.

——Arts. 226, 310 and 311 — Complaints as to service conditions—Not amenable to judicial review under Art. 226.

Complaints as to service conditions by servants of the Central or State Governments are not amenable to judicial review under Art. 226 of the Constitution. Except in respect of matters governed by Art. 311 all the jural relations between the State and the subject are governed by Art 310. And if under Art 310 the servant's service, is at the pleasure of the State, the servant cannot have any legal complaint on the score of mere change in the service conditions. 1959 Ker L T 492 : AIR 1960 Ker 82 (83) (Pr 2).

——Art. 226 — Scope of—Remedy under Art. 226—When available to dismissed Government servant. See Ibid, Art. 310. AIR 1954 Madh B 49 (DB).

——Art. 226—Certiorari, writ of—Dismissal of Civil Servant—Act is purely administrative — Certiorari cannot be issued to correct dismissal order—Petitioner whether entitled to any other relief—(Madhya Bharat) Civil Services (Punishment and Appeal) Rules 1950, R. 8—Art. 226, Art. 310, Art. 311.

It is evident on the language of Arts. 310 and 311 of the Constitution that an order of dismissal, removal or reduction of a Civil servant is an administrative order. There is nothing in the language of these articles to suggest that in making such an order the competent authority is obliged to act judicially. These articles recognise the principle that a Civil servant holds his employment at the pleasure of the President, Governor, or the Raj Pramukh, as the case may be, and they may put an end to the employment at any time for any reason stated or unstated, if in their opinion the continued employment of the Civil servant is detrimental to the interests of the State and the service. It is, no doubt, true that Art. 311 (2) prohibits the dismissal, removal or reduction of a Civil servant until he has been given a reasonable opportunity of showing cause against the action proposed to be taken in regard to him. But this provision of "a reasonable opportunity of showing cause against the action proposed to be taken in regard to him" cannot be treated as a condition imposing a quasi-judicial duty on the competent authority in passing an order of dismissal, removal or reduction of a Civil servant.

Nor does the fact that R. 8 of the Madhya Bharat Civil Services (Punishment and Appeal) Rules, 1950 contemplates an inquiry into such of the allegations as are not admitted by the Civil servant and entitles him to cross examine witnesses, and to lead his own evidence, import an obligation of acting quasi-judicially in the making of an order for the dismissal, removal, or reduction of the Civil servant.

Apart from the fact that the enquiry into allegations denied by the civil servant is optional with the authority, R. 8 does not cast on the authority the duty to call evidence before the inquiry and justify the charges against the Civil servant and prove them. The rule simply gives an opportunity to the civil servant to state his objections and call such evidence as he might be advised.

All service under the State being public service and for the public benefit, in making a decision, about the removal, dismissal, or reduction of a Civil servant the authority must obviously be guided by its own views as to what is expedient in the interests of the State and the service. The authority can base its opinion on whatever material it may think fit. This cannot be affected by the fact that the authority decides to hold an inquiry. The object of such an inquiry can only be to clear matters upon which the authority may like to be better informed. The inquiry cannot bind the discretion of the authority as to the material on which it may take action although it may have some bearing on the question of bona fides.

It is entirely erroneous to say that an order is quasi-judicial because it can be reviewed or is appealable. An administrative order can be subject to review or appeal by the appropriate administrative authority in much the same way as a judicial order is by judicial authorities. It is impossible to suggest that the nature of an order which is purely administrative and of the proceedings leading to it is entirely changed when it comes up before the reviewing or the appellate authority.

In this view an order terminating the services of a Civil servant cannot be quashed on certiorari. No other form of remedy under Art. 226 can be granted for the purpose of reviewing or avoiding the order of termination of his services. A mere declaratory relief that the removal of the applicant from service was illegal cannot be given under Art. 226.

Ordinarily the power under Art. 226 should not be exercised by the High Court if the petitioner has other convenient or adequate remedy. The burden lies on the applicant to show that he has no other specific and adequate legal remedy.

The question whether the applicant has been given a reasonable opportunity of showing cause as required by Art. 311 (2) is a question of fact or a question of law arising out of interpretation of facts proved. As the applicant's right to come to the High Court depends on certain facts which have to be proved the remedy under Art. 226 of the Constitution would be inappropriate. For the High Court cannot clearly enter into an investigation of the facts on which the petitioner bases his claim. They can conveniently be proved by the petitioner in a regular suit in a civil Court having the jurisdiction. In certiorari proceedings, the Court only considers the question whether the order which if challenged is on the face of it and on the material as it appears on the record returned and brought into the Court, was made by the authority acting within its jurisdiction. If, therefore, there is a dispute as to the facts constituting the material on the record it cannot be said that the error, if any, in the order appears on the record. ILR (1952) Madh B 253 : A I R 1952 Madh B 105 (110, to 113) (Pt B) (Prs 11, 16, 18, 19, 22, 27, 28, 29) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 311—Disciplinary proceedings against Government servant — Writ petition to quash such proceedings — Power of High Court under Art. 226 to interfere with punishment where proceedings are vitiated by contravention of Art. 311.

If there is a valid substratum of a finding of guilt against a Government servant in disciplinary proceedings upon which the inflicted punishment may rest, it would not be the province of the High Court in the exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction under Art. 226 of the Constitution to weigh the adequacy of the punishment as against the finding of guilt. The question of punishment being one purely within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Government there should be no transgression of that jurisdiction by the Court. If on certain proved charges punishment is awarded by the Government, the Court has no jurisdiction to cancel that punishment only because in its view the finding on some of the charges cannot be sustained. But where the Court has found that the disciplinary proceedings against a Government servant resulting in his compulsory retirement, are vitiated by contravention of Art. 311 of the Constitution and has held that the Government servant cannot be punished for suspicious conduct of having received illegal gratification without proof of evidence in support of such conduct, it is open to the High Court to issue the appropriate writ under Art. 226 to quash the proceedings. It is true that the Court issuing a writ cannot usurp the functions of the disciplinary jurisdiction of the Government over their employees, but it cannot be deterred from enforcing the provisions of Art. 311, though it might have the indirect consequence of interfering with something which was within the exclusive competence of the Government. AIR 1963 S C 779, Expl. and Dist. ILR (1964) 1 Mad 685 : (1964) 2 Mad L J 353 : (1964) 2 Mad L J (Cr) 583 : A I R 1964 Mad 166 (168) (Pt C) (Pr 9) (DB).

——Arts. 226, 309, 311—Irregularity in observance of rules in the matter of promotion — Aggrieved servant cannot have recourse to Court of Law.

The conditions of Civil service under the Government form an elaborate code consisting of rules which are detailed and minute in character. They have the force of a statute under Art. 309 of the Constitution but they are not part of the Constitution itself. Irregularities in the observance of the rules may occur. But a civil servant aggrieved by such irregularities cannot have recourse to the Court of law either in the form of a suit or action or in the form of a prerogative writ except in cases of violation of the provisions of Art. 311 of the Constitution. (1962) 5 Fac L R 262 : (1963) 1 Lab L J 46 : (1962) 2 Mad L J 140 : 75 Mad L W 758 : A I R 1962 Mad 485 (486) (Pt B) (Pr 5).